The prohibitionists, who have given scant heed to attacks on the law by the wets since the 18th amendment went into effect ten years ago, accepted Blaine's proposition as meeting the issue. They are fully confident of having the votes to win.

"I am ready to vote," said Senator Borah, of Idaho, "and I think it might be well to have congress go on record and make it clear that this amendment is there to stay."

There seemed to be little likelihood of a vote before the tariff contest is ended sometime next month, however. At that time there is every prospect of a field day on prohibition in the senate.

Meanwhile, over in the house the organized wet group was seeking to centralize its efforts in behalf of a campaign for modification of the dry law. Representative Sirovich, democrat, New York, hammered away for modification on the floor.

Sirovich, a member of the American College of Surgeons, demanded the substitution of emetics for poison in industrial alcohol and called also for a congressional inquiry of administration of the dry law in New York city. He estimated 100,000 speakeasies to be running there.

One after another the senate drys revealed they were ready to vote on Senator Blaine's proposition. He in turn said he would call up his proposal whenever the involved senate tariff debate permitted.

The resolution for repeal is now with the judiciary committee. Chairman Norris said he was willing to have it taken up by his committee whenever the Wisconsin member desired. He expressed the belief that there was no hope for it, but said he was willing to have it voted upon.

"Let's vote," said Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, of the dry bloc. "We are stronger now than when the 18th amendment was adopted."

Senator Blaine said he had no delusions about the senate situation and accepted the predictions of the drys that his resolution would be voted down.

"But I want congress on record," he said. "If they want this amendment to stay on the books, then let them enforce it."

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, the administration dry spokesman, said Blaine's proposition was "the courageous way to meet this issue and I am ready to vote on it."

Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, joined in the statement making by the drys, asserting that "nothing so represents the hopelessness of the wet cause as the prospect in congress for this amendment."

It remained for the house to have the only prohibition discussion of the day, and Dr. Sirovich was applauded as he waged his contest for modification and assailed enforcement conditions.

Referring to the recent plea of Bishop Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, for $200,000,000 for dry enforcement the New Yorker said: "If that is the toll to enforce prohibition, I would rather use it to pension every father and mother who has grown old in labor in this country when the curtain of life is about to fall."

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 15—The interstate commerce commission has just issued its final valuation of the New Haven railroad system as of June 30, 1915, placing same at $404,604,213. This valuation represents only the operated system owned and leased, at that time, including non-carrier physical property, and does not include the company's investment in steamship lines, other railroads (such as Boston & Maine, Ontario & Western, Rutland, etc.) electric, trolley and motor coach properties, or the New Haven's ownership in the valuable passenger terminals at New York and Boston.

The company claims that the final valuation for the same property should be at least $130,000,000 higher, even as of June 30, 1915, and being as of that earlier date, does not include the large amount of money which the company has spent on additions and betterments to its property since then.

The commission's findings of value are as of a date fourteen years ago and do not reflect present day conditions or values which the supreme court in its recent decision on the O'Fallon case stated must be taken into consideration in finding values.

STIMSON TALKED WITH BRITISH PRIME MINISTER

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Cordially welcomed to England at Plymouth at dawn today, Secretary of State Stimson hastened up to London by fast train with the American delegation to the naval disarmament conference and made a bee-line for Number 10 Downing street, official residence of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

For more than three hours Col. Stimson remained closeted with the British prime minister, but he was completely silent about the significance of their talk.

Beyond saying that the talk was "pleasant" and not interrupted except by "a nice cup of the prime minister's tea," he offered no information about it and successfully parried the efforts of journalists of all nations, whom he received tonight, to find out what really passed over the tea cups between America's chief delegate to the five power conference and the head of the British government. It was the longest pre-conference meeting yet held in London.

MAN WAS KILLED BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER

MILFORD, Jan. 17—(AP)—A hit and run driver tonight struck two men on the Bridgeport turnpike, about ten miles from here, killing one of them and injuring the other.

The dead man is Charles Snyder, 24, of Waterbury. His companion, Joseph Datalio, 25, also of Waterbury, suffered a fractured leg and severe head injuries.

They were walking along the highway, Snyder about 25 feet ahead of Datalio, when the death car bore down on them. Both were struck and hurled into the air.

According to Raymond Parmlee, of Milford, who was seated in his car and saw the accident, the automobile stopped about 200 feet away and then went on at a high rate of speed.

The victims were taken to a hospital here by three men who found them lying on the road at a point where the four track highway narrows down to a two track highway.

SILVER JUBILEE MOTOR BOAT SHOW IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—A 45-year-old launch believed to be the Adam of all the power craft, rubbed noses with the gilded elite of the 1930 era in the silver jubilee motor boat show which got under way today at the Grand Central Palace, with more than a million dollars worth of exhibits.

Resurrected to show how far the industry has progressed in less than half a century, the ancient grand-daddy of them all presented a striking contrast to the trim, gay, glistening cruisers, runabouts and outboards that flanked it on all sides.

$100,000 FIRE DAMAGE AT STAMFORD SHIPYARD

STAMFORD, Jan. 17—(AP)—One man was seriously burned and damage estimated at $100,000, was done today in a fire at Luders Marine corporation shipyard here, resulting from the explosion of an oil tank.

Nine small boats were burned, six a storehouse and three outside. The boats, small pleasure craft, were valued at close to $100,000.

James Eaton, a ship painter, was standing near the oil tank when it exploded. He was burned about the head and chest, and was rushed to a hospital.

The explosion is believed to have been started from a spark caused by a welder, James Lyons, who was working on the tank. He was knocked unconscious but was not burned.

NO RAISE IN TARIFF ON BLACK STRAP MOLASSES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—The senate today rejected a proposal to raise the present tariff on black strap molasses used for the manufacture of industrial alcohol from one-sixth of a cent to eight cents a gallon.

The vote was 54 to 22.

The present tariff of one-sixth of a cent is applied to all black strap, whether for stock feed or distilling, and was unchanged in the house bill and the measure reported by the senate finance committee.

Committee amendments to raise slightly the present tariff on edible and to retain the existing rate on black strap molasses then were approved.

This concluded action on committee amendments to the entire sugar schedule.

BRIBERY OF FOUR COAST GUARDSMEN ALLEGED

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 17—(AP)—Three coast guardsmen under arrest here are alleged to have been involved in the payment of a bribe by a Toledo bootlegger, it was disclosed tonight at the office of Lieutenant M. W. Rasmussen, commander of the district. The amount said to have been distributed among the men, stationed at Port Clinton, was $2,500.

Three of the coast guardsmen now in jail will be tried next week, Rasmussen said. They are Joseph Libby, Atlantic City; W. E. Wynder, surfman, and W. J. Blakeslee, coxswain. A fourth guardsman, who is alleged to have received $1,000 of the bribe money, has not been caught.

ALLEGED MURDERESS RETRACTS ACCUSATIONS

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 17—(AP)—Gladys May Parks, the 35-year-old defendant on trial for murder in the first degree, today took the witness stand and fought to free herself of the charges that she killed the two motherless children that had been placed in her care.

She had given conflicting statements regarding the death of Dorothy Rogers, 4 years old, and Timothy Rogers, 2 years. In two of them she had accused Judge Joseph A. Corio of Atlantic City of the murder of Timothy, and her brother-in-law, Earl Farr, as an accessory after the fact, but today she took back all she had said about the two men.

WIDESPREAD SEARCH FOR MISSING AIR MAIL PILOT

LAS VEGAS, Jan. 17—(AP)—A widespread search was launched today for Maurice Graham, missing air mail pilot. The Western Air Express had recruited nearly 50 airplanes including army, navy and marine corps craft and mobilized scores of horsemen to hunt for the veteran W. A. E. pilot, who disappeared a week ago in the mountainous desert wastes between here and Salt Lake City.

Grizzled prospectors and cowboys previously had joined in the hunt, providing knowledge of the trackless desert areas.

Charles S. Evans was elected librarian by the County Law Library association for the forty-third consecutive time in Bridgeport.

EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS ARE ABOUT THE SAME AS IN 1928

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17.—General employment conditions for December 1929 averaged about the same as in December, 1928, in Willimantic, according to a report made to the state chamber of commerce by Secretary John J. O'Rourke of this city. Other items of interest covered in the report for December follow: Increase of 3 per cent in total postal receipts, the comparative figures being $7,175, in 1928, and $7,403 in December, 1929. A 12 per cent increase in total savings bank deposits, the monthly figure being $2,033,162. Decrease of three per cent in water consumption. General increase in the amount of gas and electricity consumed of seven and 16 per cent respectively. During last December there were 63 new telephones installed as against 46 for the corresponding period in 1928, showing an increase of 41 per cent. There were five building permits issued for a total valuation of $6,330 as against three permits of $270 value in December, 1928. There were six real estate transactions valued at $17,500 while there were 13 in December, 1928, valued at $48,650. There was no notable change in general retail business.

MAURICE E. WALLEN PLEASES IN SONG RECITAL AT WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17—Maurice E. Wallen, of Hartford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Wallen of 387 Walnut street, returned to his alma mater this forenoon in a song recital at a meeting of Lyceum of Windham high school. In the presence of an appreciative audience of students and faculty members, the noted tenor presented a program of ten delightful numbers. A. Stanley Usher, of Hartford, was accompanist. Mr. Wallen told the student body of the thrill which appearance on the Windham high school stage gave him. The meeting was in charge of President Stowell Burnham and the minutes were read by Russell Potter, secretary. Instrumental music was by the W. H. S. orchestra under direction of Miss Elizabeth F. Hunt, of the faculty. Mr. Wallen's program follows: Song of Life, Cadman; Ashes of Roses, Woodman; Calm as the Night, Bohm; Liebestraum, Liszt-Schipa; From the Land of the Sky Blue Water, Cadman; The Moon Drops Low, Cadman; By the Waters of Minnetonka, Lieurance; My Lovely Celia, Higgins; Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal, Quilter, and Morning, Speaks. He sang three encore numbers, Come to the Fair, by Martin; Thank God for a Garden, by Del Riego, and I Passed by Your Window, by Brahe.

While the street committee and Acting City Engineer John F. Collins are investigating the matter of continuing construction on lower Main street, a definite outline of construction work on other streets is being arranged. A motion that the annual permanent street appropriation of $10,000 be used in continuing the work on lower Main street was tabled at the January council meeting with a request that the committee report on the approximate distance that can be surfaced for that amount. There is a somewhat puzzling situation on lower Main street owing to the presence of tentative plans of the state highway department to come into the city over a new route other than Natchaug and Ash streets. It is not known just how far into Main street this new route will come and members of the council cannot determine at present to what point they should continue permanent construction.

Superintendent of Streets Edwin O. Sumner is prepared to either use the $10,000 appropriation in construction on other streets or to utilize the material removed from Main street in repairing work. Sections of streets where sewers have been recently installed have suffered especially from the thaws. A fill of from 10 to 12 inches of gravel has been necessary on South Park street and other thoroughfares are to receive attention provided weather conditions remain good. Some 25 men are on the payroll of the street department at the present time.

Conseil Florimond, No. 74, and Conseil Ste. Cecile, No. 113, l'Union St. Jean Baptiste, observed the silver jubilee of the institution of the organizations at a brilliant celebration held in the ball room of the Al-Pierre Tavern Thursday evening. There was an attendance of about 700, including 150 from out of town. Noted guests were Henry F. Ledoux, of Nashua, N. H., president-general, and Alma Forcier, of Goodyear, fourth vice president general. Mrs. Laura Grenier, president of Conseil Ste. Cecile, was chairlady. Mrs. C. A. Lamoureux was mistress of ceremonies, assisted by Napoleon Bacon. Ex-presidents of both conseils presented to President Grenier were: Conseil Ste. Cecile, Miss Evalina Lemelim, Mrs. Aimy J. Martineau, Mrs. J. Leblond, Miss Alida Cartier, Miss A. Rousseau and Mrs. Charles A. Dufresne; Conseil Florimond, Alphonse Chagnon, Joseph Lefebvre, Pierre J. Laramee, Charles E. Dufresne, Wilfred J. Lavaude and Hector Lussier. Quartet selections were by Mrs. Goodwin, Mrs. Fortier, Edward Rocheville and Joseph F. Gaudreau. Miss Paula Perreault and Armand Perreault gave a comedy sketch entitled Le Ressenseur, and Mrs. Wilfred Cote favored with a dialogue, Fantaisie Sur Les Noms. Among the speakers was Alphonse Chagnon, first president of Conseil Florimond.

During the evening President General Ledoux presented silver pieces to the following, on behalf of the conseil: Miss Arzelie Rousseau, who has held office for 12 years; Mrs. George Lavigne, 10 years; Mrs. Albert J. Fournier and Mrs. E. Millette, nine years.

FUNERAL

Pierre Labonte

Funeral services for Pierre Labonte were held this morning from the home in South Willington with a high mass of requiem in St. Edward's church, Stafford Springs, at 9 o'clock. Burial was in St. Edward's cemetery. The bearers were: Hormisdas, Emile, Henry, Albert and Napoleon Labonte and Pierre Ducharme.

A delivery truck driven by Lewis C. Daniels of 301 Lewiston avenue, and a sedan operated by Alfred Caisse of 27 Chestnut street, collided with some damage in front of the Jordan Hardware company block this forenoon. Daniels was turning to enter a driveway adjoining the block as Caisse drove down Main street. Officer Roderick Lariviere conducted an investigation.

Dropping down from a comfortable figure that has been maintained almost without a break for the past two weeks, the mercury was down from 8 to 10 degrees above zero this morning. Ice cutting by independent dealers began in earnest today. The average thickness of the ice was given as six inches.

The Hebron Brass band is hoping for an amicable settlement of difficulties that are said to have brought about the resignation of Clarence Rathbun as president of the band. Secretary Howard Porter has called a special meeting of the bandsmen to take action on the resignation. It was indicated today that the trouble began when Rathbun found cause to reprimand one or two members of the band who are daily passengers on the high school bus which he operates to this city. Mr. Rathbun appeared before the town school board at Hebron regarding this matter and was exonerated of the charges preferred against him. His resignation from the band presidency followed.

Over 200 articles were finished at an all-day sewing meeting for St. Joseph's hospital held at the home of Mrs. William F. Maine in Windham Center Thursday. Mrs. Norton and her daughter, Miss Sylvania Norton of Westchester, the latter a well-known missionary, were guests. Luncheon was served by the hostess.

A naturalization session of the Windham county superior court will be held in the town building here Saturday at 2:15 o'clock, according to a notice by the clerk of the court.

At a bridge and luncheon given by the Misses Helen Reiss and Elizabeth F. Hunt, teachers, Thursday evening, Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock won first prize and Miss Helen Barber, second.

Mrs. Elsie G. Keating has presented her resignation as president of James J. Shea post, American Legion auxiliary to take effect February 5. Her husband, Dr. W. P. S. Keating has just been appointed physician and surgeon at the Soldiers' home in Noroton.

Mrs. C. Winfield Noyes has returned from a stay with her daughter, Mrs. E. C. Williams, Jr., in Andover, Mass.

Mrs. W. C Norris left today to be guest of her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Spears and family in Westfield, Mass., for a few days.

Mrs. Stokes Watson has been called to New Haven by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Green.

Stafford Springs

NEW TELEPHONE BUILDING TO BE OPENED TO PUBLIC

Plans are being made by Exchange Manager J. C. Frasier for keeping open house at the new telephone building in Stafford Springs Tuesday, Jan. 28, from 2:30 to 9 p. m. Manager Frasier has extended a cordial invitation to all subscribers to call.

The Stafford Springs Agricultural society has elected the following officers: President, Robert W. Smith; vice-presidents, Alexander Y. Mitchell, Frank H. Baker, James Sheppard, Jr.; secretary, David P. Mitchell; treasurer, Raymond B. Kelsey; secretary of racing, Michael O'Halloran; director of rentals and exhibition hall privileges, Bernard C. Hanley; auditors, Harry B. Burwell and Charles E. Newton. The board of directors, with the exception of Fred Wildey, deceased, was re-elected. William O. Ladish was elected to take Mr. Wildey's place. Mr. Ladish has been treasurer of the association for the past six years, but owing to pressure of other business declined to accept another election. He has been a very efficient official and it was with regret that the stockholders learned of his refusal to continue to hold the office. All committees were re-elected with the exception of the dog show and athletic committees. The dog show committee was dropped and an athletic committee will be elected at a later meeting. It was voted to make a change and to hold the next annual fair, which will be the 81st, Oct. 13, 14 and 15. The last fair was held during the same week as the Danbury fair. It was voted to have the president act as purchasing agent and to approve all expenditures.

At the annual meeting of the Methodist church school Freeman F. Patten, who was superintendent of the school for many years, was honored by being elected superintendent-emeritus. The other officers elected are: Superintendent, Morgan Eaton; assistant superintendent, Richard E. Whitaker; superintendent of primary department, Miss Ethel Whitaker; assistant, Mrs. Morgan Eaton; superintendent of home department, Miss Florence Washburn; assistant, Mrs. Percy Parkhurst; superintendent of cradle roll, Mrs. William Whitaker; assistant, Mrs. George Frasier; secretary and treasurer, Percy Parkhurst; assistant, Ernest K. Taft; musical director, Mrs. Howard Wilcox; assistant, Harry Bradley; pianist, Dorothy Hodgson; assistant, Lillian Bartlett; librarian, Rudolph Nothnick.

Successful Mock Trial

The mock trial held at Warren Memorial hall Friday evening for the benefit of the senior class of Stafford high school provided fine entertainment for a large audience. The trial was a breach of promise suit brought by Miss Olive Russell against Chester E. Easton, both popular teachers at the high school. Witnesses for the plaintiff were Postmaster Anders Jacobsen, Mrs. Parley C. Patten. The plaintiff herself also testified at length. Mrs. Adelbert Squire, pretty niece of the plaintiff, Francis Murray and Dr. J. P. Hanley offered testimony in behalf of the defendant. Local attorneys took part in the trial and helped to make things lively. Judge M. D. O'Connell presided. Robert H. Fisk represented the defendant and Joel H. Reed, 2nd, was officer of the court. Attorney E. V. Newton of Worcester appeared for the plaintiff. The jurors were: George W. Stevens, Herbert R. Wightman, F. G. Sanford, Raymond B. Kelsey, E. C. DeBorde, Harold Bruce, David Mitchell, Richard Valentine, Parley Patten, William O. Ladish, Mrs. Carrie B. McLaughlin and Miss Mary E. Smith.

Funeral services for Pierre Labonte were held at St. Edward's church Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. Felix J. O'Neill sang the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Edward's cemetery.

STAFFORDVILLE

ERNEST GOODELL BURIED IN LOCAL CEMETERY

Ernest Goodell, 60, formerly of this place, died at the City hospital at Boston, Jan. 10 of heart trouble and a complication of diseases. He was the son of the late Leonard and Mrs. Anna Brown Goodell and was born in Staffordville, Feb. 18th, 1870, the youngest of thirteen children. He married Miss Lillian Bosworth of Stafford Springs, Dec. 12, 1900. She died at the City hospital at Boston, Oct. 18, 1921. They had lived in Dorchester, Mass., for a number of years. Later Mr. Goodell made his home with his daughter, Mrs. William Tierney in Charlestown, Mass. Besides his daughter he is survived by five grandchildren and two sisters, Miss Jennie Goodell and Mrs. Julia Cones of Dorchester, and five brothers, Frank of Stafford, Henry of Willington, Adelbert of Canfield, Edward of Springfield, and John Goodell of Mansfield, Mass. His body was brought to Staffordville cemetery Tuesday, Jan. 14, for burial. Rev. Edward Eno of the Stafford Baptist church conducted the services at the grave.

The fourth quarterly conference was held in the Methodist church recently with Rev. M. E. Center, district superintendent of Norwich. The usual reports were read and stewards were elected for the year. The pastor, Rev. David Carter, was unanimously called back for another year.

STAFFORD

Robert Pinney, son of Charles B. Pinney, gave a very interesting talk to 40 boys at the Stafford Boys' club. His description of Vancouver, British Columbia, of the mountains thousands of feet high, covered with snow, trees over 200 feet, sleeping quarter tents, etc. was interesting. He also spoke of salmon in the river weighing twenty-five pounds the river bed in places being so shallow the salmon can be seen on their way up stream many with skin and fins worn away with contact with the jagged rocks. He told also of bald-headed eagles and bears. It was very interesting and much-appreciated. As he has been spending some time up in Vancouver his description was much more real to the boys.

Mrs. Blanche Sibley who has been ill for some time, has gone to the Johnson Memorial hospital.

Rev. Edward E. Eno attended the installation of Rev. Charles D. Kepner, Jr., as pastor of the Congregational church, Stafford Springs, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Colburn, formerly of Stafford, now of Springfield, celebrated their 68th wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter-in-law. Mr. Colburn will be 81 in March and Mrs. Colburn is 80. Both are in good health.

Mrs. Edward E. Eno is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hope and family in Springfield this week.

Many have expressed appreciation at the much-needed rain.

Owing to the rain and icy roads there were no services at the Baptist church Sunday evening.

FRANKLIN

Miss Harriet Robinson participated in a fashion show given Tuesday afternoon by the Home Economics classes of Windham high schools for the Storrs college girls, at the Community hall, Storrs. After the show the Windham high girls were served a delicious lunch by the college girls. Miss Robinson was an overnight guest of Miss Florence Mattern of Mansfield, who also participated in the show.

Miss Vera Bushnell, museum instructor for the public schools of Norwich, attended the meeting of the Norwich Art association Monday evening at Slater Hall, when Prof. Carola Ernst of Connecticut college lectured on The Art of Rodin.

The officers-elect of Franklin Grange, No. 154 are to be installed Friday evening, Jan. 24th.

Several C. E. members attended the union services of Lebanon, Bozrah, Goshen and Franklin societies Sunday evening at the Lebanon Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Starkweather were in Hartford this week attending the state grange meetings.

At a recent meeting of the Worthy Cooking club of Franklin, plans were discussed for a play to be given at an early date.

CANTERBURY

A whist was given in the Town hall Jan. 11, the proceeds to go toward buying a clock for the town hall. It was largely attended. The prizes were won by Mrs. Samuel Tompkins, Miss Cook and Mrs. Emma Tracy, Samuel Tompkins, Fred Newton and Mr. Hopkins. A door award went to Miss Beatrice Newton. The committe is to holding another whist at the town hall this month.

The UNIVERSAL Electric Washer and Wringer WITH Porcelain Enameled Tub

and its High Quality Mechanical Construction can now be had at the regular low price of this washer with copper tub.

UNIVERSAL

Things mechanical may be of little interest to you, but certainly you would like to know how it is possible for the UNIVERSAL Washer and Wringer to operate quietly after years and years of hard service. The reasons are several: Pack-hardened worm-gear direct shaft drive, over-size precision cut gears, a hardened ball and socket crank and link joint, a high quality transmission running continuously in a bath of oil—all of which, perhaps, means little to you, BUT EVERYTHING TO THE LIFE OF A MACHINE.

In short, this is highest quality home laundry equipment designed with a Safety Agitator, Six-position Reversible Safety Wringer, a Sanitary Porcelain Enameled Tub and many other modern improvements to wash your clothes faster, better and more easily. You cannot find its equal within its low price class.

WILLIMANTIC'S FIRST MODEL HOME RECENTLY COMPLETED

"To encourage and foster the ideals of home ownership in the development of individual character, family happiness and comfort and as a bond of faith in the community in which we live."

WILLIMANTIC'S FIRST MODEL HOME OPENS TODAY FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION

Many New Features Introduced In Attractive New House On North Street—Merchants and Home Furnishers Contribute To the Interior Furnishings—All Home Equipment of Latest Design.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17—"The first essential for wholesome home life is a good house, in which the family may live in privacy and comfort, and justly take pride. The home exerts the first and most continuous influence toward right thinking and right living."

PRESIDENT HOOVER.

The Purpose

An influence on the character of the individual and the community is readily appreciated in home architecture. And home atmosphere is conducive to becoming "community-minded." It is in appreciation of these facts and of more material conditions that the Willimantic chamber of commerce, has sponsored the erection of a model home in this city.

The model home is one of which the city can justly point to with pride. At the instigation of the chamber, it was built by Contractor Oliver L. Willard, a member of the board of directors of the chamber.

The model home project, as defined in a statement by Executive Secretary John J. O'Rourke is to "encourage families of moderate means to build and own their own home in Willimantic and to show the feasibility of securing loans on a home, payable on the monthly basis."

The chamber recognizes the fact that there are in the community many families who have the desire to own their home but who are timid about assuming the obligation. In connection with the public inspection of the model home, the chamber is to present plans for financing the purchase or building of a house by illustrating the loaning plan of savings banks, the building and loan association and second mortgage corporations. While it remains true that the model home now open for inspection may be beyond the means of some families interested in home ownership, it stands as a sound illustration of the possibilities of home-building.

Owner and Builder's Statement

The model home, located on a corner lot at North and Bolivia streets, has many pleasing features. The location is in a highly restricted residential tract developed by Oliver L. Willard for individual homes. It is English style of architecture, the exterior walls being laid with shingles coated with creosote shingle stain.

The roof is of slate asphalt double-dip shingles in variegated colors. These shingles are semi-fireproof, as well as weather resisting, and make a good insulation. The heating plant is of vacuumized steam. Brass piping has been used in the plumbing throughout. The flooring in every room is high grade white oak. The trim is of colonial design with doors to match, painted in colors most suited for each room. The bath room walls and floor are of colored tile. The fixtures are white. The bath tub, which is built in, is equipped with shower. The hardware throughout the home is solid bronze, that on the front door being of colonial design and worthy of note.

Details of the Model Home

Willimantic's model home, built by The O. L. Willard Co., as a chamber of commerce project, is a delightful six-room English style cottage. It boasts a spacious sun room, the bathroom and garage attached. The house nestles in a small grove of tall, slender trees and is built on a corner lot with a frontage of 70 feet.

The light gray stain of the exterior shingles blends nicely with the variegated colorings of the asphalt roof shingles.

One enters through a white colonial door equipped with handsome fixtures of solid bronze. Entrance leads into a small vestibule that serves well to shut out the northwest winds. In the hall facing the vestibule are arched-openings. To the immediate right is the cozy sun-room finished in the new modernistic wall paper. Here the sun floods in and creates an atmosphere that gives promise of restful comfort. The room is 10 by 16 feet.

To the left of the main hall is the expanse of the living room, 14 by 18 feet. The eye is at once attracted by the fireplace. From this corner radiates a captivating atmosphere that cannot be denied. The fireplace is of forest-blend brick with white mantle surmounted by a stucco panel. Many windows let in a flood of light and cheeriness. The wall paper is of neutral gray-silver tone that will eliminate for the future housewife of the model home the difficulty of harmonizing.

Exposed to the south in the rear is the dining room. It is of substantial size, 13 by 13 feet and papered in a soft-blending color. Doors from the dining room and from a small hall which adjoins the dining and living rooms, lead into the well-planned kitchen. The kitchen walls and woodwork are painted in ivorytone and white enlivened appropriately with dainty stencil patterns of robin-blue. A delightful little feature is noted over the sink and cabinet arrangement. Here twin colonial windows are encased in a tiny alcove that gives the kitchen a charming distinction. The equipment, provided by the builder, includes such conveniences as cabinets on either side of the lavatory, built-in ironing boards and a most inviting breakfast nook. From a door in the kitchen the visitor passes through a rear hall to the basement and to the automobile garage which is attached to the house.

Returning to the central hall ascent to the second floor is gained by means of a colonial staircase. On this floor are three spacious bedrooms. The woodwork is in old ivory and the wallpaper is in soft shades of subdued patterns.

The bathroom is well deserving of praise. The lower half of the walls is done in fine tiling of sand, or light buff with green trims. The fixtures are in white and the built-in bathtub is equipped with shower. Each bedroom and the bathroom are equipped with spacious closets and there is an additional linen closet provided in the hall. The spacious attic might easily be converted into two average-size rooms.

Throughout the cottage the colonial note is carried out in the lighting fixtures which incorporate the most modern designs and lend a very pleasing effect when in use.

It is a home that stands as a most acceptable standard of moderate construction and one that is bound to give the utmost pleasure and comfort to its future owner and occupant.

Furnishings During Public Inspection

The model home which opens Saturdays at 2 o'clock is completely furnished by Willimantic merchants who have met with a signal degree of success in the tasteful arrangement of the various rooms. The furniture is supplied by The J. C. Lincoln company and The Hurteau Furniture corporation; the floor coverings by the H. C. Murray company; bed coverings by J. B. Fullerton & Company; draperies by The Rhode Island Textile company; radio, by the United Music company; silverware, clocks, toiletware, etc., by Ralph U. Wolmer, Smith-Keon and Harry W. Standish; electric refrigerator, by the Jordan Home Utilities; gas and electric appliances by The Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company; telephones, the Southern New England Telephone company; automobile, the Jordan Auto company; breakfast nook, Willimantic Lumber & Coal company; potted plants and floral decorations by Dawson, the Florist.

STATE ROAD SYSTEM TOTAL 309,788 MILES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP)—Nearly 30,000 miles were added to the total road mileage on state highway systems last year.

The state systems now total 309,788 miles according to W. C. Markham of Washington, executive secretary of Highway Officials, who reported to the association's convention here that states had added 29,252 miles to their systems in the year.

Federal funds, he reported, were applied to 7,022 miles of that new mileage, which includes 8,748 miles of pavements of all kinds, 8,675 miles of improved earth roads and 9,823 miles of gravel, treated and untreated.

The state systems, Mr. Markham said, are paved to the extent of 24.2 per cent, with 56 per cent gravel or better types of surfacing.

For the fiscal year 1928 the total income for state highway department activities was $849,326,598, he reported.

Of that sum motor fees furnished the largest amount, 30.6 per cent, with 27.6 per cent from gasoline taxes, 9.6 from federal funds, 14.1 from bonds, 1.4 from state tax levies; 5.1 from legislative appropriations, 10.1 from local funds and 1.5 per cent and 1.5 per cent from miscellaneous income.

LONDON-CAPE TOWN LINE NOW IS IN PREPARATION

LONDON—(AP)—Designs and bids for the construction of a fleet of 50-passenger flying boats for use on the proposed London-Cape Town route have been submitted to the air ministry.

When the new line goes into operation this year travelers will be able to go from here to Cape Town in eight days, as against the 17 days now required by fast steamer.

Sir Alan Cobham, veteran of many British long-distance flights, is working with the Imperial Air-ways in surveying the route.

ENDURANCE PILOT PLANS AIRCRAFT WORKER'S UNION

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Dale Jackson, coholder of the world's endurance flight record, plans to organize airplane pilots, mechanics and other aircraft workers into a labor union.

With L. H. Atkinson, a former pilot, Jackson is working to establish minimum wage scales and fixed hours of employment. Circular letters have been sent more than 100,000 workers in various phases of the industry.

Sick Costs Averaged

CHICAGO—(AP)—A survey of 100 hospitals, outlined in a magazine, showed that the average expense for patients was $71.99, and that each patient was admitted once every three years.

THE WORLD COURT

Evidences of the demand throughout the country for the ratification of the plan of adherence to the world court by this country is being manifested in many ways. It is coming from leaders who are well versed in international law and who have given much thought to the position in which this country would stand, it is coming from those who are laboring in behalf of peace and it is coming from those who are convinced that international disputes should be adjusted by such a tribunal.

Speaking to the New York bar, Charles E. Hughes declared: "In supporting the world court in the manner proposed, we lose nothing we could otherwise preserve; we take no serious risks that we could otherwise avoid; we enhance rather than impair our ultimate security; and we heighten the mutual confidence which rests on demonstrated respect for the essential institutions of international justice."

The contention has been made by many that we are entangling ourselves in a manner detrimental to ourselves. This doesn't appear to be so regarded by our former secretary of state and a former justice of the United States supreme court. On the contrary, he regards it as beneficial.

It is no secret that the advantages of membership in the world court have been urged for years. We have sought a means of settling international disputes in a peaceful manner, and it is a laudable ambition, but Mr. Hughes declares "The judicial settlement of international disputes cannot be adequately secured by mere sporadic, occasional efforts. There should be continuity, permanency, the opportunity for the growth of confidence and for the firm establishment of the tradition both of competency and judicial independence."

It will, of course, be said that Mr. Hughes is thoroughly wrapped up in the world court because he is a member of it. This country has long since come to place confidence in the opinion of Mr. Hughes. It knows that his concern for his country is greater than it is for the international court and it knows that he would not advocate adherence if he did not believe it was a desirable thing to do and a move that could be made without regrets. He speaks not because he is a member of the court but out of the fullness of his convictions.

PLANTING SHADE TREES

It is an ambitious programme which the Massachusetts Forestry association has planned for this year after first making a survey to ascertain the prevailing practice concerning the planting of shade trees in that state.

It is especially concerned this year because of the 300th anniversary celebration and the desire to make a favorable showing to visitors, so it proposes that shade trees be planted this year to the number of 100,000, which will adorn about 500 miles of streets and roads. It is figured that if each of the towns and cities will plant a tree for each of the 300 years the goal will be reached.

It is the practice of many cities and towns to set out a certain number of shade trees every year, replacing those which have had to be cut down, those which have died and those which have been badly damaged, and putting out a certain number in addition. In Massachusetts, however, only 43 per cent of the towns have planted any shade trees in the last three years. Inasmuch as the average in those towns was only 54, the number fixed by the association would mean a substantial increase, but there is a value to it which cannot be overlooked.

There is the increased value which accrues to property through the improved appearance. There is the relief during the summer from the baking sun and there is the marked change which is made in looks of the street. Trees transform a plain, neglected-looking street to one of real attractiveness. They have ever been regarded as a valuable property asset.

While Massachusetts is being urged to make this effort on the tercentenary, the idea is one that might well be urged every year, though perhaps on a lesser scale. There is always an opportunity for the setting out of many trees. There are replacements which should not be neglected and there are streets and roads which show the need of that very kind of attention. It is easy to note the results which have been obtained in those communities where such a policy is in operation.

THE PHILIPPINES HEARING

Evidently there are those Philippine leaders who think they can eat their cake and still have it. They want independence for the islands and yet they want the United States to continue to furnish the same protection and advantages for them that they are doing now. It comes pretty close to admitting that the islands couldn't do without the United States, although they are and have been for a long time asking to be cut loose.

The senate committee on insular affairs, of which Senator Bingham is chairman, has opened its hearings on the Philippines and, as on other occasions, it has heard what the delegation of Filipinos favor. It has heard the plea for freedom made by one who has long been working for it, but it was clearly set forth that if the islands were made free they would not want to be treated as a foreign country. They would still want to receive the advantage of present trade relations with the United States and it would not be opposed to receiving such help as might be extended in other ways.

Thus, the Filipinos cannot look with any great amount of favor upon the support which certain sugar friends are giving to the effort for independence. This aid for the freedom of the Philippines has a double purpose. There is less interest in the independence of the islands than there is in having the islands become foreign territory and therefore placed in the class with other foreign countries, whereby its exports to this country must comply with our tariff rates. Goods which now come in free would, under independence, be taxed. That would tend to shut off the sugar which comes from the islands without duty, to the disturbance of the beet sugar growers in this country. Thus, the supporters of the independence move are twice as much interested in putting a burden on the islands, a burden that would probably mean the end of their sugar business, than in actually helping them.

That those pleading for freedom for the islands are more or less aware of this is indicated by the fact that they voiced their approval of the idea sponsored by Senator Bingham of having a commission sent to study the problems in the islands if immediate freedom is out of the question. It is unquestionably time that the islanders got their eyes open to the favored position which they occupy at the present time and the handicaps they would have to face if they were actually left to their own resources.

GAS TAX AND ROADS

How motoring increases each year is definitely told in the gasoline taxes received by the state during the past year. With the receipt of more than $4,000,000 from this source, a comparison shows this amount to be greater than the previous year by about $600,000. This means that just so much more money has been provided for the building and maintenance of the highways of the state than was available before from this tax and that in its spending the money will be used for the benefit of highway users.

This tax has been paid by all motorists who bought gasoline in this state. That includes visitors as well as residents, but it has been paid in such small amounts that it has scarcely been noticed. In fact, there isn't a state today where such a tax is not collected, so that no matter where one drives an auto he is obliged to contribute to the road building fund. There are states where the levy is more than twice the tax in this commonwealth.

The gas tax is one instance where the taxpayer pays as he goes. If he doesn't use his car he pays no tax. If he drives but a few thousand miles his tax is very slight. If he is constantly on the road his bill is larger, but it is in proportion to his use and need of good roads.

The gas tax payer has reason for feeling at times that there is much of the road which he uses that is not being given the attention that is needed out of the gas tax funds. He knows that there are still many miles of unimproved roads, and when he uses this kind of road because he has to and for the most of his driving, it can be appreciated that he has some reason for feeling that too little attention is being given to his highway requirements. He has to help out on the permanent roads for others but he finds it impossible to get much improvement on the roads he is obliged to drive over.

THRIFT WEEK

How much attention it gets or how much benefit results from the observance of a special week is a question. It is felt that there is a value in keeping a cause before the people in such a manner and there undoubtedly is. It serves as a reminder for those who need it and for those who do not it makes no difference.

Benjamin Franklin was one of the great exponents of thrift. In recognition thereof his birthday anniversary, January 17, marks the opening of National Thrift week and for the next few days efforts will be made to impress the importance of thrift upon the people of this country.

The value of thrift is best recognized after some experience or accomplishment in which it is involved. It is always well to remember that thrift doesn't mean that a person should become a miser, should pinch every penny or subject self and others to hardships in order to save. It does mean the wise spending of funds, the prevention of waste and provision against a rainy day.

There are many individuals who can afford to devote much time to a study of the advantages of thrift. There is special need for it in some cases more than others but it is invariably the case that when, either through some favorable or adverse circumstance, the lesson of thrift is brought directly home to a person it makes an impression that is lasting and salutary. Thus, the continued effort in behalf of thrift does its part in sending home vital facts. Working on the policy of "if at first you don't succeed, try, try again," those who know the value of thrift believe that by persistent work its merits can be brought home to the many who need it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Having gotten over its thaw, January is itself again.

It will soon be time to review the famous blizzard of 1888 and tell the part you played in it.

The man on the corner says: There's use now for that coal you've been saving the past fortnight.

When the grand jury refuses to indict the coast guard for the Black Duck case, it simply upholds the contention that the guard was doing its duty.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

As these lines are written, a thermometer just outside the window casing registers the mercury at 63 degrees. This is a temperature that we not unusually have in May and sometimes in the latter part of June, but it is not far from the middle of January. We find almost as much difficulty in keeping that obstinate steam heater down as we do in other times in keeping it up. It is sometimes said that human beings are "possessed of the devil," a remark that is not altogether a mere "figment of the imagination." But the evidence is far more conclusive in regard to steam heaters. Can anyone explain why it is that when the mercury goes sailing up into the 60's, the steam heater is bound to follow suit in spite of your labor with cold air drafts and closed dampers to keep it down?

There are many countries that do not have any problems with steam heaters as we do, but they have other things to contend with that are a thousand times worse. When we read these accounts we feel that we ought never to complain again. In a recent issue of one of our leading magazines Governor Roosevelt of Porto Rico has this to say that recently came under his observation: "In the last six weeks, I have traveled all over the island, I have been through school after school, I have seen hundreds of thousands of children and I write now not of what I have heard but of what I have seen with my own eyes. I have seen mothers carrying little babies who were mere skeletons, I have watched in the class room thin, pallid little boys and girls, trying to spur up their brains to action when their little bodies were underfed. I have seen them trying to study on only one scanty meal a day, a meal of a few beans and some rice. I have looked into the kitchen of houses where a handful of beans and a few plantains were the fare for the entire family."

It is the tendency everywhere to celebrate the anniversary of the great things of the past. And it is perfectly natural that the various denominations should set apart the first week of the new year in recognition of the 1900th anniversary of Pentecost. The Church of God can never afford to forget what transpired about one week after our Lord's ascension in the city of Jerusalem. The story is perfectly familiar to all. The disciples were happy in the thought of their Savior living now in celestial glory. When together in that precious "upper room." The Holy Spirit as personality came upon them and inspired them to do what otherwise would have been humanly impossible, that it, "to speak in other tongues" as utterance was given them by Him. This gift is still with us and this observance is both timely and helpful.

Is it not something more than imagination when we speak of men and of our day who have been successful in the proclamation of the gospel, as being full of the Holy Spirit? The plain, unlearned fishermen of Gallilee did not rise to the realms of immortality in their own strength. Something was given them that helped them to meet and overcome obstacles that otherwise would have been insuperable. But they have been by no means the only men in history so filled with the spirit of God as to transform the face of human society. I see John Eliot facing the early Indians with a face transfused with light, and the Indians themselves saw it and gave heed to his words. John Wesley and George Whitefield gave the same evidence. The modern apostles of God doing the same work have had the same power. Spurgeon and Guthrie on the other side of the Atlantic, Edwards, Beecher and Moody in this country gave evidence that the divine fire had been imparted to them likewise.

When men are dead in earnest in pleading some great humanitarian cause may they not justly claim help and strength outside of themselves? One recalls the great triumph of Henry Ward Beecher during our Civil war, who was sent to England at the suggestion of President Lincoln to represent the humane idea that was Lincoln's motive in the attitude he took in relation to the southern confederacy. England was bitterly hostile because the embargo on cotton had brought on a business depression. No great public orator ever had more serious opposition than Beecher when he faced the howling mobs at Liverpool, Manchester and other cities. But he had a mighty cause to present, and no man living or dead could present it with greater power. He let the great, angry crowd scream itself hoarse, but gradually he got in a word here and there. At length the tumult subsided and he put in two hours of perhaps the greatest speaking the modern world has ever known. The thought of the nation was changed.

In a case like the above where the principle of right was involved is there not reason for believing that the Holy Spirit was speaking through the human instrument? I believe that on this occasion Beecher was speaking under the impact of the Holy Spirit just as truly as the early disciples did on that historic day of Pentecost. Why not? Peter, James, John and the rest of them were emphasizing the great fundamental facts of the Christian religion, and was not Henry Ward Beecher when he made his eloquent plea for breaking the shackles of human slavery wherever they were found; that no man whether white or black was ever designed by the one loving Creator to be another man's slave, at any time, or in any part of the world! This was Beecher's main contention, and if this is not religion, what is?

Is it not perfectly fair to ask a question like this: What in all human probability would result if during the year of 1930 every man, woman and child would be kind in all their relations with others? Now at once you will fly at the proposition with this statement, "But they won't do it!" This of course is begging the question, and very likely it will not universally be done. But let us assume that every human being had nothing in his heart for the other fellow but good will and a desire to help him. I believe that this old world of ours would at once begin to take on the aspect of heaven. We would all begin to say as they did at the original Pentecost 'what meaneth this!' I think that faces would be white and voices trembling. It would raise to the power every human faculty capable of development. In fact what is heaven but a condition of being with everything mean and harmful cut out! In such a state we can get along without Jasper walls and pearly gates, and even angelic harps and human radios.

May it not be that the spirit of heavens tends to counteract everything that coarsens and deadens what is best in this life? In one of his pastoral calls it is related that a certain minister—who lives this side of Montana—asked a certain woman what would be the first question she would ask when she reached heaven. Now don't laugh at the answer for you ought to be informed that she had been a drudge all her life. Hard work year after year had worn her to a frazzle. She replied: "If I ever get through the pearly gates, I shall ask Peter for an obscure nook where I can lie on the flat of my back and and just rest for the first 1000 years!" But Peter finding the cots all full of tired women will take her into a reception room where there are birds and flowers, and she soon learns that on "the other side of Jordan there is rest for the weary."

PIONEER ENGINES ON NORWICH & WORCESTER NAMED FOR PERSONS AND PLACES

The decision of the New York, New Haven and Hartford to personalize its new through express train by giving it a name is in line with a tradition which has been unbroken since the very earliest days of Connecticut railroading. Indeed, in those earliest days even the engines that puffed through Norwich had their own individual names; and it was not until the 1870's that these names were replaced with the numbers which are now used to distinguish all types of railroad rolling stock.

The first 7 engines on the old Norwich and Worcester railroad, now known as the Norwich and Worcester division of the New Haven system, were called respectively the Norwich, Worcester, Webster, Hancock, Oliver Evans, Newton Perkins and Bay State No. 1. The first four had four driving wheels each, were used for either passenger or freight service, and were made by Rogers, Ketchum and Grosvenor.

The only engine used exclusively for hauling passengers was the Bay State No. 1, a two-wheeler built by McKay and Alden. Nothing in particular is known of the Oliver Evans. The Newton Perkins ran into Poquetanuck Cove drawbridge in 1859 and was also in a collision with the A. E. Ramsdell, a New London Northern engine, in the '60s opposite Fort Point.

It was the engine Norwich that hauled the first train over the newly complete Norwich and Worcester tracks. This epochal event took place on Thanksgiving day, 1839. The Norwich was built as of June 3, 1839; the Worcester Oct. 30, the Webster Dec. 16; the Hancock Dec. 19, all in the same year, 1839.

These engines were never numbered; but the engines listed below, which the road subsequently added to its equipment, were distinguished by number as well as by name, at least in the later years of their service. There were only two exceptions at this period. One was the mixed-service four-wheeler Suffolk, built in 1846, which the road acquired in 1868 from the Boston and Providence. The other exception is noted at the foot of the subjoined table.

The Roman numerals at the head of the respective columns below have the following meanings: I, number of engine. II, diameter of cylinder in inches. III, stroke of piston in inches. IV, number of driving wheels. V, diameter of drivers in inches. VI, type of service in which the engine was used.

The capital letter following the name of the engine shows the name of the builders as follows:

A—Rogers, Ketchum and Grosvenor.
B—Hinkley and Drury.
C—McKay and Alden.
D—Lawrence.
E—Norwich Shops.
F—Rhode Island Works.
G—Baldwin Works.
H—Mason.

Aside from the Engine 1 Boston, there was also a switcher called the Boston, which so far as is recalled was never numbered. This switcher was a duplicate of the Tiger.

All of the Hinkley and Drury engines had outside connections, like the locomotives of the present day. That is, the connecting rods were attached to the outside of the driving wheels. The engines built in the Norwich shops followed the Hinkley and Drury model; but many of the other engines then running on the old N. and W. had inside connections.

The years in which these old engines were built, so far as the dates can be established by painstaking local investigation, follow: Rockwell, as of May 17, 1845; Mohegan, 1857; Pequot, 1857; Wauregan, 1869; Attawaugan, 1872.

The Wauregan was the first engine built in Norwich at the new shops on North Main street. The first railroad shops were located at the foot of Ferry street. For many years the Wauregan hauled the boat train, with Prescott Cooper at the throttle.

On the William P. Greene the name plate, queerly enough, was affixed between the cylinder and the steam chest. The Shetucket is especially remembered by reason of the fact that it had two steam domes. The Manoset was ultimately transferred to the New York and New England railroad, which ran it as their No. 5.

As the years went on, these original 21 engines were gradually replaced by the following, which took only the numbering of the predecessor locomotive, the individual names which distinguished the pioneers being allowed to die with them:

No. 3, built in 1880, and No. 7 were originally Nos. 35 and 36 on the New York and New England. No. 9, the first Baldwin owned by the N. and W., was built in 1873. It was originally No. 38 on the N. Y. and N. E. No. 13 was taken from the Woonsocket and Milford, then known as "the Draper road," in exchange for the Attawaugan and Artisan. On becoming the property of the N. and W. it was run by Dan Preston of Norwich.

No. 18 was built as of Dec. 17, 1884. No. 19, built in 1882, was originally the N. Y. and N. E. 120.

Sunday Morning Talk

Progress

What wonderful progress man has made in the material world. What a wonderful change has been made even in the last one hundred years. If George Washington could come to the city named after him and see all the inventions, it gives us a realization of rapid progress of the human race in the material. But could he say that the progress in character-building had been as great.

What humanity might be if the progress in character-building had been equal to that in other lines. How sad it is that it is that in the thing of supreme importance we give so little thought. How little time or thought we give to nobility of character. How much more thought we give to our business success or even our car than we do whether our lives meet with approval of our Creator and Saviour. Is it the goal of our life that nothing will come into it to mar its beauty or that will grieve His loving heart. Have we taken Him as the guide of our life, using His word as the guide book to direct us aright, that we may not go astray. If we have our lives will not only be a blessing to ourselves but to all we come in contact with. We will not have lived in vain and may be the means of helping and encouraging many others along life's pathway.

May we put the same earnestness and energy into the building of our life as we do in things of minor importance, knowing that we build for eternity.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—By coincidence, President Hoover sat in the office where the modern navy of the United States had its beginnings as the American delegation sat out for London to attend the new naval limitations conference.

Ousted from his own quarters by the Christmas eve fire at the white house, his official duties centered in the office across the way in the dingy old state, war, navy building where secretaries of the navy held forth from before the days of the now all but forgotten "white navy" up to the World war.

Grandeur

The room still has about it the spacious grandeur of another day. As the president sits at the workmanlike desk which has replaced the huge, carved double desk where all those bygone naval secretaries ruled, he has but to look out eastward across the white house lawns.

Beyond the old trees, now leafless, that grace it, looms the granite bulk of the treasury. And the Bystander can not help wondering if Mr. Hoover ever has chanced to read the memoirs of Salvatore Cortesi, for many years correspondent in Rome of The Associated Press.

For there is one brief page out of the not-so-long-ago among those random memories which has to do with the office where the president sits, and with the place of naval power in international affairs.

The story goes back 39 years to 1891, when "eleven Italians were lynched in New Orleans." Cortesi came to Washington representing the Tribuna of Rome. Marquis di Rudini, Italian premier, informed the young journalist before he left that Italy would "leave nothing unattempted in order to have our rights."

In Same Room

In Washington Cortesi saw both President Harrison and Secretary Tracy of the navy department. The interview with Tracy was in the office where President Hoover now sits. That morning cables from Italy told of the possibility that a fleet would be sent to enforce indemnity demands. Cortesi spoke of this to Secretary Tracy.

"'Italy is third naval power in the world,'" Cortesi quotes Tracy as saying. "'We have practically no fleet, so that your ships could easily come over and bombard our cities along the Atlantic coast. Holland, or even Belgium, could do the same, but,' he continued, marking his words and pointing out of the window (the same window out of which President Hoover may look today) 'we have got there, in the treasury, enough money to build a fleet in the Pacific and then bring it over to the Atlantic side and destroy any aggressor or, if necessary, revenge ourselves in Europe.'"

And that was the naval situation just 39 years ago. That same Cortesi is still AP man in Rome. He will be at London to help tell of what new naval picture the conference produces.

YOUR HEALTH

Rest Your Child

By Otto H. Leber, M. D., New York
(Gorgas Memorial Institute)

There are few things so intimately associated with the welfare of your child as is rest. The world seems to be getting more complex for the child as well as for the adult. The average day of the school-child, yes and pre-school child too, is often full to overflowing. School hours, home-work, music, dancing, and other lessons; parties, movies, entertainments of all kinds, keep the young brain in a constant whirl from morning until night. It is only too easy to see why the modern child specialist or family physician finds an increasing number of manifestations of nervous disorders in the little patients that face him in his office or the home. And not always are they "nervous" manifestations in the basic sense of the word. A host of physical disorders in the child of almost any age can be traced directly to no other cause than fatigue, and conversely melt away and vanish with no stronger medicine than rest.

Rest your child! Rest him or her physically as well as mentally. Every pre-school child, and every school child showing any signs of being nervous, or irritable, underweight or showing loss of appetite, should have a rest period during the day. And a rest period means lying down alone on the bed with the window wide open. It means no toys or books to distract, in which case there will in all probability be a period of quiet and restful sleep. It had best be taken as a definite hour each day so that it comes as regularly and naturally as a meal. In this way what is frequently begun under protest, is continued quietly, and many times welcomed and looked forward to as something the children come to sense as part of an agreeable and beneficial daily routine. While such a rest period is impractical for most children in school and must be compensated for by early bed time, for the child who is below par an afternoon rest hour is more important than the afternoon school period, if one of the two must be sacrificed.

Rest your child! Rest him mentally as well. Do not crowd those precious days with a multiplicity of "dates" and hours spent only too often in movie theatres or badly ventilated houses or apartments. Make them days of sunshine and childhood play, outdoors as much as is humanly possible. Your reward will be a happier youngster, a more healthy child in mind and body, and the best possible expectancy for growth and development into normal young manhood and womanhood.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What Prohibition Has Accomplished.

Mr. Editor: On this, the tenth anniversary of the 18th amendment, I look back to the acquaintances of my life previous to prohibition. Here are a few facts observed; many more could be listed.

I recall the mother of a family of children just snatched from self-destruction, made desperate by her husband's love of "light wine" and its accompaniment—women.

I see another woman washing clothes (for others) to support her family while she nursed her husband who for months lay suffering as a result of the "workingman's glass (?) of beer."

I come in time to see the father of a large family hanging himself from the transom of a door having enjoyed the "liberty" of a man's right to drink.

Children loom up before me, who were sent to the pawnshop with an article of clothing to buy one-eighth of a pound of butter and a loaf of bread for a meal while the father drank his four "pints" (a "pint" of beer equalled four glasses) a night. A weak, little, half-fed girl of 12, running as cash girl in a huge department store from 8-6 o'clock, six days a week, to help support her drunken father's family.

There comes to my mind a young man who never touched liquor in any form for he saw what a brute it made of his father. One year, to please friends, he made New Year's calls, and, though he spilled the proffered wine in receptacles wherever he could, they managed to leave him drunk at his own door. Another well-meaning youth, who, however, liked booze and its friends, landed in a police cell but to be found dead the next morning. In a hallway lay somebody's father frozen stiff—all because the booze imbibed, robbed him of his senses and did not continue to warm him up when once he lay down.

Again, holding on to a lamp-post, trying to pick out his latch key and then trying to find the keyhole was the nightly experience of a young man, penniless at the week end who, since prohibition, has become a level-headed, self-respecting citizen, rejoicing over his bank accounts due to the closing of brightly lighted saloons which had been stretching out their arms to him at every street corner.

To my vision comes a woman, fallen dead in her tracks from worry and overwork as she was returning home—cursed by her drunken husband for daring to die!

I see a club of young men dwindling down one by one becoming paupers, victims of innocent beer, dying in the city hospitals after a wretched life of debauchery.

Women becoming lower than any human being were no rarity. They as well as men could readily be found lying drunk, too common to be arrested, so long as they made no disturbance.

A family of children and mother, dying, one by one, through the neglect and cruelty of the father who, himself, filled a drunkard's grave.

There was the mother of a family of seven fine children who was struck and killed by the father, who, having drunk up half his wages, demanded money from her while the little ones actually went out begging bread—and all he got was 20 years!

Then there was the fine jobs lost by fine men since they could not quit drinking—saloons on every hand to entice them.

I recall a girl of 12, who came home drunk after visiting with her chum's relatives. Oh, no! not before prohibition! Impossible! Common life before 1914.

And how many have died a slow death by diseases brought on by the innocent "working man's beer," "light wines"—and otherwise, let alone the vile five cent glasses of whiskey, etc., of days before prohibition! Violent deaths were a common occurrence through liquor—whoever thought of taking up congress' time to discuss them before prohibition days! No! "booze" did not kill, nor fill millions of drunkard's graves! The neglected children of the drunkard merely stopped breathing, the weak, weary, abused wives had heart failure, the men just died—innocent booze in all its forms stands guiltless before the judgment bar of all who want their liquor. They should worry about those who suffer!

The above are just a few real occurrences that came to my notice before national prohibition. Readers, could you have seen these happenings as I did, you would say, "Prohibition for me and my country!" You would know why with no interest or gain coming to them, the people of the U. S. A. worked for prohibition—it was the great wrong booze did men, women and children. Any honest drinker as well as thinker can see the good accomplished during the ten years.

Stories That Recall Others

How?

Mary had received a doll tea set for Christmas. In the afternoon she was playing tea party. Mother, who had helped to prepare the refreshments, was included among the "guests." Mary seated herself at the small table, picked up the teapot, then hesitated. She turned to her mother and said:

"How is it ladies hold their mouths when they pour tea?"

What?

Jimmie, age five, attends kindergarten. Before Christmas he participated in the singing of numerous songs he had been taught there. The day before Christmas he began singing lustily:

"Jingle bells, jungle bells,
Jingle all the way."

Abruptly he stopped and going over to his mother inquired very seriously:

"Mudder, what does that mean when they sing:

"Oh, what fun it is to ride
In a one-horse soap and spray?"

SUPT. RODIER CELEBRATED HIS 20TH ANNIVERSARY

E. O. Rodier, superintendent of the Norwich district for the Prudential Insurance company, gave a luncheon this week at the Wauregan hotel for the district staff, celebrating his 20th anniversary as superintendent here. Numbered in the 60 at the luncheon were several special guests, including Charles G. Terwilliger of the home office at Newark, N. J., division manager; Samuel Roberts, assistant division manager; George Cameron, home office inspector, and John E. Maher, Hartford division superintendent, who was with the Old Peoples Insurance company in this city about 35 years ago.

Informal talks which recalled the record of the Norwich district were given and Mr. Rodier was congratulated heartily upon the fine growth in business which had been shown in this city, Willimantic, New London, Putnam and Westerly, which comprise the district.

FOUND LIGHT POLE ROTTED AT THE BUTT

A resident of Asylum street reported to the police department late Friday evening that an electric light pole owned by the city G. and E. department on that street near Newton street was standing at a precarious angle and that a wire lay on the sidewalk. Capt. Thomas Murphy notified the G. and E. department and Edward Robski, an employe, investigating, found that the pole had tipped over at a sharp angle because its butt had become rotten. A telephone wire to a nearby house was snapped off. To keep the pole from falling any father a guy wire was strung to a tree. It is expected that the pole will be replaced today.

SEYMOUR V. DERUSHA IS AGAIN PROMOTED

Seymour V. DeRusha, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour A. DeRusha, of Church street, Norwich, who for three years was with the Norwich Woolworth store, going for a year to Newark, N. J., and for another year to the Union City, N. J., store, then last summer to the Baltimore store, has been advanced again. Tuesday of this week he began his duties as full manager of the store of the company at Georgetown, Washington, D. C., a remarkable record of promotion for one so young.

FUNERALS.

Joseph Rondeau.

Funeral services for Joseph Rondeau, who committed suicide by hanging himself Tuesday afternoon, were held at 8.30 o'clock Thursday morning at his residence on High street, Baltic, followed by a requiem mass in the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock, Rev. A. A. Jalbert, celebrant. There was a large gathering of mourners present and the floral forms were beautiful. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, and the committal service at the grave was read by Rev. Fr. Jalbert. The bearers were Michael Coffey, Emil Maurice, Desire Arpin, Desire Laframboise, John Suprenault and Peter Bolduc. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George G. Grant, of Taftville.

Harry R. Bond, Jr.

Following funeral services Friday at 1:30 in the First Congregational church, New London, for Harry Richardson Bond, Jr., who died in New York Tuesday, the body was brought to Norwich for burial in the Bond family plot in Yantic cemetery. Here are buried, with other relatives, Mr. Bond's parents, Henry Richardson Bond and Mary Perit Ripley, members of leading old-time Norwich families. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, who conducted the services at New London, read the committal service at the grave.

The casket was covered with a pall of southern smilax, maiden-hair fern, white rosebuds and pansies, and there were magnificent forms and emblems from organizations and individual friends and relatives.

A number of Norwich friends were among the several hundred in attendance at the New London services, accompanying the mourners to the cemetery for the brief final rites, shortly after 2:30.

Mr. Bond's step-daughter, Mrs. Carl Foster, who recently recovered from a severe illness at Camden, S. C., left that city to attend the funeral but had a recurrence of the illness, so was unable to continue further than New York. For that reason her mother, Mrs. Bond, and the other relatives returned to New York immediately following the burial, after remaining for a brief time at the home of Mr. Bond's cousin, Miss Louise Bond Meech, of Broadway.

Mrs. Fred A. Arnold

At 2 o'clock Friday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Fred A. Arnold of No. 8 Sherman street was held at the parlors of Undertakers Church and Allen, Main street. The services were conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, who also read the committal service at the grave in the Jewett City cemetery, friends acting as bearers. The funeral was attended by many relatives and friends and the floral forms were beautiful.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Edward Bushey

The death of Lucy Irish, wife of Edward Bushey of North Franklin, occurred Thursday in this city following an operation. She was the daughter of Nathan and Addie Miner Irish and was born in Bozrah, Aug. 4, 1887. She was united in marriage with Edward Bushey in Bozrah, Sept. 2, 1905 and for 17 years resided in Willimantic. For the past eight years she has lived in North Franklin, where she has many friends who will mourn her loss.

Besides her husband Mrs. Bushey is survived by her father, of Buckland, two sons, Raymond Ernest and Lewis Edward Bushey of North Franklin and a daughter, Lois Pearl of North Franklin. She also leaves two brothers, Benjamin Irish of East Hampton and Louis Irish of Norwich Town and two sisters, Mrs. Howard White of Manchester and Mrs. Jessie Noel of Brockton, Mass.

NORWICH GOLF CLUB RE-ELECTS PRES. SMITH AND OTHER OFFICERS

F. RUSSELL SMITH
Re Elected President

F. Russell Smith was re-elected president of the Norwich Golf club at its annual meeting held Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel with about 30 in attendance. The other officers who also were re-elected are: David W. Morton, vice president, and W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., secretary and treasurer. President Smith presided at the meeting.

Edward G. McKay and Earl Mathewson were re-elected members of the board of governors, and Charles A. Saxton was elected a new member of the board to replace John F. Rogers. The complete board now comprises, in addition to those mentioned, Lucius Briggs, John Fontaine, David W. Morton, William G. Park, F. Russell Smith and Joseph C. Worth. The latter two were recently elected to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of H. LaRue Bliven and James E. Mcantire.

Following the reports of the secretary and treasurer, Mr. Eastwood, which were accepted as read, several minor changes in the by-laws were effected, as proposed and recommended by the board of governors. One important change in the constitution was the resumption of initiation fees, which have not been operative for the past two or three years. Changes will become effective July 1, 1930, the fees being as follows: For active membership up to 25 years of age, $25; for family membership, up to 25 years of age, $25; for active membership, over 25 years of age, $50; for family membership, over 25 years of age, $50; for associate members, $10.

The meeting also discussed the possibility of changing the locker rooms from the present location in the club house to the basement of the new inn, if satisfactory arrangements can be arranged with the inn company and if the change is agreeable to the members. No action was taken on the matter, but it was announced that a meeting would be called later to further discuss the proposed change.

Whether Massie Miller, who is now in California where he has been representing the local club in a number of tournaments, will again act as professional at the local club, is problematical. A communication relative to the matter is to be sent to Mr. Miller in an effort to definitely establish this fact. Miller is entered in the Agua Caliente, Mexico, $25,000 open golf tournament, which starts the first of the week.

At a subrequent meeting of the board of governors, at which the officers were re-elected, the following chairmen of committees were named: House, Joseph C. Worth; tournament, Earl Mathewson; greens, Edward McKay.

C. A. R. CHAPTER PROGRAM ON NATIONAL FOUNDER

For the program of Ebenezer Huntington chapter, Children of the American Revolution, when it met Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial, the subject was Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, founder of the national C. A. R. society.

Pictures of Mrs. Lothrop and of her home, Wayside, at Concord, Mass., were shown, as well as the three original letters which she wrote to Miss Carrie E. Rogers when Miss Rogers started the chapter in this city in 1896. There was also an interesting letter from Miss Margaret Lothrop of Palo Alto, Cal., Mrs. Lothrop's only daughter.

Miss Agnes Greenman, junior president, presided at the meeting. The opening march was by Dolly Edmonds, and two pianologues were given by Marion Wightman.

Miss Carrie E. Rogers of Washington, D. C., and New London, a former president of the chapter, and Miss Elizabeth Gorton, president of Lucretia Shaw chapter, D. A. R., of New London, were guests.

During the meeting Miss Rogers offered a prize of $5 to the member perfect in attendance at meetings during the year. The importance of subscribing to the magazine was stressed and a letter from Mrs. Lothrop on this subject was read. In a history game, Priscilla Hough won a subscription to the magazine. The date was the birthday of little Miss Lucy Loring Greenman and her birthday cake was shared with the members of the society.

The adult hostesses were Mrs. Lester Greenman, Mrs. Herbert B. Wightman, Mrs. Harry E. Prentice, Mrs. F. E. Eggleston and Mrs. Witter K. Tingley.

CONTEST FOR STUDENTS IN WRITING HEALTH PLAYS

The second New England health play-writing contest for high schools, has just been announced by the state tuberculosis commission at Hartford, under whose auspices the competition is being sponsored in Connecticut. It is open to all high schools, junior high schools and to private and parochial schools of the same grade. One act plays dealing with any aspect of individual or community health, may be submitted, either as a class project or as the effort of an individual student. Two sets of prizes are offered in the competition, viz. Connecticut prizes of $25, $15 and $10 each, and New England prizes of $100, $50 and $25 each.

Plays submitted in the Connecticut contest will be judged by a committee consisting of Dr. Helena R. Miller of West Hartford, William M. Harris of Waterbury, and a representative of the state tuberculosis commission. The first choice of this committee will later be entered in the New England contest at Boston, where the best three plays will be presented by the students themselves at the Copley theatre under the personal direction of E. E. Clive, managing director.

CONTINUANCE TO MONDAY IN LIQUOR RAID CASE

When Alexander Kornacki, 17, of this city, who was arrested Thursday night at the Greeneville Bottling Works, located at 26 Sixth street, was arraigned in the city court Friday morning on a charge of violation of the liquor laws, the case was continued to Monday, Jan. 20. The accused is free under bonds of $1,000, and it is reported has signed a written confession.

A raid conducted Thursday evening at the bottling works by state and local police resulted in Kornacki's arrest and it is alleged the seizure of a small amount of liquor was made. An alleged actual sale was also secured earlier in the week at the place.

Andrew Zawacki, former proprietor of the bottling works, stated Friday night that he sold the place a year ago to Alexander and John Kornacki.

Dr. Shipherd At Central Church.

Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, pastor of Park Congregational church, will be the preacher at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, at the same hour will preach the dedication sermon at the Baptist church in Moosup.

Dr. Pitt will be in his own pulpit at the morning service and will preach on "The Verse That Changed the Life of America's Greatest Quaker." The Quaker calendar for 1930 will be distributed at the close of the service to the families in the congregation which have not already received one.

Fined in Lisbon Court

Found guilty on the charge of breach of the peace in making a disturbance at a house where he was visiting, a Taftville man was fined $10 and costs when he was presented in the justice court in Lisbon Thursday evening before Walter C. Drew. The accused had for his counsel, Attorney Edward G. McKay of this city. He was arrested on Jan. 8.

TO SEE BOY SCOUT FEATURE FILM AT Y. M. C. A.

A Boy Scout feature film entitled "The Call," and a Winter Camp reel will be shown at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock to all Boy Scouts and their parents. The film comes highly recommended. The story is of Jerry, an orphan "newsie," the head of his gang who lives in a packing case in a tenement area-way. One day he finds a Scout manual and sees a vision of himself as a Boy Scout. Later, with the help of a scoutmaster, he is sent to a summer camp. While there "Egg Mary," who supplies the camp with butter and eggs, is held up and her pocket-book stolen. Running for help she meets Jerry and two companions. The boys immediately give chase to the highwayman and, after many thrilling events, succeed in returning the old lady's money. The final scene shows Jerry adopted by "Egg Mary" and taking the place of her own boy who was lost in France. The film devotes a full reel to the Scout activities in camp. The fourth reel is called "A Boy Scout Diary", and has many pictures of winter camp life.

Rev. George Warren Potter will have charge of the devotional part of the service and will give an interesting talk on scouting and its relation to character formation.

Scouts will assemble in uniforms at 3:30 in front of the city hall and will march in a body to the Y. M. C. A.

A postal card invitation has been sent to every Scout and his parents and it is anticipated that Scouts and parents will respond in large numbers. The film was secured at considerable cost and should prove to be a story of unusual merit.

Through the Hanover-Curland company an instruction booklet on "How to Play the Harmonica," will be distributed to all Scouts. This booklet will be given away free because in the film a Boy Scout plays a harmonica.

GAVE MUSICAL PROGRAMME FOR PARISH HOUSE DEPT.

The parlors of the Hugh H. Osgood Memorial parish house of Park Congregational church were transformed into an English drawing room Friday afternoon when Mrs. John F. Rogers, the new chairman of the parish house department, presented her first musical programme.

She was assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Theodore M. Shipherd, Mrs. Aurin O. Payson, Mrs. Charles A. Saxton, Ms. A. N. H. Vaughn, Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins, Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, Mrs. Harrison Gray, Miss Louise Howe, Miss Alexandrine Trumbull, Miss Hannah Crowell and the president, Mrs. W. T. Browne, ex-officio, all of whom received informally while the overture to "The Barber of Seville" was played as a duet by Mrs. Shipherd and Mrs. Saxton.

This was followed by a few words of New Year greeting from Mrs. Browne for good fellowship and success through the coming year, closing with a New Year prayer written by James Whitcomb Riley. Mrs. James N. Bidwell and Mrs. Charles E. Schwenk then sang with their usual generosity a duet and each appeared in solos rendered in beautiful voice.

Miss Amy Cogswell read from Mrs. Gaskell's "Crawford," the chapter telling of Miss Betty's tea party with pictures of its presentation at the old School-house club.

After a brief business meeting, tea was served at small tables, English muffins and several kinds of jam, plain cake and seed cookies hastily disappearing. Mrs. Robert W. Perkins and Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn assisted at the tables with the Misses Shipherd.

During the afternoon holders were made to send to Tougaloo college, Mississippi.

SECOND ARREST MADE IN BOTTLING WORKS RAID

John Kornacki, 44, of this city, who is said to be part owner of the Greeneville Bottling works, No. 26 Sixth street, was arrested late Friday afternoon on a charge of violation of the liquor laws, in connection with the raid at the place Thursday evening. The arrest was made by State Police Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Hill of the Groton barracks. Kornacki was allowed his freedom under bonds of $1,000 to await appearance in city court this (Saturday) morning.

In the raid Thursday evening his son, Alexander, 17, was arrested on the same charge. He is understood also to be a part owner of the business.

GAVE BRIDGE PARTY FOR NEW YORK GUEST

Five tables of bridge were played at a party given at Springdale Farm Thursday evening in honor of Miss Doris Schwartzburg of New York city, the guest of the Misses Ruth and Beatrice Levine. The first prize, a satin boudoir pillow, was won by Miss Ray Gordon, the second, a combination box of face powder and perfume, went to Miss Mary Adams and Miss Nomie Abramson was awarded a [illegible] as third. Miss Schwartzburg was presented a boudoir lamp as guest prize.

A dainty supper consisting of chicken salad, rolls, assorted cookies, cake, ice cream and tea, was served by Mrs. M. V. O'Neill, hostess at the farm, after which Miss Schwartzburg, who is a concert singer, entertained with many classical as well as popular songs, playing her own accompaniments. Dancing to the music of the radio was enjoyed until a late hour.

SPLENDID PIANO RECITAL BY FRANK L. FARRELL

An audience of close to 400 at Slater hall Friday evening enjoyed a splendid piano recital by Frank L. Farrell of Bridgeport, foremost pianist of this city when his residence was here before he went to New Haven five years ago. Professor Farrell appeared under the auspices of the Norwich League of Women Voters and had an audience to hear him play and to greet him with congratulations afterwards that included a great number of those who knew him during his Norwich residence.

He opened his program with a Beethoven group, the rendering of which made it one of the distinctive performances of the evening and he was equally happy in his interpretation of Mozart's Pastorale Varie and the fantastic Perpetual Motion which was a marvel of facile fingering.

The Schumann Carnaval, op. 9, was given a magnificent interpretation, closing with a burst of power and brilliancy that made this number an artistic triumph of the evening.

In a group of four Chopin selections he showed his versatility in mood and expression, ranging from the most delicate shading to crashing crescendos that were given most effectively. He delighted his audience anew when he gave Chopin's Prelude in E flat for an encore.

A final encore number was Liszt's Venetian Napoli, which he gave at the end of the concert, when his enthusiastic hearers demanded one more number before they were willing to let him go.

The programme was given as follows:

Sonata op. 57	Beethoven
Allegro assai
Andante con moto
Allegro ma non troppo, Presto
Pastorale Varie	Mozart
Perpetual Motion	Von Weber
Carnaval op. 9	Schumann
Preambule, Pierrot, Arlequin, Valse Papillons, Lettres Dansantes, Chiarina, Chopin, Estrella, Reconnaisance, Pantalon et Colombine, Valse Allemande, Paganini, Aveu, Pause, "Marche des Davidstrundler" Contre les Philistines.
Nocturne op. 27, No. 1	Chopin
Etude op. 25, No. 6	Chopin
Mazurka op. 17, No. 4	Chopin
Polonaise op. 57	Chopin
Liebestraume	Liszt
La Campanella	Paganini-Liszt

CITY CLUB ROUND TABLE ON LITERARY NORWICH

Literary Norwich was the subject which held the interest of a large number of the Woman's City club members Thursday afternoon in the club room in the Wauregan hotel, when Miss Louise Howe, chairman of the literature committee, opened the first of the meetings in this series.

In the paper which followed, Miss Howe spoke of the many and varied things for which Norwich has been noted. Its exceptional beauty, its historical background, its distinguished men and women, particularly those who have been prominent along literary lines.

Mrs. Lydia Huntley Sigourney, who a century ago was considered one of the foremost literary women of her time, was born at "Lowthorpe," the charming old Gilman house at Norwich Town. She played in the great attic of the house, wandered in the terraced gardens and went to school in the two little old brick schoolhouses which are still standing in Norwich Town. Later she lived in the house now occupied by Miss Fuller and Mrs. Eastman. She was a precocious child and at the tender age of 4 covered herself with glory by going ahead of boys four times her age, in spelling, or "orthographical lessons," as she called them. On her return from boarding school she taught school in the house on Broadway where B. P. Bishop now lives and later moved her school to a larger house, probably on Jail Hill or Church street. Her style seems to us "pedantic, stilted and grandiloquent," yet as a writer she was considered at that time second only to Mrs. Hemans. Norwich may be justly proud of her daughter.

Donald G. Mitchell was also born in Norwich in a house that stood where the home of Professor Tirrell now stands, next to Slater Hall. He wrote under the pen name of Ik Marvel. Several chapters of Reveries of a Bachelor were written in the house on Sachem street where Mrs. Frank Robinson now lives. His father was pastor of the Second Congregational church on Church street.

Edmund Clarence Stedman, while not a native, spent his boyhood years with relatives at Norwich Town. Later in life he became editor of The Norwich Tribune. Miss Margaret Fuller has told the story of his boyhood days in that delightful book, "A New England Childhood." Mr. Stedman loved staid old Norwich and paid many a delightful tribute to it both in prose and poetry.

Jonathan Trumbull in an address given 20 years ago before the New London Historical society paid fitting tributes to both Mr. Stedman and Donald G. Mitchell.

Mr. Trumbull himself was a man of rare literary gifts. He wrote the life of his great, grand grandfather, Gov. Jonathan Trumbull, the friend of Washington. Besides possessing an intimate knowledge of history he was also a profound student of Shakespeare.

Henry Harland, (Sydney Luska) was frequently at "Sentry Hill" the ancestral home of the Harlands. On account of ill health he also lived much abroad. He had a genius for work and sacrifice when it came to the thing in which he was vitally interested. At different times he lived in New York, London and Paris, where his wit and charm made him the center of a brilliant coterie of artists, writers and musicians. In London, he was associated with Henry James, Whistler, Aubrey Beardsley, Max Beerholm, Oscar Wilde and other notable men of his day.

In 1890, Henry Harland and Aubrey Beardsley founded the "Yellow Book," which let down the bars of prejudice and tradition in London's publishing offices. Many of Henry Harland's hitherto unpublished stories found a place there. The Cardinal's Snuff Box, which appeared in 1898, was an instant success and brought him fame and fortune, and he was called one of the leading prose writers of his day.

Miss Howe who knew both Henry Harland and his wife gave some delightful personal reminiscences of hours spent in their company. She described him as being brilliant, witty, teasing, sarcastic—"a quite maddening sort of person, but altogether delightful."

He died at the age of 44 and is buried in Yantic cemetery.

Among other distinguished writers claimed by Norwich are Mrs. Jean Porter Rudd, David Dwight Wells, John Troland, recently passed away, Poultney Bigelow a one time Academy student; Margaret Fuller, poet and novelist; Charlotte Perkins Gilman, whose books have been translated into many languages; Amanda Hall and Winifred Wells, who have each won distinction in the line of poetry; George Weston, who finds that a room in the Shannon building is an ideal place in which to write his stories, and Witter Binner, who, though not Norwich born, spent most of his boyhood days in this city.

Among well known journalists are: Channing Huntington, Allan Baer, Isaac Bromley and Henry Huntington. Lawrence Gilman is noted for his book and musical criticisms which have a high literary value. Daniel Coit Gilman, president of two great universities, still found time to write on historical and biographical subjects. Mazie Caruthers, Ella Fanning, Ruth Foss Brewer, Tyler Olcott and many others are present day writers, and the names of Miss Caulkins and Miss Mary Perkins, both of whom have contributed volumes of local history, must also be mentioned.

Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Wm. T. Browne and Mrs. Shipherd read extracts from the writings of Mrs. Sigourney, Edmund Clarence Stedman, Donald G. Mitchell, Henry Harland and Jonathan Trumbull. Framed photographs of these writers were shown.

In the round table meetings which follow, other writers whose names have been mentioned in this paper will be more fully discussed.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

TRIANGULAR INDOOR TRACK MEET AT STATE ARMORY THIS EVENING

A brand new Academy sport will be given a whirl before local fans tonight at the state armory when the Red and White indoor track team has its first test in a triangular meet with Suffield prep and Chapman Tech. Several feature races are also listed, the most important of which probably will be a mile event, drawing the best schoolboy distance men in this section. The meet starts at 7:30.

The Academy's new school band, of about 30 pieces, will also make its initial bow tonight. Under the direction of Mr. John M. Swahn, veteran bandleader, the student musicians, who have been practicing since October, will play between events for the large crowd that is expected. The armory has been put into good shape for the event and everything has been pronounced in first-class shape by Coach John P. Murphy of the Wildcat performers.

The list of events include:

600 yard run; 30, 40, 50 yard dashes; 440 yard run; 880 yard run; mile run; 50 yard low hurdles; high jump; medley relay; mile relay.

Chapman Tech's entry list has not been announced but that of the other two schools discloses some exceptionally speedy boys. In addition to runners from the featured schools, Bulkeley of New London will enter at least half a dozen performers and Westerly will send up its star cross-country runner for the special mile run, Ed Cotter. Conn. Aggies will also send down a quartet.

The Academy's entry list shows Capt. Sam Berkman, Bill Agnew, Johnny Lyons and John Lienkiewicz entered in the mile relay. These boys have been doing great time in the workouts, turning in 3.47 only this week. In the sprints, Sera, Sargent, Lyons, Hogg and Berkman will toe the mark; Goldberg, Sera and Sara are the starters in the 600 yard run; Mahoney, Baronsky and Derosier in the 880 yard run; Lagobosky, Lyons, Navick, Levitsky and Beebe in the mile run; Lazaroff, Berkman and Lienkiewicz in the low hurdles; Lienkiewicz and Root in the high jump and in the medley relay the following have been chosen: 220, Lazaroff; 440, Lienkiewicz; 660, Mahoney; 880, Derosier.

The following candidates will represent Suffield in the various events: Hill, Olin and Janik, 50 yard dash; Olin, Raleigh and Kaminsky, 220 yard race; Whitebeck, Blank and Gross, 440 yard race and 880 yard race; Foster, Pochron and Crulli, one mile run; Wilson, Benton and Cavallini, high jump; Hill, Raleigh and Olin, broad jump; Files, Janik and Wilson, 12-pound shot put; and Raleigh, Kaminsky and Foster, 880 yard relay.

BALTIC MAROONS WIN FROM SHYMA JUNIORS

POJELLO THROWS WADE AFTER TWO HOURS WORK

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17—(AP)—Karl Pojello, Chicago heavyweight wrestler, threw Glenn Wade, Cincinnati, after two hours and 10 seconds of grappling, with a swinging headlock and body slam. Pojello weighed 190 and Wade 202.

Frank Judson, 207, Boston, won a 45-minute decision over Jim McMillan, 218, Chicago; Pat O'Shocker, 215, Salt Lake City, threw Jack Washburn, 225, Los Angeles, in 13 minutes and 20 seconds with a crotch hold and body slam, and Hans Steinke, 235, New York, downed Vanka Zelezniak, 240, also New York, in 32 minutes and 56 seconds.

BROUILLARD WINS ON KNOCKOUT; DARR BEATEN

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—The Patent Leather Kid, of New Bedford, Mass., won on a foul tonight from Bob Marriot, of the Coast Guard, in the fourth round of an eight round bout. The Kid weighed 169, and Marriot, 167 1-2.

In an eight round preliminary, Ed Pearson, of the Coast Guard, was awarded a decision over Vic Darr, of Norwich. Pearson weighed 146; Darr 143 1-2.

Young Gauvin, Norwich, won a decision over Joe Grenada, New London, in a four rounder. Gauvin weighed 124 and Grenada, 123.

WILL MARANVILLE COOPERATE WITH McKECHINE, BRAVES?

BOSTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Plans for the 1930 tribe of Boston Braves, according to President Emil E. Fuchs, call for several new faces and much more speed in every position. The outstanding new face will be that of Bill McKechnie, who has accepted the managership that Johnny Evers and "Rabbit" Maranville rejected last season.

Followers of the last place National league club, however, appear much less interested in what the Braves are going to do in 1930, than they do in what McKechnie is going to do about Maranville.

This coming season will mark the third time in six years that "Rabbit" has crossed McKechnie's path. On the two previous occasions while Bill was piloting the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardnals, he promptly traded the carefree shortstop, who was then one of the play boys of the National league.

Maranville has settled down during the last couple of years and last season he was the league's second best fielding shortstop and batted exceptionally well. It will be remembered that at the start of the 1929 campaign, he handled almost 200 chances before making an error.

So far McKechnie has not made any mention of Maranville and it can be assumed that he is willing to forget the past for the "Rabbit" is the only seasoned shortstop on the Braves' infield suad.

Johnny Neun, who had a great year with Detroit in 1927, appears slated for George Sisler's first base job. The latter will be used as a coach and pinch hitter. Neun started with the Toledo club last season and finished with Baltimore, where he showed plenty of his old time form.

Freddie Maguire should not have much trouble keeping the second baseman's berth away from Bob James, who was with the club last season, and Harry Nolan, fresh from the Beaumont, Texas high school.

Though Lester Bell has been traded to the Chicago Cubs, McKechnie has a surplus of third basemen and three youngsters, Gene Robertson, Russell Rollings, late of Hollywood, and Henry Peploski, who saw some service late last season, will fight for that post.

Lance Richbourg, Jimmy Welsh and Walter Berger, who hit well over .300 for Los Angeles last season, and came to the Braves in the Bell deal, will probably make up the regular outfield with Earl Clark, Joe Bratcher, late of the Denver club, Jim Dunlap and Ralph Boyle, acting as replacements.

Nothing much has been done to strength the pitching staff and it now appears that Harry Seibold, Bruce Cunningham, Percy Jones, Johnny Cooney and Ed Brandt, will be forced to carry on as they did last season.

The catching department is also unchanged, consisting of Al Spohrer, who recently bowed to Arthur (The Great) Shires in the Boston Garden ring, and Bill Cronin. The veteran Hank Gowdy is called a catcher by the club roster but he intends to spend most of next season grooming the tribal pitchers.

DAILEY WILL BE NEW PRESIDENT OF U. S. L. T. A.

(By Ted Vosburgh, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—After two years as president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, Samuel H. Collom of Philadelphia is to be succeeded at the annual meeting in St. Louis, Feb. 15, by Louis B. Dailey, New York realtor.

Mr. Dailey, now vice president and long active in tennis circles, was named for the presidency today by the nominating committee whose selection virtually amounts to an election. Mr. Collom is a friend and fellow townsman of Bill Tilden, who, by coincidence has chosen this year to retire from Davis cup competition.

Although no announcement was made as to whether Mr. Collom was a candidate for reelection, it is understood that because of the demands of his private business he was more than willing to relinquish the presidency of the association.

Mr. Dailey, while never a player of top rank, has been connected with the game in an administrative capacity since 1921 when he became treasurer of the Metropolitan Lawn Tennis association. He served successively as secretary and vice president until the disbandment of that association in 1927.

He also has been president of the New York and Eastern associations and treasurer of the U. S. L. T. A. as well as vice president.

Other officers nominated to serve with Mr. Dailey were Louis J. Carruthers, New York, who now is treasurer; Donald M. Hill, Waban, Mass., treasurer; and James C. Stewart, Chicago, who is slated for reelection as secretary. The committee making the nominations is headed by F. F. Bradley, Chicago.

The prospective changes in administration were announced in the official call for the annual meeting which also contained indications that the question of "open tennis" will come in for considerable discussion at St. Louis. The association already has pronounced itself in favor of it.

Another development was the recommendation that the 1931 or fiftieth anniversary meeting of the association be held in New York.

The advisory and finance committee recommended that the following resolution adopted five years ago be rescinded:

"That the Davis cup committee be instructed to select its teams, singles and doubles, and to notify the players of their selection twenty-one days in advance of the first match of the challenge round; that any time between the twenty-first day and the tenth day, if the Davis cup committee believes that another team is better than the one selected, test matches shall be arranged."

DOYLE WINS ON K. O. OVER PIQUETTE IN FOURTH

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 17—(AP)—Mickey Doyle, 137, New York city, won on a technical knockout over Lou Piquette, 136, Bridgeport, in the fourth round of the star bout of the Puritan A. A. boxing card here tonight.

Other results were:

Georgie Paulin, 112, Bridgeport, won on a technical knockout over Kid Pancho, 119, New York city, in the third round of the eight round semi-final.

Sammy Kraft, 142, Bridgeport, took the decision over Willie Hussey, 143, Bridgeport, in a six round bout.

Bengough Signs Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—The first 1930 contract received by the New York Yankees was brought to the baseball club offices by the signer in person, Benny Bengough, who escorted the signed document to New York from Niagara Falls.

If some people don't win prizes at a public whist or pinochle they feel as though they had been cheated.

And the way they will battle for prizes at these parties is a caution. About the only thing they don't do to win a prize is to bite one another, all other holds and blows are perfectly legal.

It makes no difference whether they know each other or not they will reflect on the mentality and anchestry of their partners with abandon. When you leave the hall you wonder whether your grandfather was holding out on you and did swing by his tail from trees, like you've been told so often.

To overbid a hand or lead the wrong card to your partner is like feeding red pepper to the lion. It's just too bad. If your partner's a woman you are lucky if you get off with some remark about where you learned to play cards or with advise about buying a pack and practicing.

But if your partner's a man and you are a woman all you'll get is a disgusted look that speaks louder than words but if you are a man too just pull up your legs and duck. I know one man who says he's going to wear shinguards the next time he goes to one of the public card parties.

The other night one of the local boys went to one of these card parties which happened to be a mixed affair. He'd been having pretty good luck all evening and his score was averaging beter than a thousand at a table.

Toward the latter part of the evening the progression brought him a real dyed-in-the-wool pinochle fiend. She had that "They-Shall-Not-Pass" spirit and looks. You know, that kind that will bid just take it away from somebody else.

Well, her partner during the previous hand had not bid according to her liking and had set her a coupla times. Boy, she was just loaded for bear and she was going to show somebody something and how.

Her former partner had the first bid and he made a bid of 270. It was pinochle they were playing. Well, she gives him a dirty look and says 280. She bought something for when she laid down her meld there was just 50 in the hand and her partner had nothing.

There was nothing to do but play it out and when the hand was over she was something like 150 short in tricks. Boy, she just fairly frothed she was so mad and to cap it all she tried to lay the blame on her partner.

She says, "well, if you had had anything we wouldn't have been set. But I don't care I got a low score anyway, thanks to him," nodding to her former partner. Her present partner just smiled a sickly grin but he was a gentleman and kept his mouth shut tight.

When the hand was over one of the players at the table says "Well, didja have a nice time tonight?" "No," says she, "I didn't and I never see worse players in my life."

"Well," says her friend, "You met some nice boys over here even if you didn't win a prize."

"There ain't no nice boys here," she snaps and flounces out of the hall.

Nice people.

BABE HAS CRAMPS AND GOLF GAME GOES HAYWIRE

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 17—There is no telling how badly Al Smith and Babe Ruth would have beaten their opponents in an 18-hole golf match today if the Babe had not developed cramps.

As it was Bob Shawkey, manager of the New York Yankees, and Billy Klem, major league umpire, breezed in with an 8 and 7 win.

Teamed with Ruth, the former New York governor oozed confidence at the first tee. "If you can hit a golf ball like you can a baseball we're all set," he told the Babe.

To prove his confidence Al stepped up to the tee and smacked the ball straight down the fairway, following soon after with a 20 foot putt that gave him a par four and put the Babe-Al combination one up.

It was just as well, for it was the only time during the match that Babe and Al were up.

A cold drink around, and a hot sun bearing down, had its effect on the stomach that holds the major league record by its capacity for hot dogs and pop.

Babe complained of the cramps, but after a short rest he manfully resumed play. The Babe's medal score soared to 95, and his partner, affected no doubt, by Ruth's collapse, turned in 119. Shawkey had 91 and Klem 95.

No amount of coaxing by newspapermen in the gallery could induce Ruth to comment on his new salary contract.

"They've got to come see me," he said. "I set the price, and there's been no response to my suggestion." His suggestion was $85,000 yearly on a three year contract.

It was a big day for Al. He started it off by driving a fire truck from the Coral Gables department station to a call box, where he smilingly doffed his brown derby to the photographers. "Firefighting isn't what it used to be when they used horses," he said.

LARRIVEE BEATS GOLDEN IN FAST ENCOUNTER

WATERBURY, Jan. 17—(AP)—Leo Larrivee, Waterbury middleweight, started a successful comeback here tonight, beating Johnny Golden, clever Irish battler of New York, in the main Waterbury A. C. bout staged at Buckingham hal. before a crowd of more than 1,500. Larrivee weighed 158 1-2; Golden 157 1-2. Results:

Willie Bush, Waterbury, 163, eight round decision over Erwin Stiegler, Germany, 154 1-2. Lucien Larrivee, Waterbury, 165, knocked out Jerry Poslio, Naugatuck, 163, in the second round of a scheduled six round bout. Connie Melio, Waterbury, 135 1-2, six round decision over Lou Murelli, Torrington, 136. Al Mariano, 164 1-2, state amateur light heavyweight champion, made his pro debut by knocking out K. O. Jim Sweeney, Torrington, 159, in the second round of a scheduled four round opening contest.

DANN AND TRYON TO PLAY IN CLUB FINALS

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 17—(AP)—Carl Dann, Jr., youthful Winterpark, Fla., golfer, and Albert Tryon, Elmira, N. Y., youngster, fought their way into the finals today of the annual tourney for golf club champions here.

Dann defeated A. A. Manucy, St. Augustine, 5 and 4, in their 36 hole semi-final today while Tryon disposed of Robert James, Winterpark, 6 and 5.

Optimism is the philosophy with which we regard ourselves.

TONY CANZONERI GOES DOWN TO DEFEAT BEFORE THE FLYING FISTS OF JACK BERG

By EDWARD J. NEIL

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Jan. 17—(AP)—A gallant little fighting man, Smiling Tony Canzoneri, slipped suddenly from the list of ring masters tonight and headed down from the heights, battered into the worst defeat of his brilliant career by a spindle armed Jewish lad from England, Jack "Kid" Berg.

Awed and almost unbelieving, 18,000 of the faithful sat rooted in their chairs until it became too obvious to doubt longer that the great little Italian, former featherweight champion and within the year challenger for the lightweight crown, was only a shadow of himself—and this on the night he would have needed everything he ever had to whip the white chapel whirlwind.

From the first round on, with the possible exception only of the third round, Berg, a slender youngster who never stops punching, battered Canzoneri around the ring. He ripped and slashed at Tony's body, smashed repeatedly at the Italian's smiling head until Canzoneri wore a twisted mask of blood. For a few moments in the first round, and again in the third, Canzoneri battled with his old swashbuckling skill and abandon, blocking, weaving, slamming shots from either hand into the thin, dark, pinched features of the Jewish boy. But Tony could not keep the pace.

In every other round, Berg hammered him steadily, despite Tony's frantic efforts to fight back and turn the tide with one belt or two on the chin. As the battle wore on, Tony's face became a mass of cuts. At every opportunity, he held and Referee Mike Hylas, from constantly separating the fighters, was soaked in gore to the elbows.

Berg split Canzoneri's right eye in the first round and closed it before the struggle was over. Another smash tore a gash over Tony's left eye in the third round. Canzoneri's cheeks were cut, his lips were split.

The victory of Berg, who received the award of the two judges while the referee voted for Canzoneri, came as a complete surprise. Canzoneri's brilliant record, including a hair-line defeat by Champion Sammy Mandell, in a title go in Chicago, brought him into the ring a 2 to 1 favorite.

Canzoneri weighed 133; Berg, 134 1-2.

Herman Perlick, one of the fighting lightweight twins from Kalamazoo, won the decision over Jake Zeramby, Boston southpaw, tonight in the first ten round match. There were no knockdowns and the bout was clumsy and uninteresting. The crowd booed both the fight and the decision. Perlick weighed 137 1-2; Zeramby, 135 1-2.

The other Perlick twin, Henry, did much better although he gained only a draw with Eduardo Corti belligerent Argentine, in a six round go. The crowd cheered Perlick after a hard, fast fight. Henry weighed 136, Corti 134 1-2.

MONTVILLE ACES WIN EASY GAME FROM BANKERS

The Montville Aces beat the New London Bankers Friday, at Montville, 45 to 25. The Bankers, who had the City league and former Chapman Tech players in their lineup, trailed practically all the way. Moss, of the winners, was high scorer.

AGGIES BLANKED BY UNION HOCKEY TEAM

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 17—(AP)—The Union college hockey team opened the new Ryder hockey rink and its season here today with a 3 to 0 victory over the Connecticut Agricultural school team. The Garnet never was in danger.

Henafeldt scored twice and Kahn once. Brown, the Aggie goalie, made 26 stops.

GIANTS SEND OUT 33 CONTRACTS TO BALL PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—The New York Giants today sent 33 contracts to baseball players scattered throughout the United States. All the veterans of the National league club are to be signed, the half dozen attested documents already in the strong box cover the services of young pitchers and catchers, and Dave Bancroft, late of Boston and Brooklyn, who will do emergency infield chores and coach.

SONNENBERG THROWS McGILL TWICE AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 17—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion, tonight defended his title by defeating Pat McGill, of Nebraska, in two straight falls. The first came in 38 minutes and the second in six minutes, both by the champion's famous flying tackle. Sonnenberg weighed 201, and McGill 216.

WALKER TO BOX THE LOMSKI-BRADDOCK WINNER

DETROIT, Jan. 17—(AP)—Dick Dunn, manager of Olympia Arena, today announced he had signed Mickey Walker to fight the winner of the Leo Lomski-James Braddock bout, scheduled in Chicago tonight. The match will be on February 7, here.

Dunn said all three fighters had signed an agreement for the fight.

Lomski And Braddock Draw

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—(AP)—Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., fought James J. Braddock, Jersey City, light heavyweight, to a draw in ten rounds at the Coliseum tonight. The decision was unpopular as the crowd thought Lomski was entitled to the verdict.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Moose Charity Ball

One of the most interesting and pleasant of the holiday season's activities is the Mooseheart charity ball to be held tonight in Moose hall. This will be a public affair and the object of the ball is to help Norwich lodge raise its quota of funds in the vast building program at Mooseheart, Illinois, the child-city of the Moose.

It is expected that Norwich lodge will direct that its quota be used especially in the erection and construction of a boys' village at Mooseheart. There are upward of 2,000 children—orphans or dependents of deceased members of the Moose—being provided a home, a high school education and instruction in a trade in the child-city. The board of governors, headed by James J. Davis, United States secretary of labor, believes better training of the youngsters and better administration of child-city affairs can be brought about by building the boys' village, wherein boys of eight to twelve years will be lodged.

Mooseheart is a city complete in itself, with its own water and sanitary systems, its fire patrol, its excellently equipped hospital, its schools, and workshops. The children range in age from tiny infants to young men and women of approximately eighteen—the age at which they usually graduate, equipped in heart, mind and hand to take up life's work. Physically, Mooseheart is a vast park-like estate of more than 1,000 acres, from whose summer greenery or winter whiteness arise more than 150 cottages and other buildings constructed of granite-face concrete with red tile roofs.

The child city, and the results it is obtaining in producing sterling men and women of tomorrow, is the source of wonderment among educators and social workers the world over. Its educational standard is of the highest and has been given a prominent place among schools of all sorts throughout the country.

Breed Theatre

"They Had to See Paris," Will Rogers' first all talking picture, will be the attraction at the Breed theatre next week. The story was written by Homer Croy, the dialog by Owen Davis, Sr., dean of American playwrights. Frank Borzage directed the production and Bernard Steel staged it. It is a Fox Movietone production.

The story deals with the sudden rise to wealth of an Oklahoma family when an oil well comes in a gusher, and their desire to see Paris individually and collectively.

The trip is made in grand style, and once in the French metropolis Mrs. Peters is determined to marry her daughter to a title. She plunges into society in spite of the protests of her less ambitious husband.

The events that follow are as laughable as they are costly, and keep the family in a state of constant excitement.

The role of Pike Peters, who becomes a millionaire over night, is enacted by Will Rogers, the best known personality in the United States. Irene Rich portrays his wife, while the son and daughter are played by Owen Davis, Jr., and Marguerite Churchill. Others in the cast are Fifi Dorsay, Ivan Lebedeff and Rex Bell.

There is no doubt but that the Breed theatre management's announcement that the "Cock Eyed World" will be held over for one extra showing this afternoon at 1:30 is causing widespread comment and joy to the many hundreds who were unable to attend during the week. Here then is one more opportunity to see this outstanding all-talking epic of the marines which has broken all records for attendance wherever shown.

Broadway Theatre

Scandal—that ugly beast that even our boasted civilization still admits is master of humanity—that mysterious "they" whose forked tongues lick with consuming fire at character until it vanishes—that unseen, insidious power, apparently untamable, that undermines the very foundations of our lives—reached forth its awful tentacles across the seas, and destroyed the character and social standing of a beautiful woman—blameless enough, but guilty to the baleful eyes of Scandal, and to its sycophants, the hangers-on the fringe of society. Ruth Chatterton, in her strongest dramatic role, that of "The Laughing Lady," who laughed at Life, at Death, at every convention of society, ceased laughing, when Scandal had done its worst, robbed her of home, child, husband, even name, and became a vengeful sprite, determined to wreck the high-priced corporation lawyer, who in his first divorce case had chosen her as his victim and ruthlessly trampled her down. How she accomplished her purpose, achieving her aim fully, only to find at the very moment of his disgrace that she loved him dearly, makes one of the fastest-moving, raciest, spiciest stories that has yet been brought to the talking screen. Adapted from Sutro's immortal stage play "The Laughing Lady" excells even the famous "The Lady Lies," and will attract capacity audiences to the Broadway where it opens today. Clive Brook is the smart suave lawyer who sees his dream of a gigantic financial merger crumbling beneath the bitter attacks of the woman he ruthlessly ruined, and the balance of the amazing cast is made up entirely of well-known stage stars. The surrounding program is equally brilliant, with Lois Wilson in a sparkling featured comedy "For Love?—or Money?" a Metro musical and dancing revue, the "3 Victor Artists," headed by Henry Burr in "The Rubetown Minstrels," and the latest Paramount Sound News.

A fish expert says that it is correct to speak of "fishes" or "trouts" when several live specimens are meant, but anglers, shopkeepers and cooks should refer to "fish" or "trout," regardless of number.

CHANGES IN EQUIPMENT OF CENTRAL PHONE OFFICE

Extensive changes have been completed to the equipment in the central office of the telephone company and in the telephones in the homes and business places of party-line subscribers in this exchange in preparation for the introduction here, with the next directory, of semi-selective ringing in party-line service.

It has taken some time for a corps of telephone men to make the equipment changes necessary for the improvement in this class of service for local subscribers of the telephone company, but when put into operation it doubtless will prove very satisfactory as it has in other of the larger exchanges about the state.

When the telephone directory appears it will be found that party line listings no longer have a ring number suffix. Instead the suffix will be a letter. As in other exchanges the letters W, J, R and M are being used here because they are dissimilar in sound over the telephone and, therefore, are easily understood by the operators, making for swifter and surer service.

In making a party-line call the telephone user will give the line number as at present and also the letter as for example, 1234-W.

An important feature of this service improvement from the subscribers' viewpoint is the fact that each subscriber will hear but one ring other than his own. For example, the subscriber will hear ring one and ring two, but no other for the simple reason that there will be no other calls. Subscribers having the suffix W and J will answer when their bell rings one. Those having R and M will answer the ring two.

This simplification of the ringing system will make it easier for the subscriber to distinguish his call and avoid the annoyance of answering by mistake when some other party is called.

This service improvement has met with favor elsewhere about the state and will undoubtedly prove popular in this exchange.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The First Congregational church of Norwich Town held its annual meeting Thursday. The chairman of the board, Clyde M. Beebe, presided. After Clerk D. W. Avery had read his report, the treasurer, Frank S. Avery, submitted his report, which showed that the expenses for 1929 were heavy, including reshingling the parsonage and installing a new heating system in the parsonage, also repairs to the church and chapel as well as the removal of the old church shed, regrading the ground and making a parking place for autos at the rear. The total expense for improvement was over $1,300. There is, however, a large balance in the treasury.

At the election of officers, Henry T. Frazier was chosen a trustee for three years. Dwight W. Avery was re-elected clerk, and Frank Avery was re-elected treasurer. Upon motion of Herbert L. Yerrington, a special gift of $200 was presented to the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, by the corporation, by a unanimous vote.

At the close of the meeting of the corporation the trustees were called together to organize with Rev. Mr. Bailey. Charles Schwenk, Jr., was elected chairman of the trustees, he being the senior member. James F. Connolly is the other member of the board.

DANIELSON

NARROW ESCAPE FOR PARTY CELEBRATING PROHIBITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 17—Celebrating the tenth anniversary of prohibition with a gay little party, Charles M. Atherton, 26, of 22 Humboldt street, Providence, his friend, Miss Mildred Lattin, and a chauffeur, Alonzo Bowman, also of Providence, arrived here during the early hours of this morning in a brand new Peerless coach, destined to figure in a startling occurence.

The trio had something to eat at a lunch cart just below the Main street Railroad crossing and then Atherton decided he would like to be married immediately to Miss Lattin. He telephoned about for a clergyman or a justice to perform the ceremony, but no one with authority to do so could be interested in the matter at that time in the morning, it being about 3 o'clock.

Putting off the matter of the wedding until another day, Atherton inquired as to where some gasoline could be obtained and was directed to the Danielson garage. Atherton got into the driver's seat, started the machine, took a wrong turn and drove along Railroad square in the rear of the New Haven road freight house until he reached the north end of the building. Directly across the tracks is the garage. That fact probably accounts for Atherton driving the machine up a ramp used for unloading automobiles from freight cars, onto the loading platform and off it for a four foot drop onto the side track, from which point the car lunged ahead directly across the main line tracks.

Far up the track a headlight heralded the approach of a fast traveling Bar Harbor express. The three occupants of the car, who were uninjured,—quickly jumped out and starts toward Main street, Leon La Bonte, gateman at the Main street crossing rushed up beyond where the automobile was across the track, swinging a red lantern. There was not time, however, for Engineer Bosworth to bring the train to a stop and the big locomotive plowed into the machine at high speed tossing it against a freight car standing on the siding, from where it was thrown back on the main line. The machine was actually torn to bits and parts of it were picked up this morning all along the track as far south as Franklin street crossing, a distance of about a quarter of a mile.

Night Officer Laird Winchell, Ira A. Warren and Ralph Shoales were eyewitnesses of the crash, they having been in the immediate vicinity when the automobile was driven off the platform. The impact tore off the heavy metal step on the right side of the locomotive. Officer Winchell arrested Atherton.

This morning Atherton was presented in the town court charged with operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated. Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $150 and costs, a total of $161.50. The car reduced to splintered wood and twisted and torn metal was a 1930 model, owned by the F. C. Harvey company of Boston. Though the car bore Massachusetts dealer's plates, Atherton was driving with a Rhode Island operator's license, but that violation was not pressed against him in court.

UNABLE TO DETERMINE CAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 17—Coroner Arthur G. Bill said today that Dr. Frank Smith of Washington, R. I., who was killed late last night when he drove his car headon into a tree near King's filling station in Moosup, was about to leave for Florida to spend the remainder of the winter. Among the doctor's effects found on his person were travelers checks to the amount of $400. Dr. Smith passed his 82nd birthday a few days ago.

With Dr. Smith at the time of his death were his brother, A. N. Smith, and the latter's wife, for many years residents of Danielson, but for some time past making their home with the doctor at Washington, R. I. They escaped with minor injuries.

The party had come up from Rhode Island to attend services incident to dedication week at the new Baptist church in Moosup and had barely started on the return journey when the accident occurred. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and State Officer James Carmody of the Danielson barracks investigated the accident. It is believed possible that Dr. Smith suffered a heart attack causing him to lose control of the car, but there is no way to establish this.

Chester Lambert was being held at the barracks on North Main street today and is to be presented in court to answer to a charge that he stole chickens from Anson Maynard of East Killingly. The theft occurred about six months ago. Meanwhile, Lambert has been imprisoned in Rhode Island for a similar offence and upon expiration of his sentence was turned over to State Officer Royal V. Scranton for return to Connecticut.

President Mab A. Sayles of McGregor W. R. C., has appointed the following committees for the year: Conference, Mrs. Cora D. Page, Mrs. Lettie M. James, Mrs. Ida F. Thomas, Miss Annie L. Page, Mrs. Mab A. Sayles; relief, Miss Annie L. Page, Mrs. Eva B. Shoales, Mrs. Caroline Anderson, Mrs. Lona M. Chase; flower, Mrs. Catherine Wood, Mrs. Lettie M. James, Mrs. Stella Prantice; auditing, Mrs. Edith L. Jordan, Mrs. Sara A. Birch, Mrs. S. Ethel G. Ingalls, Mrs. I. Ethel King; kitchen, Mrs. Nellie V. Moran, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Dawson, Mrs. Mary E. Whitman, Mrs. Nannie Wells; social, Mrs. Ethel G. Ingalls, Mrs. Lona M. Chase, Mrs. Lizzie T. Withington, Mrs. N. A. Witter, Mrs. Ida F. Thomas; executive chairmen: For January, Mrs. Sarah A. Birch; February, Mrs. Lizzie T. Withington; March, Mrs. Nellie V. Moran; April, Miss Lillian E. Bailey; May, Mrs. Ethel G. Ingalls; June, Mrs. Yvonne Boyd; July-August, Miss Annie L. Page; September, Mrs. Lena M. Chase; October, Mrs. Fannie M. Brown; November, Mrs. S. Estelle Talbot; December, Mrs. Flora E. Kennedy.

Well over 10 per cent of the patients treated at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam during the past year entered from the town of Killingly. The number of patients received there from this town was 272, and of this number 137 were from Danielson. In all 2121 patients were treated at the hospital during 1929. Killingly is particularly interested in the well being of this hospital and much in its interest is done by this town's people every year.

If all the housing projects are carried out that are now talked of here, Danielson will have an ample supply of homes and will be a very considerably larger community than it is today. Possibly all of the 140 houses talked of will not be built this year, but a good start will be made toward that total. March, possibly late February, will see the first of the construction work underway.

With a short wave attachment to a standard type radio set that he possesses Earl Bassett of Broad street has been getting some wonderful results. Last night reception from England came in as clearly as stations from the mid-west and at 9:30, he listened to what presumably was a station in France signing off at "14 1-2 o'clock," France figuring time through a day from one to twenty-four hours.

Louis Peloquin has arranged a series of boxing bouts to be staged at the town hall, Jan. 31. Rene Peloquin, a bantamweight, and Louis Brouillard, a welterweight, both Danielson boys, are to appear in bouts.

Powdrell and Alexander have sent notices to the trade announcing that their general and financial offices are now in Danielson. Formerly they were in Boston.

Louis S. Ingalls, an official of the Danielson Rod and Gun club, has been elected vice-president of the Connecticut Association of Fish and Game clubs.

Miss Laura M. Pine, Mrs. Susie G. Williams and Mrs. Doris Evans were among the Brooklyn people who have just returned from attending the annual meeting of the State grange in Hartford.

Members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's church are to be entertained at a social party at the rectory Monday evening. Mrs. J. R. Jones and Mrs. John Marland will be hostesses.

The seniors of Tourtellotte high school presented "High Flyers" in the school auditorium Thursday night, under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Libbey Mars and W. G. Colby. The cast was: Davey Doyle, Elizabeth Corttiss; Mrs. Doyle, Hedvig Gustafson; Maizie Murray, Vivian Lucier; Anna Anglin Eurania Perkins; Bee Denson, Doris Crandall, Rose O'Grady, Eurania Perkins; Miss Mason Elsa Anderson; Aunt Emma, Geraldine Coville; Jack Whitney, Ruth Logee; John Murray, Beulah Buck; Bob, Annie Lee; Ezra Whitney, Dorothy Frudenthal; Prof. Collins, George Eddy; Mr. Peyton, Edwin Lehtiven; Alexandria, Condos Bahs. On account of the shortage of boys in the class, some of the senior girls impersonated the opposite sex.

Miss Juliette Cardinal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Almeric Cardinal, was a guest at two farewell parties this week. Thursday night she was honor guest at a party given by the Girls' club and earlier in the week at one given by Garde St. Therese. The young lady will enter Holy Cross convent in Canada, at the end of this month, to study for the sisterhood.

VOLUNTOWN

Lafayette Albro, 71, a resident of this village for the greater part of his long and useful life and for many years an employe of the Briggs Mfg. company, died suddenly Saturday night. On Saturday, he was about the village and appeared in his usual health, so that his sudden death came as a shock to the community in which he was held in high esteem, and his passing was deeply regretted. Many expressions of sincere sympathy have been extended to his widow and other relatives. His funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church and was largely attended. Rev. J. W. Carter, of Jewett City, officiated. Mrs. William Liberty sang several hymns. The bearers were Frank Gardner, Herbert Burdick, George Nichols, Edward Clarke, Albert Dupont and Ernest Eccleston. Relatives and friends from Voluntown, Moosup, Jewett City and River Point, R. I., were in attendance. Burial was in Robbins cemetery, Rev. Mr. Carter reading the committal service. There were beautiful flowers from relatives and friends.

Friends of Michael Reynolds, a former resident of Voluntown, were pained to learn of the accident that befell him while at his work Monday at the Fisk mill at Jewett City, as a result of which it is reported he will lose a portion of one hand.

Linemen in the employ of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. are stringing wires and putting the finishing touches on the line that will furnish electric lights for the people of the village. It is expected that the current will be turned on in a very short time, and those residents who are already wired and waiting, will be able to discard their kerosene and gasoline lamps and illuminate their homes in a modern manner. Let there be light!

Three cases of mumps have been reported in town, all in one home.

Recent rains have filled wells, brooks and ponds in this vicinity and everything is in readiness for a big freeze so that the icemen will be able to get in a supply for their customers. No ice has been cut on local ponds this year.

Tax Collector George B. Sheldon has made a good showing on his personal tax collection, having collected the entire tax collectable, with the exception of from two who are at present in New York. This showing speaks well for Mr. Sheldon's work, also for the promptness of local taxpayers. Mr. Sheldon has also collected a number of back property taxes, some long overdue.

The assessors have this year been doing some revaluation work on local property, and nearly all property owners have received notice that the valuation has been raised. It is presumed that the board of relief will have a very busy session when they meet.

PUTNAM

THIRD ATTEMPT TO SELL RHEA PLANT FAILS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 17.—The bankrupt National Rhea Co.'s interests will repose on the auction block for another fortnight, it was learned this afternoon when a third attempt to dispose of the properties at a price of $147,500 failed to bring forth a purchaser, the result being the postponement of the auction until Jan. 31 when those interested in the sale will gather again to make a fourth effort to induce a textile group to take over the manufacturing properties at the stipulated price.

Providence auctioneers in company with Lewis A. Waterman, receiver of the concern, and a small group of New England mill men, gathered at the company plant on Canal street at 2 o'clock to reopen the sale but the assembly concluded its business a few minutes later without hearing a word spoken concerning the terms of the sale. The price decreed by the courts was credited with being responsible for the failure of a bid. It is understood that the price is regarded by most textile executives as being too high and it was further stated by one in authority that in the event the assets of the plant are not sold two weeks hence the only remaining alternative will be a petition to the courts in view of obtaining a lower and more attractive sale price.

This course, it is expected, will be resorted to by Receiver Waterman, who is making every effort to sell the mill and close his receivership trust, which was created last summer when the stockholders of the company filed voluntary bankruptcy proceedings.

In winning the second round of the tournament with the Knights of Columbus by a 4-3 score Thursday evening, the Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows closed the gap in the score and cut the Caseys' lead to 2 points. The score for the season to date is 8 to 6 with the Caseys on the long end. Auction bridge seems to be the most favorable game being played on the field of green this season in the tournament. Six tables were in play last night and following is the result of the contests: (Odd Fellows' names appear first) H. Morrarty and Campbell won from A. Giraca and Bourgeois; F. Morratty and G. Gifford won from H. Rice and Bissonett; K. Andrews and Reynolds won from Hanlifan and Caffery; McIntyre and Brown lost to L. Giraca and Charron; F. Gifford and C. Shaw lost to Igoe and Donlin; E. Andrews and Dow lost to McCauley and Hogan. Bid whist—Dextres and Johnson won from Martin and Bousquet. The next meet will be played Thursday evening at the Odd Fellows lodge rooms on Pomfret street.

A message was received by Sergt. Alpherie Eponcey at police headquarters last evening from police of Bristol, Conn., informing the local department of the killing of Patrolman James McNamee in Forestville and requesting that all officers be instructed to be on the watch-out for a Franklin sedan, registration No. 33,74 Conn., in which the quartet responsible for the killing were riding. All trunk highways were posted and patrolled by officers of the state police barracks at Danielson and the search continued today.

The dramatic group of Cargill council, Knights of Columbus, known as the "Columbian Players," were seen at the Bradley theatre Friday evening in their annual stage presentation, "Skinner's Dress Suit," a comedy. The cast of characters taking part maintained their usual excellence. Joseph Bove, a veteran of the past four K. of C. productions, was again seen in the title role. Michael L. White, a versatile member of the dramatic club, who, in the past stage enterprises of the organization played the part of a butler, departed from his familiar servant role in favor of the more difficult character of a business man. His part was well done. Others who appeared in the cast were Lawrence Phaneuf, Miss Alexine Rothwell, who played the feminine lead; Miss Irene Bernier, Miss Grace Vegiard, Miss Ruth McCoy, Lionel H. Charron, Miss Martha Starosta of Webster, Thomas Hanley of Pomfret and William Donoyan. The play was directed by John P. Heald of Webster, Mass.

Police court was in session this morning. A local man was arrested Thursday evening by Capt. A. J. Dubreuil and Patrolman Joseph Page and was presented before Judge Geissler on a minor charge, found guilty and fined actual costs of $1.

Mayor Charles A. Richard, Captain of Police Dubreuil and members of the board of aldermen were guests of the members of the Engine company No. 1 at the Central fire station Thursday evening, where a chicken supper was served. Following the servings, the firemen and their official guests retired to the company rooms where a social session was enjoyed.

From all indications the store of Horowitz Brothers, Inc., dealers in men's and women's wearing apparel, which was closed last Saturday afternoon by a common counts writ of attachment served by a deputy sheriff, will remain in its present state for many days, since no writ has as yet been returned to superior court offices here for entry on the docket. The attachment was served in favor of Samuel Diamond, former proprietor of the store, who is filing a damage suit against Abraham and Harry Horowitz, claiming damages of $5,000. Articles under attachment are to be listed before the return will be made and this procedure will require some time. Whether or not the owners, who have become entangled in legal difficulties, intend to extricate themselves from the present situation is not definitely known.

A. G. Warner Woman's Relief corps No. 38 had its officers installed Tuesday at the regular meeting held in Odd Fellows hall. A turkey dinner was served to the members and guests with the executive committee in charge. Mrs. Hattie Miller, chairman of the dinner, served an excellent dinner. The department guests present were: Department president, Mrs. Mary Gregory; department secretary, Mrs. A. Merritt; counselor, Miss Lillian Bailey; chairman executive board, Mrs. Ethel Tourtellotte; member of board, Mrs. Jayne E. Seed; also guests from the McGregor corps, Danielson: President, Mrs. Sayles; Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Birch, Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Brown, Miss Bailey, Mrs. Ida Thomas.

Mrs. Hattie Miller gave a fine report on child welfare work. Mrs. Mable Carpenter gave a splendid report of the relief work she has done the past year and she has been faithful to her work, sending birthday and Christmas boxes to the comrades, besides other relief work. Brief remarks were made by the visitors of the department, wishing them a successful year. Gifts were presented to Department President Mrs. Mary Gregory, Mrs. Ethel Tourtellotte, Mrs. Lena Monroe, Mrs. Mable Carpenter. All thanked the corps for their gifts. Mrs. Daisy Chase was presented a floor lamp. In behalf of the corps, Mrs. Hattie Miller presented the gift. Mrs. Chase, in a very pleasing way, thanked the corps for the gift. The corps closed with Salute to the Flag and singing America.

The meeting for installation was called to order at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. Ethel Tourtellotte as installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Mable Carpenter and Mrs. Lena Monroe, conductor. The officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Hattie Miller; senior vice-president, Mrs. Gladys Benoit; junior vice-president, Mrs. Belle Laird; chaplain, Mrs. Mary Willis; secretary, Mrs. Ardell Chapman; treasurer, Mrs. Ethel Tourtellotte; conductor, Mrs. Lena Monroe; assistant conductor, Mrs. Nancy Harrington; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Edna Benoit; guard, Mrs. Connell; assistant guard, Mrs. Nellie Joslin; press correspondent, Mrs. Sara Gifford; musician, Mrs. Lillian Larronday; color bearers, Mrs. Blanch Covell, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Spellecy, Mrs. Kilburn.

We wish to thank all who have helped knit squares for Afghans for the veterans of the Civil war and World war veterans also. The corps specially thanks Mrs. Marshall Kenyon, Mrs. Steer, Mrs. Woodis, Mrs. Burrows, Mrs. Miller, and all who helped knit squares for the Afghans.

JEWETT CITY

THE DRIVING OF STAKES GETS RESIDENTS "HET UP"

Residents all along Main street were disturbed Friday when a detachment of road surveyors from the state highway department drove stakes here and there, well inside the abutting property owners' lines. It was the rumor that Main street was to be materially widened from the north borough line to a point at the corner of Slater avenue, where the new viaduct grade comes into Main street, opposite R. W. Dearnley's store. Inquirers were told that the stakes driven in the yards were merely for the benefit of the construction engineers and that no widening is contemplated, as Main street is already wider by some feet than the new state highway bridge will be. From the north borough line, over the part surveyed today by the engineers, Main street is wider than Washington street in Boston from Scollay square to Kneeland street, by some few feet. It is easier for a camel to pass through a needle's eye than it is to pry information out of a state road surveyor. The facts, which may be banked on as reasonably certain are that the "S" curve bridge at Tadpole must get busy soon in order to bring its list of accidents up to an even two dozen, for its life is short. Spring will probably see the work begun of building a cement road from the new viaduct to Bishop's crossing. Beginning at the top of the hill, opposite the residence of Joseph Farrell, a bridge and fill will carry the new road over the railroad track and over the lower Tadpole pond, coming into the straight line at the grade opposite the Potts property.

The weekly assembly of the seventh and eighth grades of Riverside school was held in the auditorium Friday afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. Remick. The class leader was Agnes Connelly and the program included: Song, Long, Long Ago, girls of Room 3; Name of Our Town and Life of Roger Williams, Rita McKenna; Cost of Living, Rose Muscatine; Sunday schools, Etta Shea; Griswold's Whipping Posts, Bolek Kargul; Griswold's Veterans and LaFayette's Visits, Bennie Cholewa; Execution of Minor Babcock, Joseph Luty; Slavery, William Meskiavitch; Life of Eliezer Jewett, Eugenie Des Jardins; Tadpole, Raymond Symington; Hopeville, Sophie Gunner; Glasko's Blacksmith Shop, Leonard Shackleton; Dorrville, Napoleon Carroll; Fishing and Hunting in Griswold, Leon Petlicka. Those who attended expressed surprise at the store of knowledge the pupils had collected, concerning local objects and events.

John Bothwell has become a resident of Fitch's State Soldiers' home at Noroton. With his honorable discharge from the United States army, and the necessary credentials from the town clerk, his right to admission was easily established. Mr. Bothwell, who is about 70, has lived in Jewett City for many years. He fought in the Indian wars and at Fort Laramie, Neb., under government instruction he became an expert heliograph operator. He was on duty in the west at the time of the Sitting Bull uprising, and could relate interesting accounts of the long and tedious times when government troops were operating in the Indian country, when the west was west. Many friends will miss his familiar figure and friendly greeting.

THIS INDEPENDENT CAT PREFERS HIS OWN HUNTING

A woman whose home is in the park section of East Main street owns a cat. He will lie down, stand on his hind legs, roll over and play dead, all for the supper he knows will be the reward. Whenever he captures a sparrow or mouse, he first brings it to the kitchen to receive the approving pats of his mistress. Of late he has captured several mice but it seems that one still remained. Thursday night a trap was set in the cellar. Friday morning the woman went to the cellar door in answer to a scratching on the stairs. There was Tommy, dragging in not only the mouse but the trap. A strange look in his eyes seemed to tell of his evident disapproval of any such devices being used on his home hunting grounds.

SLATER AND SPRECKELS RECALLED IN ROSS LETTER

Years ago we used to wish that the Slater family lived in Jewett City. That wish perhaps was selfish, for we thought that if they lived near their cotton mill the village would be benefited. I think it was a sad day for the city of Norwich when the Slater family left the town.

The city of San Diego, Cal., gave to Mr Spreckels (of steamboat and sugar fame) an island in the harbor. This brought him to live here on the island of Coronado, where he built a home and became a citizen of the city.

He did everything imaginable for the good of the people here. If you inquire about any public building or park, the answer usually is, "Mr. Spreckels gave it to the city." This story is told: A small boy asked his mother, "Who owns that big building?" (The Bank of Italy building.) "Mr. Spreckels," she said. "Who owns that steamboat?" he asked. "Mr. Spreckels," was the answer. "Who owns that island, mother?" "Mr. Spreckels," she said. "Who owns the "Did Mr. Spreckels give it to him?" "Did Mr. Spreckles give it to him?"

The great outdoor organ in Balboa park is the gift of this man and nearly every day in the year there is an organ recital. Seats are provided for about 2,500 people. Mondays are the only days in the week when there is no music there. The organist's salary is $10,000 per year. Mr. Stewart, from Trinity church, Boston, is the organist. He is also mayor of Coronado.

Mr. Spreckels died in 1928 but he will live in the hearts of the San Diegans for generations. The people here are very proud of him and they should be.

The Bank of Italy paid three million dollars for its building and I understand the federal government paid several million for the island in the harbor.

We drove out by the great hospital Spreckels yesterday down an arroyo (wash or gully) several hundred feet deep across Mission valley to the mesa beyond and there we saw the mountains to the east covered with snow. Where we sat in the machine it was warm. The sun was very bright and the very white snow was dazzling. The near mountains, 30 or 40 miles away, had very little snow on them.

The far distant mountains, 60 to 100 miles, were a deep blue at the base, shading to a purple, then pink, finally to a very white rim on the sky line.

From the mesa we went to Mission beach and here were people bathing in the ocean. In the valley men were picking peas and on the way to the high mesa I saw a barefoot Mexican boy herding goats. But I was to tell you about a cemetery and Paradise valley.

When we turned west after driving over the Silver strand and skirting the east end of the harbor, we saw ahead of us on a high hill a Gothic church or chapel. I asked Mr. Palmer, who was with us, what it was. He said it was "in a graveyard and we should go there."

We entered what looked like a beautiful park. The arch under which we passed was covered with vines in full bloom. This was flanked on both sides with shrubs, roses and flowers in great profusion. We turned to the right over a wide concrete road till we came to a long building filled with wooden boxes 4 to 6 feet long and men were working here making cement slabs. As we circled toward the chapel I wondered where the graves were. On the beautiful lawn were scattered cut flowers. I could not see any monuments or headstones and I was in doubt if we had reached the cemetery proper. We discovered in a few minutes that there were no monuments or markers of any kind except tablets of bronze or granite or marble lying flat on the ground.

This impressed me that all men after death were on a level. Men build monuments for themselves in the hearts of other men that are more enduring than marble or granite or bronze.

If I had the pen of Daniel L. Phillips or of "Dad" Shaw, I could enlarge on this and impress on you the vanity of monuments.

We were driving up hill on good concrete roads for nearly a mile. Then began to circle the foot hill when suddenly we came to the top and the view to the west toward Chula Vista, National City and San Diego was wonderful. On our left was the harbor with its hundreds of naval vessels of all descriptions. Beyond the Silver Strand was the Pacific ocean. In the distance was Point Loma, the most southwestern land in the United States and to the south were the mountains in Mexico.

In the middle distance lay Paradise valley. The name is very appropriate. The floor of this valley is level (irrigated) and slopes to the north to the foothills to the south to the harbor or bay. The level part of the valley is given over to celery principally. Here were hundreds of acres of this vegetable. Men were at work harvesting the crop while at other places men were planting. Other vegetables included peas, cauliflower, onions (sole spinach, etc.

As the land rises toward the foot hills the orchards of oranges, lemons, olives, alligator pear (avocado) with occasionally rows of date palms and along the highways the very graceful pepper trees lend charm to the landscape.

This is southern California and yet with all this beauty of landscape and the desirable climate, I would rather live on the west side of the Quinebaug valley!

Perhaps one of the reasons is my friends live near me. You know that the word Quinebaug means "beautiful" or "beautiful water." The word "Assinook" means much the same.

Next summer I want you to go with us up the east side of our valley (the Quinebaug) to Thompson over Putnam Heights, (this trip in the morning) cross from Thompson to North Grosvenordale, then south on the west side of the valley and I think you will agree that the word Quinebaug means beautiful.

The short piece of unfinished road through North Lisbon and South Canterbury will be finished in a short time and this will be a favorite drive from New London to Worcester.

MOOSUP

TRAGIC DEATH THURSDAY OF DR. FRANK B. SMITH

(Special to The Bulletin)

MOOSUP, Jan. 17.—Dr. Frank Bailey Smith, 82, of Washington, R. I., who was killed in an automobile accident at 10:45 Thursday night, just after he had left a service at the Baptist church in Moosup, as told on the telegraph page of Friday's Bulletin, had been a life-long member of the Baptist church. He had returned for the home-coming night in connection with the dedication.

He was in a very happy frame of mind and was accompanied by his brother, Alfred Smith, and his wife. The doctor and his brother had just said farewell and had declared their intention of returning Sunday. They left the church, proceeding toward Providence and crashed into a tree within 300 yards of the church, directly opposite the Henry King service station. Persons passing went to their assistance but Dr. Smith was killed instantly, he being found sitting at the wheel. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith were badly cut and bruised.

Dr. Garcin was called and gave first aid and they were taken by Judge Sanderson and Paul W. Roper to their home in Washington, where they were treated by their local physician.

Dr. Smith was born in Columbus, Ga. As a boy he was in frail health and did not attend school. Later he went to private and public schools and, on removal of his family to Moosup, he studied medicine for three years with Dr. William A. Lewis of Moosup and one year with Dr. S. F. Abbot, a popular surgeon, of Norwich. He took a medical course in the University of Vermont and was graduated from New York university in 1873.

He began his practice in Greene, R. I., the same spring and six years later married the daughter of Dr. Allen and Lois Waite Tillinghast, of Washington, R. I. He succeeded Dr. Tillinghast in medical practice. He was the dean of physicians in Pawtuxet valley, treasurer of Kent County Medical society, a sponsor of the Nathaniel Greene association, of Anthony, R. I. He was one of the oldest members of the Baptist church here and was very much interested in the new building.

A few years ago Mrs. Smith was burned to death in Washington and since then Dr. Smith's brother and sister-in-law have made their home with the doctor. Dr. Smith had been active in the affairs of the Washington Methodist Episcopal church. He had been serving as treasurer of the Washington Lighting association. Besides his brother, Alfred, Dr. Smith is survived by another brother, Albert M., who lives on a farm in Moosup.

LONG ARM OF THE LAW ENCIRCLES SHIFTY HUSBAND AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17.—Samuel Larlee, New Haven, employed by the Wales Lines company, Meriden contractors, was arrested here this morning by Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh, charged with violation of his parole, at the request of the New Haven police. Larlee, who was arrested at his work at Connecticut College for Women, it is claimed has not complied with an order of the court to properly provide for the support of his wife and family. He was taken back to New Haven this afternoon.

Chimney Fires

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 7 o'clock this morning and was responded to by Northwest Hose company. The fire was in a chimney of the residence of Nelson Lemoine, 72 Brainard street. The burning soot, presumably started from sparks, was extinguished with chemicals and without damage. Another still alarm was responded to by Ockford Hose company at 3:30 o'clock for a chimney fire in the residence of Mrs. Johanna Petrine, 210 Shaw street. Chemicals sufficed to extinguish the blaze without damage.

Last night, a still alarm was received at headquarters for danger arising from an overheated electrical refrigerating device in the store and market of A. Iriandi, 80 Ocean avenue. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds responded, shutting off the power. After the machinery had cooled, repairs were made. No damage resulted.

OBITUARY

Benjamin F. Edwards

Benjamin F. Edwards, 70, died last night at his residence, 76 Methodist street, after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, a sister, Mrs. Frances Hedges, and a brother, Robert F. Edwards, both of New London. Mr. Edwards for many years was employed as sexton of the Huntington street Baptist church. He was born in Baltimore, Md., July 3, 1859.

Mrs. Charles Fordham

Mrs. Dorcas Larkin Fordham, 46, wife of Charles Fordham, formerly of New London, died yesterday at her home on Shelter Island, N. Y. She is survived, besides her husband, by her mother and brother, the last named being Irving Larkin, of this city.

The officers of Trumbull commandery, Knights of Pythias, were installed Wednesday night, the installing officer being District Deputy Grand Chancellor Zenas Snyder, assisted by officers of Mixtuxet lodge of Mystic. The officers are: Chancellor commander, George W. Goodwin; vice chancellor commander, Abraham Schuman; prelate, Solly Gruskin; master of work, George Westie; keeper of records and seal, Joseph P. Noyer; master of finance, William M. Bosworth; master of the exchequer, Thomas H. Troland; master at arms, Harry Kaplan; inner guard, Henry J. Siegel; outer guard, John Maus; trustee for three years, Winder E. Reed. Arrangements were made for the annual banquet which will be held in the lodge rooms Feb. 19. A committee composed of Thomas H. Troland, chairman; Joseph P. Noyer and Abraham Schuman was appointed to conduct the plans for the annual event.

Call Dogs A Menace

Complaint has been made to the police by Commander J. S. Baylies, United States Coast Guard, of several dogs at 90 Smith street being dangerous and a menace to the community. The dogs are permitted to roam at large and have attacked sailors stationed at the reservation. Unless the animals are kept in restraint they will probably be killed.

Miss Jennie L. Doyle is ill at her home, 48 Perry street.

The condition of Belton A. Copp, president of the National Whaling bank and Savings Bank of New London, who has been seriously ill at his home on Thames street, Groton, is reported today as being less favorable than at any time since he was stricken, several months ago.

GEORGE RUPPERT LEAVES HOSPITAL DURING FRIDAY

George Ruppert, U. S. Coast Guard, section base 4, state pier, who was brutally assaulted by another coast guarder at the residence of Mrs. Ruth Cummings, 34 Cottage street, over two weeks ago, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today and returned to his base. Ruppert and several other sailors, with several women, staged a drinking party at the Cottage street house and drank freely of liquor stolen from the launch Flor Del Mar, which had been seized as a rum-runner earlier in the day. During the early morning hours, Harry Stone, another sailor, struck Ruppert a blow on the face with a bottle that inflicted a deep wound. Ruppert had since been a patient at the hospital and Stone has been penalized in the police court for his attack upon Ruppert.

FUNERAL OF H. R. BOND, JR.—BEARERS FROM THAMES CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—Funeral services for Harry R. Bond, Jr., formerly of New London, who died in New York Tuesday were held this afternoon at 1:30 at the First Church of Christ and were attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including delegations of members of New London lodge of Elks, Thames club, Pequot and Northwest Hose companies. The impressive services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The honorary bearers were Thomas S. McGinley, Donald Chappell, Donald Mitchell, Edward P. Hammond, Dr. James R. Linsley and Milton M. Baker, all members of the Thames club. Burial was in Yantic cemetery, Norwich.

JOSEPH GARDNER'S FUNERAL—BURIAL IN NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—The funeral of Joseph Gardner, former employe at the Palmer Brothers' mill, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the high mass of requiem being sung by Rev. Michael Reagan, a large gathering of mourners assisting at the service. The bearers were Michael Elwood, Thomas Caughey, Herbert Lewis, Timothy Sullivan, John McLaughlin and John Murphy. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Norwich, where the committal service was conducted by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael Henry May.

FALLS FROM STAGING AT STATE FARM BUILDING

Fred Friend, 66, of 497 Chapel street, New Haven, a carpenter, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, having sustained internal injuries yesterday afternoon at his work. Friend is suffering from seven fractured ribs, a ruptured lung and a fractured hip. His condition is critical. Friend, with other carpenters was at work constructing a building at the State Farm for Women, Niantic. Friend was standing on a staging when he lost his balance and fell to the ground, a distance of 20 feet. He was given emergency treatment at the farm and then hurried to the New London hospital.

COURT PROVES LENIENT WITH OFFENDING DRIVERS

Two autoists were in the police court today charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Both drivers got off easily, since they did not even pay the minimum fine provided for such offenses by law. Frederick Barrett, Station 18, Waterford, was allowed to plead guilty to the amended complaint of reckless driving. A fine of $25 and costs was imposed. Barrett was arrested early this morning by Automobile Patrol Officer August Ray. The other driver was Carl Nykanen, New York. He was fined $100 and costs, but $50 of the fine was ordered remitted by the court. Nyianen was arrested early Thursday morning by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh.

Herbert Anderson and Victor Stark, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., were tried in Waterford town court today charged with intoxication and were fined $5 and costs, each. Anderson and Stark were arrested yesterday by State Police Officers Donald Brown and Arthur Johnson.

New London has another doctor. He is DeWitt Brake, who has been granted a license to practice osteopathy.

STATE'S 600,000 CATHOLICS TOLD ABOUT NEW LONDON

The good example set by the men of the parish of St. Mary's Star of the Sea, in their recent public demonstration of their stand for veneration of the holy name of Jesus and for clean speech in general, is thus commended by the current issue of the Catholic Transcript, (Hartford).

Sunday, January 12th, the annual observance of the feast of the Holy Name of Jesus by the men of St. Mary's parish, New London, took place, and, in spite of unfavorable weather, surpassed that of previous years. Over twelve hundred men received holy communion on the feast. Nearly all of the men taking part in the celebration assisted at the eight o'clock mass, which was offered by Rev. Raymond J O'Callaghan, chaplain of the Holy Name society. The sight of so many men approaching the altar rail was inspiring, and they were congratulated upon their excellent manifestation of devotion by Rev. Owen Doyle, C. P., who delivered a brief discourse during the mass. After the mass many of the men formed in procession, and, led by thirty members of the New London police force in uniform in command of Lieut. James Sullivan, Sgts. James Gaffney, Patrick Murphy and John Courtney, marched to the Mohican hotel, where breakfast was served to about four hundred and thirty. After breakfast, William T. May, president of the Holy Name society, who acted as toastmaster, welcomed the men on behalf of the society. Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, LL.D., pastor, expressed his great joy in seeing so many men receiving holy communion, and urged them to continue the practice of approaching the sacraments frequently. Mayor Cornelius Twomey was presented to the gathering and delivered a detailed description of New London as he foresees it, in plans under way for immediate and future progress. Rev. Raymond O'Callaghan then introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. Harold Purcell, C. P., editor of "The Sign," of Union City, N. J. Father Purcell portrayed the Catholic church as it is understood by different minds of the present day, and after explaining the necessity of making the church and her doctrine and practices correctly understood, pointed out to the men that the church must depend largely upon Catholic laymen in order to accomplish her purpose. Father Purcell's theme was most interestingly developed and illustrated with accounts of his experiences in dealing with individuals and groups whose attitude to the church is none too friendly. Besides the toastmaster and the members of the clergy, there were seated at the guests' table, Mayor Cornelius Twomey, Patrick Ryan, vice president of the Holy Name society, and Peter J. Eshenfelder, secretary; Michael Enright, president Father Joynt division, A. O. H.; Joseph Keefe, grand knight, Seaside council, K. of C.; John McDonald, faithful navigator Rev. George Deshon assembly, fourth degree, K. of C.; Julian D. Moran, president St. John's society; Arthur Keefe, trustee St. Mary's parish; Captain H. H. Wolf, commander of the destroyer force, United States Coast Guard, and Commander J. H. Ryan, executive officer, Coast Guard base.

MURDERER OF WHEMAN STILL ELUDES DISCOVERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON Jan. 17.—The capture of Charles Williams, negro, of Norfolk, Va., a barge cook, charged with the murder of Jacob Wheman, formerly of 25 Stapley street, seems far off as ever. A general alarm has been sent out for the arrest of Williams. Today, Sergeants Cavanaugh and Smith interrogated Mrs. Kate Schultz, proprietress of the house where Wheman boarded. Mrs. Schultz said that Wheman arrived home between 3:30 and 4 o'clock the morning of the attack, early last Sunday, he went to his room and the next day bloodstains were observed on his pillow. When Wheman appeared about the house Sunday morning his face was discolored and swollen. He explained his condition to Mrs. Schultz and declared that he was afraid to relate his story of attack to the police because he feared he would be killed by his assailant. Later in the day, Williams left the house and purchased pork chops. When he returned to the house he remained there, something unusual for him to do. He retired that night and when he did not rise Monday, Mrs. Schultz visited his room twice. The first time Wheman was asleep, but the second time the woman found Wheman moaning. Then she decided to summon a physician, but when the doctor arrived at the house Wheman was unconscious and he remained in that condition until he expired, Tuesday morning. Where Wheman went after he regained consciousness after being beaten is not known and the investigators are now attempting to check up on Wheman's movements from about 1 o'clock until 3:30 at which latter hour he returned home.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

You saw the "Gold Diggers of Broadway" in all its magic, music and colorful splendor. You listened to the songs, you watched the dances, you heard the patter of fast dialogue as a smart revue unfolded before your eyes. Well, if you liked that, you have an even bigger treat in store for you. Because, playing at the Palace now and until Tuesday evening of next week is the picture of pictures, the laughing hit of hits, "The Show of Shows."

Unless you have seen the summer skies on a rich mellow evening, you will have no idea of the be-spangled nature of this great picture. It has literally as many stars as the Milky Way, and the way they flash across the screen, each superbly sure of himself and herself in their myriad parts, is enough to thrill your heart away.

We have named the stars before, so let's talk about a few that you know very well. Such as Winnie Lightner, Joe E. Brown, John Barrymore, Ben Turpin, Dolores Costello, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and others who have helped to make the names Vitaphone and Warner Brothers famous. They are all here, 100 of them, and every one with something to do. Some have big parts and some have but small ones, but one and all they lend their pep and personalities to this magnificent spectacle.

Winnie Lightner sings and fools her droll foolishness in the good old way she showed you in "Gold Diggers." Nick Lucas, the golden-voiced tenor who sang "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," and "I'm Always Painting the Clouds With Sunshine" at that time, is back again, this time in a delicious Chinese fantasy with exotic Myrna Loy who is familiar to thousands of theatergoers.

A superb scene from Shakespeare is acted by John Barrymore in a fiery setting. Georges Carpentier, the romantic fighter is here in a gorgeous revue along with loads of girls. Bull Montana sings a love song that will make you tumble out of your seats. H. B. Warner and Alice White, Viola Dana and William Collier, Jr., Chester Morris, the star of "Alibi," Jack Mulhall and Patsy Ruth Miller. They are all here, and they all give their finest performance.

WESTERLY

HEARING OF JAS. DERICCO GOES OVER FOR A WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 17.—Every seat was filled at the Friday morning session of the Third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench, and standing room in the corridors was at a premium. The large gallery anticipated a hearing in the murder trial of James Dericco, charged with the fatal shooting of Atwood Gardner on the tracks of the New Haven railroad Tuesday, Jan. 14, about 10:20 p. m. Attorney M. Walter Flynn also appeared to represent the defendant, waiving the reading of the complaint and entered a plea of not guilty. A week's continuance for trial to Friday morning next was asked for and granted.

Other court business was disposed of as follows: New writs entered before the calling of the docket—Joseph Sylvia vs. Albert Frasier; Thomas L. Waterman vs. Traco Finishing Co., Inc.; Peter LoPriore vs. Charles and Isabel Whatmough; John O. Mills, Inc., vs. Frank H. Freese; all unanswered, continued one week.

Burgess Bound Over

In the criminal case of State vs. Frank Burgess, the accused, aged 26, pleaded guilty to the theft of 50 fowl, valued at $3 each to the total amount of $160, at about 10 p. m., Dec. 26, from the Everett Cottrell farm. The defendant was adjudged probably guilty and was bound over to the session of Washington county superior court on the third Monday in February, the bond for release being set at $2,500.

Neglects Family

Alexander McCall was brought before the court on the complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charged on Jan. 1 with the abandonment of his wife and children and neglecting to provide for their support. He was held in $600 bonds and his case continued one week.

State, Oliver P. Crandall vs. Edward F. Dennehy. Continued one week.

Civil docket—Mary E. Thomas vs. Otto Hannahan. Judge James O. Watts of Wakefield, R. I., informed the court that three weeks ago agreement was made with Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, who later went to Palm Beach, Fla., to have the case set down for this day. Judge Rathbun did not make a court appearance and the case was continued.

F. J. Bistany vs. Thomas Saddow, continued one week; Bradford Dyeing association vs. William Currie, defaulted and passed for proof of claim; Gencarella Co. vs. Frank Cella, set down for trial Friday, Jan. 24.

FINE OF $30 AND COSTS IN LEONARD WELLS' CASE

Trial calendar—Leonard Wells, 20, operating a motor truck for Frigidaire service Dec. 5, on Broad street, was charged with failure to have his auto under control when approaching a pedestrian in the highway, Lewis Solomon being struck and knocked down, causing a fracture of his wrist and other injuries. Represented in court by Attorney Clarence E. Roche, a plea of not guilty was entered. The defendant gave testimony that Mr. Solomon popped up just in front of his car, and that he had stopped his auto almost instantly, which was testified to by George R. Dowding, who was about to drive away his motor truck and was on High street at the time. Thomas L. Shea testified as to assisting Mr. Solomon to the corner store and that the auto was not proceeding rapidly. Judge Williams found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $30 and costs.

FUNERAL

George E. Sprague

The funeral of George Edward Sprague, recently employed at the plant of the Bradford Dyeing association was held at 46 Granite street Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick. Committal services at the First Hopkinton cemetery were by the Junior Order United American Mechanics. The bearers were: Clifford, Albert D. and Raymond E. Pendleton, Peter R. Scott, Dwight Bromley and Malcolm D. Perry. Mr. Sprague was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Sprague and was born in Westerly, April 16, 1906. He was graduated from Westerly high school in 1924. While at school he won several medals as a member of the track team. He was united in marriage with Miss Helen Pendleton, daughter of Palmer H. and the late Jennie Moore Pendleton Sept. 29, 1928. They lived on Chester avenue until June, when Mr. Sprague entered the Anderson hospital for treatment. He was a patient there for fifteen weeks and was then taken to the home of his father-in-law at Quonochontaug. Mr. Sprague was a member of Quonochontaug grange.

POTTER HILL WOOLEN CO. TO SELL ITS MILL SOON

Another Westerly textile plant is to be placed on the market, announcement having been made that the Potter Hill Woolen company, Inc., would shut down its mill upon the completion of existing orders at the end of the month. Announcement was made some time ago that the mill would shut down "on account of the unsettled condition of the industry." Normally the mill employs about 200 hands but for the past few weeks has been operating with only about 50. The mill was taken over by the present owners about four years ago. The president of the company, Henry Lewis, died at his home in New York recently.

In an endeavor to head off the escape of the murderer of Police Officer James McNamee, of Bristol, Conn., early Friday morning, motorists from New London to Westerly reported Connecticut state police officers stationed at the New London-Groton drawbridge, also at the Pawcatuck-Westerly Post road bridge. At 3 a. m. Pawcatuck Patrolman R. Sheldon was summoned to relieve the state officers, who went to investigate a reported abandoned auto near the Wigwam, on the Westerly-Norwich state highway. Officer Sheldon was armed with a shot gun. Patrolman McNamee of Bristol was fatally wounded, when he questioned the driver of an automobile which had stopped at a gas filling station. The car containing McNamee's assailants was believed by the officer to have been stolen in New Britain.

YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS ADMIT MANY BREAKS

State troopers of the Hope Valley barracks arrested two men Thursday for breaking and entering places in South County. They claim that they have unearthed a crime club in existence in southern Rhode Island called the "Secret Circle of Dread." In order to qualify for membership one has to have pulled at least "one job" and be adept in the art of cooking.

Thursday night troopers of Hope Valley apprehended William Arnott, 18, and Joseph Vigue, 16, both of Shannock. The state police claim that Arnott is a member of this club. Arnott and Vigue were lodged at the Westerly police station following a grilling at Hope Valley barracks. Both are said to have admitted breaking into two summer camps on Great Pond and Arnott is also said to have confessed to a half-dozen other breaks.

Present were Mrs. Eleanor Davis, Miss Eleanor Scaplen, Mrs. Mildred Palmer, Miss Bertha Oles, Mrs. Dorothy Bishop, Mrs. Elizabeth Hobart, Miss Lillian Reid, Mrs. Gladys Brown, Mrs. Edna Thompson, Mrs. Laura Hodgson and Mrs. Gertrude Tourjee.

KID SHERMAN GIVES FANS EVENING OF THRILLS

Kid Sherman at one time was the best featherweight boxer in Noank and beat some good men in his class, but for the last three years he has not put on a glove and not much has been heard of him, until the other day when he was caught training behind closed doors in his little room, 10 x 10, at his home on Riverside avenue. Sherman was doing his stuff and looks in the pink of condition. His manager O. Bradshaw, knows how to train a fighter—not much road work, but skips rope and raises a 100-pound dumbbell over his head several times, punches the sandbag, etc.

Manager Bradshaw believes in the rowboat stuff that puts power behind his punches, also pep in his arms. So Kid Sherman goes for a mile row with a load of men in the back seat and it is curious to see such a small fellow with the power in his arms to push such a boat. Then he is given a rubdown for 20 minutes by his trainer, Leo MacGrath and breakfast is ready for the featherweight battler. He gets oat meal with Ledyard cream and an armful of Riverside toast, then a plate of Pep, no coffee, but seven glasses of water. Manager Bradshaw claims the more the left hook hitter Sherman eats the better. With the rain coming down fast in the village Tuesday and water running in the gutters by the waiting room the gang did not know where to go for the evening. So it leaks out that Kid Sherman was to put on the gloves for the first time in about three years after they were taken down from the attic covered with cobwebs and the moth balls were taken out. The crowd packed every corner of the 10 x 10 room to see the real Kid himself in his green tights. He looks good as Jack Dempsey in his day—no fat, but all muscle. Four boxers from different parts of this country were ready to give the cross-fire fighter of the clam and fish town plenty of workout for his great comeback to the square ring.

Ike Jones, of Friendship, Me., the barefoot wonder from that cold section was the first to take on the husky fighter, entering the ring in his red suit. It was a five-round battle. As the bell rang the fighters sprang at each other and Kid Sherman sent over a mean upper cut that shook every gold tooth in Ike's mouth. But he came back with a Maine fireman's left hook that whirled the featherweight around. Kid can take punishment like old Mike McTigue, but that fellow from Maine could fight, knew all the tricks, but was clean as a Sunday shirt. In the third round Kid Sherman bounded off the ropes, sent over the short one right to the chin and down in a heap went the barefoot fighter from out of town for the count. The crowd cheered our village fighter for a long time.

The second bout was with Rope Jumper Peter Long, from Long Island city, a chap who has both hands like cement and can hit hard. He was ready to take on the proud boxing champion. As he entered the ring, Kid Sherman looked him over for a few seconds ready to go for four rounds. Peter Long tried to spring from the ropes and land the trip-hammer right and left but our featherweight hope ducked it quick as a cat chasing a rabbit and he put over two rights to his chin that almost upset the Long Island cement mixer. Still he was game and hung on, but the bell saved him. In the second round two rights to the stomach put the Long Island potato-raiser to dreamland for the full count. Again Kid Sherman was the hero.

The third fighter came from Massachusetts, Wild Bill Dockman, who can hit so hard that his hands go out of shape. He wore a cap in the ring and it was a five-round affair. Kid Sherman had some wind to take them on in a row. Wild Bill missed plenty but the comeback boy from the village sent over four rights to the chin, without a return, clever as Gene Tunney. But Wild Bill from Massachusetts found his target and got his range and each fighter fought toe to toe—clever fighting as ever the crowd watched. It was a good draw and that Wild Bill sure could fight.

The last one to face the Kid for the evening was Sharpshooter Sam Olong of parts unknown who would not tell the name of his town; just a box car must have been the railroad station or the town must be small. Kid Sherman showed signs of getting all in, taking on so many in a row. It was for four rounds. Sharpshooter Sam tried to finish our fighter in the first round by sending over the machine gun uppercut from his left side. He went down for the count of nine. Then Manager O. Bradshaw said, "Get up and give him a north dock dropper to the ear!" But Kid Sherman was a little weak, keeping away until he got his head clear. In the third round a long haymaker from the floor sent the sharpshooter, Olong, where the daisy goes in the spring for a sleep, while the referee, Leo Harris, counted out the unknown.

Sherman had three knockouts and a draw in one evening; and the crowd said "He is the old Kid Sherman back in 1919." and was sure pleased with his work. Some day, they hope to see him the featherweight champion of Connecticut.

Those fighters came for nothing to help train the comeback kid for the ring. The bouts were free and the crowd sure got $2 ringside seats for nothing. Someone asked Kid Sherman what was the matter a few years ago at Ocean Beach, when he fought Butch Shea of Bridgeport in the square ring, under the heavylights. Shea had nothing but a pair of long arms and good feet to run, for it was his first fight and he was scared as a crow in a cornfield. "Well, I was not in condition that night. Not myself—was sick, and not the same Kid Sherman that used to fight at Willow Point. I had the walking flu, a fever of 103, and things seemed as if there were two Butch Sheas in the ring. I was so sick; but I was game to try and fight and Butch had nothing but his arms; no more motion that a handle on a pump. Well, I am sorry it turned out that way, but when I am in good condition and ready to fight for the championship of Connecticut in the featherweight class I will show that Kid Sherman is not fooling and will take on anyone my weight, or size, or taller."

The crowd cheered the featherweight for his good work and wished him luck and success in coming back to the ring.

STONINGTON

CHAS. RIX DIES SUDDENLY WHILE ON HIS WAY TO WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STONINGTON, Jan. 17. — Charles Rix, of Main street, Stonington, died suddenly Friday morning. Mr. Rix was on his way to work at the A. P. Loper Fire Alarm Co. plant, when stricken and died instantly. He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. Norton Brainerd of Westerly, and Oris and Herbert of Stonington.

At the annual election of the First National bank of Stonington this week the following officers were elected: President, Moses A. Pendleton; vice president, George H. Robinson; secretary, Everett N. Pendleton; directors, Moses A. Pendleton, Everett N. Pendleton, George H. Robinson, Henry A. Pendleton and Charles O. Ryon.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Foley, 22 Willow street, Mystic, announce the marriage of their daughter, Helen C. Foley, and John C. Bryer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Bryer, of Stonington. The ceremony was performed June 22, 1929, in Milford, Conn., by Rev. William J. Fitzgerald, S. T. L. former pastor of St. Patrick's church, Mystic. Mr. and Mrs. Bryer are graduates of Stonington high school, class of 1929.

Postmaster Jerome S. Anderson has asked for proposals for the hire of vehicles without drivers on hourly basis for use in collecting, delivering and relaying mail at the local post office. The cars will be used about two and one-half hours daily.

Mrs. Enoch Noble and Mrs. Fred Wilcox were visitors in Providence Friday.

PILOT DESIGNS TROUSERS FOR MOUNTAIN COLDNESS

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Climbing to 10,000 elevation in an unheated cabin to cross the snow-clad mountains on the Los Angeles-Kansas City air line is not sport.

Pilot H. H. Holloway, therefore, turned to garment designing.

He surprised other fliers who thought they were sartorially perfect by turning out in new winter pants, not plus fours but plus thirty-sixes.

Holloway cut an army blanket and sewed it into a huge pair of trousers without holes at the bottom. So he pilots to and fro across the Sierra and Rockies in warmth and comfort. The passenger compartment is heated.

MYSTIC

Friends in the village have received word from W. L. Main and family that they arrived in Miami, Fla., Friday night, January 10. They then expected to go to St. Petersburg, where their winter home is, and stay for a short time, before starting for a trip to California. They left Mystic, with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brown and granddaughter, Joyce Boylan, Monday morning, January 6. That night they stayed in Oxford, Pa., Tuesday night in Wake Forest, N. C., Wednesday night in Hardeville, S. C., Thursday night in New Smyrna, Fla., arriving in Gomez, Fla., Friday. Here they left Mr. and Mrs. Brown, as they are to spend the winter with Mrs. Brown's father, Edwin Spicer, and went on to Miami. The two cars had but one flat tire each. Their baggage was searched, as is everyone's going down, on account of the Mediterranean fly, which is doing so much damage to fruit trees. All fruit is taken away from any tourist. Mr. and Mrs. Main and family say that it is very warm, almost too warm for comfort.

The annual meeting of Mystic River National bank was held at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, at the bank. The officers elected were: President, Henry B. Noyes; cashier, George S. Richmond; directors, Louis P. Allyn, Frederick Denison, John Rossie, Sidney Siswick, Clarence T. Noyes, Henry B. Noyes, George S. Richmond.

Fifteen members and officers of Mistuxet lodge, No. 42, K. of P., were in New London Wednesday evening, to attend the installation of Trumbull lodge, No. 45.

G. Albert Thompson is confined to his home by illness.

The meeting of Father Murphy council, K. of C., was held in the council rooms in the Main block, Thursday evening. Following the meeting refreshments and a smoker were enjoyed.

At 7 o'clock, Sunday evening, there is to be a sacred musical program at the Old Mystic Methodist Episcopal church. Following is the program: Prelude, orchestra; hymn, I Think when I read that Sweet Story of Old, orchestra and congregation; prayer by the pastor, Rev. Homer C. Moore; solo, Day is Dying, Mrs. Leah Harvey; Shepherd's Psalm, in unison; solo, Trusting in Thee, Willard W. Keigwin; hymn, Tell Me the Old, Old Story, orchestra and congregation; solo, My Wonderful Dream, Leslie Haley; Scripture reading, Romans chapter 6, pastor; solo, Be not Afraid, Clifford Desley; hymn, I Love to tell the Story, orchestra and congregation; announcements; offertory, by the orchestra; solo, I have done my Work, W. Local members have been notified that the Connecticut D. A. R. will sponsor a radio program to be broadcast from station WTIC, at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, January 21. Miss Katherine A. Nettleton, state regent, will deliver the address. It is planned to present a program every two weeks, Tuesdays at 3 o'clock, and the speakers will be from the D. A. R. The broadcast is in charge of Mrs. William C. Bristol, of Bridgeport, state chairman.

Mrs. H. D. Gay, of Mystic, is to sing Sunday at the evening services of the Baptist church of Old Mystic. She will be accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. Pinkerton. Little Loretta Tinker is also to sing.

Mr. and Mrs. E. William Holmes and family were callers in North Stonington Thursday evening.

Mrs. Harry Jones, of Old Mystic, is a surgical patient in a New London hospital.

PRESTON

The Congregational Ladies' Missionary society met Wednesday for an all day session at the church. It was the annual mending and packing day. Two boxes were packed to be sent to Pleasant Hill Academy, Pleasant Hill, Tenn. At noon a splendid luncheon was served.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid society held an all day meeting Wednesday at the church. Two quilts were tied.

Plans have been made to hold a farm bureau organization meeting at the Baptist church Saturday evening, to include the towns of Griswold, Ledyard and Preston.

The grange held its meeting Tuesday evening. The program was: Song, by the grange; reading, with encore, Roger Robbins; piano solo, with encore, Florence Kennedy; talk, Grange Principles, Brother G. Warren Davis; piano solo, with encore, Russell McNeely; talk, The New Year, Brother G. M. Clark. Cookies and cocoa were served.

Those from this grange to attend the state grange meetings in Hartford were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hall, John Hollowell, Mrs. Walter Palmer and Miss Catherine Turner.

Announcement has been made that the executive committee of the Norwich C. E. Union is to hold its annual banquet at the local Baptist church Wednesday evening, Jan. 29. The speaker is to be Rev. Vernon Phillips, of Kensington, president of the state union.

LEDYARD

Mrs. Ursula E. Avery, worthy lecturer and Mrs. Barbara Holdridge, worthy secretary, represented Ledyard grange at the State grange meetings held in Hartford from Tuesday until Thursday.

Rev. Edward Kelly preached in the Congregational church Sunday morning. The C. E. meeting Sunday evening had for its leader Miss Hazel Gray.

Mrs. Mildred Holdridge was the guest Tuesday of her grandmother, Mrs. William Kinney, of Norwich Town.

The Laymour club of Ledyard met with Alfred Clark, one of its members, Saturday afternoon, with Gilbert Hayen, its president, presiding. Ellsworth Bennett was elected captain. This is a new office, the duties to see that all books are brought at each meeting. The topic discussed was the poultry industry in the U. S. and Connecticut.

During the mild weather of the past week Delano Sheldon has done much plowing for neighbors. Mr. Sheldon is active and does much work for his neighbors besides doing his own work.

SURMOUNTING DIFFICULTIES HEARTEN US IN OUR FUTURE STRUGGLES

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

My Trundle Bed.

As I rummaged through the attic
 Listening to the falling rain,
As it pattered on the shingles
 And against the window-pane,
Peeping over chests and boxes,
 Which with dust were thickly spread,
Saw, I, in the farthest corner,
 What was once my trundle-bed.

So I drew it from the recess
 Where it had remained so long,
Hearing all the time the music
 Of my mother's voice in song,
As she sang in sweetest accents
 What I since have often read:
"Hush my dear, lie still in slumber,
 Holy angels guard thy bed."

As I listened recollections,
 That I thought had been forgot,
Came with all its gush of memory
 Rushing, thronging to the spot,
And I wandered back to childhood
 To those merry days of yore,
When I knelt beside my mother,
 By this bed upon the floor.

Then it was with hands so gently
 Placed upon my infant head,
That she taught my lips to utter
 Carefully the words she said.
Never can they be forgotten
 Deep are they in memory driven:
"Hallowed be the name of Father,
 Father thou who art in heaven."

This she taught me, then she told me
 Of its import great and deep,
After which I learned to utter
 "Now I lay me down to sleep."
Then it was with hands uplifted
 And in accents soft and mild
That my mother asked our Father,
 "Father do thou bless my child."

Years have passed and that dear mother
 Long has moldered 'neath the sod,
And I trust her sainted spirit
 Revels in the courts of God
But that scene of summer twilight
 Never has from memory fled,
And it comes in all its freedom
 When I see my trundle-bed.

A Golden Remedy

I wish the straying sunbeams
 Could be made into pills of gold
That would warm the hearts of people
 When they grow hard and cold.

I wish that I could melt them
 And make syrup golden and sweet,
To dose those folks whose sour hearts
 Make them a dread to meet.

I'd like to make an ointment
 Of soothing yellow balms,
Then I'd seek all selfish people
 And grease their stingy palms

Then I'd make a golden beverage
 And a pitcher full I'd bring,
And make the gossips drink it
 So their nasty words won't sting.

Now with all these drugs of wonder
 I could make this old world new;
And wouldn't it be a lovely place
 For them, and me, and you?

Deeds of Kindness

Just a little deed of kindness,
 That is all we need to know
Just one little song of courage
 As long through life we go.
O, so many hearts are aching
 O, the little smiles of sunshine
We might scatter every day.

Just a little word of kindness
 That is all we need to give
Souls bowed down will grasp the sunshine,
 When they learn the way to live
There's a thousand jewels beaming
 In our hearts and lives today
All we need is change of spirit
 Just to brighten up the day.

Just a little deed of kindness
 When the sun is sinking low
Just a hand clasp given with smiling
 That is all we need to know.
O, so many hearts are aching
 For a little word of cheer
O, the countless gifts we're wasting
 That we might be giving here.

THE ANGEL OF HAPPINESS

To whom do we go with our aches and pains?
To whom do we go with our losses and gains?
To whom did we run as children, and then
To whom do we turn as women and men?

We each have an angel of happiness
To shape our lives and then to bless.
You ask, "Who is this angel divine?"
In answer, for all, "Your mother and mine."

OUT OF HER RECKONING.

"How many is your family?" the census taker said.
"How many?" Mrs. Rafferty she shook her tousled head.
"Well, shure, I think there's elivin, jist let me count," said she.
"There's Mike, my mon thot's did, and me an' Patsy, that makes three.
The triplets four, an' Mary five, Tom six, an' Bridget sivin.
The blissed twins is eight—that's all, but it's not elivin."
"Now wait a bit. There's me—that's one, an' little Patsy, two. Where have the ithers gone?
The triplets three—an' Bridget four an' Timmy there by you
Is five, an' poor did Mike is six, an' me darlin' little twins is sivin, and Katy eight.
Oh, dear! Now if I jist begins with Mike, that's did (Heaven rist his sowl)"
"By all the saints of Heavin, I know I've counted ivery wan.
Whisht and stop yer spakin'. I'll count thim jist wance more.
There's me an' Tim an' Patsy an' Katy, that is four,
The triplets an' the twins is sin—an' Bridget—now jist wait—an' Bridget sivin an' poor did Mike, yes, poor did Mike makes eight.
Yes, thot is right," said Mrs. R. and rubbed her tousled pate,
"I thought there was elivin—but I see there's only eight."

VIOLET SENDS BEST WISHES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: I take the time and pleasure to write and wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

It has been a long time since I wrote, but read all the letters each Saturday and do enjoy them so much as there is so many helpful hints on different subjects pertaining to housekeeping, etc.

Johnny cake: I was by your house Sunday. I saw you and also saw [illegible] as we passed by. The country roads are some rough and muddy, I'd say, ha, ha!

L. T. H.: Hope your hand is all O. K. We got home all right and never got wet, if it did rain hard, but some rough road up to village.

Hello Aries: How are you? Fine, I hope. We are all pretty well just now. What disagreeable weather. I hope dear old sun will shine out soon and dry up the mud.

Dear Joan: I think of you often even though I can't get there to see you. Hope you are well.

J. E. T.: Where and how are you? I never see a letter from you now. I hope you are not ill.

I wanted to go to the last Corner picnic or rather gathering at Norwich but it is hard for me to go with the little ones as they get so tired.

I will send in this message:

God will take care of you and lift your burdens ever so heavy, if you will but trust in Him. He will guide you over life's rough and stony pathway and lead you on to a bright and successful shore where there is no pain nor sorrow, but a bright and happy home which God has prepared for you. Though others may scorn you and laugh at your troubles and sorrows God will take care of you if you but trust Him. VIOLET.

PINKEY: Letter sent as requested.

BARNET: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

ECLIPSE: Letter sent as requested.

CLUB NO. 6 MEETS TUESDAY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: If it's not too late, a happy New Year to all. Our page looks as if somebody should get busy and write a letter once in a while.

Sumac, Nothing, Nereid: Where were you? You don't know what you missed. American Girl served some of her delicious gingerbread. It was so good that I asked if we couldn't have another rehearsal before Corner day.

Lee, Pippin, Trixie and Orrella Pulse: Do try and come down. The hall is right across from the Memorial library in Westerly. Anyone will be glad to direct you. Hope to see you all.

Cosmos: Are any of the members going to help? We are to practice tonight. At home, I mean. Hope to see you at Corner meeting.

E. L. M. and Skipper: Yes, we certainly had quite a chat. I had to bustle the next morning, however. My cooking didn't get done that day. The day you were visiting Laurel, I mean.

LIKES TO WALK

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: One month of the new year is half gone, but if it is not too late, I want to say happy New Year.

I never make any resolutions but try to do the best I can each day. I think life is too short to waste our time when there are so many around us that need a little help or a word of cheer. If we would all try to follow the teaching of the Scout slogan "Do a good turn daily," how happy we would be. There would be less time to think of our troubles.

I wonder how many like to take walks? I surely do enjoy walking, the only trouble is I nearly always have to go alone as there is something the matter with all the people since they drive a car and never walk anymore. I would like to start a walking club and see if I could help some of the people limber up a bit. I do hope I will never get where I will always ride, for I have walked with some much younger than I, and I wish you could see them "hobble."

One pleasant day last week I walked over and made a short call on Pyrethrum. It seemed good to see her after such a long time.

Another thing I like to do is to take a trip into the woods. If I feel tired there's nothing rests me more. Even in winter one can always find something interesting, and in summer there are the birds and flowers, and of course my friends, the snakes and worms, but the pleasure I receive more than makes up for the latter.

I have noticed so many have asked the members to write, but haven't read anything about some of the old members not attending the meetings. Now I am going to make this appeal. When I first joined the Corner I certainly did enjoy meeting people and making new friends, and of course we nearly always meet some new member at each meeting now, and enjoy all the gatherings, but where are the old friends we met? Some of them haven't attended in months and I, for one, miss them. I hope they will read this and perhaps some of the other writers will express their opinions, until we persuade them to return.

It may be a poor time for me to mention this, for I am not sure whether I can attend the next meeting, as I expect workmen here, but if they don't come, I probably will be there and as I seldom miss, thought I would take the chance of speaking.

Our sister Devona is in trouble. Her husband has had two operations on his finger and is still in the hospital.

Thanking those who sent Christmas cards and sympathy for those in trouble TOPSY, Club No. 6.

A SUGGESTION TO TISH.

Social Corner Friends: Like Aunt Susie I have been one of the absent ones for so long I think I must be forgotten, but the older we grow tasks seem more and writing is easily laid one side.

I would like to say to Tish if she will get a box of K-R-O at the drug store I think her trouble will be over. I baited with meal on board in several places in cellar. After they got to eating same I put in K-R-O and heard none since and that several weeks ago. Meal is still on boards but not disturbed. I do not know if they eat and leave but none is seen or heard.

Best wishes and good health to all this new year. YE OLD TIMER.

WHO CAN HELP OUT KEZIAH?

Dear Social Corner Sisters: If not too late, I will wish you all a happy New Year and a prosperous one for our Social Corner page.

I. J. B.: Sorry not to have met you at the Buckingham, Tuesday, but went from Norwich, Saturday. I did enjoy having tea (?) with you.

Cenzi: Was glad to see your letter. I had to tell I. J. B. you was one of [illegible] her relatives. Would like to try that recipe if I could. It sounds good.

Salany: See by the paper you have been celebrating as well as Butterfly. May you both live to celebrate many more birthdays.

Joan: Don't you think you ought to write me one of your nice letters? Am wondering how you are.

Nonesopretty: Not much of a chance to slide down hill or skate, as yet.

Can some of the sisters remember the rest of the lines of this piece I am sending in.

Hark ye neighbors and hear me tell,
 One now strikes from the belfry bell.
One God above one
 Lord indeed,
Will help us all in our time of need.

Hark ye neighbors and hear me tell,
 Two, now strikes from the belfry bell.
Two paths before mankind are free,
 Neighbor, choose the best for thee.

There are twelve verses in all. Perhaps Ann Tenna, you can help me out.

Will ring off for this time.

KEZIAH DOOLITTLE.

SECOND-DAY WEDDINGS

Dear Social Corner Readers and Editor: It is a long time since I wrote to the Corner, but I enjoy reading the Corner letters, and attending the meetings. I did not attend any of the picnics the past summer, but I do remember of attending a picnic at Olga's home a few days ago, and I think it was one of those that she spoke of in one of her letters not long since.

The picnic of 1916 I attended and as I sat on Olga's veranda I saw autos and horses and wagons keep driving in. In some wagons the people were sitting on the bottom of the wagon. The driver would dump them out, as if they had unloaded a load of grain and go away as if they were going for more. I thought it looked like camp meeting, only I saw no minister nor choir. They all seemed to think it was a day for a straw ride, for they came from far and near. It was a big load tired when the crowd had departed for home. I smiled when Olga told his experience with the trundle bed. I was reared in a trundle bed and my children all slept in a trundle bed and it was a homemade one too. I think it has gone up in smoke sometime ago. They would be as scarce now as a second-day wedding.

When I was married nearly a century ago it was fashionable to have the wedding at the bride's home, then they would go away on their honeymoon and then have a second-day wedding at the groom's home, and have the same party as at the first gathering and the neighbors and outsiders were invited in too. Nowadays they are more apt to have a divorce than a second-day wedding.

I want to thank all who sent me Christmas cards, also those that sent Palmleaf the pretty calendar and Christmas cards, also to Aries who sent her the lovely bunch of wild flowers in the summer time. Palmleaf is not able to write to thank any one for the tokens she received, but she surely appreciates every little token or favor that is shown her. She would gladly enjoy a call from any of the sisters or any one that could find time to go to see her. She is one of the shut-ins and has not left her room for years. I must ring off and give room to some other sister. I hope all the shut-ins are on the road to recovery. COMFORT.

ENJOYS THE MILD WEATHER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: This has been some gloomy week, but so long as the walking stays safe it is something to be thankful for during the winter season, and with the shortest day over with the nice days are like spring, and so enjoyable, that we feel sure that the backbone of winter is over. But don't think for a moment, that I am patting myself on the back with the thought that winter is over, because I know that is not so only each day the sun gets warmer and the bad weather cannot last as it did a few weeks back so "that is that."

Sweet potato pie: Boil 2 or 3 sweet potatoes or enough to make a large cupful. Mash while steaming hot to a smooth consistency. Stir in the yolk of one egg well beaten, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1 teaspoon of butter, pinch of salt, 1-4 teaspoon each of cinnamon and ginger, 1 cup milk, and very little grated lemon rind or 1-3 teaspoon of lemon extract. Stir all together thoroughly. Bake in one crust in a moderate oven. Cover with a meringue and brown lightly.

Pinkey: I thank you very much for your message, etc.

Will close hoping this letter finds all the shut-ins better, and deepest sympathy for all in sorrow with the hope of future brightness.

Always and ever ECLIPSE.

USING LEFT-OVER MEAT

Dear Social Corner Friends: To begin with, I want to thank the very kind Social Corner member who sent me the calendar. I keep mine with my writing materials, then I always know the date when writing.

Here is a way to use left over meat, when there is not enough for a meal, if left in slices: Grind the meat in food-chopper—one or two cupfuls, just as you have—add pepper and salt, break in an egg and stir. Moisten with a little water or milk. Put a little grease in hot frying pan, drop meat mixture in with a spoon, and pat into little cakes. Turn when browned. These look and taste very good.

C. J. H.: Expected to see you last week, but could not make it. Will this week, I hope.

Viola, and Anne D.: Thanks for cards. It is good to be remembered.

Roselind: We don't need any Social Corner button do we? Glad to see you the other day. ROBERTA.

HAS HOBBY FOR BOOKS

Dear Social Corner members: Thanks a lot for my little calendar and many cards. I, too, noticed the difference in the penmanship, but didn't know any reason to give for it, but I love it just the same. What splendid letters we do have. My hobby is books. I do quite some reading and study books somewhat.

Women dislike war and want it outlawed and if they will read Remarque's All Quiet on the Western Front and God Have Mercy on Us, I think they will work for outlawry of war.

The new biography of Andrew W. Mellon is fascinating also. Mrs. Alice Van Leer Carrick's two books, The Next-to-nothing House and Shades of Our Ancestors. Then there are: Sheila Kaye Smith's, The Village Doctor; Warwick Deeping's, Old Pybus; Julia Peterkin's, Scarlet Sister Mary, Christie's, Partners in Crime and Oxford Book of American verse. RICKETY ANN.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: As I have attended several meetings of the Social Corner, and enjoyed them, I would like to become a member of the Corner, and Shore Line Club No. 6. Will take for my pen name, if no one else has it, GARNET.

CHATTY LETTER FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Corner Friends: At last I find time to write you a few lines. I have not lost interest in the Corner, although I have not written much lately but see I must write occasionally, or else I will become a slacker.

Joan: I see you are interested to know where I am. I am now living in Uncasville, R. D. No. 1, and would be pleased to hear from you if you wish to write to me.

E. L. M.: Was very glad to receive your letter. It seemed like old times to receive it.

Interested Reader: Some class to you, I must say. Maybe some day you may receive an S O S from me. I am not quite so far away as Sanantonia, though I wish to thank all those who sent me letters, cards and Christmas gifts, many in number.

Black Eyed Susie: I was very glad to hear once more from you. It seemed real good to know you are still a faithful sister to the Corner. I always look for your letters.

White Chrysanthemum: I saw you going by Saturday. It seemed funny to see you walking and not in your little car. How are you getting along with your fancy work?

Elm Tree Bobby: I have not seen or heard from you lately. I have been looking for that promised visit, but don't see you coming. How are you coming on with your baskets? Have you started your quilt yet? I have some done on mine.

Mrs. Bitgood: How is Moses. I have heard quite a bit about him. Is he still the good democrat he always has been? Now can you guess who's who? If so just let me know as I am very anxious. Did you receive the cards I sent you? I hope you did.

Savilla: I was very glad to receive your letter. Glad to know all the folks are well.

L. H. T.: You see I hear of you once in a while through M.

Happy New Year to all the Corner family. CRIMSON RAMBLER.

TO REMOVE MEDICINE STAINS

Dear Readers of our Social Corner: Happy New Year to you all. It is rather late but as the old saying goes "Better be late than never."

I've been wondering if any of the sisters, Oh yes, and brothers, have made any resolutions for this year.

Won't every one who is able to use a pen, please write a letter and fill the Social Corner page. Our editor is so kind to us, he forwards cards and letters and does other kind acts let us show him how we appreciate his thoughtfulness and each of us write one letter a month, the page would be full and some of another page.

The past two weeks two columns have been taken with other miscellaneous notes, where letters or recipes or even a few smiles would be enjoyed by all of us. Please think it over and just see if we can't crowd out the advertisements and so forth from our page.

I believe if one has taken enough thought and interest to wish to join an order or club they should make it manifest by attending the meetings if possible or send in a short letter; if we haven't time for long ones, and if we haven't the talent or time, we can ask another member of the family to write while we dictate.

Perhaps you would like to know how to remove medicine stain from clothing: Soak the part stained with alcohol. As the alcohol becomes colored, turn it out, rinse the garment in tepid water, soak in more alcohol and repeat with the rinsing until the alcohol remains clear.

Wash the garment in warm water and a mild soap and hang outside to dry. I tried this and the dress and apron we thought was ruined, came out as good as new.

Will close before the letter gets too long.

I do sincerely hope this year will bring back health and strength to our sick sisters and when the door of opportunity opens for us to do some good to some one less fortunate than we, may we lighten his burden a bit. There are many ways of helping the other fellow traveler along.

Before I lay my pen aside I wish to thank the kind person who thought of one at the Christmas season. A very pretty calendar.

As ever PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

RECALLING THE OLD DAYS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters. I wish you a happy New Year if not too late. Talk about trundle beds, I slept in one until I was 13 years old and thought it was a great joke. We had a great stone sink that I used to wash dishes in; it was just as smooth as any I ever saw. I used to help my grandmother make cheese. She had a great tub, 3 feet across. With a long paddle she used to cut the curd, both ways to make it whey off, she said. Then she would season it sometimes with sage and some plain, then we would go to the cheese pantry and she would turn all of the cheese she had made. She did that every day.

I used to help her make candles; we used to dip them every day, then leave them to dry. Some we used to run in molds, it used to be such fun. Then I used to watch her spin. She used to walk miles back and forth. I used to help her reel it off and to turn the reel for her. She and I used to be great chums, I tell you, when she died I lost a good friend. I guess I have written enough this time. BETH C.

FRUIT CAKE RECIPE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Better late than never. I wish each and every one of you a happy New Year and I thank Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar and all the other sisters and friends for cards and letters at Christmas and the new year.

As the holiday rush is over, I trust we will see the Corner page full to overflowing all through the year 1930.

Sour milk fruit cake: Very good. 1 1-3 cups sour milk, 1 1-2 cups brown sugar, 3 cups flour, half cup butter, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup currants, quarter pound lemon peel, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg; teaspoonful soda dissolved in the milk. This keeps well. ONONDAGUE 1902, Club 3.

SEES FLOCK OF QUAIL.

Dear Editor and Friends: I want to thank a Social Corner member for the nice little calendar I received. I appreciate her remembering me very much.

Yesterday morning was at Milky Way's house and saw a flock of 13 quail walk across the yard. They were in no hurry as they went along when all of a sudden they seemed to disappear. After we had watched quite a few minutes we could place them but they stood motionless, probably having heard something to startle them. The truck drove in the yard and went quite close to them but they never moved. It seemed a long time before they came to life and went on as before. They took their time going over the wall into the pasture where they rose in flight. They were just like a flock of chickens. I read of people having heard robins and bluebirds and the weather really seems springlike. Not healthy perhaps and not a very good outlook for the ice men, but we still have plenty of time for cold weather. We will hope for a nice day next Tuesday and a good crowd. Don't forget dishes and something for dinner. It will be in Mechanic's hall as usual.

Tish: I was glad to hear from you and hope we will see you Tuesday.

True Blue: You see I did look in the kitchen the last time. You gave us a lovely supper and that dessert was just great. Tell us how you make it sometime.

Ravena, Nereid Coonie, Rebe Nothing (?): Don't forget me will you.

We had a full page last week if it didn't run over but there was still room for Club No. 6 letters. Hope you will come next Tuesday, Chickena?

Mr. Beers: When shall we see that poetry?

This makes eight letters I've written in two days. SUMAC, No. 6.

GREETINGS FROM NECIA.

Dear Editor and Social Sisters: I wish you all a very happy New Year. I want to thank the Corner member for the pretty little calendar. I always enjoy having one.

On Christmas I was with my son and family. Had a very pleasant day. It is always pleasing to see the children taking their gifts from the tree and talking about Santa. I think we older ones enjoy our gifts and cards. One never realizes how many friends they have until the cards come rolling in. Guess my letter carrier was glad when the season was over if he has as many for each one as he did for me.

I thank all the sisters who so kindly remembered me with gifts or cards. It is so easy to miss one or two when answering their cards.

Franklin South West: Sorry you did not come and speak to me after supper. There were so many there and I so busy, I saw hardly any one. Was pleased to see Sumac and husband also Milky Way and her husband. You should have been at my table, then you would have had service. I think you were all a very noisy crowd. Do not know how you feel about it.

We are entering a new year and let each and every one do our bit. I am sorry it so happens I shall not be able to get to the meeting of Jan. 14 as I expect to attend the State Grange which meets in Hartford on that day.

Scottie: Am glad to know you are home again, I was sorry to hear of your trouble again. Did you get your card I sent?

Jennie: I hope we may have some more pleasant evenings as we did last fall. When I was in Wethersfield at Christmas I was sick all the time so did not get to see any of the friends I wished to. Hope you had a nice Christmas. Why not try and come to our meeting in March as it is our anniversary? If convenient for you I would like you to spend the night with me. Our meeting comes the second Tuesday in the month.

To any of the sisters who have lost dear ones I send my sympathy. Hope the sick will soon be well and able to meet with us. Wishing the Corner the best of success for the coming year, and the happiest ever. NECIA (Club 2).

MAKING MINCE MEAT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: This is some dreary weather, but a good time to stay in and sew. I planned to go to Club 2's meeting today and then gave it up when it was so unpleasant. Maybe I will get there next month.

I have been reading a couple of books that are good—The White Flag by Gene Stratton Porter and Water by Albert Payson Terhune.

I suppose many of our Social Corner sisters are attending the grange meetings in Hartford this week.

Cosmos: I hear you found a way to go. Wish you could look in on me tonight and see my bouquet of gladioli that arrived Sunday morning from Florida. There are 18 stalks from and some new colorings to me.

Ravena: I had a caller recently so found out Mr. Ravena had been "telling tales." I told him to come back in April and I would talk with him. I have been making mince meat and wonder if some of the younger cooks know that if you have some meat you would like to use for it, but have not the time just then to get the apples ready or maybe have no apples on hand, that you can chop your cooked meat add some raisins (or not) spice, salt, sugar and molasses according to amount of meat, cook all together. You can keep this several weeks if you want to, in a cool place. Then when you get time chop your apples, add spice, sugar salt and molasses and more raisins. Sometimes add candied orange peel, or citron cut in thin shavings. Cook until apples are nearly done, then add the prepared meat and cook altogether a short time. If you have more than you want to make up in pies at once you can keep that as you did the meat in a cool place, for several weeks, or of course you can can it up while hot. In don't can it up as I used to since I find it keeps so long the other way but make it oftener and not so much at one time.

Devona: Have thought of you in your time of anxiety. Hope the worst is over.

Now remember Club 6 meets in Mechanics hall, Westerly next Tuesday, the 21st. So come all who can and help to make a good time and a good dinner. E. L. M.

ENVIED THE TRUNDLE-BEDDERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I thank Social Corner Member, for pretty calendar received. I have been a shut-in for three weeks. Had a terrible cold. Coughed and coughed, and then some. Has left me rather weak. Miss the meetings, but some one kindly tells me part of the doings and I imagine the rest. Have been interested in the writings about trundle beds, as a girl friend of mine slept in one. I thought it was beautiful to be so near mother and father at night. I lived with an uncle and aunt and had to go way off by myself in the dark and was afraid. Hope to see you at next meeting. Best of wishes to all. WURDY BELLE, Club No 5.

APPRECIATED CARDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Many thanks to the sister who sent me the cute little calendar. It was very pretty. To all sisters who so kindly sent me Christmas and Thanksgiving cards, I extend my thanks. I had 52 in all.

Neziah Doolittle: You did not come to dinner, so I think you are waiting for a turkey dinner.

Cenzi: Glad to know who you are. Your mother is my cousin. I hope to see you some time.

Scottie: You have my deepest sympathy. We missed you at our last meeting.

Canterbury Bell: Was pleased to hear from you. How do you like Florida? We miss you.

Joan: How are you?

Isadore: Have been looking for you.

Happy New Year to all and deepest sympathy for all who are ill and in trouble. I. J. B.

KEEPS THE HOME FIRES BURNING

Dear Corner Folks: Every week I read all the letters in The Corner page and sometimes there are not many and I will say I must write next week but the weeks go by and I don't. I saw that "Nonesopretty" asked if I had blown away from the Old Hill and will say I am still here and I don't know as the wind blows any harder up here than anywhere else.

We have been very comfortable so far this winter. We have three big wood stoves going and I will say that I have traveled many miles putting in wood and watching them. I am dreadfully afraid of the chimneys getting a fire so I walk and watch and worry. Seems so I can't help it. I will be glad when it comes so we don't have to keep so many stoves running. The days are growing longer and spring will come in good time.

I have been very lame but am much better and hope to be better still. I am proud to tell you that at last we have electric lights in the old home and don't it seem nice. We had good lamps but these are much better. They are in the barn and it sure is nice. I wonder if the old people who built this house several generations ago could see things as they are now, what would they think. Then there were big fireplaces and tallow candles. I really don't know how they would see anything or keep from freezing but they lived and lived to a good old age. Many have asked me if I am still making squash pies and I will answer yes. So far this fall and winter I kept track of how many I have made and it comes to 99. Some pies done you think so?

Years ago a lodge to which I belonged had refreshments at every meeting for a long time to try and create more interest and every one to bring something. I made custard pies everytime, and they called me the "pie woman" so I guess I have earned the title alright by now anyway, and still there are "more" squashes in the store room to be used.

Rural Aunty lives near me but I hardly ever see her. I hope to do so when the weather is better. She has had quite a few vacations this year and I am glad for her. She has worked hard all her life, same as most of us have. We have a great big dining room here and a big kitchen a long way from table to sink and one day "Bug" sent me a lovely tea wagon and one trip each way does the trick—and oh how it saves my lame knees. All the family appreciate it too, saves many steps.

I wish to thank the one who sent the pretty calendar. I keep it in my letter box and when writing it is so easy to see the date. I would like to know when "Nonesopretty" now lives. I wonder if we ever go by her house. I guess I have written enough for this time, so will close with best wishes to all. I am same as ever MA OF GREEN GABLES.

GREETINGS FROM U. C. E.

Dear Corner Sisters and Friends: Another year has rolled around and it finds us a band of loyal workers, all united to help make life more pleasant for each and every one of us in the days that are to come. Though many have gone on to join the hosts of friends above, "they are only waiting for the shadows to be a little brighter grown, only waiting for their loved ones to join them in their heavenly home."

I wish to thank the one who sent me the nice calendar: "'tis sweet to be remembered as through the world we go."

Molly Larkin: Many thanks for your thoughtfulness of me.

Mary Zeviah: Come over soon.

Scottie: Will put your name on my list of subscribers. If you know of anyone who would like to subscribe, please send their names to L. L. Wilcox, Yantic, Conn., R. D. 2.

Windham Blue Bell: Hope you are feeling fine. I enjoyed the day very much as I spent it with a very dear friend.

Golden Glow: Many thanks for card.

Country Sister: Haven't seen you up this way yet. Come when you can.

Bumblebee: Hope you are all better by this time. I enjoyed your visit very much.

Neapa: Hope you are not all tired out and that we shall meet again soon.

Uncome: Think of you often. Hope your daughter is better.

THREE THINGS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Social Corner Sisters, also Brothers: I want to thank Social Corner member for the neat calendar. It always comes in handy on the desk. I was sorry not to be able to attend the S. C. meeting in South Killingly in Nov. as I wanted to meet Rev. Mrs. Cooldridge, having met Mr. Cooldridge at his home a few years ago. Shall try to go some Sunday in the spring to hear him preach.

Happy New Year to everybody. Hope to meet you, one and all, at Atlantic Beach next summer.

I would have given a good deal to drive to Narragansett Pier one beautiful day last week. As I long to see the ocean in the winter time, and it must be a good view from that point.

Three things to love—courage, gentleness, and affection.

Three things to admire—intellect, dignity, and gracefulness.

Three things to avoid—idleness, loquacity and flippant jesting.

Three things to contend for—honor, country, and friends.

Three things to teach—truth, industry and contentment.

Three things to govern—temper, tongue, and conduct.

Three things to cherish—virtue, goodness, and wisdom.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

OLD DAYS WERE BETTER

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Yes it another new year and we do not know what it will bring to us, but we must try and start right by writing to our dear Social Corner page. We all love it even if we don't express it as often as we might. Thanks to the sister that sent me the pretty calendar.

The letters this week were all interesting and the one from Quid Nunc made me weep for it brought back what father said. He carried his son and nephew to go off to war and when the regiment came home he went to meet his own, and when he saw that remnant returning he said "I stood and wept. I could not help it." There were 30 young men lost in our little town. But that is past now and while today we have the best country in the world, we have many problems to confront us, and it takes level heads to steer the ship of state.

Twice Twenty: Yes, I think people were happier in the old times than now, and I'll tell you why. They had plenty to do, great incentive to work, large families to raise and a couple tried to do their duty by each other more than now. Now, there is too much leisure. But is it conducive to happiness? The poet has said "a weary wretched life is theirs who have no work to do." Idleness leads to vice. Children are brought up in idleness today. I advocate the earlier a child is taught to work and interested in some [illegible] the better for them. Then they learn the responsibilities [illegible] brought up in idleness they acquire bad habits and go wrong before a parent realizes it. That is what is filling our jails and prisons today. We need some old fashioned mothers today. CAPRICON.

NEW ENGLAND MAXIMS.

Dear Editors: I wish to thank a Social Corner Member for pretty calendar. Mine is robin's egg blue in color and I love it.

So glad to see so many letters and such choice poetry in our Corner page. Am sending some New England maxims that may interest some one.

1. Borrow with hesitation. Return promptly with appreciation.
2. What you borrow from one neighbor do not lend to another without the knowledge and consent of the owner.
3. Respect the property rights of your neighbors to his own books and umbrellas.
4. In your intercourse with your neighbors maintain a quiet dignity and a slight reserve but show cordiality and sympathy.
5. Let not your neighborhood rivals engender heart-burning or lead to extravagance.
6. Smother unkind gossip as you would an incipient blaze. The encouragement of the former may result more disastrously than that neglect of the latter.
7. In our neighborhood chicken disputes, remember that the sharp words that sometimes fly over the back fence may do more lasting damage than the scratching of all the chickens that crawl under the fence.
8. Do not think your own children can do no wrong. They do not wear wings, no do your neighbors' children sport cloven hoofs.
9. In your first quarrel with a neighbor the chances may be even that the other fellow may be to blame, but a quarrel with a second neighbor makes it two to one against you.

How many of our members have read the booklet of poems by "Ann Williams"? They are nice for a gift to a shut-in. "An Williams" writes me she has 20 more poems of her own she is about to publish in book form. If any of our girls want her poems I will send you her address on request.

Hoping all the ailing ones are better and all those in sorrow comforted. ARIES.

DIARIES ARE BEST REFERENCE.

Dear Social Cornerites: Many thanks for nice little calendar I received from a Social Corner Member. It is fine and I appreciate it even if I don't know the giver. And I want to thank those that sent me cards at Christmas. As I have been fighting the grip ever since I am late in acknowledging them.

I would like to tell the sister that wrote about diaries that I have kept one for many years and find that they are the best reference books to be had. I often am called on by neighbors to look up something that happened a long time since. I don't know of anything more worth while that any one could spend five minutes a day on.

Tish: Make an electric lamp with shade to match with the envelope linings. They are very pretty.

Ravena: I think you fell down on your letter a month. It's a long time since you wrote.

We hope to see a good crowd out on Tuesday, the 21st, and let us hope for good weather. A year ago we were having 10 below zero, some difference now. Good luck everbody. MILKY WAY.

SNORING BOTHERED HER.

Dear Editor and Sisters of Social Corner: I am carried back in more than 80 years to my happy days of youth, when the trundle bed was drawn and from under the bed (like all trundle beds.) I many times used to get out of my trundle bed and climb to the one my parents occupied and shake my father. He would say "what is the matter?" "You are snoring and I can't get to sleep. I would tell him when one lies on their back if you can get them awake enough to turn on their side, they will stop. I did that many times to stop the snoring, and even at 86 years in August I can't sleep if any one snores.

No I would not laugh at your remedies, for I know onions are fine used in different ways. I never used snuff, but I have often heard of it. With love and wishes for a Happy New Year in 1930 to all.

My sympathy goes out to all those who are shut in, who may not find the coming year a very happy one. Kind friends do every thing to make it as pleasant as it lays in your power to do so. Thank God for the friends. TROTTIE.

A BIT OF SUMMER

Dear Social Corner Members: Once more I've been remembered by a Social Corner member, with New Year greetings and a calendar for which I say, "I thank you." As I'm writing this the fog is so thick I can hardly see opposite side of street, but we have had some beautiful days and I hope every one enjoyed them as much as I did. We had windows and doors open and it seemed like a little bit of summer.

Commuter: I hope you didn't get a cold from floundering around in the snow. I saw a pretty pillow that you sent to a Corner member. A friend of yours on H-An, is not a bit well. It is too bad as health is best of all and I'm wishing it to all. O. D.

LIKES TO KEEP BUSY

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: I received a dear little calendar from some member of the Social Corner for which I send thanks. I have not written very often the last year as my health has not been very good. My eyes are very poor but I like to have something to keep my fingers busy as I cannot read to pass away time, so I am doing a little patch work, braid rugs and wash dishes, all of which are useful employment. I can write letters but cannot always follow the lines. I have enjoyed the nice sunny days in January.

With best wishes to all, I am, SISTER BARBAR.

MORE BOOKS.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: Had the weather man given us a bright day I should doubtless have been among those gathered at the B. M. today. I am quite disappointed as it is some time since I have met with you. I like a sunny day for a trip to Norwich as I usually go about quite a bit shopping, browsing around in the Otis library and the like.

I have recently read that much talked of book, A Lantern in Her Hand. I thought of you, Clarissa Lyle, while reading it as it is a story of pioneering in Nebraska just after the Civil war. Part of it is very sad, describing the coming of hordes of grasshoppers and their devouring every green thing and the terrible droughts season after season. In spite of a happier ending the book, although holding one's close attention, is rather depressing and such reading would not do for me as a steady diet.

In noting the passing of Edward Bok I recall the pleasure I had in reading his autobiography. The Americanization of Edward Bok. He laid the foundation for his success in his boyhood days and any one reading the account of his early industry, his thoughtfulness for his mother, and his determination to make good will feel that he deserves all the material success and honor that were his in later life. I well remember that he said at the close of his connection with The Ladies' Home Journal, he was disappointed in women or something to that effect. In his campaign against the wearing of aigrettes by women on account of the suffering caused, the mother birds being ruthlessly slain on their nests, and the baby birds left to starve, he found that the result of his humane effort was a great increase rather than a decrease in the sale of this ornament for women. It isn't strange that he was disappointed, is it? I am wondering now to what extent women are going to allow themselves to be hobbled again by long skirts. It is astonishing what women will suffer in order to be "in fashion." Some of the magazine articles of the day along this line are worth reading. It would seem that women hold in their hands the power of retaining the healthful and comfortable dress of the present and it shouldn't be necessary to submit to the arbitrary will of so-called fashion dictators. Sometimes it is well to rebel, not just for a bit and then surrender but rebel firmly, consistently and long enough to achieve victory. Groups of women can accomplish much by united effort. "A long pull and a hard pull and a pull all together" can put things over the top. Divided we fall but united we can stand unbobbled.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

Among book reviews a while ago I noticed one of a book by Odell Shepard with an appealing title, The Joys of Forgetting. This, I fancy, is especially for us who are no longer in our youth. If any one of you has read this, please report on it. I am hoping it may come my way soon.

A few weeks ago I read of the death of Dallas Lore Sharp, whose Hills of Hingham gave me such pleasure. Our small library here is growing slowly.

It was good to see a full Corner page last week. I have enjoyed the trundle bed tales. I had no personal experience with these diminutive beds, but I was not so fortunate in regard to feather beds. I had my full share of shaking them up, smoothing them down and sleeping on them.

Social Corner Member: Thanks for the little calendar which is very useful on my desk.

Cosmos: Thank you. I am very glad.

Elm Tree Bobbie: There is no hurry about the seeds.

A. F.: The goodman came on the next bus and was sorry not to see you and the rest of the party.

Hoping this gloomy weather will not affect the liveliness of your pens and with gratitude for the many helps I get from our page. EVELINE BURR.

GETTING A JOB.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Last name first! This was the salutation the surging applicants of an heretofore free employment typewriting agency received at the beginning of a year of advertised prosperity. Placards and individual cards announced that emancipation had arrived, this was no longer a free employment agency, jobs of olden days were worth so much the trip or better, and as whispered to a sideseater, definitely settled the fact that there was nothing free but hot air and salvation, but "getting a job" was always the one serious act of my life.

Each applicant was armed with a card, which the agency required be explicitly filled out, a contract signed, applicant numbered which soon ranged into the hundreds.

Experience? How many years a stenographer? These were some of the thrilling questions confronting the waiting liners, who but a few years or even a few months since, if the firm or location did not suit, refused with disdain the customary free salvage of $5 or $6 per.

Age? What could we do with the fleeting years! Carefully engraved on my card "21 or over" as the best evasive answer. (25 plus would have been a death blow). Touch operator, speed, equivocal answers in most instances, but a little "no" sufficed.

Looking over the tiers of benchers, all types, ages and sizes, the spirits of those who had lived high in years past were at a low ebb; those who had been more thrifty were in better humor and weaned away in their seats, but altogether with present high rents, slim pocketbooks and no jobs, the outlook was discouraging.

The flappers and fur coated parkers (those whose fur coats were not in pawn) smiled on with the assumption that the day was "theirs" and those whom hair dye, rouge dabs and lip sticks only enhanced the lines of worry, were broadcasting their experiences.

Said one of the floaters, "It's the married women and flappers that keep us out of jobs. Why," she said, "you know I look younger than I really am, but the last time I went out for a job the man tried to flirt with me (fixation)." "Why not," said I. "Tell him he is the sweetest thing on earth, and perhaps you might get a job."

Another squatter launched out, "Say did you ever go to the Y. M. C. A. I went and had a rose pinned on me and was asked to attend prayer meeting" "Did that to me," said I, "and told them under the circumstances would rather pray than work, so I attended."

Just then was picked out of the throng, grabbed a card, location and number West 37th street. "Think they'll take me on," said I. "Oh I guess so, try it," was the answer. Out car fare and time, but I flew for the job. Got the "once-over," and then came the first serious question (the stunning blow) "How long since you worked?" I replied, "Since yesterday." (Told him the stone truth.) After fumbling around for another excuse he said, "The man for whom you are to work will not be in until 11 o'clock, lives in Jersey, and will then give you a ring." "Give me a ring?" said I. "What's a ring? Got a ring. Plenty of rings. I want a job." Flew again.

Neither education, experience, fur coats, flappers, influence, 21 under or over brought a job, for there were no jobs.

Oh! for the courteous days of yore, when we were met with a smile, told to hang up our hats, were we comfortable, dictating too fast, etc. Now we receive the scrutiny, abrupt reception, "are you a touch operator? How many words per minute? etc." Where will it end? THE LITTLE SPINSTER.

MUCH PLEASURE FROM DIARIES.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I am pleased to see so many trundle bed stories and think there is room for more. The poem by James Whitcomb Riley is just it with a touch of pathetic memories.

Sister Po Peep has asked how many of us keep diaries and wondering if it is advisable to do so or not. Yes, I for one think it is interesting to refer to dates of certain events, but I think some people are apt to jot down too personal items, not thinking who may read it later on. I have in my possession two old diaries that are very interesting and which I prize greatly. One is that of my grandfather, which begins on March 30, 1844, when his daughter (my mother) was one year old. He lived in the old town of Ellington, which was as quiet in those days as it is now. I can enjoy reading how he occupied his time on the week days and on Sundays. He seldom failed to attend services at church. He refers to the "town meeting" days and I should judge they were considered quite an important annual event. The weather conditions were always noted and comments on road traveling. There are many items concerning his home affairs that reveal the character of his life. Although these pages that have became yellow beyond the four score years of time and the pen laid aside in the long, long ago, yet I love to read the thoughts expressed in his writings. I like to fancy he is speaking to me and without the voice I never was permitted to hear. Yes, I repeat, diaries of this kind are valuable and if other sisters have similar experience to mine I think they will agree with me.

Another diary I have was kept by my aunt (mother's sister) and was duroing the Civil war period. She speaks about the soldiers going away and the deaths of some acquaintances. On the date of President Lincoln's assassination she makes quite an item. Later on she writes concerning my mother's wedding. Three years later she refers to her sister's visit with the baby (and of course that's me).

It is most interesting to observe how many changes take place in a space of years, the many improvements with the passing of time.

Bo Peep: Your letter was fine concerning ideas on the dawn of a new year and we might all benefit by those suggestions that you quoted, "A few friends that understand us and yet remain our friends." Best wishes to all.

JENNIE (Club 1).

LIKES TO KNIT

Dear Social Corner: Now that the Corner page is getting full of good letters I will write a little to make it real full.

I had a good Christmas for I had a little three year old friend that had a tree. She has always had one but this was the first year she could think much about it and to a old lady like me it surely made me feel young as it took me back to my days in Hope Valley, R. I.

I will tell you what I have been doing and I am pleased with myself. I knit my first pair of mittens and liked it so well I knit five pair, three small and two for grown ups. It is lots of fun as I would not find any directions in all my books. A good neighbor started me off and how I did go, but would not make the needle make the same noise that grandma did.

Then have started a rug, knitting small pieces with twine, it will last all winter, I guess.

Now Pattie if you want a few pair, put in your order, you know mother is here and we would like to see you and the youngsters.

Deborah: What is the reason you don't say a few words?

Best wishes to all.

AURALEE.

USES FOR OLD SILK STOCKINGS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Something tells me I ought to write a letter to the Corner, even though it may not be as interesting as others. There are many uses for old silk stockings. Cut the stocking into strips in one long continuous strip and sew strips together. With a large rug hook crochet them in any shape desired, using the single crochet stitch. If different colors are wanted dye them. I made a rug by knitting strips and sewing them together. Braiding different colors make very pretty chair seats and lamp mats. Make the braids very narrow.

Checkerboard Salad: Flatten out dates from which stones have been removed and cut in half inch squares. Cut bananas into squares the same size and place alternately on lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with lemon juice and choppel nuts. Serve with cream or mayonnaise.

Daisy Dean: I slept in a trundle bed. Mother had two red ones. Those were the happy days of yore.

Twice Twenty: Glad to hear you are better; thanks for Christmas card and thanks to Last Rose of Summer, Aries, Roseland, Primrose and all other sisters who sent cards.

AVON (Club 4).

WITH HULDY IN FLORIDA

Dear Corner Friends: First I want to thank "a Social Corner member" for the pretty calendar. I have been favored with one for several years and I appreciate it.

The poinsettias on the card looked quite natural, but I wish all the members could see the real ones as I can, out of the window where I am sitting now.

In this yard there is a large bush of them, also a hybiscus, a scarlet, bell-shaped flower, and a bush of pink roses all in bloom. Nearby is a begonia vine, covered with clusters of yellow flowers, and over the door is a bouganvilla vine with its purple flowers.

All of these flowers grow all along the highways, as well as in yards, which makes driving very delightful.

Today, the 6th of January, is a big day at the sponge fisheries in Tarpon Springs, Fla., as it is the celebration of the Epiphany, by the Greek colony, who own and operate the fishing boats and who go out into the Gulf of Mexico for sponges and shells which are sold along the wharf.

There are about 7000 Greeks in the colony and they have observed this ceremony for 26 years.

The services begin at sunrise and last until noon. Then the Greek people, all dressed in national costume, form into a procession. They are led by a band and the priests and vestry men, in their colored vestments, and all march to the harbor where their boats are anchored and all gayly decorated for the occasion.

The archbishop reads the service and blesses the boats and the waves, and then he casts the traditional gold cross into the water, while a white dove is let loose. A number of sailors dive for the cross and the one who brings it back to the arch bishop, is blessed for good luck during the year.

The place is thronged with visitors who find it very interesting.

I send sympathy to the sick and sorrowful and I wish a happy New Year to all, from HULDY.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Two Cousins Happen to Meet

When things have not been going well
Your wrongs you sometimes like to tell.
—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel had been a little late in getting home one night. In fact, Chatterer was getting a bit nervous. The Black Shadows had begun to creep through the Green Forest. He had a feeling that Hooty the Owl was already abroad. So when he finally reached his home tree and scrambled up to the entrance to his home, he gave a little sigh of relief. He was just entering it when a sharp voice said: "Aren't you out rather late, Cousin Chatterer?"

Chatterer turned around and poked his head out of his doorway. "Who spoke?" he demanded somewhat sharply.

"I did," replied the same voice.

This time Chaterer discovered the speaker. He was sitting on a branch just over Chatterer's head. "Oh, it's you, is it?" said he. "What are you doing out so early?"

"It isn't so early," replied Chatterer's cousin, Timmy the Flying Squirrel, for that is who it was. "This is the time I usually come out. I'm not early, but you are late. I hope everything is going well with you, Cousin Chatterer."

"Not so well that it couldn't go better," replied Chaterer, who was still smarting from his discovery that he could no longer get into Farmer Brown's corncrib.

"What's the matter?" asked Timmy.

"Well," replied Chatterer, "I've been living on corn—nice, yellow corn. I've had it for breakfast every day for a long time. Now I can't get it. I can get a few gains, but that's all. It is only when somebody drops those that I can even get a taste of corn now."

"That's too bad," said Timmy. "I wouldn't mind a little corn myself. Just how did you get this corn? And if you could get it one time, why can't you get it now?"

Then Chatterer told him all about his troubles. He was just aching to tell somebody. He told Timmy how he had discovered a clothesline reaching from a clothespost to a corner of the corncrib and how he had used it as a bridge. He told him also how his bridge had disappeared and how he suspected that Farmer Brown's Boy had taken it down. He told Timmy how he had discovered a broken branch hanging down over the corncrib from a maple tree and how he had used this to get into the corncrib. He told him how he had discovered that that branch had been cut off, and again he blamed Farmer Brown's Boy.

"I don't think he knew I was using that branch," said Chatterer. "I think he just happened to cut it off because it was hanging there. But anyway he stoped me from getting into that corncrib."

"That's too bad," said Timmy. "That certainly is too bad. I can guess how you must feel. I wish I could help you, Cousin Chatterer. I do so. Well, it is time I was doing some hunting before it gets any darker. Pleasant dreams, Cousin Chatterer, pleasant dreams."

With this, Timmy leaped from the branch on which he was sitting and sailed smoothly and easily down through the dusk as if he were coasting on the air. He landed on the foot of another tree and scampered up. Chatterer lost sight of him then and went down into his warm nest to dream of Farmer Brown's corncrib and of some way of getting the corn.

TRADING SLACKENED AS BEARS KEPT UP THEIR BARAGE ON THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Bear traders kept up their barrage on the stock market today, and succeeded in driving the entire list moderately lower, but uncovered few vulnerable spots. They were unable to bring any considerable volume of stock onto the market, and trading slackened moderately, the day's turnover totaling 2,678,470 shares, compared to 3,043,620 yesterday.

The market remains almost entirely professional, although trading has picked up a little during the past three sessions. Commission houses report that the volume of public participation is negligible, consisting largely of trickle of odd lot buying. The recent extreme dullness cased some observers to conclude that the market was oversold, but it appears that bears, after adhering for a time to the Wall street maxim, "Never sell a dull market," were finally encouraged by the lack of enterprise shown by speculators for the rise.

Bearish operations of the past two days have depressed the price index of 90 leading stocks nearly 3 points, while the gradual rise of the three preceding sessions resulted in a net gain of only about 1 1-2 points. These narrow fluctuations primarily reflect lack of convincing industrial news, rather than any definite outside influences. Operators for the advance still appear to be marking time pending the appearance of such definite signs of business acceleration as will provide the market with some impetus.

Today's business news was meagre and characteristically unconvincing. The weekly reviews reported a gradual stepping up of industrial activity, but no more than is in keeping with the normal January trend, and adverse influences on retail trade by extreme weather conditions. The department of justice's denial of the petition to modify the packers' consent decree was of purely negative influence, as the packing stocks have been thoroughly deflated for some time.

Credit continued plentiful, call money renewing at 4 1-2 per cent, and again dropping to 4, which was encouraging, as today's rates hold over the week-end. The rate held at 4 1-2 all day last Friday. Time money was a shade easier.

Heavy selling of the radio, motor and copper shares appeared during the morning, but encountering considerable resistance in most of these shares, speculators for the fall curtailed operations until the last half hour, when a drive against the utility and chemical shares was launched which drove several traders long on these stocks to take profits on their recent upturn. Some observers regarded this as a maneuver to permit covering in other sections of the market.

Pronounced weak spots were Crosley Radio and Grigsby Grunow, both depressed about 4 points, but rallied somewhat before the close. The former touched a new low at 10 1-4, compared to last year's high of 125. Radio Corp. was sent down a couple of points, but closed off only 3-4.

Such shares as Air Reduction, American Can, American & Foreign Power, American Water Works, Andes Copper, Byers, Columbian Carbon, Erie, General Electric, Granby, International Telephone, J. I. Case, Johns Manville, North American, Pan-American, Simmons, Standard Gas, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and Westinghouse Electric lost 3 to 5 points. Peoples Gas, normally a wide mover, dropped 13 then rebounded 9. Midland Steel preferred and Michigan Steel, lately buoyant features, dropped about 8 points each.

U. S. Steel, which recently offered its stock to employes at 169, touched 168 3-4, but closed at 169, off 1 1-2. General Motors received powerful support, and closed fractionally higher. The tobacco shares were strong in response to indications of ending the last cigarette price-cutting war. American Tobacco closed 3 points higher.

In the commodities, wheat futures were erratic, losing about 2 cents, then regaining their losses on reports of farm board buying and better foreign demand. Cotton sagged early in the day, but rallied in sympathy with wheat and better prices at Liverpool, and closed slightly higher. Corn was firm in response to unfavorable weather reports.

Leading foreign exchanges eased further, sterling cables reaching a new low for the month at $4.86 11-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—(AP)—Emphatic disclaimers that the Canadian wheat growers pool has become weak-kneed on wheat market prospects led to sharp rallies today in wheat values here. Earlier the Chicago wheat market influenced by reports of flattening out of European demand for breadstuffs, and that Canadian banks were forcing customers to sell out wheat, had plunged downward to the lowest point reached since November 13 last, with rye quotations today showing a temporary break of 5c a bushel. Toward the end of the day, however, assertions came from the Canadian growers pool that world demand for wheat is improving, and that the pool will be able to dispose of its wheat to advantage.

Under such circumstances, flurried selling of wheat and other grain in Chicago was replaced by sudden scarcity of offerings, and prices made a quick recovery with previous speculative sellers becoming urgent buyers. Wheat closed irregular at 1-4c net decline to 5-8c advance. Rye finished 1 1-2c to 2 1-4c off, corn 1-2c to 1c up, oats unchanged to 1-8c higher, and provisions showing 2c to 30c gain.

Late upturns in Chicago wheat prices today were accelerated by authoritative statements that the Canadian wheat growers' pool has not been and is not now active in the liquidating sales which have of late been witnessed at Winnipeg. On the contrary, the Canadian pool was stated to be in a very sound position, and without change in any respect as to the pool's view of unquestionably sound world conditions regarding wheat. In addition to the stimulating effect of late Canadian advices today, the wheat market here proved responsive also to word from official sources at Washington that the outlook for cash wheat during January and February is still for some improvement in prices.

Helping further today's late recovery in grain values were indications that a good sized export business in North American wheat had resulted from early breaks in prices, and that supporters of the rye market were prepared to accept all deliveries on March contracts. Activities of farm board cooperative companies in buying country run wheat today at Minneapolis, Omaha and Duluth were also a source of renewed firmness of the Chicago wheat market, a development which in turn tended to dispel anxiety shown in various quarters regarding the huge stock of rye in Chicago with no apparent outlet. It was uneasiness regarding rye market condition there, coupled with talk of Canada possibly outgeneralling the United States as to wheat exports, which was largely given blame for selling rushes here today that temporarily overwhelmed the pits.

Unfavorable weather for corn movement, together with complaints of extensive damage to seed corn and to the quality of corn in cribs, did much to give independent strength to the corn market. Owing to early weakness of wheat, however, March and July corn today sold early at a new low price record for the season. Oats were governed by the action of wheat and corn.

Provisions advanced, reflecting an upturn in the value of hogs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Business failures throughout the country this week were 94 less than last week, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. They numbered 638, compared with 732 in the week before. The number this week, however, was 55 more than the 583 insolvencies reported for the corresponding week a year ago.

Net profits of the John B. Stetson Co., of Philadelphia, for the year ending Oct. 31, 1929, amounted to $1,671,462, compared with $1,456,344, in the preceding year. Surplus on Oct. 31, last, was $6,967,735.

Business in the New York pig iron market continues to appear principally in small lots, but there are signs of more active consumer interest. Sales for the full week are estimated at between 8,000 and 9,000 tons.

The arrangements whereby the General Electric Co. and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. will enter the retail radio receiving set business does not mean that those concerns are going to manufacture their own sets, Edward E. Shumaker, president of RCA-Victor Co., said today. Rather, Mr. Shumaker said, these companies will distribute the sets through their respective distributing channels, which are manufactured by his company. RCA-Victor Co. is controlled 50 per cent by the Radio Corp. of America, 30 per cent by the General Electric Co., and 20 per cent by the Westinghouse organization.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Cotton futures closed very steady, 6 to 11 points higher. Spot steady; middling 17.45.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Call money steady, high 4 1-2; low 4; ruling rate 4 1-2; closing 4. Time loans easy; 30 days 4 3-4a4 1-2; 60-90 days 4 1-4a4 3-4; 4-6 months 4 1-2a 4 3-4. Prime commercial paper 4 3-4a5 1-4. Bankers' acceptances unchanged.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—The curb market turned weak today after an irregular opening. Heavy offerings of the leading utilities, coupled with the lack of buying support for other popular issues, unsettled the market despite flurries of buying in a few specialties. The recent action of the market apparently has discouraged participation by small traders as professionals supplied the bulk of the day's activity.

The selling of some of the utilities had all the appearances of a "bear" drive. American & Foreign Power warrants were hammered down 4 points and Allied Power & Light, Commonwealth Power preferred, Electric Power & Light optional warrants and a few others yielded a point or more. Utilities Power & Light showed independent strength, closing 1 1-2 points higher, while the Voting Trust certificates jumped nearly 10 points. Penn-Ohio Edison warrants broke 22 points on a small odd lot transaction.

Fresh selling came into the oil group as a result of the extension of crude oil price cuts. Humble dropped 2 1-2 points and Gulf, Indian Territory, Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line and Pacific Western yielded a point or two. Standard Oil of Indiana closed fractionally higher.

Rights to subscribe to the stock of the new Pittston Co., organized by the Erie railroad to take over the leases to its coal properties, were admitted to trading, and dropped from an opening price of 1 3-8 to 3-4. The new Pittston stock also was admitted to trading privileges, but no sales took place.

Investment trust and trading corporation shares were heavy, Goldman Sachs, Burco, National Investors (new) and Third National Investors losing 1 to 3 1-4 points. Trans-America "rights" yielded a point despite the favorable earnings report of the Trans-America Corp. for the last year.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Activity in bonds diminished with the approach of the week-end today. Prices, however, held up well, giving the list a firm appearance despite the counter attractions available in the form of the recent new offerings.

Time loans were made at about the quotations of Thursday, namely, 4 5-8 and 4 3-4 per cent, but in money market circles it was reported that a tendency toward a flat 4 1-2 per cent rate was evident. Although funds were a little more active, an appreciable quickening is not expected until the maturity of loans made at the higher rates prevailing several months ago.

Foreign obligations retained most of yesterday's advance, but inquiry was slower. French governments, which have liberal sinking fund provisions, were again very active and virtually unchanged. Chile 6s and Argentine 6s eased, but there was fair buying in Irish Free State 5s, Republic of Poland 7s, Rome 6 1-2s, Norway 5 1-2s and Belgium 6s.

Absence of demand brought out a mixture of small advances and declines in the rails. Atchison General 4s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s, New York Central 5 1-2s and a few other prime transportation issues shaded lower, but Canadian National 4 1-2s, Michigan Central 3 1-2s, Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Pennsylvania 4s and Union Pacific First 4s showed net gains averaging about half a point.

Foreign sugars responded to favorable developments affecting the trade, notably the senate's decision to retain the current duty on the staple. East Cuba 7 1-2s rose 2 1-4, Manati 7 1-2s rallied 2 1-2 and Vertientes 7s gained 2 points. Outstanding fluctuations in the domestic industrials included a gain of 1 1-2 in Illinois Steel 4 1-2s and a drop of nearly 3 points in Fisk Rubber 8s.

American Telephone debenture 5s of 1965, when issued, moved actively, advancing to 100 5-8 and then working back to yesterday's close of 100 3-8. The new Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s ruled at 94, the offering figure.

Utilities were dull. Western Union Gold 5s rose 7-8 on a fair turnover. Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, Brooklyn-Manhattan 6s, a New York traction, and Bell Telephone 5s also showed to advantage, rising half a point each. American Telephone 5 1-2s and Collateral 5s sagged.

The heavy stock market carried the share privilege bonds downward. International Telephone 4 1-2s made an extreme decline of 4 3-4, recovering 1 point of that loss. American Telephone 4 1-2s dropped 1 3-4 net. New Haven 6s and Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, with warrants lost 1 and Atchison 4 1-2s yielded 1-2.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Treasury receipts Jan. 15 were $4,121,398.37; expenditures $7,117,516.09; balance $167,038,138.63.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The most startling incident that occurred fifty years ago in this city was the fire at the parsonage of St. Patrick's church corner of Broadway and Perkins place, when an estimated damage of $10,000 was done. As a result of the fire the Rev. Father Murphy became prostrated from the inhalation of smoke and over the excitement of the event.

Other small items of interest taken from the files of the Norwich Bulletin beginning with the week of Jan. 12, 1880, are taken in part as follows:

Monday, Jan. 12, 1880—The Messrs. E. A. Bennett of Norwich and Henry Lyod of Lisbon were the successful bidders for the contract for poles for five divisions of the Western Union Telegraph company's line, covering 300 miles of railroad lines in New England.

It is not within the memory of the oldest inhabitant that the Thames river has been open to daily traffic until the 11th of January. This season the oystermen have visited the natural beds down the river daily until the present time.

The sale of halibut fins in this market continues active. A Market street merchant sold a barrel one day last week, and the demand for them is said to be steadily increasing.

Sunday, chickweed in blossom and violets and arbutus in buds so advanced that the petals of the flowers prospection, were picked in the fields.

In Poquetanuck a farmer was seen ploughing greensward on Friday, Jan. 9th. That has not been done before in a dozen years.

Tuesday, Jan. 13, 1880—J. N. Perry, residing on Cliff street, picked a cluster of five violets in full bloom on Saturday, Jan. 10.

Among the Connecticut patents issued for the week ending Jan. 6 was one for Junius A. Brand of Norwich, fuse for explosive projectiles.

Capt. Edmund D. Roath was elected president of the Norwich Mutual Assurance company at its annual meeting at the office of Hon. Henry Bill Monday afternoon.

The whistle of the locomotive R. P. Haven of Conductor Sanders' train got out of order a mile and a half south of Montville Monday afternoon and kept up an incessant yell for over three miles.

The silk mill at Mystic, which has stopped for repairs, is soon to recommence. It has been running day and night.

Wednesday, Jan. 14, 1880—At the annual meeting of the directors of the Norwich, New London and Watch Hill Steamboat company Tuesday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Palmer Smith; secretary and treasurer, Charles Webb.

Monday evening a party of friends congregated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Towne on Park street to celebrate the 39th anniversary of their host.

Mrs. Nancy B. Whiting, 82, fell accidentally while crossing a room at her residence on Church street Monday evening fracturing her hip and permanently crippling herself.

The schools held one session Tuesday on account of the driving snow storm prevailing at noon.

Bluebirds have been carolling about the city streets for several weeks.

Thursday, Jan. 15, 1880—The committee of the First Baptist society who have the project for a new meeting house at hand, have over $1,300 pledged toward the $14,000 necessary within their church and express themselves as confident that they will succeed in the enterprise.

Mrs. Lucy Orilla, 65, a native of Preston, widow of William C. Burdick of Ashaway, R. I., died suddenly in that place on the 8th inst. She leaves eight children.

The Thames river was frozen over for the first time this season Wednesday morning.

The snow disappeared before the sun yesterday but in the shade the thermometer was at the freezing point all day.

Friday, Jan. 16, 1880—In the death of Azariah Huntington, Esq., Franklin loses one of her oldest and most respected citizens. He was a subscriber to The Courier for more than 60 years. His wife survives him in her 88th year.

A tame deer came to the yard of an Acqueduct resident early Wednesday morning, awakening the occupants of the house in roaming about the yard.

The Liberty pole on Franklin square has been struck with a reformation. Yesterday the weather vane told the truth for the first time in several months.

Mr. Stiles Stanton has been elected for the 24th time president of the First National bank of Stonington.

Oleomargarine, better known as burlesque butter, has been sold in this city for several years.

Saturday, Jan. 17, 1880—Damage of $10,000 was done to the parsonage of St. Patrick's church at the corner of Broadway and Perkins place Friday morning, the alarm being rung in from Box No. 31, located at the north end of the "Little Plain" on Broadway. Rev. Father Murphy was prostrated by the inhalation of smoke and the excitement caused by the conflagration and was in a critical condition for several hours.

The grand masquerade ball of the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company is to be given on Tuesday evening.

Sanford H. Sholes of Washington street picked a bouquet of pansies that lifted up their heads and blossomed in his garden in spite of the snow on Friday.

The Burns anniversary celebration and annual call of the Caledonian society will be held at Union hall, Greeneville, on Friday evening next week.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Parson's Theatre, Hartford

After all there is something new under the sun, despite the age-old belief to the contrary. And this something new will soon be on view in this city. It is the nine-act drama that won for Eugene O'Neill, the author, the coveted Pulitzer Prize for the second time in his brilliant career as a playwright. "Strange Interlude" is its name. It carried off the laurels as the "best play of the year" in 1928.

On Monday, Jan. 20, at the Parsons theatre, Hartford, the New York Theatre Guild will introduce this widely-publicized play to the playgoers of this city. An engagement of only six days is announced.

The first claim that "Strange Interlude" can make for being something new under the sun lies in the fact that it is composed of nine acts, which take from 5:30 in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night to run their course. An intermission for dinner between the fifth and sixth acts of one hour and twenty minutes is declared at 7:40 so that at 9 p. m. the audience is again back in its seats literally crying, like Oliver Twist, for more. Reports from other cities where this unusual play has been presented justify this statement.

The second claim for being something different will be found in the way "Strange Interlude" is played. First a character speaks the regular lines of his part, and then, as if his very mind were exposed to the view of the audience, he goes on and says what he is thinking. "Asides," they call this method of delivery.

And thirdly, there is the theme of the drama itself. From the nationwide publicity that "Strange Interlude" has had, both in book form—and it is one of the best sellers—as well as in its stage version, probably most playgoers are aware of how Nina Leeds palms off on her husband a child that is not his own after being persuaded by her mother-in-law that this is quite the proper thing to do. Thereafter the play goes on to reveal the mixed motives and crossed purposes of the doctor friend who becomes a major factor in the deception, a bit willingly it develops; the wife torn between love for the physician and the mate for whom she feels a deep pity; the duped and boastful husband, and a novelist, who becomes the beloved character of the play, although he has not the courage of a mouse.

SPRAGUE

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS HEARS NEW LONDON SPEAKER

The Sprague League of Women Voters held a meeting of much interest Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Webster Standish in Hanover when Mrs. Annie C. S. Fenner of New London was the speaker. Mrs. Fenner's talk dealt in a most instructive and interesting manner with the subject of Taxation in its various forms. The cost of government and the appalling increase of public debts was vividly portrayed by the speaker. Mrs. Willard Turner, chairman, presided at the business meeting. Eighteen paid members were reported by the treasurer and it is hoped that very soon all of the old members will renew their membership. In this way all the women of the town can work together for better things and citizenship can come to be more valuable. The finance chairman is planning some social events at an early date.

A STATEMENT OF OLDSMOBILE-VIKING POLICY for 1930

A message of interest to everyone who expects to buy a car this year.

AT THIS TIME, when the public is accustomed to look for changes in motor car design, it is only natural that Olds Motor Works should make an announcement concerning both its policy and its products for the coming year.

Olds Motor Works is pledged to a policy of progress—a policy that promises, in part . . . "Changes in design solely for the sake of progress—never for the sake of change alone."

This policy, as it applies to the two products of Olds Motor Works, is briefly . . .

. . . to give still greater value in the Oldsmobile Six, the Fine Car of Low Price . . .

. . . to provide, in the Viking, a modern 90-degree, V-type Eight of high quality, at medium price.

Certain changes have been made in Oldsmobile design. These changes are chiefly in the body of the car, although advancements have also been made in the chassis. In every case, the changes tend to add to Oldsmobile value, without affecting the fundamental design of the car.

Naturally, no changes have been made in the great Viking Eight. The Viking is a new car—a thoroughly modern 90° V-eight, incorporating advancements in V-eight design that establish it as one of the outstanding engineering achievements of recent years.

Viking, as well as Oldsmobile, represents true progress in modern motoring. Viking, as well as Oldsmobile, is the splendid result of an ideal—an ideal that is exemplified by the four great responsibilities Olds Motor Works recognizes toward every Oldsmobile and Viking owner.

The first of these responsibilities is to design progressively, utilizing the full resources of the General Motors Research Laboratories, the Proving Ground, and Fisher Body, as well as its own broad facilities.

The second is to build faithfully . . . maintaining standards of quality and workmanship which are best expressed by the pledge every worker follows, "Anything short of my best is not acceptable."

And not content merely with designing and building well, Olds Motor Works goes further, and pledges itself to sell honestly—representing its products, in every detail and to every buyer, exactly as they are . . . and, finally, to service sincerely—maintaining an interest in every sale far beyond the time of purchase, and joining with its dealers in carrying out the most equitable service policy in existence today.

While Olds Motor Works builds two cars, in two major price classes, each represents the most progressive engineering thought, the finest manufacturing practice, and the best value it is possible to give. Each is truly ". . . a car for the American family that, at a moderate investment, gratifies their finer tastes as well as satisfies their every need."

Now is the time to see these cars and to compare them with the latest offerings of the automotive industry. Make your own examination.

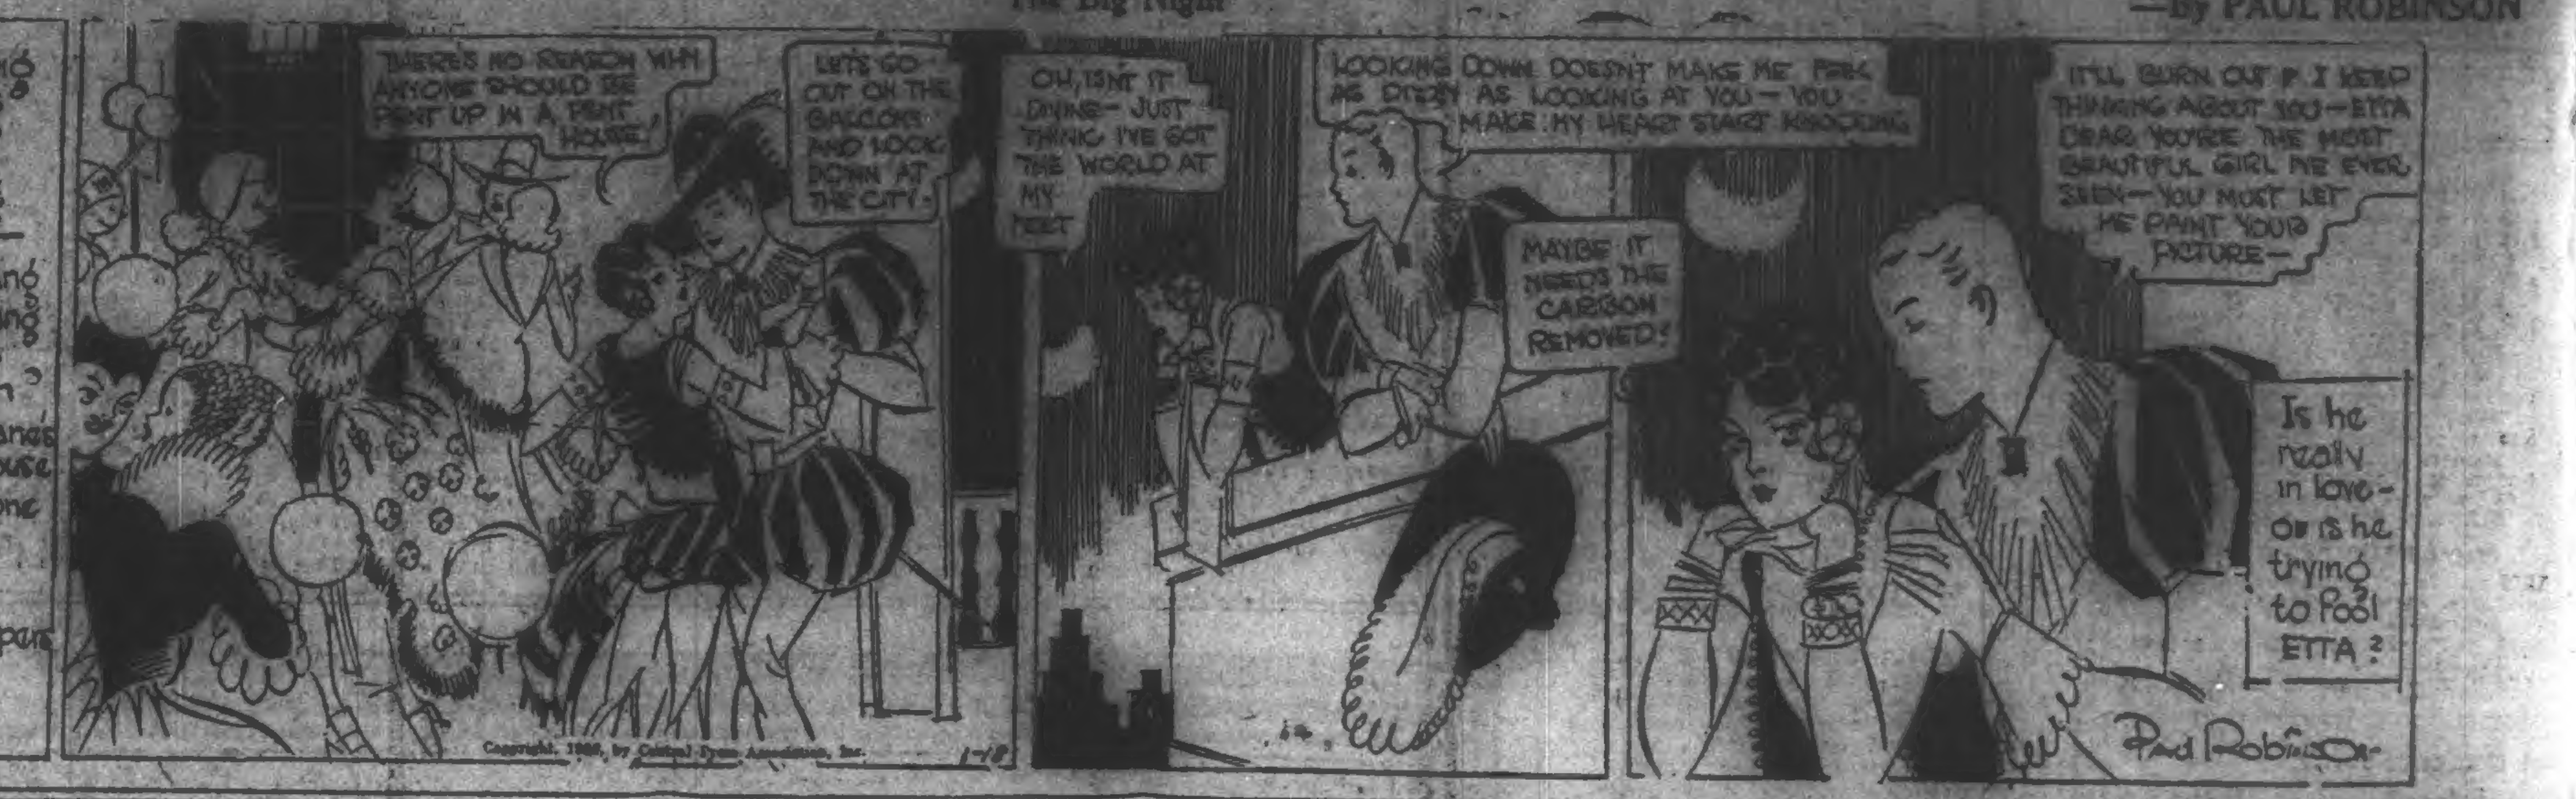
ETTA KETT

The Big Night

—By PAUL ROBINSON



The big artists' studio ball is rolling along—the gang is turning on the heat in Parke Lane's pent house atop one of the big skyscrapers
THERE'S NO REASON WHY ANYONE SHOULD BE PENT UP IN A PENT HOUSE!
LET'S GO OUT ON THE BALCONY AND LOOK DOWN AT THE CITY!
OH, ISN'T IT DIVINE— JUST THINK I'VE GOT THE WORLD AT MY FEET
LOOKING DOWN DOESN'T MAKE ME FEEL AS DIZZY AS LOOKING AT YOU— YOU MAKE MY HEART START KNOCKING MAYBE IT NEEDS THE CARBON REMOVED!
IT'LL BURN OUT IF I KEEP THINKING ABOUT YOU—ETTA DEAR YOU'RE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL GIRL I'VE EVER SEEN— YOU MUST LET ME PAINT YOUR PICTURE—
Is he really in love— or is he trying to fool ETTA?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Colonel Philip Moore.

Colonel Philip Moore, fellow of the Royal Geographical society, noted traveler and platform speaker, has ever been a lover of the Great Alone. Even as a child he spent every moment in the open spaces, that his school studies permitted.

Graduating from Princeton, his restless disposition urged him to seek the Lone Trail, that trail to the unknown places that led him all through the Rockies as far north as the great Peace River country. At the outbreak of the World war so removed was he from human contact that six weeks passed before he even heard a rumor of it. Immediately he set out on foot, walked 200 miles to the nearest town, signed up, and went overseas to Flanders, where he served with great distinction. After peace was declared the call of the mountains sounded in the heart of the weary soldier and ere long he was back with his dogs, his lumbermen, the smell of the pines and the vastness of the primeval forests.

Cowboy, prospector, guide, big-game hunter, Colonel Moore's tales of wild animals, tourists, and European royalty roaming in those far-off countries teem with humor, excitement, and novelty while his hand-colored slides and marvelous motion pictures bring his thrilling experiences to all who are fortunate enough to hear him.

Col. Moore will lecture in New London Jan. 20th at 8 p. m. in the Mohican ballroom, under the auspices of Izaac Walton league of America, New London Chapter, and the Bureau of Commercial Economics of Washington, founded in 1913, which is a philanthropic educational institution with alliances with all the major governments of the world. Its purpose is to introduce nations to each other, to disclose by lectures and motion pictures the scenery, the natural resources and the customs of the peoples of one nation to those of another, thus promoting international good will and friendship. Its films are shown in all parts of the world free.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

The annual meeting of Versailles M. E. church school was held the first of the week at which time the following officers were elected: Superintendent, Frederick H. Topliff; assistant superintendent, John Benker; superintendent's aid, John Krumbholz; secretary and treasurer, Cora L. Tarbox; librarian, Robert Bateson, Jr.; organist, Alma Boutillier; assistant organist, Betty Allen. Mrs. C. W. Perkins, after serving for the past 21 years as assistant superintendent, declined re-election.

Members and guests of the Totokett Hose company held their annual social in Occum hall Thursday evening. The programme was thoroughly enjoyed by those in attendance. The committee having the social in charge and who received many compliments on the success of the programme, comprised P. J. Kelly, M. B. Lafreniere, and A. R. Filligar. The Mohegan orchestra of four pieces furnished dance music. William Austin prompted.

Norwich, Saturday, Jan. 18, 1930

THE WEATHER

Conditions

A disturbance that developed over the north central states during Thursday night now is centered over northern Michigan. Pressure is low and falling rapidly from the Hudson Bay region southwestward to the Dakotas.

An area of high pressure is advancing eastward over the northeastern states and another is moving rapidly southeastward with center over Oklahoma and northern Texas.

The Michigan disturbance will advance eastward and it will be attended by precipitation mostly in the form of snow Saturday in the eastern and southeastern states. Following the passage of this disturbance a western area of high pressure and lower temperature will overspread the entire Washington forecast district. The temperature will begin to fall in the middle states late Saturday afternoon. On Sunday the weather will be fair almost generally with rapidly rising temperature Sunday afternoon in the Atlantic states except New England.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh east shifting to southeast or south winds and overcast weather with snow Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh east shifting to southeast or south winds becoming northwest by Saturday night and overcast weather with rain over south and rain or snow over north portion Saturday.

Forecast

Observations

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	14	29:80
12 m.	26	30:00
6 p. m.	24	30:10

Highest 26; lowest 14.

Comparisons

Predictions for Friday: Fair, slightly colder.

Friday's weather: As predicted.

DRAMATIC CLUB FORMED AT ST. ANDREW'S

On Thursday evening a number of young people met in the Guild room of St. Andrew's church to form a Dramatic club and after a brief speech by the Rev. E. J. Norris, rector, the meeting elected officers as follows: William H. Haden, director; Frederick Johnson, secretary-treasurer. If necessary additional officers may be elected later. The members began instant rehearsal of a play to be produced later. At the conclusion lunch was served by Miss K. Norris, who was the moving spirit in the forming of this club.

ST. ANDREW'S MEN'S CLUB MEET ON MONDAY JAN. 20TH.

The committee of St. Andrew's Men's club announce a very interesting program for their next meeting Monday, January 20, including two very clever magicians, one comedian, a musical program and an illustrated travel talk.

HOME DEPT. HAS SECOND ANNIVERSARY BANQUET

The Home department of the Third Baptist church and a few of their friends numbering 27 in all, celebrated the department's second anniversary with a banquet Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. The menu consisted of chicken patties, mashed potato, mashed turnip, creamed onions, cranberry sauce, rolls, pie and coffee. A birthday cake was placed in the centre of the dining table with two lighted candles. The cake had been donated by one of the members. Mrs. Elmer Mulhins, Mrs. Irving W. Larkin and Mrs. Upton were in charge of the affair.

Miss Loretta Ruth Mullery has resumed her studies at the Pawtucket high school, after spending a few days with relatives on North Main street.

Troop No. 21, Boy Scouts, of the Third Baptist church, held the weekly meeting Monday evening in the hall of the church and Mr. Warson, of scout headquarters, gave a talk, explaining several marching drills. Plans were made for a hike to be held this Saturday if weather conditions are favorable.

Ice will not be ready for harvesting for some time yet, according to managers of local ice concerns. The news is disappointing to scores of unemployed men who had hoped that harvesting would be started very soon. Several spells of zero weather have produced comparatively thick ice but subsequent thaws with some of the warmest winter weather of the last 50 years have spoiled the crop. Until the ice is at least 8 inches thick it will not be taken into the sheds. Manager George Kramer, of Kramer Bros. Co., said that two weeks of cold weather will be needed before ice can be harvested by his company. He added that this would not make the harvesting date unusually late and dealers here are satisfied if their sheds are filled by the end of February.

Floral forms at the funeral of Mrs. Johanna Heibel Wednesday were: Casket spray and pillow, "Mother," daughters and son; basket, "Grandma," grandchildren; spray, Mr. and Mrs. C. DENIES TRUSTEE'S APPLICATION TO SUE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY RECEIVER

Judge Christopher L. Avery, sitting at the superior court short calendar session here Friday morning, denied the application of Charles D. Greenman as bondholders' trustee to bring a foreclosure suit against Gilbert S. Raymond, who is receiver for the New London County Agricultural society, which owns the fairgrounds property at East Great Plain.

A first mortgage for $25,000 on the fairgrounds property is the security for the bondholders, whose bonds amount to the sum named.

Attorney Andrew B. Davies appeared as counsel for the trustee and Attorney E. W. Perkins, for the receiver. While denying the authority to sue the receiver to foreclose the bond mortgage, Judge Avery said that he would grant a motion to be filed by the trustee to intervene in the receivership proceedings. Attorney Perkins offered no objection to this, but objected to the original motion.

Other matters on the motion list were disposed of as follows:

Foreclosure for $2,481 granted to Mrs. Sadie Boretz of Colchester against Abraham and Eli Chownik and others on a 200-acre farm in Colchester on the Hartford road. The redemption date is Feb. 10. The federal Land bank holds a mortgage for $3,500.

Divorce suits as follows were ordered on the uncontested list: Della Kennedy vs. Alfred Kennedy, Charlotte Sonk Page vs. William H. Page, Adolph E. Sylvia vs. Agnes Marcoux Sylvia.

More specific statement, bill of particulars and items was ordered within two weeks in Patterson vs. Hart.

In Richard C. Davidson vs. James Davidson et al, motion to drop Italian Mutual Benefit society M. S. as a party defendant was granted. Motions for leave to amend complaint, that judgment of Jan. 10, 1930, be vacated and that Thomas W. Williams, Ruth R. Williams, and Margaret F. Williams be made party defendants and be cited to defend were granted in Mohegan Finance Co. vs. Williams, admx.

Authority to continue business for two months from Jan. 22, 1930, was granted in Monroe vs. O. C. Wolfe, Inc., and to continue business for four months in McBurney vs. Chelsea File Works, Inc.

A number of other motions were postponed or went off the list.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE GIVEN TO BUSHINGER

Sam Bushinger of Newark, N. J., alias Sammy the Jew, latest to be caught of the five gunmen, who stole two automobiles and a large quantity of silk dresses and dressgoods in Colchester last June, was sentenced to from 2 to 5 years in state prison on each of three counts, the sentences to run concurrently, when he pleaded guilty in the superior court here Friday morning before Judge C. L. Avery. Bushinger received the same sentence as was given to Louis Russi, another Newark man, who was sentenced last week at this session of court.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown had Bushinger brought in on a bench warrant and he pleaded guilty to burglary and theft. The state attorney had previously given the information that Bushinger had made a confession, since he was arrested in Philadelphia for the Norwich police after his trail had been picked up by the sleuthing of two Norwich men who are members of the state police force, Peter Busch and Elmer McKenzie.

Russi has been held in the New London county jail since his sentence, but both men will now be taken on the same trip to Wethersfield state prison by Sheriff Sidney A. Brown's forces.

The charges against the gangster were stealing a Hudson coach from Hyman and Joseph London of Colchester, 1,811 dresses and clothes from Cohen Bros. factory at Colchester valued at $3,100 and a Dodge coupe from Arthur Chapman.

NORWICH BUILDING PERMITS GAINED IN DECEMBER

In the mothly report to the state chamber of commerce on business conditions in Norwich, Secretary John Richardson of the local chamber supplies the following details:

The total valuation of building permits issued during the month of December was 98 per cent greater than in December, 1928. The amounts were $73,150 and $36,947 respectively. Bank debits showed a decrease of 5.9 per cent, the totals being for December, 1929, $19,594,892 and for December, 1928, $20,824,181. Savings bank deposits showed an increase of 1.7 per cent over the corresponding month a year ago. The figures were $45,107,667 and $44,327,694 respectively. There was an increase of 12 per cent in total gas consumed. The figure was 15,570 M for December, 1929, and 13,863 M for December, 1928. Post office receipts amounting to $17,226 increased 3.8 per cent over December 1928, when the total was $16,650. There were 162 telephones installed and 85 removed, a net gain of 77 telephones. In December, 1928, there were 72 installed and 36 removed, a gain of 36 installations. This made a net increase of 114 per cent in telephone installations compared with December, 1928.

DESMOND IS RE-ELECTED BUILDING TRADES PRESIDENT

P. J. Desmond was re-elected president of the Norwich Building Trades at a meeting in Carpenters hall Thursday evening. The other officers elected are: Vice president, Edward Gleason; secretary and treasurer, Robert McNeely; trustees, John Leahy and P. A. Moran.

NORWICH TOWN

The new year's work of the woman's department of the League of Service of the First Congregational church, began with enthusiasm at a meeting Friday afternoon, with Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, chairman of the department, as leader. After a devotional service the report of the last annual meeting was read by the secretary, Miss Jennie M. Case. The chairman of the department, Mrs. D. W. Avery having already been appointed by the church; the other officers were elected as follows: Secretary, Miss Jennie M. Case; treasurer, Mrs. Charles W. Chapin; chairman of the work committee, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington; chairman of the programme committee, Miss Susan C. Hyde, and as chairman of the supper committee, Mrs. John L. Browning, the chairmen to choose the other members of their committees. There were notices and suggestions from the committee leaders and a general discussion of means and methods. The short program which followed consisted of the reading of an article entitled, From Pier Families, by Mrs. James F. Connolly; letters from Miss Ruth Beebe and Miss Gertrude Avery, describing their Christmas, and expressing appreciation for boxes sent them. During the social hour, Mrs. Orrin F. Merry and Mrs. W. O. Rogers poured and Mrs. Earl Browning, Mrs. Frank Sterry, Mrs. John Browning and Mrs. Ernest Washington, served refreshments.

NORWICH GAINED 302 TELEPHONES IN 1929

The heavy increase locally is typical of what took place in all other parts of the state so far as telephone development is concerned and since the record of telephone progress is, in a general way, a record of a community's progress, it is fair to assume that 1929 was a good one businesswise in all sections of the state.

At the beginning of the year, the Southern New England company's system was operating 320,713 telephones, a net gain of 20,783 for the year and close to the high record for any one year in the history of the business and better, by about 2,250 than the officials of the company estimated would be the development for the past year.

For operating purposes the system is divided into four districts, New Haven, Hartford, New London and Bridgeport with 19 exchanges each in the New Haven and Hartford districts, 16 in the New London district and 17 in the Bridgeport district.

The number of telephones in service at the beginning of the year and the net increase in each district during the year 1929 just closed follow: New Haven district in service 109,146; net increase 6,281. Hartford district in service 101,095; net gain 6,458. Bridgeport district in service 76,489; net gain 6,347. New London district in service 33,993; net gain 1,697. An interesting fact in connection with the net gain in telephones is that Bridgeport had the second largest increase during the year. Hartford led with an increase of 3,858. Bridgeport followed with a net gain of 3,008, while New Haven ranked third with 2,858 added to its total of telephones.

Methodist Church Social.

An enjoyable birthday social was held Friday evening at Trinity Methodist church, Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor, under the auspices of the Wesleyan guild. A large number took part in the offering for their birth month, the gifts including money and other articles. The girls' choir furnished a program of vocal selections and light refreshments were served at the conclusion of the social, which was in charge of Mrs. Robert McNeely.

Motor Truck Driver Arrested

James Smith, 31, of Prospect street, Moosup, will appear in the city court this (Saturday) morning on a charge of driving a truck without having a license. That charge was preferred against him Friday by the arresting officer, John R. Donovan.

Called For Carburetor Blaze

At 1:27 o'clock Friday afternoon, the fire department responded to a fire in an automobile in a garage in the rear of No. 115 Lafayette street. The blaze which was in the carburetor and was caused from a backfire, was put out by the owner of the machine, Dr. R. R. Agnew, with a garden hose before the firemen arrived. Engine No. 3, Squad A, Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan responded.

Scouts Visited Fire Station

A tour of inspection of the central fire station was made Thursday evening by about 30 members of the Duwell Boy Scout troop, accompanied by Scoutmaster Walter Weidman and Assistant Scoutmaster John Boldreghine. The scouts were shown through the building by Capt. Robert Woodmansee and other members of the night shift. A demonstration of the H. H. inhalator was given by Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan and Capt. Woodmansee.

TAFTVILLE

"Banking" was the topic taken by Henry F. Powers, president of the Uncas-Merchants National bank of Norwich, in an address before the members of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church Thursday evening. Albert Airey, the president, presided at the business session and after the secretary-treasurer's report had been given by Robert E. Cooper, introduced the speaker, whose talk was highly instructive and interesting.

Mr. Powers stated that banking was older than the pyramids, and traced the history of the private banks to the great financial institutions we have today. At one time, even in this country, money was represented by printed cards, later to be replaced by coins. Many private bankers had their own coins and mints. The issue of government bonds, the founding of the national bank system, and other interesting details of the finance of our country were explained by the speaker.

The federal reserve system and its benefits, how all national banks must and trust companies and state banks may, become members, was thoroughly gone into by the speaker, who also outlined the various forms of legislation applying to the different kinds of banks.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Powers for his most enlightening talk, and after the club had voted to hold the next meeting on the third Thursday of February, the meeting was adjourned and refreshments of coffee and sandwiches were served.

NEW LONDON BUSINESS HOLDING ABOUT LEVEL

Business in New London in December held about level with the same month a year ago, according to the report made to the state chamber of commerce by Secretary George Garlefy of the New London chamber as follows:

Real estate sales remained about the same as in December, 1928, with prices also the same. Retail business showed a decrease for December, 1929. The local factories operated about 70 per cent of normal. Postal receipts for December, 1929, amounted to $25,943, an increase of $1,759 over December, 1928. There were 20 building permits issued in December, amounting to $83,700; in December, 1928, there were 27 permits issued amounting to $290,300, a decrease of 7 permits and $220,600. Electricity consumed in December, 1929, totaled 1,796,307 kilowatt hours using 10,508 electric meters, a decrease of 19,369 kilowatt hours and an increase of 310 meters over December, 1928. Gas consumed totaled 33,870,500 cubic feet, using 7,447 gas meters, an increase over December, 1928, of 7,028,401 cu. ft. of gas and 260 gas meters.

SHACK PATIENTS ENJOY AFTERNOON OF BRIDGE

A delightful bridge party was given to the shack patients at Uncas-on-Thames, on Thursday afternoon by Norwich Chapter of Hadassah, under the direction of the following members, Mrs. B. Lahn, Mrs. H. Rosoff, Mrs. M. Levine, Mrs. J. Hourigan and Mrs. J. Rosenberg. Eight tables of bridge were played, and a prize awarded to each table, the winners being Miss Margaret O'Keefe, Elizabeth O'Grady, Mary Novak, Agnes Hart, Katherine Vardion, and Emma Bellsle, Fred Young, and George Cardin.

Ice cream, and cookies were then served by the committee, assisted by Miss Mary J. Cook and Clara M. Christoph.

PURSE OF GOLD PRESENTED SUPT. R. W. MANSFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17.—Richard W. Mansfield came to this city from New Haven 25 years ago and began his duties as superintendent of the Y. M. C. A., serving with energy and with the best of results. The association was then on the site of the present Mohican building on the east side of it in a building formerly the Bristol residence. The membership was not as great as it is now, but it was made up of youths mostly more difficult to control than is the membership of later years. But Mr. Mansfield was equal to the occasion. He had mixed with the newsboys of New Haven somewhat, as he said himself, his eye teeth had been cut. From the Y Mr. Mansfield went to the B. P. Learned Mission and to the post of probation officer, and in both positions he has served with the honor that brings the stripes of long and faithful service. Last evening Judge Alfred Coit of the Learned Mission presidency arranged to have some 50 friends attend a complimentary dinner for Mr. Mansfield at the Mohican hotel. There they and he had a splendid feast and an enjoyable few hours. Judge Coit kept things moving after the feast had been served. He called on various citizens to talk to the assembled party and all responded most cheerfully, for they could honestly praise the services rendered by Mr. Mansfield in every capacity. The city government was represented by Mayor Twomey, City Manager Holt and Councilor William C. Fox. John McGarry, deputy judge of the police court, represented that tribunal in which Mr. Mansfield has served long as probation officer. C. Hadlai Hull was there to represent the Boy Scouts. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee represented the federated churches and Rev. C. F. Spalding the Learned Mission. Ernest E. Rogers was the representative of the First Baptist church in which Mr. Mansfield is deacon. Morris Lubchansky was the representative of the chamber of commerce. These gentlemen, as they were called on spoke most earnestly in praise of the long service in the years Mr. Mansfield has devoted to the welfare of the city and its people. Rev. J. R. Danforth in a felicitous speech presented Mr. Mansfield a purse of $25 in gold donated by friends. Mr. Mansfield expressed appreciation of the praise and generosity of his friends and acknowledged the many kindnesses and the cordial support given him in the years of service. He mentioned by name some two score friends who had been particularly helpful to him and heartily thanked them for their aid.

Fishers Island Farms, Inc., is seeking to obtain the deepening of the channel to West harbor and at the meeting of the New London city council Monday night, City Manager William A. Holt will introduce a resolution requesting the federal government to arrange for work which, if accomplished, will increase the depth of the channel. The Fishers Island Farms, Inc., will also request the government to deepen the channel, which, it is contended, is necessary because of the constantly increasing marine traffic entering the channel, especially during the summer months when cottages and other on the island have their boats brought there for the season.

REFORMATORY SENTENCE FOR YOUTHFUL BURGLAR

Charles Jordan, 18, whose home is in the East Great Plain section, who was bound over to the criminal superior court from the Norwich city court Friday morning, was soon thereafter presented before Judge C. L. Avery in a session of the superior court here Friday and was sentenced to the Connecticut state reformatory at Cheshire. There was a burglary charge against him for breaking into the garage of Eli Jacobson. He was brought into the superior court on a bench warrant.

His companion in crime, a boy 15 years old when he was arrested, but who reached his 16th birthday Friday, has already been committed to the Connecticut state school for boys at Meriden. He was committed from the city court.

The two were responsible for several minor breaks in the city recently and were found to be in possession of a loaded revolver.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

On behalf of the lodge Mrs. Mary Green, district deputy president, presented the retiring noble grand, Mrs. Mary Dow, a past noble grand's jewel. Visitors were present from Willimantic, New London, and Groton.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham council, No. 14, held its regular meeting in the Eagles' hall, Wednesday, with Councilor Jerry Angell presiding.

Degree Master Elmore Leseman made a very favorable report on the progress of the degree team and promises a good showing very soon.

A delegation is to go to New London Saturday to take part in the sublime degree, where there will be plenty of action as usual.

The meeting was closed in regular form at 9:15, after which the members played pinochle.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

The regular meeting of Loyal Liberty lodge, No. 7, was held Thursday evening in Baltic with a good attendance. Four candidates were initiated by Noble Grand Nancy Harrison and officers. The new officers for the coming six months were installed by District Deputy Nellie Ince and Past Prov. Grand Lady Rachel O'Brien, of New London. The officers installed were: Noble grand, Florry Dudley; vice grand, Lillian Keogh; elec't secretary, Annie Hiebler; warden, Ada Firth; chaplain, Lillian Swanson; inside guard, Mrs. Beel. Among the visitors were P. G. L. Sophia Cooper and P. C. S. Wooley. The Plainfield and Norwich lodges were well represented. After the meeting supper was served with a menu that included roast pork, dressing, creamed potatoes, green peas, rolls and cake. District officers table was tastefully decorated with the lodge colors and candles. Maude Robinson, Lillian Swanson, Emma Orme, Elizabeth Hartley, Annie Adams, Nancy Harrison and Florry Dudley, chairman, were in charge of the supper.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA

Lady Buckingham council, No. 14, met in regular session on Thursday evening with Councilor Arline Freise in the chair. The council accepted invitation to Liberty council, Noank, Wednesday evening. Buckingham council will take its candidates to have them initiated. A large number have planned to go. The next meeting will start at 7:15 as there will be a whist and pinochle. The members who do not attend meeting, will surely be interested in something new that Sister Griner has for arousing drowsy members. So come out and have a good time, is the advice to members.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

A special bus for Norwich grange carried 29 passengers to Hartford on Tuesday for the annual meeting of the State grange, many taking the sixth degree. Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Calkins, Ralph Marsh, Leonard Staubley Sr., Mrs. Dwight Underwood, Miss Bernice Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Colt, Mrs. Susan Lillibridge, Clarence Lillibridge, Charles Lillibridge, Thurston Lillibridge, Rose Breckenbridge, Mrs. Christine Hommell, Mr. and Mrs. Olsen, Beulah Rogers, Mrs. Eva Jahn, Mrs. Edna Browning, Marion Gibbs, with nine others.

The weather man did not favor the trip with very fine weather, but all enjoyed themselves and returned O. K. at an early hour in the morning.

V. F. W. AUXILIARY

The semi-monthly business meeting of R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, No. 594, was held at the V. F. W. post rooms on Monday evening, with the president, Mrs. Lena Maynard, in the chair.

Two petitions for membership were received and acted upon.

A communication was received from County President Mrs. Rosamond Jacques, stating that there would be a meeting of the 4th district, county council, department of Connecticut, on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 19, at 2:30, at the V. F. W. post rooms, Norwich. At this meeting nomination and election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. Refreshments will be served by R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, following the business session. A report was made on the Christmas tree party held at the home of Past President Mrs. Agnes Peloquin.

The Christmas basket committee, Mrs. Clara Holmes, chairlady, made a very satisfactory report.

The next meeting of the auxiliary will be a social one, to be held on Monday evening, Jan. 27. There will be a card party and refreshments. Mrs. Mary Hull will be chairman.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

The annual banquet and meeting of the Foresters club of Norwich Inc., was held on Thursday evening at a Broadway dining room. Covers were laid for 30 and the following appetizing menu was served:

Fruit Cocktail
Tomato Bisque
Roast Turkey with Dressing
Cranberry Sauce
Celery Olives
Vegetable Salad
Apple, Pumpkin and Mince Pies
Coffee Cigars

At the conclusion of the banquet the meeting was called to order by President H. A. Congdon. All reports showed a successful year. Plans were laid for the acquiring of a Foresters' temple and the incoming house committee was instructed to begin the preliminary work relative to this.

Several improvements are to be made in the present club rooms.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Henry A. Congdon; vice president, William H. Ryan; secretary-treasurer, M. J. Duggans; trustee, (3 years), Daniel Welton.

Both a ladies' night and stag night are to be held in the near future.

LADIES' AUXILIARY A. O. H.

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, president of Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H., No. 54, officiated at the regular semi-monthly meeting held Wednesday evening. Miss Nellie McCarthy, chairman of the recent whist and pinochle, made pleasing returns and Miss Catherine Sullivan was appointed chairman of the next to be held soon.

A special communication from Mrs. Mary Martin Lilk, national president, was read by the secretary. In this she congratulated the auxiliary at large for their wonderful achievement in the past, the most outstanding of which was the monument to the "Nuns of the Battlefield" and the national shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, erected at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars.

The president announced that preliminary plans are under way for the annual United Hibernian St. Patrick's night dance.

Mrs. Beatrice Bowe was initiated into the auxiliary and it is expected that the coming year will see a great increase in membership.

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, also chairman of auditing committee, Miss Catherine Twomey, financial secretary, Miss Margaret Dwyer, treasurer, read their respective quarterly reports which showed a very satisfactory addition to the treasury for the past three months.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Many councils of the Knights of Columbus throughout the state are planning on exemplifications of the third degree within the next two months. Sunday, January 19th, District Deputy Edward G. McKay of Norwich will be in charge of a large class, under the auspices of White Cross council. District Deputy McKay will be assisted by Deputy George P. McKenna of Mystic and William J. Mulligan.

MURDEROUS BANDITS HAVE BEEN DRIVEN INTO SWAMP

Three Men Who Shot Two Jacksonville Detectives Are Believed to be Surrounded in Swamp Near Macon, Ga.—Sawed Off Shotgun, a Hat and a Gasoline Pump Were Found in an Auto That They Had Abandoned—The Desperadoes, in Their Flight From Florida, Are Said to Have Fired Five Times At the Sheriff of Tallahassee—Also Fired on Police at Monticello—The Trio Are Believed to be the Convicts That Escaped From Wethersfield.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Three bandits who shot two Jacksonville detectives, one fatally Thursday night, were believed to have been driven into a swamp near this city early this morning after the chase through the residential section. Police surrounded the swamps.

The trio abandoned an automobile that was stolen last night from a Quitman, Ga. banker, when it bogged in a swamp. A Macon police car was close behind and when it reached the abandoned automobile the officers found a sawed-off shotgun, a hat and a gasoline pump crank.

The men were sighted as they were coming into Macon, traveling at high speed. The police car, traveling in the opposite direction, turned around and for an hour kept the automobile in sight.

The whole police force was put on the case and the swamps and outlying districts into which the suspects may have gone were searched thoroughly. No trace of them was found but the hunt was not abandoned.

Chief of Police Ben T. Watkins telephone Quitman officers of the abandoned car and it was found to be the property of a banker named Stubbs in that city.

The three men are said to have fired five times at the sheriff at Tallahassee, Fla., and to have fired on police at Monticello, Fla. They are said to have used several stolen automobiles in their flight from Florida, abandoning a high priced car stolen at Madison, Fla., when they reached Quitman and getting away in a truck, which was abandoned just outside that city. The men, however, returned to Quitman during last night and got a coupe in which they drove to Macon.

Officers here believed the three men were Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, escaped Connecticut convicts, and a companion believed by Jacksonville police to be Leo Landry, who broke prison with them. That trio shot Detective W. D. Smith fatally and seriously wounded Detective Willie Jones when the Jacksonville officers sought to question them in connection with a series of holdups last week. Lalone and Moulthrope were identified by means of police circulars.

Officers called for the dogs from the state prison farm to put on the trail tonight when they received a report that a man believed to have been of the suspected trio had ventured out of the swamp at a small store and purchased food. The man asked for the Sunday newspapers.

JACKSONVILLE POLICEMEN TO PARTICIPATE IN HUNT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A squad of Jacksonville policemen was ordered to leave tonight for Macon, Ga., to assist in the hunt in swamps near the Georgia city for three men believed to be the trio of bandits who shot two detectives here Thursday night.

An automobile containing five picked policemen noted for their marksmanship, left immediately after Mayor John T. Alsop, Jr., had conferred with police officials.

From descriptions received here from Macon police, officers expressed the belief that the trio was the group of escaped Connecticut convicts who staged several holdups in Florida before shooting the two officers, one of them fatally.

Detective W. D. Smith, died of wounds received when he and Detective Willie Jones sought to question the trio. Jones is recovering from his wounds.

Rewards for the capture of the three bandits, dead or alive, were increased to $500 tonight.

YOUNG REPARATIONS PLAN WILL BE ADOPTED TODAY

THE HAGUE, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Young plan for reparations payments by Germany will be adopted tomorrow in a formal session of the second Hague conference. Eleventh hour difficulties that had seemed likely to prolong negotiations had virtually all been solved tonight.

The Italians said today that they had no intention of preventing a final agreement answering some reports yesterday that they were determined not to sign the protocol until the eastern reparations question was entirely cleared up. The Portuguese, who had made it known they would not accept the text of the protocol as submitted, announced that with slight changes in language they were ready to sign.

The Hungarians, whose reparations bill was one of the most difficult to fix, agreed to pay 12,000,000 gold crowns annually to their creditors after 1943, instead of the 10,000,000 they had held out for.

The other eastern reparations debtors, Austria and Bulgaria, with their creditors and the big powers have fixed up a scheme of pools to which all will contribute that made possible a solutio nof the eastern reparations muddle.

BROPHY HELD WITHOUT BONDS; CASE CONTINUED TILL JAN. 23

BRISTOL, Jan. 19.—(AP)—John Brophy, 19, and Henry Schrager, 22, two of the six men arrested in connection with the slaying last week of Patrolman James McNamee, were arraigned in a special session of the city court tonight immediately after being brought here from Waterbury where they had been under arrest since Friday. Their cases were continued until January 23.

Brophy, charged with homicide, was held without bonds and was taken to the Hartford county jail. Schrager was held in $25,000 bonds on a technical charge of breach of peace and was also taken to the county jail in default of bond.

CHENEY AWARD FOR HERO OF THE ARMY AIR CORPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Stepping into flames to save the life of a comrade while wearing clothes saturated with gasoline has won for Lieutenant William A. Matheny of the army air corps the Cheney award, which is given annually to the flying officer performing the outstanding humanitarian act of valor and self-sacrifice.

Matheny, whose home is in Carrington, North Dakota, was the unanimous choice for 1929 of the awarding board. The prize carries with it $500 as well as an engraved bronze plaque.

AUTO SKIDDED AND CRASHEH INTO BARN

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Two persons milking cows in a barn today were interrupted in their task by the noisy intrusion of an automobile, which crashed into the structure after skidding on the highway.

John K. Powers, 29, of Morris Cove, driver of the machine, received a fractured leg and scalp laceration and was taken to the Middlesex hospital. His condition was reported tonight as not serious.

The machine, which was wrecked during its journey into the barn, narrowly missed Mrs. Joseph Scirpo and her son, the milkers.

DRYS WILLING FOR TEST VOTE ON 18TH AMENDMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Aroused by the fury of the wet assault, congressional drys are mobilizing their majority to thrash out the whole prohibition issue at this session.

The prohibitionists have decided to press the administration program for bolstering the dry law and to vote for the first time on proposals to kill the eighteenth amendment. They showed their strength in the house yesterday in approving the annual $15,000,000 dry fund.

House committees will begin work this week on the first of the many recommendations for strengthening the dry act submitted to congress by President Hoover and his law enforcement commission. House leaders have promised a clear track for consideration of these measures.

In the senate, the drys are ready to accept the challenge of Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but the senate is busy on the tariff now and will be until some time next month, and this discussion will have to wait until then.

FATAL FEUD OUTCOME OF CHILDISH QUARREL

CLOVIS, N. M., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A feud which started with a childish quarrel cost the lives of G. C. Bohannan, 71, and his youngest son, Carl, 18, and today V. Tate, county auctioneer, was hidden in a New Mexico jail until tense feeling here subsides.

The two men shot to death yesterday in a street fight, climaxing the ten-year-old Tate-Bohannan feud.

Coroner's juries today at separate inquests returned verdicts that Bohannan and his son met their deaths from bullet wounds inflicted from a pistol in the hands of Tate. The district attorney's office announced that first degree murder charges had been prepared for filing against Tate.

Due to intense feeling in Curry county, officers took Tate to a jail in an adjoining county and today they refused to disclose his whereabouts.

The Tate-Bohannan feud dates back to a childish quarrel during which a young Tate was struck on the head with a hammer in the hands of a Bohannan. The Bohannan boy was arrested, tried, and convicted. He was given a six months suspended sentence.

DORAN'S VIEWS ON KILLING OF PROHIBITION AGENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today that "the recent inflamatory attacks upon our personnel were largely" responsible for the killing of two prohibition agents in Florida yesterday in a raid upon the home of a suspected bootlegger.

Expressing regret over the slaying of F. R. Patterson and Robert K. Moncure at West Palm Beach, the commissioner laid the responsibility for the shooting upon recent attacks upon the enforcement squad, "which leads weak minded criminals to attack honest and efficient officers acting in the performance of their duties."

THERMOMETERS 10 ABOVE ZERO IN NEW YORK SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Winter tightened its grope on New York again today and established a season's record. Official thermometers registered 10 degrees above zero at 7:30 a. m. The mercury rose a trifle later in the day but never got above 18.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Alita Guerra De La Sota, niece of the Argentine ambassador at Rome, was said by hospital authorities yesterday to have a good chance to recover from bullet wounds inflicted by her husband. After shooting his wife, De La Sota turned his pistol on himself and died later in a hospital.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Officials of Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux Air lines tonight confirmed reports that one of its passenger planes, returning here from Agua Caliente, Mexico, had crashed north of Oceanside, Calif., killing its 16 occupants.

The T. A. T.-Maddux plane reported down in flames eight miles south of San Clemente at 6:30 o'clock this evening left Agua Caliente, Mexico, at 5:50 p. m. with the following passengers:

Information received at the line's airport here was that the plane had burst into flames as it made a forced landing, burning the 14 passengers and two pilots. It was reported that the giant air liner ploughed through the earth for a hundred yards in attempting the landing.

Reports stated that some of the bodies were not burned beyond recognition, but that all were scorched and badly mangled.

Reports of the crash sent police and hospital ambulances speeding toward the indefinitely located scene of the crash from San Clemente, Santa Ana, Laguna Beach, and Oceanside.

INVESTIGATING KILLING OF PROHIBITION AGENTS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Federal prohibition officials today pressed forward their investigation into the slaying of two prohibition agents last night during an attempt to search the residence of Geo. W. Moore, alleged bootlegger.

Robert E. Tuttle, of Savannah, prohibition administrator for the ninth district arrived to take personal charge of the inquiry. Tuttle declared the slain agents, Robert K. Moncure and F. R. Patterson, had been killed while engaged in the legal performance of their duties. He said he would turn over the evidence to the state courts and ask that Moore be prosecuted for murder.

Meanwhile, Moore, who was arrested at his home shortly after the shootings, maintained silence in his cell at th ecounty jail. No formal charges have been placed against him, pending further inquiry, but the federal officials charge he shot the agents when they tried to raid the residence with search warrants issued by United Sattes Commissioner Earnet.

Four men were in the raiding party, but two escaped unharmed to summon aid.

HIGHER TEMPERATURES IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The middle west retained aspects of a glacial epoch today although higher temperatures brought temporary relief to northern states while causing renewed apprehension to flood menaced districts in the south.

Optimism attendant upon the thermometer's climb was cut short by the government forecaster's prediction of a cold wave sweeping eastward from the Rocky Mountains. Colder weather was promised the west and central portions of the north central states tomorrow and a general continuation of frigid conditions through most of the week. The return of extreme cold, however, was regarded unlikely.

In the flood regions of Missouri, Indiana, Illinois and Arkansas warmer skies and threat of snow flurries were looked upon as danger signals.

THOMAS E. CAHILL HURT WHEN HIS AUTO SKIDDED

CHESHIRE, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Thomas E. Cahill, New Haven democratic registrar of voters and real estate dealer, was seriously injured here today when his automobile skidded on the icy pavement into a tree.

Cahill was accompanied by three sisters, who escaped with minor injuries. He was taken to Grace hospital, New Haven, where his condition was reported as fair tonight.

QUEERETARO, Mex., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A funeral party here was thrown into panic when Jose Lozano "came to life," broke from his coffin and dashed out of the cemetery as he was about to be buried. His friends scattered in all directions, many stumbling over tombstones in their haste.

Lozano had suffered a cataleptic spell and had been pronounced dead.

CONFESSED SLAYING OF PENN. HIGHWAY PATROLMAN

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Walter Glenn Dague today confessed, police said, that he, Mrs. Irene Schroeder, of Benwood, W. Va., and "another man," were involved in the slaying of one Pennsylvania state highway patrolman and the wounding of another near Castle, Pa., on December 27.

FIGHTING ALONG THE TIENTSIEN-PUKOW RAILWAY

NANKING, China, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Fighting has broken out on Tientsien-Pukow railway, where government forces are reported to have taken the offensive, and to be advancing from Pukow to Pengpu. Pengpu is the headquarters of the rebel General Shih Yu-Shan, many wounded have begun arriving in Nanking.

Paraguayan Troops Attacked By Bolivians

Paraguan Soldier Was Killed in the Engagement—Report Made By Paraguayan Legation.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Paraguayan legation announced today that Bolivian troops had attacked a Paraguayan detachment and that one of the latter soldiers was killed in action.

The engagement was said to have taken place at Isla Pol in the vicinity of Puerto Casado, which is about 200 miles north of Asuncion on the Paraguay river. It is on the western bank of the river in the general section known as Chaco Boreal to which claim is laid by both Bolivia and Paraguay.

The legation stated at the same time that Bolivian forces on that frontier had been displaying great activities during the last few days.

The legation stated it had received only a brief announcement of the clash from Asuncion. Bolivian Minister Jose Escalier now is in La Paz and attaches of his legation here said they had received no information of the reported incident.

Isla Pol is a small island near the outpost of Puerto Casado which is situated on the Paraguay river 250 miles northwest of Asuncion. It is only 20 miles from the Brazilian frontier and is one of the most advanced of the Paraguayan posts. Puerto Casado is a considerable distance from Forts Van Guardia and Boqueron where clashes occurred in December, 1928, which occasioned mediation of other American nations.

The old dispute over the Chaco Boreal region which goes back to the days of the early Spanish grant had recently seemed to be nearing a peaceful settlement.

Following a series of clashes between armed forces of both countries at border points in the wilds in December, 1928, efforts were made by the Pan-American union to induce both Paraguay and Bolivia to submit their claims to arbitration. A commission was appointed with headquarters in Washington to take up the negotiations.

The findings of this commission were accepted in principle by both Bolivia and Paraguay and called in the main for restoration of the status quo ante with restored diplomatic relations pending actual settlement of the territorial dispute.

MEDALS FOR ELECTRIC TRANSPORTATION LINES

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Figures showing that only one person in every 390,000,000 carried last year on electric transportation lines, was fatally injured were presented today by the United States Electric Railway association in awarding medals for safety and health promotion records.

Three Anthony N. Brady Memorial medals were awarded. The gold medal went to the Boston Elevated railways; the silver medal to the Tampa (Fla.) Electric company, and the bronze medal to the Tidewater Power company, of Wilmington, N. C. Honorable mention was given the Louisville (Ky.) Railway company, and the El Paso (Tex.) company.

The American Museum of Safety sponsored the contest.

SHERIFF AND DEPUTIES WERE CAUGHT IN RAIDS

GALVESTON, Texas, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Sheriff H. W. Collins of Fort Bend county and four of his deputies tomorrow will be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Brantley Harris here on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. The sheriff today was at liberty under $10,000 bond arranged after 20 federal officers swooped down on 11 alleged resorts in a street known as "Mud Alley" at Richmond, Texas, near here.

Seventeen persons including the sheriff, his deputies and the county jailer were arrested.

Prohibition agents from all parts of Texas, immigration officials and agents of the department of justice participated in the raids.

CORTLAND, N. Y., Jan. 19.—(AP)—George Graves, Jr., 26, of Hartford, Conn., an instructor in the English department at Syracuse university, was killed instantly, and Percival Haskell, 29, an instructor in the same department, was injured near here early today, when their automobile skidded while rounding a curve, struck a fence and overturned.

Graves had been an instructor at Syracuse two years. He was a graduate of the University of Vermont. Haskell is a graduate of Oberlin college.

193[illegible]imates For [illegible]. $410,000,000

In the $10,000 000 000 Estimmate For Construction Projects and Maintenance This Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A new peace-time record for construction and maintenance on public work and by public utilities is expected during the present year by Secretary Lamont on the basis of reports indicating that $7,000,000,000 will be spent in these fields.

This total does not include expenditures for residences, commercial and industrial structures and other private operations which last year amounted to more than $3,000,000,000 and which, if continued at the same pace, would bring the outlay for 1930 to more than $10,000,000,000.

Complete returns to the department of commerce from the governors of 26 states, combined with estimates based on partial returns from the remaining states, indicate expenditures for public works, including federal construction, of $3,325,000,000 during the year.

Programs for betterments to plants and equipment announced by public utilities, railroads and telegraph companies, represented expenditures of approximately $3,250,000,000.

Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the construction division of the department, also reported to the secretary that approximately $410,000,000 will be spent for the maintenance of existing plants and equipment by the electric, gas and street railway companies alone.

Class A railroads are expected to spend $1,050,000,000 of the utilities' construction total; electric, gas and street railway companies, $1,400,000,000; the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., $700,000,000; and independent telephone and telegraph companies, short line railways and privately owned waterworks, $100,000,000.

New construction announced by the 26 states was divided as follows:

Arkansas, $35,178,650; California, $20,230,122; Connecticut, $40,000,000; Delaware, $8,000,000; Florida, $19,432,266; Idaho, $3,100,000; Kansas, $46,104,561; Maine, $18,000,000; Massachusetts, $105,400,000; Missouri, $87,415,759; Montana, $11,500,000; Nebraska, $32,000,000; New Hampshire, $6,750,000; New Mexico, $7,000,000; New York, $475,275,442; North Carolina, $36,000,000; North Dakota, $7,000,000; Ohio, $238,255,000; Oregon, $29,500,000; South Carolina, $33,000,000; Texas, $150,000,000; Virginia, $41,000,000; Washington, $27,000,000; West Virginia, $23,000,000; Wisconsin, $61,430,000; Wyoming, $5,090,000.

THIS WILL BE 55TH WEEK OF TARIFF CONTROVERSY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The tariff controversy on Capitol hill will enter its fifty-fifth week tomorrow with senate republican leaders hopeful that only four more will be required to send the Hawley-Smoot measure back to the house for settlement of differences.

Few major disputes lay in the path of the senate before final passage, and one of these probably will be settled this week when the sundries schedule is reached. In that section, described as the "catch-all" of thousands of miscellaneous commodities, are proposals to levy duties on hides, leather and shoes, all now on the free list.

Debate of this issue in the past has developed the question whether the cattle raisers would receive any benefit from a hide duty and if so whether this would not be offset by higher prices that many follow an import tax on shoes.

WOULD PUNISH HIGH BROWS AS DRY LAW EXAMPLES

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A defense of his proposed law to make the buyer of liquor subject to the same penalty as the seller was made by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas in an address here today.

"We need to make but few examples of the high brows who think they are above the law which governs humbler folk in order to smash the bottom out of the bootleg market and reduce the illegal liquor traffic to the disappearing point," the Texan asserted.

WOULD HAVE RAILROADS CATER TO LONG SKIRTS

BEACON, N. Y., Jan. 19—(AP)—Finding that the return of long skirts has made it difficult for them to get on and off trains, club women of Newburgh, N. Y., have decided to ask the New York Central railroad for relief.

The civic committee of the Ossoli club has arranged to present a petition through the chamber of commerce requesting that on trains which stop at Beacon box-steps be carried or some means found to shorten the distance between the train steps and the station platform.

SOVIET RUSSIA TAKES FARMS FROM PEASANTS; ENDS PRIVATE OWNERSHIP

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—(AP)—While the rest of the world is absorbed with the London disarmament conference, or with important domestic political matters, soviet Russia is trying out a stupendous social and economic experiment which is described by many as the boldest and most drastic ever witnessed in the whole history of man.

To achieve pure communism and remove the last vestiges of private ownership, the soviet authorities have almost overnight converted millions of small peasant farms into great state and collective farms, in which the former property of the individual peasant becomes basic capital, and the property of the entire agricultural commune. The peasant himself becomes a mere worker for the common good.

Out of Russia's 120 odd million peasants, several million have already joined in this movement toward pure socialism. Another four million, however, who are classed as "kulaks," which in Russia means a peasant who possesses greater wealth than his neighbors, have openly rebelled or passively resisted the sequestration of their property and communization at their farms. Some have deliberately burned their homes, killed their cattle and destroyed their grain to prevent its falling into the hands of the government.

Determined at any cost to end this and all other opposition to conversion of the small peasant holdings into great collective farms, the government has decreed that these kulaks must be exterminated economically.

Even if the kulaks are willing to give up their farms and other property, they are not eligible for membership in the collective farms, because the authorities believe they will never genuinely abandon their so-called kulak idology and their strong yearning for private ownership.

Deprived not only of their homesteads, cattle and horses, but in many cases, of their money, these kulaks will be given land in districts far from their former homes, and left to work out their own precarious existence in areas where they can do no harm to the government's agricultural program.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK FOR THE LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE

French Delegation on the Eve of Opening Session Promised Newspaper Men "To give Something Sensational Later"—Statement Followed a Long Interchange of Views With U. S. Secretary of State Stimson—Earlier in the Day Secretary Stimson Held a Satisfactory Conference With Secretary Grandi, the Chief Italian Envoy.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Premier Andre Tardieu and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, the chiefs of the French delegation to the five-power naval conference which opens Tuesday, today in interviews with newspapermen pledged themselves "to give you something sensational later."

This statement followed a long interchange of views with United States Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson at the French embassy. Premier Tardieu had arrived in London only this morning and Mr. Stimson motored in from his country home to complete his round-robin of talks with the delegations to the conference by seeing the French leaders.

M. Tardieu described his conversation with the secretary of state as engendering a very happy atmosphere for the beginning of the five-power negotiations. He warned, however, that the conference tasks were only beginning and that too much should not be expected by the public.

M. Briand was in his characteristic jovial mood and he interjected that the atmosphere as the hour of convening approaches is one of "confidence and cordiality."

The attitude of the Frenchmen was the more pleasing to the other delegations because it had been felt that France was a bit sensitive toward the close Anglo-American viewpoint on naval matters and also was somewhat perturbed by failure to reach a preliminary agreement with Italy over naval needs before the conference opens.

Mr. Stimson earlier in the day had held a highly satisfactory conference with Foreign Secretary Dino Grandi, the chief Italian envoy. He entertained Signor Grandi, his wife and a number of others of the Italian delegation at his temporary country home and afterward settled down to nearly two hours of conversation before returning to London.

Both the American and the Italian delegates were so pleased with their meeting that they agreed to disclose the nature of their conversation. Secretary Stimson said that it had been frank and satisfactory to the highest degree and had covered all of the conference questions from procedure to the problems confronting the five great sea powers of the world.

These two meetings enabled Mr. Stimson to make the important declaration to the continental envoys that no naval or political bloc, alliance or fixed understanding exists between the United States and Great Britain as a preliminary to the conference in which all are to be engaged.

It was recalled that the American delegation exchanged preliminary views with the Japanese delegation in Washington, so that no further conferences have been necessary between them here. Mr. Stinfson held lengthy conversations with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald soon after reaching oLndon and thus has completed his background for the conference.

DEPUTY WARDEN AT STATE PRISON RESIGNS

HARTFORD, Jan. 19.—(AP)—George Patterson, deputy warden at the state prison, resigned Saturday night, it was learned today. While no official statement was forthcoming, it was learned from an authoritative source that the resignation of the deputy warden was a consequence of the escape of Leo Landry, Watson Moulthrope and Roland G. Lalone from the prison, Jan. 4. Warden Reed at once appointed Burton J. Caswell, assistant deputy warden, as deputy warden, and promoted Elliott C. Chase to be assistant deputy warden.

Coincident with the news of changes in the prison administration came reports that Wethersfield faced a serious outbreak among the convicts there last August. According to these reports, word was received by prison officials about 10 p. m., on the night of Aug. 10 or 11, that an outbreak had been planned for the following morning. The day force of guards was mobilized at once, machine guns were mounted, tear gas bombs issued, and the guard room barricaded. Deputy Warden Patterson, it was reported, issued orders to the guards to shoot to kill. H. K. W. Scott, then warden, left his sick-bed next day to take charge of the threatening situation.

LIFE LOST WHEN AUTO PLUNGED INTO RIVER

WATERBURY, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Believed to have been returning from a visit to the Cheshire reformatory, where his son, Roy, was sentenced Tuesday in criminal superior court here on a charge of breaking and entering a Waterbury store, Edward Choquette, 49, of this city, lost his life tonight when his automobile skidded and plunged into Ten Mile river, at Milldale junction. The car, a light sedan, crashed through a fence and tumbled down a 20-foot embankment.

Four men broke through the top of the machine and pulled Choquette's body out. They worked for nearly three hours under the direction of Dr. Charles N. Dennison, Cheshire medical examiner, but gave up when the physician was convinced the task of resuscitation was futile. The body was later removed to a Cheshire undertaking establishment.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF CONNECTICUT Y. M. C. A.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A "fellowship breakfast" and a luncheon meeting today, brought to a close the two-day annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian associations, of Connecticut.

E. T. Colton, of New York, of the National Y. M. C. A. council, told 500 delegates at the breakfast that the Y. M. C. A. had been credited with being one of the four agencies which had saved the central European states from "the germ of communism" and that official communist documents have described the association as the greatest obstacle to the spread of communistic propaganda among the youth of China.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Three men were killed and two probably fatally injured late today when a cabin monoplane dived into Lake Worth here.

CHICAGO IS EXPERIENCING FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—As its major tax-spending bodies enter 1930 with a combined deficit estimated at from $17,000,000 to $30,000,000, Cook county finds itself struggling with the three-fold problem of finding money for present needs, clearing away its accumulated troubles, and finding insurance against recurrence of its present dilemma.

All factions are agreed that the plight of the city, county and school board is serious.

Forced to slash its budget to meet a deficit estimated at $4,500,000, the county placed its appropriations on a 10-months basis and has been unable to sell $7,000,000 in tax anticipation warrants to meet payrolls because banks doubt the validity of the 10-month plan. About 2,000 county employes have already missed their first January checks.

City employes—19,000 of them—are working without pay because the mayor and city council have not agreed on a budget and the city can borrow no more until the budget is passed. Various officials have figured the city deficit at from $6,000,000 to $13,000,000, but Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' advisory committee, stated Saturday the total would exceed $24,000,000 because of expenditures exceeding income every year from 1923 to 1928 inclusive, excepting 1925. Moreover, according to Mr. Strawn, tax anticipation warrants already issued will equal or exceed anticipated revenue from 1928 and 1929 taxes, leaving nothing to wipe off the shortage.

President Caldwell of the board of education predicts the schools will close for a half-million pupils in two months. Already 3,300 school employes are unpaid for January and 13,000 teachers face a probable payless payday Jan. 24. A $7,000,000 deficit faces the board and its limit of borrowing power has been reached.

EIGHT MINERS WERE KILLED BY EXPLOSION

BECKLEY, W. Va., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Eight miners were killed and four others injured, one probably fatally in an explosion early today in the number 1 mine of the Lillybrook Coal company at Lillybrook, ten miles from Beckley.

The bodies of the victims, six Negroes and two white men, were recovered by rescue crews four hours after the blast, which J. B. Clifton, president of the company, described as local in character. All apparently had been killed instantly.

The miner most seriously injured, R. L. Meadows, was found lying beside the dead men, unconscious from burns about his entire body. The three other injured men walked unaided from the mine before rescue crews reached the entry in which the explosion occurred, a mile back in the hills.

13 ARMY PLANES HAVE ARRIVED NEAR SPOKANE

The planes, led by Major Ralph Royce, commander of the unit, left Grant Falls, Mont., at 10:40 a. m. today and flew by way of Missoula, Mont. Since last Monday they have been delayed at Great Falls by weather conditions.

Visibility, Major Royce said, was good except in isolated spots over the mountains and a tail wind drove the patrol along at high speed. The group flew the 140 miles from Missoula to the lake, 22 miles east of Spokane, in 40 minutes.

MEXICAN RAILWAY TROUBLE HAS BEEN SETTLED

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Mexican Railway Workers' alliance tonight announced settlement of the long-standing dispute with the Southern Pacific railway of Mexico. The federal board of conciliation and arbitration has notified the railway that it must sign a collective labor contract with the alliance within [illegible] days. The contract obliges the company to select its employes [illegible] from lists of names submitted by the alliance.

COUNCIL TO NAME TWO FOR FIRE DEPT. POSITIONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 19.—Two appointments to the fire department are expected to be made at the adjourned meeting of the common council to be held Monday night. The appointments, which in all probability will be on recommendation of Chairman Robert Mason of the fire committee will be of lieutenant and regular hoseman. The promotion of Lieutenant Charles Reynolds to the position of chief last Monday has left a vacancy in the former office and automatically caused a vacancy in the ranks of regular members. There are three official capacities in the department, chief, deputy chief, a position held by Michael J. English, and lieutenant. With the presence in the ranks of a regular electrician in the person of George W. Larkin, it is understood that the committee has been considering the appointment of a full-fledged mechanic for the care of the trucks and other mechanical equipment of the department, thus giving it the benefit of expert tradesmen within its own membership.

Another matter of considerable interest that is expected to be taken up for action is the continuance of permanent road construction on lower Main street. A resolution presented at the regular meeting by Alderman W. E. Webber provided that the same type of road constructed last year be continued to a point meeting the proposed new state highway layout, or as far as the annual appropriation of $10,000 would permit. This resolution was temporarily tabled awaiting a report on the extent of work possible under the appropriation, with relation to the proposed junction of the highway plans.

TWO HURT IN AUTO CRASH AT ASHFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 19.—Two men were hurt, one of them seriously, and the driver was arrested for reckless driving, in an accident in Ashford village on the Storrs-Phoenixville highway shortly after 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The injured were: Benjamin Perry, 15 Avenue A, Riverside, R. I., severe fracture of the pelvis, and Rocco Perry, 15 Hurley avenue, Pawtucket, R. I., lacerations on the face. James McCrudden of 24 Biltmore avenue, Providence, was notified to appear in the Ashford town court Saturday, January 25, to answer to a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested after an investigation of the accident by State Policeman E. W. Stevens of the Stafford Springs barracks.

The men, with O. J. Shure of 101 Orange street, Providence, were going from Hartford where they have been employed in the installation of a sprinkler system, to spend the week end at home. They were traveling in a new Ford coach, driven by McCrudden. At a point near the Orchard House filling station the machine left the slippery highway and plunged off the left embankment of the highway, colliding with an apple tree and turning over on its side after the right wheels had collapsed. One of the occupants was thrown out and another pinned in the machine. Benjamin and Rocco Perry were taken to St. Joseph's hospital in the ambulance. The latter was released after treatment by Dr. Fred M. Smith, but the former will remain a patient for some time. Dr. A. D. Marsh of Hampton, who had been summoned to the scene, ordered the removal of the man to the hospital.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Joseph J. Grimes.

Leaving from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonidas Demers, of 36 Temple street, the funeral of Mrs. Joseph J. Grimes was held Saturday morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. J. Papillon was the celebrant, Rev. H. C. Belec, deacon and Rev. E. A. Mathieu, sub-deacon. The choir rendered special music with Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau at the organ. Included in the large attendance of friends and relatives was a delegation of the auxiliary of James J. Shea post, No. 14, American Legion. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Papillon, assisted by Rev. Fathers Belec and Mathieu conducted a committal service. The bearers were Gilbert P. Flynn, Charles F. Beck, J. Hurley Keon, Jace Healy, Amos E. Barber and George W. Larkin. Arrangements were by Killourey Brothers.

Mrs. Adelaide O. Scoville.

The funeral of Mrs. Adelaide O. Scoville was held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with services at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton, of 489 Pleasant street. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiated and Mrs. Ruth Williams was heard in Beautiful Land of Somewhere and Abide With Me. Burial was in the family plot of the Willimantic cemetery where a prayer was read over the grave by Rev. Mr. Wheelock. The bearers were John E. Stoughton, Merton Flood, Edward Childs, Albert Rich, Arthur Cone and Irwin Stoughton. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Mrs. Bessie Pickell, most excellent chief of Puritan Temple, No. 3, Pythian Sisters, has made the following selection of committee chairmen and members for the ensuing year: Kitchen, Sarah Lincoln, chairman, Lattie Smith, Hattie Bowen, Jennie Anthony. Dining room: Ruth Anthony, chairman, Ellen Keith, Louise Williams, Minnie Wilson. Entertainment: Helen Johnstone, chairman, Bertha Rivers, Louise Walker. Whist: Helen Adams, chairman, Fannie Larkin, Catherine Higgins. Linen and silver: Olive Burnham, chairman, Lucy Blackmar. Sick and flowers: First ward, sick, Olive Holmes, flower, Mabel Dimock; second ward, sick, Sarah Lincoln, flower, Anna Palmer; third ward, sick, Florence Anthony, flower, Meda Adams; fourth ward, Jennie Anthony, flower, Mabel Higgins; Storrs, Eva Covell.

The position of third "trick" telegraph operator at the local station of the Nwe Haven railroad has been discontinued with the completion of arrangements to have railroad business from 10.30 p. m. to 6.30 a. m. handled at the Bridge street station. The third "trick" has been operated for many years. The operator affected by the change is Leslie MacLellan.

The position of starter at the local terminal of the New England Transportation company was discontinued Saturday morning. The position has been filled for the past year by William J. Meredith. Information regarding busses may be secured in the future at the ticket office of the railroad station.

Under a proposed new schedule to become effective January 24, a curtailment of the motor coach service of the New England Transportation company between Norwich and this city is planned. At present four daily round trips are made. The new schedule provides for two trips from Norwich, one at 9 a. m. and one at 5 p. m. and two from this city to Norwich, at 10.10 a. m. and 4.15 p. m. The change is advocated in view of the limited patronage.

There is much interest in an announcement that Rev. Harry S. McCready has accepted a call to be pastor of the Congregational church in Kingston, R. I., assuming the pastorate on April 1. Rev. Mr. McCready was pastor of the Congregational church here for seven years, succeeding Rev. Vernon W. Cooke on June 17, 1917. He soul can split th ykse nad later became pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church in Oakland, Calif., remaining for four years and then going to Portland, Me., where he is now pastor.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DRIVE TO START THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 19.—The annual membership campaign of the chamber of commerce will get under way at a gathering of workers to be held at the Nathan Hale hotel with a supper Monday evening. The campaign, which will be under the supervision of Executive Secretary John J. O'Rourke, will continue for one week and will have the support of the Merchants' bureau, Credit exchange, Rotary, Exchange and Lions clubs. A substantial increase in membership as well as a high percentage of renewals is anticipated. The way for the campaign has been paved through a wide mail circulation of a report of the chamber's activities during the year listing a score of worthy subjects, several of which have already been sponsored with success.

The annual installation of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War was held Friday evening, preceded with a banquet in the Nathan Hale hotel. The officers were installed by Mrs. Minnie Mathieu and staff.

The Pawtucket, R. I., Chamber of Commerce Glee club will appear in a concert early next month at the Baptist church, under the auspices of the Men's club of the church. Albert V. Caulfield, president.

The sentencing of five transients from police court Saturday on charges of intoxication, brought the registration at the county jail in Brooklyn to 72.

Two first and two second papers were granted at a naturalization session of the Windham county superior court held here Saturday afternoon in charge of Miss Marjorie Bradford of Putnam, assistant clerk of the court. A few applications for first papers were received by Miss Bradford.

Many are visiting Willimantic's Model home which opened for public inspection Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The building, as well as the temporary furnishings placed by local merchants, are receiving most favorable comment. A number of persons inquired into the possibilities of home-ownership under a plan set forth by the chamber of commerce. For the opening day the hostess organization was Violet Rebekah lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F., with the following hostesses: Mrs. Nettie S. Reynolds, noble grand; Mrs. Marion St. John, Mrs. Eldon Johnson, Mrs. Mabel Scribner, Mrs. Minnie Mathieu, Miss Sadie E. Curley, Mrs. Bernard Larkin and Mrs. Marion Shouse.

The hostess organization this afternoon and evening was the Catholic Welfare council with the following members receiving: Mrs. Joseph B. Riordan, president; Mrs. A. L. Gelinas, Mrs. John O'Neill, Mrs. E. F. Ottenheimer, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Smith, Mrs. M. J. Dennez, Mrs. Ruel M. Hyde and Mrs. James H. Hurley.

The model home will continue to be open daily until next week. The inspection hours are from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wellwood of South Coventry announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Raymond Lawler of Bloomfield.

Mrs. N. D. Webster is able to be about the house after a severe illness with pleurisy.

COLCHESTER

CORONER McKAY CONTINUES LINK HEARING TO JAN. 31

Commencing at 10 o'clock, Friday morning, an all-day inquest hearing was held in Grange hall before Coroner Edward G. McKay of Norwich, in connection with the case of the state versus Andrew Link of Willimantic, whose Pontiac car collided, Dec. 4, with a new Ford car owned by the S. N. E. T. Co., and operated by Henry R. ElBarra of 64 Sterling street, Hartford. The accident happened on the John Wade hill, two miles below Colchester center, on the Norwich turnpike. John E. Shea of Willimantic, who was riding in the car with Link, died a few days after the accident, as a result of his injuries. A large number of witnesses from Willimantic, Colchester and several surrounding towns were questioned during the day. However, it is understood that Coroner McKay still needs more information to complete his inquest and the hearing, which was to have been held Friday evening before Justice Brown of the local court, has been postponed to Jan. 31.

OBITUARY

Miss Allison R. Bailey

(Contributed)

Seldom have the residents of Colchester received such a shock as when, Saturday morning, news came of the death Friday evening at the New Haven hospital of Allison Rosamond, only daughter of Henry J. and Lavina Mason Bailey, of South Main street. It was thought best for her to undergo an operation and she never regained consciousness.

She was born Feb. 1, 1908 and lived all her life in this village. She was active in the church, the Grange, Wooster Star chapter, O. E. S., and the Where Next whist club. For two years past she had been an operator in the local telephone exchange, where her prompt and efficient service had been greatly appreciated by all patrons. She was a general favorite with her associates and her gentle manner and agreeable ways made her beloved by all. The youngest of her family, she is mourned by three brothers, Charles M., of New Britain, Harold H., and Jesse F., Bailey, of Colchester. Charles M. is with the Stanley works, Harold H., manager of the Redwing Feed & Grain Co., and Jesse F. is village delivery carrier. Her father, Henry J. Bailey, has been the only carrier to serve rural free delivery Route 1.

Following private funeral services to be conducted at New Haven, the body will be placed in the vault, to be removed to Colchester later.

The bereaved family has received expressions of heartfelt sympathy from the entire community.

UNION

LAND IN FOUR TOWNS TURNED OVER TO YALE

Prof. A. E. Moss and Extension Forester J. A. Gibbs of Connecticut Agricultural college, were in town this week. Prof. Moss confirmed the report that George H. Meyers, who has a summer home here, is turning his large acreage of land in Woodstock, Eastford, Ashford and Union to the use of the Yale corporation. Edward Cranbury, who holds a master's degree in forestry from Yale, and has been state forester in Louisiana, was appointed Jan. 1 to the position which has been held by Wallace Goodhall as manager of Mr. Meyers' real estate in these towns.

Miss Della M. Heck, Mrs. Nelson E. Horton and her little son, Donald, were recent guests of Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Coolidge in South Killingly.

Mrs. Sara W. Dimock, home demonstration agent, accompanied by Mrs. Brown of Mansfield, met with the Union Home Economics club at the town hall Tuesday, Jan. 14. The day, especially in the afternoon was very stormy, but an interesting and enjoyable meeting was held. Mrs. Dimock and Mrs. Brown gave demonstrations in cooking foods containing starches and sugar. The food thus prepared was used to supplement the customary covered dish dinner.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Lizzie A. Richards.

The body of Mrs. Lizzie A. Richards was buried in her family lot in Union Center cemetery Thursday afternoon, Jan. 16. Mrs. Richards was carried from her home at Union Center to the Johnson Memorial hospital at Stafford Springs, for care and treatment, about five years ago. She had remained there till her death, Monday, Jan. 13. Although her case had been hopeless from the first, and during the latter part of the time she became entirely helpless, as well as partially deaf and blind, she was contented and happy in the care and comfort she received at the hospital. She kept up her interest in her friends and associations to the last. She was the daughter of the late Edwin W. and Nancy D. Upham. Her husband, Willard Richards, died several years ago.

MRS. CHAS. R. NEWTON DIES AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Mary Bennett Newton, 50, died Friday evening at her home on East Main street after a brief illness. It was not generally known that Mrs. Newton was ill and her friends were surprised and shocked to learn of her death. She and her husband Charles R. Newton were preparing to go to Florida for the winter but on account of not feeling well she thought she would remain in Stafford Springs for a few days before starting on the southern trip. She was a daughter of Fayette and Hannah Harris Bennett and was born in Hope Valley, R. I., March 3d, 1879. Besides her husband she leaves her mother, Mrs. Hannah Bennett of Newtonville, Mass. Since coming to Stafford Springs Mrs. Newton has made many friends who deeply regret her death.

Miss Elizabeth Courtney, teacher in the local grammar school spent the week end at her home in Worcester.

John Perko of New York city was a week end guest of local relatives.

Louis St. Germain of Hartford was with his mother and father over Sunday.

The pool and billiard tournament of Stafford Business Men's club is being arranged. The committee in charge consists of Thomas Panciera, Dr. Earl Howard and Fred Howard.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Wilbur Fletcher

Mrs. Nettie Moore Fletcher, 68, wife of Wilbur Fletcher, died at her home in Orcuttville Friday after several days' illness. She was born in Stafford, August 7th, 1861, the daughter of Harvey and Phebe Moore and has made her home in this town practically all her life. She is survived by her husband, Wilbur Fletcher and two sons, Ernest of Hartford and Robert of Springfield, Mass., and by two daughters, Mrs. Leonard Moulton of Orcuttville and Mrs. Dorothy Hetten, of Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. John Introvigne have returned after spending a few days with friends and relatives in New York.

While Officer George Kealy was making his rounds about one o'clock Saturday morning he ran across Frank Parizeau who was noisy and intoxicated near the lunch cart on Main street. Parizeau would not listen to suggestions of the officer to go home so he was taken to the police station. In court later Judge Heald sentenced him to 20 days in Tolland jail.

Miss Nancy Fisk of Sutton, Mass., was a recent visitor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fisk.

The play, "Leaping Lena" is to be presented at the Congregational church in West Stafford. The cast comprises DeWitt Clappersburg, an auto tourist, Herbert Ward; Mrs. Clappersburg, Beatrice Converse; Willie, their son, Jerry Soukop; state trooper, Ernest Tetrault; Old Bob, Carlton Stebbins.

Miss Florence Nothnick, who is employed in Hartford spent the week end at home.

The second Congregational church located in West Stafford has elected the following officers and committees for the year: Deacons, Charles P. Bradway, Herbert A. Glazier; clerk, J. Henry Greaves; treasurer, Mrs. Hattie Dazell; church treasurer, H. A. Glazier; superintendent of Sunday school, H. A. Glazier; assistant superintendent, Allyn Dimock; church committee, Mrs. Marshall Bradway, Mrs. M. A. Gold, Mrs. Spencer Bradway, Mrs. LaVergne Dimock; trustees, W. D. Graves, C. P. Bradway, H. A. Glazier, Warren Pease and J. H. Greaves; auditors, LaVergne Dimock and Spencer Bradway; annual delegates, C. P. Bradway and H. A. Glazier; alternates, Mrs. Eva Chaffee, Mrs. H. C. Beebe; nominating committee, Mrs. Spencer Bradway, Rev. H. C. Beebe, Mrs. J. H. Greaves.

Traps Three Wildcats

Everett Burrill of Westford recently trapped three wildcats in the Ashford woods, the animals weighing about 20 pounds each.

Mrs. Georgiana Louden of Torrington has been spending a few days with borough relatives.

The new telephone system for the Stafford exchange went into effect very smoothly at two o'clock Friday afternoon. It is no longer necessary to turn the crank to call central in this exchange.

There is to be a meeting of Boy Scouts of Troop 1 Tuesday evening with Assistant Scoutmaster J. Kingsley Converse in charge.

DANIELSON

HOUSING CAMPAIGN IS EXPECTED TO GO OVER BIG

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 19.—The coming week end will bring the inauguration of the big drive in Danielson's housing campaign. It is going to start next Friday, Jan. 24, and continue until the end of the month. It promises big things, a few discordant notes notwithstanding.

It may be suggested at this time that the housing program referred to is the official one. It has the backing of the Danielson Building and Loan association and the chamber of commerce. It is a straight business proposition. The public is to be solicited to buy shares in the Building and Loan association on approximately the same basis that all other series of shares of this association have been offered since the association was formed nearly 15 years ago. No one is to be asked to make any gift or gifts. The public merely will be asked, even urged, to invest money on a business basis, with the assurance that the money will earn interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. The Building and Loan association never has failed to pay this rate in all the years of its existence.

Houses are urgently needed in Danielson. For one thing, not to mention various other reasons, having the new homes will keep a great many thousands of dollars now earned by mill workers who live in other towns but are employed here in circulation in this community. Observers recently have said—and they are non-residents—that Danielson has a real chance to grow. To grow it must have more homes. Of the 5,000 shares of the Building and Loan association that it is intended to place, J. W. Powdrell of Powdrell and Alexander, has said that he will guarantee the sale of a 1,000 shares. With that splendid ace in the hole the community may be expected to do its part.

OBITUARY

Joseph Porter

His numbers of friends here will learn with regret of the death at the week end of Joseph Porter, 60, who has conducted a filling station in Foster, R. I., at the very edge of the Connecticut-Rhode Island border, five miles east of here, for several years past. Mr. Porter has been in failing health for some time past, yet his death was unexpected. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and brought to his funeral home here. Mr. Porter was born in the north of Ireland, but had spent the greater part of his life in this country. Mrs. Porter died about two years ago. Mr. Porter leaves a sister, Mrs. E. L. Grantour, a resident of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Mrs. Bridget Simmons

A death Saturday, at Goodyear, was that of Mrs. Bridget Simmons, 70, a widow who has been a resident of the town of Killingly for many years. She was a native of Cork, Ireland, and immigrated to this country during her early years. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Abbie M. Smith, of Valley Falls, R. I., Mrs. Frederick W. Gordon of Norwich, and Mrs. Charles Donahue of Putnam.

Mrs. Mary Kurt

Mrs. Mary Kurt, 47, died Saturday at the home of relatives in East Killingly. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Reilly, and was born in Providence. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Martin T. Burns and brought to his undertaking rooms here. Mrs. Kurt leaves the following brothers and sisters: Bridget Crandall, Nellie Vurdy, Margaret Reilly and Philip O. Kelley.

A new station from overseas that Earl Bassett of Broad street has picked up on his short wave radio receiving set is at Huisen, Holland. This was direct reception, with no rebroadcasting. The reception, with head-sets, was amazingly clear and distinct. A listener could even hear the announcer breathe. This station, PHI, was coming in during the miserable weather conditions prevailing Saturday morning.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Isabelle Jordan

This afternoon, at the home in Goodyear, funeral services were held for Mrs. Isabelle Jordan, Rev. Charles A. Downs of that community officiating. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, Danielson. The bearers were: Harry Scott, Everett Scott, William Jackson and A. Dorion. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Lessons for the painting class of the Danielson Girls' club are to be resumed Monday evening, with an instructor from Providence in attendance. Last Friday evening a class in sewing and fancy work was started and is proving of special interest. The club, of which Mrs. Celinda Davis is president for 1930, has a membership drive planned, this to extend through two months. A whist and a dance are to be features of the nearby winter activities of the club.

The prospect is that drastic action must be taken to suppress chicken thieving in territory hereabouts. Raiding poultry coops has ceased to be a joke, if such a venture ever was. The poultry business has become a highly important one in eastern Windham county and especially in the town of Killingly and nearby areas. Men who have thousands of dollars invested in poultry plants and flocks, are assured from official circles that everything possible will be done to protect their interests.

Next Wednesday evening's meeting of the auxiliary of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, is to be held in the community room at the Brooklyn Savings bank building, this being a change from the original arrangements.

Broken ribs and a punctured lung were the chief causes of the death of Dr. Frank Smith of Washington, R. I., at Moosup last Thursday night, when, for some undetermined reason, possibly because of a sudden shock or heart attack, he lost control of his car and ran head-on into a tree. The doctor was 83 years of age.

Tonight, at the evening service at the Westfield Congregational church, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, the pastor, reported on two addresses that he recently heard delivered by Rev. Elwood Worcester, D. D., of the Emmanuel movement. Rev. Mr. Gaylord also lead a discussion on the subject, "Mental and Spiritual Factors in Physical Healing."

Danielson appears to be one of the most favored towns in this section of southern New England in this period of business conditions not being so particularly good in the nation, and unfortunately so in this part of the United States. The community is weathering a slack period in a manner for which it is grateful.

When projects being worked out by the state highway department are completed, possibly during the present year, the main highway route from Danielson to Norwich will be practically free of grade crossings. One is to be taken out at Jewett City, a very dangerous one; one at French's crossing, between Plainfield village and Central Village, and one at Central Village. Getting rid of the Main street crossing in Danielson is going to be a more difficult proposition, all things considered. With this crossing out, there would be none at grade between Norwich and Putnam, a distance of between 30 and 40 miles.

The police insist that there is a real obligation resting on those who start a car out from where it may be parked by the curb to indicate just what they are going to do. Scores of drivers have not been doing that in Danielson lately, and only by good fortune have accidents been averted.

Annual reports read to the congregations at St. James' church this morning showed that 1929 was a highly prosperous year for the parish and that a sum approaching $50,000 is now in reserve for the carrying out of the project of building a new parochial school. The parish is free of debt.

Snow, rain and sleet drove much of the average Saturday traffic off the state highways Saturday, but today, after all the inclement weather, the roads were as free of snow and ice as in summer time, despite the unusual cold.

A bright girl who is proficient in bookkeeping and stenography wanted at once. Apply to The Church Co., Danielson.—adv.

Hundreds here read with horror today of the latest exploit of Roland G. Lalone, escaped convict from Wethersfield and his two companions, also escaped from the Connecticut state prison, in the shooting of two detectives at Jacksonville, Fla. Lalone, convicted of killing State Officer Irving Nelson of the Danielson barracks, is more or less of a nightmare to the people hereabouts.

Mrs. Flora Barnett of North Main street is en route to Florida to spend the remainder of the winter season. Her son, Herbert J. Barnett, and wife, have been in the south for several weeks.

Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., a curate at St. James church, is leaving here to be assigned to a church in Hartford for the time being.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

DR. J. L. GARDNER'S FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED SATURDAY

The funeral of Dr. James L. Gardner was held at his home Saturday afternoon at 2:30 and was largely attended. Rev. George Reese, pastor of the Congregational church, conducted the services. The Odd Fellows quartet, Christopher Krauss and Sydney Mathewson of Plainfield, Arthur Tracy of Canterbury Plains and Charles McFarland of Central Village, sang "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me." The flowers were unusually beautiful. The bearers were Lawyer Bradford Danielson of Moosup, County Commissioner Urgele Lafrance, L. Howard Cross and Stuart Ellsworth of this village, Rae Wood of Danielson and Eugene Boyle of Sterling. Burial was in the family lot in Evergreen cemetery. Among those from out of town who attended were Dr. S. B. Overlock, Pomfret; Robert Gardner, Bridgeport; Mrs. Eva Wilson, Norwich; Mrs. George Backus, South Windham; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stetson, Brooklyn; Edgar Burdick, Westerly; Mrs. John Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boyle, Robert Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. Claramon Boyle, of Sterling; Miss Elizabeth Miller, Miss Elizabeth Bourque, Mr. and Mrs. Rae Wood, of Danielson.

Mrs. Hollis Young of South Killingly has returned to her duties at the A. & P. store, having spent a week at her home on account of the illness of her grandmother.

Mrs. Eva Wilson of Norwich was a week-end visitor with her cousin, Mrs. James L. Gardner.

Senator and Mrs. Urgele Lafrance will be in Hartford this (Monday) morning to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lafrance's cousin.

Miss Hazel Edgerton was a Putnam visitor Friday.

Thelma, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilde, celebrated her sixth birthday Friday from 4 to 6, entertaining a party of school mates at her home. She received many gifts. A lunch was served the little guests.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Waldo Tuesday afternoon, in spite of the downpour. Work is in progress on a quilt which has been ordered. Sandwiches, cake and cocoa were the refreshments.

The roll call supper last Thursday evening was arranged and served by Mrs. Small, Mrs. Wibberly and Mrs. Gager. Reports were given by various officers of church and society and responses to the roll call. Nathan Exley was re-elected deacon and Mrs. Arthur Tracy elected Sunday school superintendent. Final decision in regard to lighting the church was postponed on account of the absence of members of the committee. The temporary lighting arrangement will continue during the winter. Sunday at the Sunday school session Lewis Safford was elected assistant superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink and Levi Clark motored to Hartford Wednesday to attend the state grange meetings. Miss Grace Dawley, master of Canterbury grange, has been an attendant during the sessions this week.

Mrs. Martha Frink is now at her home in the village, having with her Mrs. Erickson of Canterbury Plain.

Mr. and Mrs. James Davis have moved to Moosup where Mr. Davis is employed.

Mrs. Lena Smith has a position in a Norwich family as housekeeper.

Millers Lose Nothing.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller of New York were in town Monday to investigate loss and damage at their home here, which had been entered one night last week. No losses were discovered, though considerable ransacking had been done. Mr. and Mrs. Miller returned the same day, leaving the affair in the hands of the state police.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

WORCESTER MEN FINED—ONE GOES TO BROOKLYN JAIL

E. Ethier and A. Conlin of Worcester were arrested by Officer Joseph Blanchette Friday night. They appeared in the local court, Saturday morning before Judge C. P. Tourtellotte. Each was fined $40 and costs. Ethier, a fourth offender was sentenced to 30 days in Brooklyn jail, besides paying his fine. He had three charges against him—drunkenness, disturbing the peace and the use of profane language. Poulin answered to two charges—drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

PUTNAM

POMFRET MAN SHOT AT BY UNIDENTIFIED PERSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 19—One of the most unusual cases to claim the attention of the state police of Danielson barracks in many months developed Saturday when a member of the family of George Serine, who lives in Pomfret, reported that Mr. Serine had been fired upon last Tuesday morning sometime between one and 1:30 a. m. by an unknown person. The bullet, according to details learned tonight, entered the house through a window, pierced the shirt-sleeves of Serine and lodged in a wall behind his chair. An immediate search of the premises was made by Serine but the would-be assassin escaped, carefully shielding his or her identity and left no tell-tale marks.

The mystery was deepened when no account of the happening was conveyed to police until five days later when a motive prompted a member of the Serine family to forward the information concerning the shooting to Lieut. Ross V. Urquhardt of the state police barracks at Danielson.

The case has taxed the sleuthing faculties of investigating officers, assigned to gather up clews and ferret out the person responsible for the intended killing of Serine. The theory that Serine was struck by stray bullets from a hunter's gun has been discarded by the police, but Lieut. Urquhardt is reticent to advance any definite theory as to how the shooting occurred. He intimated that his officers had arrived at a conclusion and would bring about an arrest Monday.

Principal E. L. Robinson of Putnam high school at a meeting of the student body Friday morning announced the names of students who achieved honors in the academic work for the month of December. Those who received no mark below ninety per cent for the marking period awarded first honors were: (Seniors) Harry Thayer, Albin Vaida, Helen Varbedian; Juniors, Beatrice Greene; Sophomores, Ruth Amidon; Freshman, Herman D. Feshback; Putnam Junior high, (eighth grade) Searls Bradford and Richard Joy.

The following pupils received no mark below eighty-five per cent and were given places on the second roll of honor: Post graduate, Arthur Bove; Seniors, Marion Diani, Marion Hayden, Walter Jankot, Edna Kent, Winnifred LePire, Anna Shippee, Rita Stone, Dorothy Whitehouse. Juniors, Albina Socher, Newart Varbedian. Sophomores, Walter Hayden, Genevieve Sherlock. Freshman, James Alvord, Elsie Horowitz, Carolyn Morse, Clayton Shaw, Isabelle Ukleja, Gladys Varbedian, Philip Wheaton, Myrtle Hermanson, Arthur Mulrain, Ruth Wilcox.

At a pre-organization meeting of the members of the combined companies of the Putnam fire department held Friday evening at the engine house in Union square, Frederick Dumas, foreman of the Eagle Hose company of the Smith street station was chosen general chairman of the committees for arrangements of the 30th annual ball of the department to be held in February. The sub-committees were named at this meeting and a number of gatherings are to be held during the next month in an effort to make the thirtieth annual frolic the most brilliant in the fire-fighter's social annals.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Martha E. Griffin

Mrs. Martha E. Griffin, a native of Norwich and for many years a resident of this city, died at her home on Gilman street early today. She was 73 years old. Mrs. Griffin had been in failing health for several weeks and her condition became critical Saturday. She passed away at 1:30 o'clock this morning, suffering from an acute heart attack. Mrs. Griffin was born in Norwich on June 18, 1857. She was educated in the schools of that city, coming to Putnam as a young lady. She was married to Patrick Griffin of this city, who died a few years ago. Eight children born of this union survive their mother. They are Mrs. Mary E. Smith, Misses Martha and Hannah Griffin of Gilman street, Mrs. F. J. Kelleher of East Hartford, Thomas T., and Martin E., of Boston and William Griffin of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Griffin was well known in Putnam where she lived the greater part of her life. She was a communicant of St. Mary's church.

The prospect of a revival of amateur boxing bouts in this city, which were discontinued at the outbreak of a controversy in which the state boxing commission figured two years ago, is seen in the favorable discussions at the Canadian Athletic club on Providence street. Intense interest was manifest in the amateur bouts staged in St. John's hall previous to the suspension by the state governing body. The local promoters succeeded in their many endeavors to provide high classic fistic entertainment that proved pleasing to the many fans in this vicinity and from all indications it is believed that the followers of the sport will be treated to a few shows here before the close of the winter season.

A number of members of the student body at Putnam high school were in Danielson Friday evening where they attended the annual promenade and dance of the junior class of Killingly high school.

A week in which every kind of weather imaginable was experienced was concluded Saturday evening with a storm which treated the city to samples of snow, rain and sleet and mixtures of the three elements. A sudden drop in the temperature early Saturday evening caused roads and sidewalks to become sheeted with ice rendering lanes of travel exceedingly dangerous. Several minor automobile mishaps occurred within and on the outskirts of the city but blotters at police headquarters in the middle of the forenoon today were free from accounts of any serious accidents.

The highways of Eastern Connecticut and especially those in the vicinity of the Norwich and Worcester branch of the New Haven railroad are literally becoming dotted with the large motor freight vans of the New England transportation company now being used to forward freight shipments, formerly transported by the boat trains which were taken out of service the first of the year. Earl reports from the railroad offices signify that the modern form of freight shipping is coming up to the expectations of the executives with increasing speed and efficiency.

Hayden B. Franklin, student at Northeastern university, Boston, spent the week end at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin of Chapman street.

Dr. L. Hector Lucier of Church street is in New York this week attending a national conference of members of the optical profession.

Scores of local music and dance lovers were in Plainfield Friday evening attending a hop at the community house where a nationally known radio dance band played.

The National Parks of Canada, was the subject of a lecture delivered by Arthur H. Merritt, philanthropist and author at the friendly evening service of the Second Congregational church last evening. In addition to a mind picture of the scenic beauties of Canada's wonderlands, Mr. Merritt brought to his large audience vivid impressions of the Canadian wild life with the aid of over 200 stereopticon slides which were scenes of the spots he visited.

Mrs. Carrie Smith of Atlantic City, N. J., is visiting with her sister Mrs. Anne S. Rafferty of Grove street.

Franklin Perry, son of Mrs. Edith Perry of Grove street returned to Hartford Saturday after a short visit spent at his home in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Thompson of Manchester formerly of this city were guests of friends in this city Friday.

JEWETT CITY

FRAUD GINGER ALE MEN SHOWED FAKE NORWICH PERMIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 19.—Carleton Mecker, 9 La Grange street, and Raymond Morin, 24 La Grange street, Worcester, are in the lockup at the local police station, having been arrested by Officer Henry Vegiard Saturday afternoon. The men claiming to work for a Worcester firm had several dozen 2-ounce bottles labelled, Extract of Ginger — alcoholic 80 per cent. It is claimed that the pair made several sales about the borough where the goods were misrepresented.

Mike Kargul was approached by the men, and the goods were shown to him, they claiming that if he bought a quantity he would be given a certificate to retail the same from his gas station. Kargul paid them $5 in advance on the quantity he was to receive. The salesmen then departed, soon returning with a permit, dated from 202 Main street, Norwich, and signed, C. C. Checker. Kargul was told that if he handled the ginger ale right and had no disturbances around his place, and turned out no drunks, he would be selected as one of a few to handle real beer, on a permit which they would furnish. After thinking the matter over, Kargul communicated with friends, and a Norwich attorney looked up the address in answer to a call by telephone from Jewett City, and found 202 Main street, to be the location of the firm of J. C. Perkins, confectionery dealers for 50 years.

When the men returned with Kargul's order of several dozen bottles, he, having been warned to have nothing to do with the men, refused to take the ginger. The pair would not give back to Kargul the $5 advance payment which they had received. In another transaction the name of Morse, was signed to delivery papers. Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Dudkowski was notified of the facts of the fraud.

Officer Viegaad took the pair into custody and seized several cases of the goods, which bears the label "Extract of Ginger, Alcoholic, 80 per cent." It is believed the pair may be wanted by other officers. Sunday one of them was anxious to communicate by telegraph with a party in Fitchburg, Mass. The cases will come up in the Griswold town court Monday morning, before Judge John T. Barry.

SIXTEEN EXAMINED FOR POST OFFICE APPOINTMENTS

A class of 16, under the direction of Thomas Barrett, took the competitive civil service examination Saturday for substitute post office clerk and for substitute city letter carrier, to fill the requirements of the Jewett City post office.

The applicants were from Norwich, Glasgo, Plainfield, Worcester, Mass., and Jewett City. Appointments are made to the substitute position at 65 cents an hour, and promotions are made to regular positions according to seniority of appointment. The entrance salary for clerks in offices of the first and second classes and carriers in city delivery service is $1,700 per annum. Clerks in offices of the first and second classes and carriers in the city delivery service are divided into five grades, the salaries of which are $1,700, $1,800, $1,900, and $2,100 per annum, respectively, such clerks will be promoted successive after one year's satisfactory service in each grade to the next higher grade until the fifth grade is reached. Promotions of both clerks and carriers are made at the beginning of the quarter following the expiration of a year's satisfactory service in the next lower grade. Clerks and carriers of the highest grade are eligible for promotion to the supervisory positions in their respective offices.

A deduction of 3½ per cent., is made from the monthly salary of every civil service employe, to provide for retirement with annuity. If a person leaves the service before retirement, this money is returned to him with 4 per cent. interest, compounded annually. Civil service employes are not pensioned.

Miss Alice A. Brown goes to Washington, R. I., today (Monday) to attend the funeral of Dr. Frank B. Smith, who met his death in an automobile accident at Moosup on the night of Jan. 16. Mrs. Alfred Smith, sister-in-law of the doctor is Miss Brown's aunt, (Harriet Bennett). She and Miss Brown's mother being sisters. Mrs. Smith was badly cut and bruised in the wreck.

MYSTIC

When Mystic grange, No. 171, P. of H., met during the week, with Overseer Albert Neff, Jr., acting as master in the absence of James Main, worthy master, Sherman J. Swallow, master during 1929, gave a very interesting report of the state meeting, in Hartford Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The officers elected were: State master, Louis Tolles, Southington; overseer, Frank Peet, Kent; lecturer, Mrs. Sarah Curtis, Plainville; steward, Charles M. Adams, Groton; chaplain, Mrs. Nellie Blakeman, Stratford; treasurer, Darius St. John, New Canaan; secretary, Ard Welton, Plymouth; gate keeper, Sherman Ives, Litchfield; Ceres, Mrs. Lucretia Bailey, East Haven; Pomona, Mrs. Laura Pike, Brooklyn; Flora, Mrs. Bessie R. Moshier, Waterbury; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Bessie Case, Collinsville. State Master Tolles is a member of Masonic organizations, of the Eastern Star, I. O. O. F. and Knights of Pythias. He is a talented entertainer, one of his accomplishments being "whistling" through his nose. Charles M. Adams of Groton, who was elected steward, has, with his wife, been a frequent visitor at the meetings of the local grange. When the local society was reorganized several years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Adams installed the officers. According to the report of the secretary, Ard Welton, the present state membership of the grange is 18,647, a gain of 430 during the year. Two new granges were added, in 1929, from Lisbon and Windsor. During the lecturer's hour, Thursday evening at the local grange, Mrs. Ellery Burdick, former lecturer, now acting as lecturer in the absence of Miss Hazel Main, put on the following program: Selection by Old Mystic orchestra; piano, Mrs. Ines Tinker; saxophone, Lyle Davis; first violin, Albert Keeney; second violin, Kenneth Medbury. Sketch, Aunt Patience's Umbrella, the following taking part: Dolores Brown, Sally Wilkinson, Betty Pendleton and Henry Barnes. Vocal solo, Leslie Haley; reading, Uncle Josh Has His Picture Tooken, Mrs. Henry Johnson; song, Smile, by the grange, and the concluding selection by the orchestra. Dancing followed.

There were 11 tables of straight and bridge whist at a card party given by the Woman's guild of St. Mark's Episcopal church. First prizes at bridge went to Mrs. Albert Wilson and Henry Ritzie, Miss Ethel Johnson and P. D. Crowley. Prizes at straight whist were won by Miss Emma Albrightand Zenas Snyder, Miss Florence Craig and Dr. George Dunham. Refreshments were served by the committee, Miss Letitia McGaughey, Mrs. John Eaton, Mrs. Andrew Rusch and Mrs. Fred Moll.

A St. Petersburg, Fla., paper refers to the work done by the chamber of commerce there, where tourists register. On Monday, Jan. 13, 772 people registered and up to Tuesday noon, the 14th, there was a total registration so far this season of 20,374.

The Mystic Power Co. has put up two poles on Edgecomb street, one near the summer residence of Arthur Burrows and the other at the bend of the road near G. E. Tingley's residence. Light was turned on for the first time, Friday.

Mystic Rebekah lodge met in Odd Fellows hall Friday evening and at this time commemorated the birthday of Thomas Wydly, the founder of Odd Fellowship. H. J. Phillips, superintendent of Fairview, Odd Fellows home, Groton, was the speaker. His talk was listened to with great interest. The following program was given during the evening: Piano solo, Mrs. Eva McAslan; vocal solo, George White of Noank; violin solo, Miss Blanche Lafrague of Noank; piano solo, Mrs. Treffly Morin; piano and cornet duet, Frances and William Thorpe, respectively; vocal duet, Mrs. Marian McDonald and Dexter Holliday. Following this, a social time, refreshments and dancing were enjoyed. There was a fine attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucian O. Allen were in Hartford last week.

Saturday morning the roads were exceedingly slippery, as were walks, steps and driveways. Several people, not realizing the slippery going, fell, injuring themselves in various ways. Dr. Rhodes Burrows, driving his car down Baptist Hill, at about 8:30 in the morning, when nearing the bottom began to skid. The car crashed into the fence near Mrs. Agnes Park's store, and was almost completely demolished. Dr. Burrows escaped injury.

When the Parent-Teacher association of West Mystic grammar school held the January meeting at the school house, Mrs. Alice Gildersleeve presided at the business session. It was voted to buy a projector and necessary accessories for showing pictures. Reports of the officers were heard and approved. Dr. Charles Barnum of Groton gave a very interesting address on the Health of the School Child. He showed the value of a school nurse, who would make regular inspections and examinations of the children, thereby stopping the unnecessary spreading of sickness, etc. Roy Scanlan of Noank sang three numbers, which were very pleasing to the audience. Several of the teachers of the Noank school and parents of children attending that school were present at the meeting. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

Mrs. Mary Whiting of Old Mystic has been visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Smith, of Noank.

Principal Roy S. Haggard of the Robert Fitch high school, Poquonoc Bridge, was the speaker Friday evening at the meeting of the Central-Waterford Parent-Teacher association.

WOODSTOCK

The annual meeting of the First Congregational church was held Saturday the 11th. A dinner was served at 12.30. The roll call and business followed at 2 o'clock. The treasurer's report showed a balance in the treasury. During the year cement walks have been laid in front of the church. The following officers were elected: Clerk, Louise L. Child; treasurer, William M. Gallup; trustee for three years, Mrs. Lucy H. Child; auditor, George M. Sampson; members church committee, Mrs. W. A. Howard, Mrs. A. H. Williams; delegates, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howard; ushers, William C. Child, Donald Child, Marcus Johnson, Laurence McWilliam. The historian's report showed a loss of four members by Williams and William M. Gallup. Williams and William M. Gallup were elected deacons. The church at present is without a pastor.

Miss Mary L. Flynn is visiting in Winsted.

Basketball teams from different parts of the town have been formed and are playing at the hall gymnasium Monday evenings.

WESTERLY

FRED G. KENNEDY INSTALLED MASTER OF FRANKLIN LODGE

The 83rd annual meeting of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., Worshipful John Albert Pawson, master, was held in Masonic hall Saturday night. As the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth came on Friday night, the Saturday evening date was made the annual meeting of the lodge of 453 members, of whom 112 were present with 35 visitors, many from adjoining Connecticut lodges. Members of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, were special guests. Reports of the secretary, treasurer, trustees of the permanent fund and finance committee, together with a brief report of a committee on change of by-laws, showed the prosperous condition of the organization.

Presiding at the election and assisting in the installation were Bros. Albert Knight, right worshipful district deputy grand master of the Sixth Rhode Island masonic district, with Past Master Henry P. Stone, grand master of ceremonies, both being members of What Cheer lodge, No. 21, of Providence. The tellers were Worshipful Raymond E. Pendleton, master of Pawcatuck lodge, and Past Master Samuel R. Avery of Charity lodge, Hope Valley. The installing officer informed the lodge that he had been present 20 years ago, following a fire which destroyed Masonic hall, and on that date a Bible was presented Franklin lodge, No. 20, by What Cheer lodge of Providence to replace the Bibles which were burned. Fred G. Kennedy was elected and installed master of Franklin lodge. M. W. Arthur N. Nash, past master of Pawcatuck lodge and of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Connecticut, was nominated by retiring Master J. A. Pawson as an honorary member of Franklin lodge, a previous honorary member having been W. M. Thomas McKenzie, also past master of Pawcatuck and the Grand lodges, whose death occurred in Westerly July 25, last. Other officers, elective and appointive, installed were: Senior warden, James P. Campbell; junior warden, W. Harry Anderson; treasurer, W. Albert H. Spicer; chaplain, Albert A. Williams; senior deacon, Raymond C. Vars; junior deacon, William H. Browning; senior steward, Talbot A. Holland; junior steward, John R. Atkin; marshal, W. Fayette F. Freeman; sentinel, Maurice L. Laing; musical director, Alber R. Bailey; tyler, William A. Stillwell; finance committee, W. Walter C. Hiscox, W. Lewis Stanton, W. Harold D. Livingstone; trustees of permanent fund, W. Arthur H. Coy, re-elected for a term of three years; the other members of the committee being Arthur L. Perry (1 year), W. Frank F. Dodge (3 years). At the conclusion of the installation ceremony, Worshipful Master Kennedy had the retiring Master John Albert Pawson presented before the East, where he was presented a past master's jewel in behalf of the lodge and a past master's apron in behalf of his associate officers.

FRED G. KENNEDY, Master

Following the installation, Deputy Grand Master Knight addressed the lodge members on the subject of Masonry and Benjamin Franklin, another speaker being Acting Grand Master of Ceremonies Stone.

WEDDING

Lees—Cruickshank

Saturday afternoon, Miss Jean Rae Cruickshank, daughter of Stuart Cruickshank, 48 Bowling lane, Bradford, was united in marriage with Sidney Lees, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lees of Alton, at the residence of the bride by Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Alice Carr of Ashaway and William Cruickshank, brother of the bride, were the attendants. The bride wore a gown of green flat crepe and carried yellow tea roses. Miss Carr wore blue crepe and carried pink roses. Following the ceremony a supper and reception were held for members of the two families. Mr. and Mrs. Lees left on a wedding trip, and will be at home in Alton after Jan. 25.

FUNERAL

OBITUARY

John E. Gavitt

At the Rhode Island State infirmary, Howard, Saturday, John Emery Gavitt died, aged 8. Mr. Gavitt, whose home was at 72 Beach street, was a resident of Westerly for 40 years, having previously lived in Charlestown. He is survived by three sons, Ethan P., of Westerly, Julius P., Hartford, and F. Lee Gavitt of Dalton, Ga. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Allen Reynolds, of Providence.

Mrs. Abel P. Randall was taken Saturday to a Boston hospital for an operation for appendicitis. Her husband, a former Westerly resident, stopped here Saturday evening en route from his farm in East Haddam, Conn., and proceeded Sunday morning to Mrs. Randall's home in Wollaston, Mass.

FAMILY OF ELEVEN FORCED OUT BY FIRE, DURING STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 19.—A fire Saturday afternoon burned the home, with clothing and some furnishings, near Bradford, causing a man, his wife and nine children to seek aid from Westerly chapter of the Red Cross. The old farmhouse on a dirt road about a mile and a quarter from the Bradford school, owned by Town Councilman John Monti, was formerly known as the Amanda Chester place and later, was occupied by Charles Vars and William Bliven. The house was occupied by the family of Peter DiSciullo, who discovered fire in the attic at a point distant from the chimney. One of the children was sent to summon aid at the time when a severe sleet storm made the lot of those forced out of the burning house a hard one. Unsuccessful attempts were made to put out the fire with the use of pails of water taken from a nearby well which was soon drained. Alarm No. 33 for a fire out of the Westerly Fire district was sounded on the fire whistle and the Seagraves motor pumper with Fire Chief George E. Egger, assistant engineers and men, sped toward Bradford. When the Cottrell farm was reached at the top of the hill the pump shaft broke, then a cam shaft let go and the engine "froze" when lubrication ceased. A second alarm was sounded on the Westerly fire signal and the Ahrens-Fox pumper responded, but it was learned that the house could not be reached by the pumper without going through muddy roads and the fire had gained much headway. Firemen went in passing autos to the fire but were powerless to put out the blaze, but were able to salvage some of the furniture and the kitchen stove was taken out, almost red hot. Members of the family sought shelter in cow barns and sheds, then were offered shelter for the night at the home of Annunzio Vuono, a half mile distant. Henry Marsh Clarke, who had been an early arrival at the fire, called the Red Cross executive secretary, Miss Lucy Crowley, while First Assistant Engineer Robert Bonner went to Westerly to return with her. Engineers George McKenzie and Columbus Pasetti remained at the fire to see that the embers did not set fire to surrounding buildings.

Miss Crowley consulted with Mrs. Dagmar Smith of the People's Mission and clothing and clothes were secured for the night and a tenement was secured in Westerly for the destitute family, who had no insurance. Mr. Monti's loss was covered by some insurance. Foreman James Hamilton of Westerly highway department, who resides on the Bradford road, was an early arrival at the fire and did much to save some of the household goods.

STONINGTON

SUGAR DUTY

When the question of a change in the duty on sugar is faced there is certainty of a variety of opinions and much discussion in congress. It didn't take the house long to vote an increase in the sugar duty, an increase that has been pointed to as being for the benefit of the agriculturists, about whom so much is said. But in the senate a different attitude has been taken. There the finance committee considered that the increase voted in the house was too large and it brought out a lower rate, but still an increase over the present one. This developed a warm fight, a special alignment in the senate on that subject alone and a vote to retain the existing rate. Further than that, the proposition to give a bounty to the domestic sugar growers was voted down.

The vote to stick by the existing duty brought a strange grouping of senators. Those against whom so much criticism has been aimed as not being in sympathy with the agricultural interests were found standing for the increase in the sugar duty. Certain of those who have been making a fight for farm products only were found voting against the increase and yet there were those who have been doing their utmost to break down the tariff duties as proposed by the committee who were found backing the increase in the sugar rates.

It was one of those instances where party and even coalition lines were knocked into a cocked hat and the senate has completed its work on the sugar schedule by favoring the existing schedule.

This means that there is a wide gulf between the house and the senate and another problem for the conference committee to struggle with. It will be interesting to see whether there is a compromise between these rates which will coincide with the rate that was advocated by the senate committee or whether there will be adherence to the senate vote against any increase. Possibly sugar will be used as one of the means of knocking out the senate vote against the flexible provisions of the tariff and its vote for the debenture plan, both of which were taken a long time ago. There will be certain trading points about which a conference compromise will hinge.

MEXICO RELENTS

The city of Laredo relied upon the federal government to convince the Mexican government that, even though it was provoked by the threat of District Attorney Vallis to arrest ex-President Calles, it should recede from its decision to close the Mexican consulate at that city. The faith was not misplaced. The state department not only brought its influence to bear, but considered it necessary to assure Mexico that there would be no repetition of the threat. Further than that, it considered it necessary to set forth that it did not approve of the events leading up to the closing of the consulate.

The disapproval is no more than what was to be expected in view of the fact that the former president of Mexico had been granted immunity against molestation by the district attorney on his passage through Laredo to Mexico. That showed that this government was not upholding the district attorney, but the department added that it was "happy to assure the Mexican government that Mexican citizens who go to the United States, subjecting themselves to immigration regulations and other laws of both countries, will not be molested in the communities heretofore involved, nor will Mexican citizens generally transient in such area."

The appeal was effective. Mexico will restore the consulate, business between the two countries going by way of Laredo, which has been seriously interrupted, will be resumed, the necessary machinery at this important port of entry into Mexico will be restored and all will be well.

But there cannot be forgotten the experience that has resulted from the incident which is about to be closed. There is a responsibility resting upon Laredo in view of the promises which have been made in its behalf. Evidently it is the sentiment of that city that proper consideration and treatment should be accorded to the law-abiding Mexican visitor. This the government has found it necessary to pledge and now it remains for Laredo to remember its obligation and suppress those over-enthusiastic and unwise officials who can precipitate much trouble in a very short time.

FAMINE SUFFERERS

It makes little difference in what part of the world it exists famine or disaster is certain to arouse sympathy and an eagerness to help in relieving the situation.

The reports which are dealing with the conditions in China where famine is mowing humanity down as if it were grain are distressing. They are hard to imagine because conditions there are so much different than they are here, but it is certain that the outlook there is anything but promising.

Famines are not new in China. They have occurred too often. That country has experienced a heavy loss every few years from that cause. Each time it has been threatened, the appeal has been made to the world for assistance in combating it, and invariably there has been much valuable work done in reducing the deaths.

There will be contributions made at this time, but there is a feeling that the famine conditions in China can and should be met by the Chinese government. Strange as it may seem, the Chinese government is little concerned over such conditions. It has been left to others so long that it has gotten to be a habit. Foodstuffs have been poured into China to meet famine conditions, but there is no certainty that they have reached their destination. It was only a short time ago that the American Red Cross opposed participation in the usual relief measures. This followed a study of the situation and an understanding of what has been done with supplies on other occasions.

What is China doing to meet the situation? That is one of the points on which opposition to the extension of outside aid is based. China is in a position to do much, but it is doing very little. China has been making some decided changes, but it hasn't apparently recognized its duty in this respect, although it seems to have plenty of money for war and other purposes. Evidently it has depended upon others so long it thinks it can do so indefinitely. That attitude and the claims that much which was intended for famine sufferers in the past never reached them furnish serious discouragement to those who under other circumstances would be deeply concerned. The famine area in China is suffering from more than starvation.

MINNEAPOLIS' QUEST

Sooner or later every city gets to the point where it considers the methods which surround its local government as more or less musty and out of date. Various methods are employed to bring about a change. Sometimes a plan is brought forth that results in adoption, and, again, public sentiment prefers to stick in the old rut to taking chances with the suggested plan.

Out in Minneapolis the feeling has developed that the officials of that city are encumbered with a lot of traditional methods. The present official follows because the previous holder of the office did so, and he did it because the fellow before him followed home leader. There must be merit to this practice at times, especially when it is required by the law, but Minneapolis believes that the time has come for a change and it has set a board of 15 business men to work on devise a means of putting the city on a better business basis.

Without a doubt this board will find antiquated conditions, practices which are no more needed than last year's birdnests and opportunities for cutting a lot of needless red tape. Because of such suggestions as it may make as the result of its investigations it does not necessarily follow that the committee's recommendations will be adopted, but there promises to be an eye-opening in Minneapolis from the inquiry underway.

The endeavor by any city to bring about better business methods in the conduct of its affairs invariably produces a lesson for others. Hence the outcome in Minneapolis should be and probably will be watched by other cities for such help as may be gleaned therefrom. When a city seeks economy, efficiency and better service, it is after something in which every other city is interested.

HAND SIGNALING

A resident of New York state who appears to be much interested in obtaining safer highways believes that the hand signaling by auto drivers should be abandoned. He considers such signals would be all right if the public could be educated to use them but he maintains that "it is utterly impossible to educate the public in the proper use of hand signals. On the other hand, if hand signals were done away with and every driver compelled to use the eyes, we should have a great reduction in accidents."

Just how this conclusion is reached is not quite clear. The writer doesn't approve the hand signals because it is impossible to make the auto drivers use them, but just how he thinks it will be any easier to educate the drivers to use their eyes is not disclosed. There is, in fact, nothing that tells the car at the rear what the driver ahead is going to do even when he is keeping his eyes constantly on that machine. There is nothing to tell that he is going to turn right or left until he actually does it. He may stop and give no indication of it.

It will have to be admitted that there seems to be no one system which all who use hand signals follow, but the driver who puts out his hand and makes any kind of a signal conveys information to the fellow back of him and he is prepared for something. That something will reveal itself directly and in the meantime the driver at the back is warned and prevented from driving too close or too fast until the expected development comes.

The hand signal has been the preventive of many an accident. It is depended upon by many drivers and there is quite as much reason to expect that all will eventually use it as that all drivers will be using their eyes at the unwarned moment when the driver ahead is preparing to alter his course. The hand signal is important and needs to be used more instead of less.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Has anyone seen a bluebird?

You need only one guess to place the fellow, who is advocating a car for every member of the family, as an auto manufacturer.

If there is a west wind every four days 20,000 feet up, most people will be content to let the other fellow find it out.

After all the losses they have suffered from floods, what a joy to the southern states that fellow must be who places charges of dynamite in the levees!

COUNSEL BY PROXY

Robert and Annie had been married less than a year when their matrimonial venture ended in the divorce court. Robert was the only son of a wealthy family and he needed a lot of petting to keep him in good humor. On the other hand, Annie also had been accustomed to being petted in her home and she demanded the same thing when she became a wife. Really, there wasn't any serious difference between Robert and Annie. They had married young and both began finding fault with each other. Spats followed, then the divorce court.

Far down in the recesses of their hearts they loved each other, but both were too stubborn to give in to the other. So, being in love, they were jealous, and jealousy failed to assist in healing the deep wounds of aching hearts. Instead, it aggravated the case and hastened the day when the final spat took place and divorce counsel were employed.

"I'm going to get a divorce," Annie sobbed hysterically.

"On what grounds?" demanded Robert. "I've provided for you. I haven't deserted you—"

"Cruel treatment," Annie sneered. "Robert, you are impossible—impossible!"

"You can't accuse me of cruel treatment," snapped Robert. "I'll bring suit myself—I'll get the divorce in my name." Then Robert left the apartment, chewing at a cigar with the ferocity of a puma, and hastened to his lawyer, an old friend of the family.

Meanwhile Annie also visited her attorney, who happened to be a lifelong friend of her family. She presented her case and the wise old attorney listened in a sympathetic manner. He instructed Annie to come back the next day. No sooner had Annie left his office than the attorney telephoned Robert's lawyer and the two talked the matter over. They agreed that Robert and Annie were not going to be divorced. Lawyers have a way of bringing things to pass in unexpected ways. So—

When Annie came the next day the aged attorney, wise in the way of legal procedure, advised her to get a "younger lawer" and suggested the youthful James Smith, who occupied office space in the same suite of offices. Mr. Smith was introduced to Annie. He was handsome! Annie took one look at him and readily agreed that he was the best looking man she had seen in many days. Smith took the case—took it after a whispered conference with the old attorney.

Meanwhile Robert also had been advised to employ a "young counsel." The elder lawyer ushered in Miss Lucille Grimes, graduate in law and very, very pretty. She as an expert in things legal and especially in divorce matters. Robert gazed into Miss Grimes' deep blue eyes. She was certainly lovely. Robert departed but Miss Grimes remained behind for a conference with the senior attorney. He had a few matters he wanted to talk to her about, matters of a very secret nature.

In due course of time the divorce case came to trial. Robert entered the courtroom first, accompanied by his fair attorney. Miss Grimes was especially attentive to her client just as Annie entered Miss Grimes had particular reason to touch Robert on the shoulder and say in one of those whispers that can be heard a considerable distance: "There she comes now, just console yourself—you'll soon be free—the cat!"

"The cat!" hissed Annie as she glimpsed the beauty that sat beside her husband. "And she sits right there by my husband."

Meanwhile, the handsome Attorney Smith had taken Annie by the arm. He also whispered in a carrying voice: "Calm yourself, dear, you will soon be free of this monster!"

Annie's eyes flared. The green monster, jealousy, went on a rampage. After all Robert was her man. What right did this woman have whispering in his ear? And Robert grew restless. This handsome fellow beside his wife caused him to boil with jealous anger.

"The cat," Lucille was saying when rudely interrupted by Annie, who rushed to her with murder peeping out of her pretty eyes.

Robert glared at Attorney Smith for just a moment. Then he said to Annie: "Come on, dearie, let's go home. That big gorilla isn't going to take you away from me." Robert and Annie walked away, hand in hand. The divorce case was dismissed.

In the judge's office the elder attorneys had a good laugh as they smoked cigars. Their plan had worked.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—There has come under the Bystander's eye recently a study, made by the American Council on Education, of the "record of usage for a foreign service officer of the United States."

That means diplomatic secretaries of the various classes and consuls. It does not include men like Hugh Gibson, Nelson Johnson or a lot of others who have been promoted from the foreign service as "career men" to be ministers or ambassadors.

When they get that high, they are out of the foreign service and hold their jobs on presidential pleasure.

To get back to the council's study, however, it covers two closely typed pages and outlines the things a man will have to do to be a good foreign service officer.

And as an advertisement to attract eligible youngsters to that service, it probably would not prove a drawing card. It says nothing about social duties or requirements; not a word about pink teas or balls or all the other fripperies so frequently associated with diplomatic assignment in the popular—often the congressional—mind.

Linguistic Chore

"Learn to speak the language of the country (where he is assigned) in a manner that reveals a background of intelligence and cultivation," for instance, is one of the things accomplished by the model youngster.

Another is:

"Comprehends his own country and with unremitting endeavor comes to understand deeply the foreign country where he is stationed."

As the Bystander understands the process, the council gets its information for studies of this character from a painstaking search of records and files of the government department involved.

It does not merely outline the things it would be desirable for a young diplomat to know or do, but discovers what the departmental mill is trying to compel him to do if he desires advancement.

There was a day when diplomatic and consular reports to Washington were very haphazard affairs. They were merely picked up from government reports or newspaper articles abroad.

Labor in Reports

But that does not go any longer. Instead, from the time a youngster qualifies and graduates from the departmental training school to go on his first foreign assignment, he is hammered with the idea that every paper he sends back will be studied to find out just what personal effort and research he put into its preparation.

The result is bound to become apparent sooner or later in the caliber of young foreign service men.

Probably it is the knowledge of this, gained from rather intimate friendship with state department younger veterans like Gibson and Bill Castle, that underlies the Hoover bent toward career appointments to higher diplomatic posts, particularly in Pan-America.

President Coolidge showed the same tendency; but many state department folk harbored the suspicion that he found that practice a good way to avoid political embarrassment. They would rather be picked for merit.

YOUR HEALTH

Hands Down!

Dr. T. C. Witherspoon, Butte, Montana
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Few people realize the tremendous significance of the habit of putting the hands to the mouth. Yet probably no other habit plays so significant a part in the health of a people. It is not only unclean, but is one of the most common factors in transferring and spreading disease processes, both of the acute type, like diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, and of the chronic type, such as Bright's disease, heart disease, and rheumatism.

But take note of the number of times the hands go to the face and mouth. There are the very common practices of picking the nose, of rubbing the face and lips, or of biting the finger-nails. In addition eating with hands which have been soiled by handling many things, or eating uncooked fruits which have been handled by many, are illustrative of the possibilities of carrying infections to the mouth.

The hand is the most prolific germ catcher we possess—its contacts are innumerable. Most of the objects we approach are touched by the hand, and who knows what infectious germs may not be gotten in this manner. For example, there is the reprehensible and rather dirty habit of sneezing or coughing into one's hand, the result of which is that a very considerable number of germs are deposited on the hand and will be given to others by hand-shaking, or will be left on door-knobs and commonly handled things where others can acquire them.

While an epidemic of diphtheria ran its course in a base hospital in France during the late war, smears were taken daily from the throats and hands of the men throughout the center. The growths from these smears frequently showed the germs of diphtheria on the hand, first, and subsequently, in the throat of those who contracted the trouble.

If it were possible to impress upon all people the very large role played by the hands in spreading infectious processes, the great danger of sneezing or coughing into the hands or putting them to the mouth, and the harm that may result even from a hand-shake, there is no doubt but that a decided improvement in health records would follow. But although it is known that the typhoid carrier may spread the disease if he handles the food others eat, it is generally forgotten that chronic rheumatism, inveterate stomach troubles, and so on, may likewise be spread by the hand through handling the foods that others eat, or by direct hand-shake, or mutual hand contacts with objects commonly and often handled.

So, the "ounce of prevention" urges that we keep our hands as clean as possible, handle things with discretion, and keep our hands away from our mouths.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

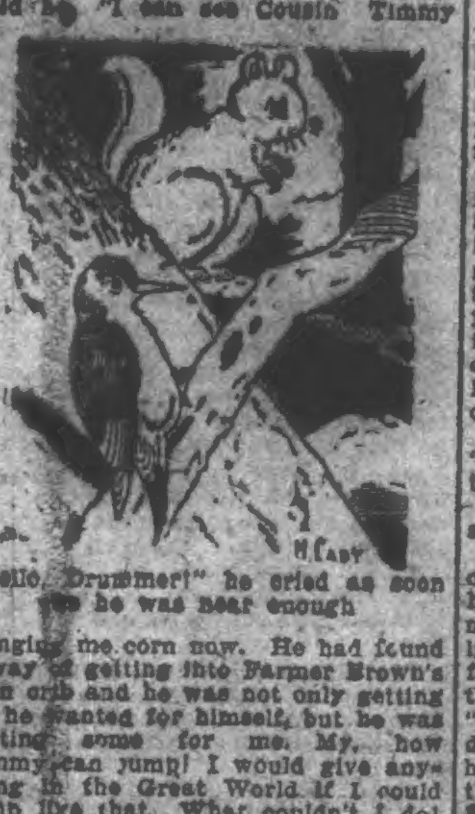
Chatterer Has a Dream

Reality doth sometimes seem
No more the truth than doth a dream.
—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel had had a dream. So very real was that dream that when Chatterer awoke at the break of day he could hardly believe that he was there in his snug bed in the hollow tree in the Green Forest. He actually rubbed his eyes and looked around to see if he were alone.

"Timmy ought to be here," muttered Chatterer, who was not yet fully awake. "I don't see where he is. He was here only a minute ago."

And the Chatterer became fully awake and realized that he was at home in his hollow tree where, of course, Timmy would not be. He realized that he must have been dreaming. He sighed. "I wish it had all been true instead of a dream," said he. "I can see Cousin Timmy bringing me corn now. He had found a way of getting into Farmer Brown's corn crib and he was not only getting all he wanted for himself, but he was getting some for me. My, how Timmy can jump! I would give anything in the Great World if I could jump like that. What couldn't I do! Timmy is lucky. Yes, sir, Timmy is lucky."



"Hello, Drummer!" he cried as soon as he was near enough

Now, Timmy is, as you know, the Flying Squirrel. Just before he had gone to bed the night before. Chatterer had received a visit from his cousin Timmy. Probably it was that visit that had made Chatterer dream of Timmy. Now that he was wide awake, Chatterer couldn't forget that dream. As usual, he went up to Farmer Brown's dooryard just for a look around. He knew he couldn't get into that corncrib, but he just couldn't keep away. He even climbed up in the tree near the corncrib—the one from which the broken limb had been cut. As he looked down on the roof of the corncrib the memory of his dream suddenly popped into his head once more.

"If I could jump like Timmy," thought Chatterer, "it would be no trick at all for me to get out of that corncrib." And right then an idea popped into Chatterer's head. He actually became excited over it. "Why didn't I think of it before!" he exclaimed. "I'll just get Timmy to go in that corncrib and drop some corn out to me. He likes corn, so we will both have all we want. That's what Timmy was doing in that dream and I don't see any reason why he cannot really do it. I must see him. I must see him at once."

Chatterer started back for the Green Forest to look for Timmy. It wasn't until he reached the Green Forest that he remembered that he didn't know just where Timmy lived. He never had been much interested in his Cousin Timmy. In fact, he very seldom saw Timmy. You see, Timmy sleeps through the day, while Chatterer sleeps through the night. So it is seldom they meet.

Chatterer stopped and scratched his head thoughtfully. "Of course," said he to himself, "Timmy is sleeping in a hollow tree. There are a lot of hollow trees in the Green Forest. I have found one or two of Timmy's old homes, but just where he is living at present I don't know. I wonder who would know. I suppose he's probably using some old home of Drummer the Woodpecker. I wonder if Drummer would know. Any way, it won't do any harm to ask."

Not far away the rat-a-tat-tat of Drummer the Woodpecker told Chatterer just where Drummer was. He hurried over there. Drummer was at work on a dead limb high up in a tree. Chatterer scrambel up the tree. "Hello, Drummer!" he cried as soon as he was near enough. "Do you know where Timmy the Flying Squirrel lives?"

Drummer stopped drumming long enough to look sharply at Chatterer, and replied somewhat crossly, "No, I don't. I don't want to know. If I did know, I wouldn't tell you. It's his business and not yours or mine." With this, Drummer flew over to another tree.

CHILD TRAINING

The Lace Box

Candace F. Stevenson

Sylvia came running to her mother with a piece of lace. "May I have this to dress up with? I want to be a queen."

"Mercy no! Where did you find my Venetian lace bertha?"

"It was in a box on the closet shelf, and you don't wear it any more!" A quiver was appearing in Sylvia's chin.

Mrs. Burnet was just putting on her hat, but she took it off, and going to the closet, carried the lace box to the bed. A pang of memory shot through her. She could remember her own mother gently unwrapping the blue tissue paper covers, taking out a christening robe and saying: "Three Sylvias have been christened in this dress. See the lovely little puffs, and the lace it is trimmed with is real Valenciennes." Now a fourth Sylvia had been christened in that same dress—her own little Sylvia who was looking at her with tears of disappointment. The laces in the box were scrambled by hurried little fingers, and on one wrapping was a black smudge.

She unfolded the point lace wedding veil that lay inside and began to tell all she knew about the way it was made: how the peasants gathered great bundles of flax and soaked them in water until the thick jacket of the stem rotted away leaving the tiny tangle of white fibers beneath: how it was combed and then spun into threads, and how the patient women sitting on their doorsteps in the sun worked away day after day, and sometimes year after year, on the same pattern, putting in the flowers and tendrils and dainty traceries; how certain families had been so noted for their lace-making that they had come to make lace only for the kings and queens and royal princesses.

"Do the Indians make lace, Mother?" Sylvia asked.

"Not if you mean the American Indians," her mother answered. "Some of the tribes make embroidery, but they have never made lace, at least, not until taught by white people. Some civilized nations have never made any of importance, either, but you and I would need to travel a good many miles if we visited every country where the lace in this box was made. Here is a mantle made by Spaniards in South America, and here is a bit of Brussels lace made in Belgium. This Venetian is made of a tiny braid. Doesn't the pattern make you think of the waves and bubbles in the water in the wake of a gondola? It is very different from the leaves and flowers of this Duchess or this Irish crochet."

"Let's play a game," said Sylvia. "See if I can name each piece and tell its country as you put it back."

"You may handle them yourself," said her mother, "only— —"

"Only I must get my hands very clean first;" and Sylvia skipped off happily, coming back after a few minutes with a pair of pink, perfectly scrubbed hands. As she helped fold the laces and put them back in their tissue paper covers, she said, "Mother I'm glad you didn't let me dress up. If you had I should only have been thinking about me and not that the lace was lovely at all."

TWO NORWICH UNIONS AFTER FIVE-DAY WEEK

Two unions connected with the building trades have served notice upon the Norwich contractors of their demands for a five-day week for the year beginning April 14, 1930. These are the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' union, local No. 12, and the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union, local No. 524. If these demands are granted the entire building trades will be upon a five-day basis.

The bricklayers are asking for a wage rate of $1.50 per hour for a five-day week to replace the present rate of $1.37½ for five and a half days.

The hod carriers' union seeks 70 cents an hour for common and building laborers instead of the present 62½ cents. Hod carriers, mason tenders, drilling and breaking rock and concrete work calls for 80 cents an hour, instead of 72½ cents an hour.

About 150 Boy Scouts and many parents participated in the religious service held Sunday afternoon at 4 in the Y. M. C. A. The Scouts first assembled in front of the city hall and after some maneuvering got in fours according to height and started on the march for the Y. M. C. A. The group made a picturesque sight as they marched along with flags waving. Arriving at the Y exactly on the hour, the Scouts marched in and took the seats reserved for them. The throwing on the screen of the American flag brought forth applause, following which America and the Battle Hymn of the Republic were sung. Herbert R. Cary, president of the Y. M. C. A., presided in the absence of Secretary Edwin Hill, who was called to New Haven. Mr. Cary called upon Rev. Joseph Cooper to give the invocation. He then introduced Scout Executive John Sellman who spoke briefly on the significance of the Scout oath. The Scouts gave the oath and Charles Coit, president of the local council, expressed the appreciation of the organization for the Y's cooperation.

The showing of the first reel of a Boy Scout Diary of Winter Camp reminded some of the Scouts of the Christmas Winter Camp recently held. Following the offering, Scout Executive Sellman introduced Rev. George Warren Potter, speaker for the occasion and scoutmaster of Troop 2 who gave an inspiring talk on "What Shall It Profit a Community If It Gain All Things But Lose Its Boys?"

Twenty years ago the organization was incorporated by three men, one of them being W. D. Boyce. Mr. Boyce became interested in Boy Scouts while on a visit to England. And it was brought about by an English Boy Scout carrying out his daily good turn slogan. While seeking a certain location in the congested part of London, a Scout noticed his bewilderment, saluted him and offered his services. Mr. Boyce accepted the offer and upon reaching his destination offered the Scout a shilling. The Scout courteously refused the offer by saluting and saying, "A Scout accepts no reward for a courtesy or a good turn." Mr. Boyce inquired what the boy meant and the Scout explained about the great organization started by Baden Powell and escorted Mr. Boyce to English Boy Scout association. Upon his return to America Mr. Boyce started the Boy Scouts of America.

The Boy Scouts of America seeks to make a man of a boy before he can make a fool of himself, the speaker continued. In the Boy Scouts we mix common sense with religion. We take what the boy likes and on to it we graft what he needs. We approach them as personalities not as human animals or just kids. John Wanamaker said, "Save a man you save one person, save a boy, you save a whole multiplication table."

Today there are 848,559 Boy Scouts in America. Last summer 50,000 Boy Scouts representing 42 nations held a Jamboree at Arrow Park, England; sons of men who fifteen years ago were fighting against each other in the World war. These boys were assembled under the banner of friendship, good fellowship and service. It was the greatest, gayest gathering of the democracy of youth the world has ever known. Those who witnessed the climax of the Jamboree when the Scouts representing the young manhood of 42 nations marched in review before the Prince of Wales, were deeply impressed. They advanced in alphabetical order with America leading under the Stars and Stripes, followed by Australia, with a strong body of lads carrying their own flag. They were of many nations, creeds and colors. Something happened in the minds of the crowd when the German boys marched by. A storm of cheers followed them around the arena, women waved their handkerchiefs. There was a noise of clapping like machine gun fire. By this welcome old hatred died and the comradeship of youth crossed the frontiers of a buried past. It was the salute of youth to a new world.

The feature picture, "Jerry" was well received by the audience and with the Scout benediction the meeting adjourned.

FUNERALS

Rita Dubois

With relatives and friends attending funeral services for Rita, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Uric Dubois, were held at 1:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents in Baltic. There were services in Immaculate Conception church at 2 o'clock, celebrated by Rev. A. A. Jalbert. The floral forms were beautiful. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the committal service at the grave was read by Rev. Fr. Jalbert. The bearers were Harold Fanning, Arthur Mercier, Louis Stephen and Hormisdas Tavernier. Undertaker George Grant, of Taftville, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Dudley R. Taylor

At 11 o'clock Saturday morning the funeral of Frances E. Taylor, widow of Dudley R. Taylor, was held at the Johnson home, No. 10 Town street, Norwich Town, a large number of mourners attending. The floral tributes were beautiful. The services were conducted by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, who also read the committal service at the grave in Poquetanuck cemetery. Friends acted as bearers. The funeral arrangements were by Undertakers Henry Allen and Son.

Special Service at M. E. Church

Sunday evening, at Trinity Methodist church, following was the order of the special service at 7:30:

Hymns, Nos. 57, 279, 272; scripture reading, Luke 15: 11-24; pastoral prayer; offertory; solo, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham; sermon, by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Cooper, Great Conversions, Masefield's "Saul Kane"; prayer; benediction; piano.

OFFICERS ELECTED AND INSTALLED FOR V. F. W. DISTRICT ORGANIZATIONS

Monthly meetings of the fourth district county council of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. department of Connecticut, and of the Ladies' auxiliary to the V. F. W. were held here Sunday afternoon at R. E. Hourigan post rooms in the Olympic building.

County Commander John A. Connor presided at the council meeting and officers' reports were received and acted upon.

A motion was passed to send a resolution to the veterans home commission, approving heartily of the appointment of Dr. William F. A. Keating, of Willimantic, as surgeon at Fitch's Soldiers home, at Noroton. Major Keating is the possessor of an honorable military record, having served in action in both the Mexican and World wars. He has also rendered valuable service in the veterans bureau. He is post surgeon of the Gold Star post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Willimantic, and an ardent and tireless worker for all ex-service men.

The election of county officers for 1930 resulted as follows: County commander Leo L. Jacques Norwich; senior vice commander, James J. Lee, Willimantic; junior vice commander, Cornelius F. Hosick, Norwich; chaplain James Irlandi, New London; quartermaster and adjutant, Earl A. Maynard, Norwich; officer of the day, Jesse Paloquin, Norwich; judge advocate, John A. Connor, New London.

The officers were installed by Past County Commander Marker Burdick, assisted by Past County Commander Joseph Ferrone, New London.

County President Mrs. Rosamond Jacques presided at the meeting of the ladies' auxiliary, and after routine business had been disposed of, including the officers' reports, the officers for 1930 were elected as follows: County president, Mrs. Elsie Moon, New London; senior vice president, Mrs. Mary Hull, Norwich; junior vice president, Mrs. Agnes Poloquin, Norwich; chaplain, Mrs. Maude Greene, Groton; treasurer, Mrs. Clara Holmes, Norwich; secretary, Mrs. Nellie Balcom, New London; conductress, Mrs. Louise Guilfoyle, Norwich; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Catherine Tinker, New London; trustees, Mrs. Agnes Connor, New London; Mrs. Rosamond Jacques, Norwich; historian, Mrs. Minnie Ortman, New London; guard, Mrs. May Richmond, Norwich; color bearers, Mrs. Agnes Connor, New London; Mrs. Anna Hosick, Norwich, Mrs. Lena Maynard, Norwich; Mrs. Evelyn Holdredge, New London.

The officers were duly installed by Past County Commander John A. Connor, of New London.

After the installations, refreshments were served by members of R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, with Mrs. Mary Hull as chairman of the committee.

GRANTS DIVORCES IN THREE UNCONTESTED CASES

Judge C. L. Avery heard three uncontested divorce suits in the superior court here Friday and granted divorces in each case. Marie Greiner Sheldon of New London secured divorce from Nathan E. Sheldon of that city and custody of a seven-year old daughter. She alleged cruelty since Jan. 1, 1927. The marriage of the couple took place June 17, 1914. Witnesses who gave testimony were Anna Mitchell and Andrew Therou.

Divorce was granted to Bridget McElligott Shippee, of Jewett City, from Harold J. Shippee, of Sterling. She was given the custody of two children but was denied change of name. They were married Oct. 27, 1920 and desertion was alleged since July 16, 1923. The petitioner testified that she and her husband made an agreement that their children should be brought up in the Catholic faith, but he refused to support them and left her when she put them under Catholic instruction. For a time after she had him arrested he complied with a court order to pay towards support, but later he stopped making payments. Margaret Prunier and Judson La Fontaine were witnesses in the case.

Arthur A. Gudeahn, who is employed in a Norwich garage, was granted divorce from Bessie Pillar Gudeahn, whom he married Oct. 17, 1923. He charged that his wife had associated with sailors and coastguardsmen since Jan. 1, 1927, in this city and at other places. The divorce was granted on the grounds of a statutory offense and the father was given the custody of a minor child, with the mother given the right to see it at reasonable times. Judge Nelson J. Ayling of the probate court testified to a recent hearing held before him in which he awarded the custody of the child to the father. Other witnesses were Charles Gudeahn and Elmer Ernest Botham.

Three other cases on the list were otherwise disposed of: Heywood vs. Heywood, was postponed; Rivest vs. Rivest, and Chase vs. Chase went off the list.

MISS ANNIE G. STANTON PRESIDENT ROSARY SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Rosary society of St. Patrick's parish was held Sunday afternoon in the society's room in the basement chapel. At the request of the president, Mrs. Jeremiah Lynch, the rector of the church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, who is treasurer of the society presided, reading a very satisfactory report of the year's accomplishments of the organization, which works for the parish poor. There is a membership of over 150 and a substantial balance in the treasury.

As Mrs. Lynch declined re-election after serving faithfully as president for two years, Miss Annie G. Stanton was the choice for president, an office which she has held with ability in three previous years. Mrs. John Fitzgerald, of Fanning avenue was elected vice president and Mrs. Nellie Murphy secretary. Monsignor May continues as treasurer.

Plans were made for the annual card party for charity and Mrs. John Fitzgerald was appointed chairman for this event.

"TODAY AND YESTERDAY" IN SILBERMAN'S WINDOW

A window display in the Silberman's furniture store, 37-41 Main street, which is entitled Today and Yesterday, is attracting most interested attention, showing the difference between house furnishings in two different eras.

In the window are shown the old-fashioned wooden top table, an old Richmond range, rubber boots and old shoes, spinning wheel, musket, plain wooden chairs, and the rough wood floor. The table holds an old kerosene lamp and dishes of that period.

In contrast, the window of the present day shows an electric refrigerator, kitchen cabinet, a percolator and modern dishes on the table, and the furniture of modern style in wood and the whole in a color scheme of green.

AMER. LEGION AUXILIARY WILL HAVE INITIATION

The auxiliary to Robert O. Fletcher post of the American Legion is to have initiation with eight candidates at its regular meeting, which is held in the state armory, being the second meeting this month. At the first meeting in the month, the welfare committee's reports on work done at Christmas time showed cards sent to each ex-service man at Uncas-on-Thames, also to one man at the state hospital, as well as well-filled baskets. A basket of fruit and a subscription to a magazine were given to a shut-in member. Boxes of toys and candy were sent to two children of an ex-service man. Each gold star mother was remembered with a gift.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CONFER SECOND DEGREE

Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's Memorial church assembly hall, White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, exemplified the second degree upon a class of 29. The special meeting for the degree work was called to order at 2.33 by Grand Knight James P. Sheridan and it was announced that a meeting would be held next Sunday at the same place for conferring the third degree.

DEDICATORY SERVICES AT MOOSUP BAPTIST CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MOOSUP, Jan. 19.—Charles E. Prior, Jr., leading business man in Hartford, who gave a memorial window for the new Baptist church here, sang "Open The Gates Of The Temple" at the Sunday morning service at the church.

The sermon, Looking Forward, was delivered by Dr. William A. Hill, secretary of Missionary Education for the Baptist denomination. Harold F. Burgess presided at the organ. Dr. Hill used the text "He went out in faith." He said that we should not open the future with the past's blood-rusted key and then proceeded to show that the church was a spiritual institution, that her message and mission are spiritual. Her mission is prophetic, not reflective.

The speaker pointed out certain things the church must guard against, first, provincialism; second, pessimism; third, pride. These things may be met by these correctives: First, by a study of geography and world facts; second, by acquaintance with history; third, by having a great sense of mission, and fourth, by being interested in young people.

The speaker pointed out that the best is yet to be and each successive generation appreciating the past, can be trusted to carry on the work of the fathers. What the church needs today, Dr. Hill said, in looking forward, is a new sense of summons, a new sense of sight and new sense of service.

The Sunday school had a share in the dedication program. Superintendent Paul W. Bayer presided and the pastor, Rev. W. W. E. DeWolfe, gave a dedication to religious education.

In the evening the dedicatory service was held at 7.30. Dr. D. E. Gates, of Hartford, was present, representing the officials of the state Baptist organization. He read the scripture and prayer was offered by Rev. William Williams. Charles Morgan, of Bristol, R. I., sang a solo and an anthem was rendered by the choir. Fred Delta, of Attleboro, Mass., also sang a solo. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Dr. David A. Pitt, of the Central Baptist church, Norwich.

Dr. Pitt gave two bits of advice, with apology, to the new church. He said the new building should never be thought of as an end in itself, that the chief business of the church was not to raise its indebtedness, but to put first the kingdom of God and money to meet the debt would come in its rightful place.

The world of materialism and humanism, he said, have nothing to offer in the way of religion, and no message of redemption. Early Christianity was a redemptive message. It had a social gospel, it had an enduement or empowering from on high. Our message must have these characteristics today. Dr. Pitt said he did not want to go into any theological discussion of the holy spirit but that an individual or a church who accepts a task for God or for the church can count on the presence and power of God for the performance of that task.

The task of the church was pointed out as the same old task to carry to a needy and heart-hungry world, to live the life Christ wants us to live, to do the deeds he prompts us to do, to bear the message of God's care and forgiveness, this is the task of the church. In doing we can count on Him and whoever will do his best and give his maximum for God and for good will find new joy, meaning and usefulness in life.

Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe in a few well-chosen words, dedicated the building, hoping that it would house an evangelistic, educational, social, missionary and spiritual church. The transfer of the keys was made for the building committee by Thomas J. Seaton to G. Edward Mortimer on behalf of the church and parish and the trustees. The pastor presented the home mission candle to Mrs. William A. Hill, to be forwarded to the Evelyn Briggs Cranska Memorial hospital in Managua, Central America, and the foreign mission candle to Miss Evelyn C. Cranska to be sent to Judson college, Burma. Nine members of the old choir sang God Be With You Till We Meet Again. Some of them sang in the church 35 and 40 years ago.

The audience stood while a selection was played on the chimes by Harold F. Burgess, in memory of Dr. Frank Smith, who was killed Thursday night in an automobile accident within a few yards of the church just after he had left the building. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. H. H. Higgins of Packerville.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Thomas A. Perkins

Following an illness of less than a week with acute indigestion, Della A. Moore Perkins, widow of Thomas A. Perkins, died at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Free in Winchendon Mass.

Mrs. Perkins was born in East Lyme, June 9, 1841, the daughter of the late James and Eliza Jane Worthy Moore, and her early life was spent in that town, where she was united in marriage with Thomas A. Perkins just before the Civil war. For 50 years she lived in Norwich, but for the past 13 years in Winchendon.

Mrs. Perkins is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Free of Winchendon and Mrs. Charles F. Sears of Norwich and four grandchildren, William A. Sears of Newent, N. J., Thomas P. Sears of Taftville, Charles F. Sears of Fall River and Nathan M. Sears of Norwich. There are also three great grandchildren and several nephews and nieces. Her husband passed away in Norwich in March, 1907.

Mrs. Perkins was a member of the Quaker Hill Baptist church, but while living in this city was connected with the Third Baptist church and was an active church worker; she was greatly interested in current affairs, was very active in the work of the W. C. T. U. and was one of the charter members of Home Chapter of the Kings Daughters. She was a woman of pleasant and lovable disposition and made friends easily.

Mrs. George T. Byrnes

Following a number of weeks of failing health, Mary Winship Lamb, 85, widow of George T. Byrnes, died Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home, 21 Union street. She was born at Norwich Town, Aug. 13th, 1844 and was the last of the family of Joseph Griswold Lamb and Lydia Eliza Winship. Her father served for a number of years as state comptroller of Connecticut.

Her first husband was Jasper H. Shaw. A number of years after his death she married George Thomas Byrnes. Practically all her long life had been spent in Norwich. She had a remarkably keen and accurate memory and was frequently appealed to by persons seeking information on points of Norwich history and development.

Her nearest surviving relative is a nephew, Joseph Irwin Lamb, of Boston, son of her brother, the late George G. Lamb.

Mrs. Byrnes was a member of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) and during her illness has received the most solicitous ministrations from the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster and Mrs. Foster, as well as from the members of that church.

Miss Mary A. O'Neil

The death of Miss Mary Ann O'Neil occurred Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock at her home, 17 Division street, following a shock with which she was stricken shortly after arising in the morning.

Miss O'Neil was born in this city and was the daughter of the late Patrick and Hannah Fitzgerald O'Neil, who were residents of the West Side section. She had always resided here and had given a lifetime of faithful service in her employment with the Reid & Hughes Co. at the Boston store, where she had been for over 50 years. The greater part of that time she had been in the linings department, but in recent years with the silk department, up to the present time. Her long service at the store had given her a complete acquaintance with its customers and she was highly regarded by her employers.

Miss O'Neil is survived by her brother, John O'Neil, with whom she made her home, and she also leaves a number of cousins in this city. She was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church.

Edward S. Purvis

The death of Edward S. Purvis, 70, formerly of Norwich, occurred at 2:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon at a Worcester hospital following an illness of a month. He had been a resident of this city for many years, living in the Sunnyside part of the Laurel Hill section, but of late had lived in Worcester. He was a carpenter by trade.

Among his survivors are two sons, Fred H. of Webster and Wilbur S. Purvis of Bayonne, N. J., and several brothers, one of whom is David H. Purvis of Montville. He was a faithful member of the Central Baptist church and was prominently identified with its activities while a resident here. He was a teacher in the Sunday school of the church and in Norman chapel, which at one time was located on Laurel Hill avenue.

Mr. Purvis was of a quiet and unassuming disposition and was ever ready to assist those in need. News of his death will be received with profound sorrow by his many local friends.

Mrs. John F. Casey

After an illness of two months Mrs. Mary Hennessey Casey of No. 77 West Town street, Norwich Town, widow of John F. Casey, died at 8:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the W. W. Backus hospital. She was born in Stafford Springs, the daughter of the late Martin and Maria Hennessey and was married there, but spent the greater part of her life in this city, where she was widely known and held in high esteem by her many friends.

Surviving Mrs. Casey are three sons, Thomas of Rockville, John of Norwich and George of New York and three daughters, the Misses Katherine and Abby of Norwich and Mildred of New York. She also leaves three grandchildren, Harold and Alice Cummings, and Paul Casey.

Mrs. Charles Davis Peck

Mrs. Mary M. Peck, formerly of Fair Haven, and a descendant of old colonial families, died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Vernon Hodges, of 203 Ridgewood avenue, Spring Glen, New Haven, as the result of a shock received some time ago, when she fell and fractured her hip and shoulder. She was nearing her 86th birthday at the time of her death.

Mrs. Peck was born Mary M. Brown, the daughter of Mary Parke Spicer and Waterman Brown of Westminster village in the town of Canterbury, on February 23, 1844. She was educated at the Select school, conducted there by T. K. Peck, a well known educator in his day, and a cousin of her future husband, and at the age of 16 she began teaching in the grade schools of Jewett City.

She subsequently conducted her own private school in Norwich, and was married in 1865 to Charles Davis Peck, the son of Fanny Francis Adams and Newton Carver Peck of Canterbury. Both Mrs. Peck and her husband were descendants of early American settlers and of people who had taken part in the Revolutionary war. On August 14 of this year the couple would have celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary.

In 1894 they moved to Fair Haven, where they lived up to two years ago when they went to reside in Hamden with Mrs. Hodges.

Mrs. Peck is survived by her husband, who will be 89 years old in February, and by her daughter, Mrs. Hodges. She was a member of St. Paul's church.

SUPPER AND DANCE GIVEN FOR VOITURE

At Odd Fellows hall in Groton Saturday evening, the Petite Salon of the 8 and 40 entertained the Voiture, No. 748, of the 40 and 8, at a delicious New England supper, over 50 persons attending. After supper, dancing was enjoyed until midnight, the music being furnished by the Coast Guard orchestra.

The committee in charge comprised La Petite Chapeau Mrs. Grace McNally, chairman, Mrs. Isabel Davidson and Mrs. Iola DeGrass of New London; Mrs. Charlotte Denison, Mrs. Josephine Tourjee and Mrs. Thomas P. Sears, of Norwich.

Y SENIORS BEAT ANSONIA IN ROUGH GAME TO TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

Norwich went into a tie for first place in the State League basketball chase at Ansonia Saturday night when they nosed out that team 41-39, while Greenwich administered a 33-27 defeat to Middletown who had been undefeated up to then. According to the present standing, Norwich, Middletown and Greenwich are in a triple tie for the league honors having suffered but one defeat each. The local club meets Middletown here this coming Saturday night, the 25th, so one of the two outfits must go down from the top.

Saturday night's game at Ansonia was exciting and close at all times, and the outcome was in doubt right up to the last. With about two minutes to go and the score tied at 39 all, Brown was fouled in the act of shooting and made good both free tries.

Coach Demarest used his entire squad of nine men in the encounter all playing a hard consistent game, but their defensive game must be bolstered up if they expect to smother Middletown's great offensive five.

TED REX WINS WORLD'S PRO SKI JUMP TOURNEY

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Ted Rex of Detroit won the first professional world championship ski tournament this afternoon at the Rochester slide of the Detroit Ski club. Anders Haguen of Westby, Wis., was a close second and Alfred Engen, also from Westby, was third. The meet was sanctioned by the American Ski association.

Rex was credited with jumps of 136 and 138 feet, and points awarded by the judges for form gave him a total of 301 1-3. Haguen jumped 126 and 141 feet and the judges awarded him 301 points.

Official standings:

	Jumps (ft.)	Points
1. Ted Rex, Detroit, Mich.	136-138	301 1-3
2. Anders Haguen, Westby, Wis.	126-141	301

RANGERS REVERSE DECISION OVER THE BLACKHAWKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The New York Rangers once more took the lead in their see-saw struggle with the Chicago Blackhawks for second place in the American groups of the National Hockey league by defeating the Chicageans tonight, 4 to 1. The decision reversed the one gained by Chicago on its home ice a week ago and gave the Rangers 38 points to Chicago's 37.

The Rangers were in their best form for their second game in two nights. Ching Johnson, burly defense star, injected the surprise element in the game, breaking through the Chicago line to score half of the Ranger goals. One in the first period and one in the third came from brilliant bits of skating and stick handling. Boucher passed to Bill and then to Bun Cook for the other New York goals. Bun's counter gave the Rangers a 3-0 lead in the first minute of the second frame.

The only Blackhawk goal came late in the second period with one Ranger off the ice. Duke Dutkowski got the puck with a clear road to the goal. He shot it forward and Stew Adams got it just in time to deflect the puck into the net.

PIQUETTE CONFIDENT OF BEATING BEAUREGARD FRIDAY

Lou Piquette of Bridgeport, who meets Al Beauregard of Taftville in the main bout of the Shyma club show at Parish hall Friday night, is confident of beating the Taftville boy. Piquette, through his manager, informs the local promoters that he will take over the local lad in quick order.

On Friday night Piquette lost on a technical knockout to Mickey Doyle of New York in the fourth round. This lost decision does not detract from Piquette in the least as it was simply an accident that the New York boy got the verdict. In a mix-up at close quarters Piquette received a cut eyelid and the blood streamed into his eye so badly that the referee had to stop the bout. The cut was a minor one and Piquette's manager says that his boy will be in tip-top shape Friday night.

Piquette holds a decision over Beauregard and expects to stop the Taftville lad before the end of the scheduled ten rounds. Beauregard on the other hand is equally as confident that he can reverse the tables on the Bridgeport lad.

ARMORY FIVE TO CLASH WITH INDIANA TEAM TUESDAY

Tuesday night the attraction at the state armory at Danielson will be the Indiana Phi Delts. This team are the professional champions of the middle west. They will bring one of the strongest teams that have played in this section of the country. For two years they have won the championship of the middle west, and this means that they must have a strong team as the mid-west has very strong basketball teams.

The Phi Delts team is made up of former college stars, of the leading colleges in the United States. This is their first appearance in Danielson, and a record crowd is expected to be on hand for the game. For an added attraction the management has signed up the Alabama Hill Billies great orchestra to play for the dance which is to follow the game.

There will be no preliminary game, as the orchestra will play before, after and during the halves of the game.

LLOYD WANER TO GO UNDER KNIFE TODAY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan 19.—(AP)—Lloyd Waner, famous half of the Waner brothers act in the Pittsburgh Pirate outfield, is to be operated on for appendicitis at Presbyterian hospital here tomorrow.

Waner became slightly indisposed last week while visiting his wife's mother, Mrs. Lydia Snyder, here. A physician's examination disclosed evidences of appendicitis and X-rays bore out that diagnosis.

Physicians were said to be confident of the success of the operation and added they thought Waner should be able to accompany the Pirate squad west for spring training next month.

CONNIE MACK OFF FOR SOUTHERN TRAINING CAMP

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Connie Mack, boss of the world champion Athletics, packed his bag tonight for an early getaway tomorrow to the south.

"I'm going to take a little vacation before my players gather in Florida for the spring training," Mack said. He will be accompanied by his wife, Thomas S. Shibe, president of the club, and Mrs. Shibe. They are going to Mount Plymouth, Fla.

Falcaro Clinches First Place

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—Joe Falcaro, of New York, world's match game champion, clinched first place in an all-star round robin bowling tournament here tonight when he conquered Jimmy Smith, of Chicago, 2110 to 1916.

MILLER STARTS TODAY IN $25,000 OPEN

Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, who is campaigning this winter in the far west, starts today in the mad scramble for the $10,000 first place money in the $25,000 Mexican open at Agua Caliente, Mexico. This, the world's greatest golfing purse, has drawn the cream of the golfers from all over the world and the most select field to ever start in a tourney will tee off today.

The local pro will not have to qualify for the tournament as he was among the first 30 to finish in the National open last June at the Winged Foot club at Mamaroneck, N. Y. Although he has not been finishing in the money in the tournaments in the west, Miller has been turning in scores that compared favorably with the majority of the professionals. In the Los Angeles open after being in seventh place at the end of the first 18 holes adverse weather conditions brought him far down the list at the end. In the Long Beach tourney he finished in ninth place.

On Saturday in the $1,000 La Jolla tournament he was only three strokes back of the winners but several ties for second and third places put him out of the money. He shot a 73 to tie with Horton Smith and Mortie Dutra and one stroke in back of Denny Shute, Jack Forrester and Al Watrous, all conceded a chance to come home in first place in the Mexican open. Miller will go into the Mexican tourney on even terms with the other pros as none has ever played over the course, not even Leo Diegel, the professional at the Agua Caliente club.

Sunday all the pros were allowed just a single round of 18 holes to familiarize themselves with the fairways and greens. Play starts early this morning and will conclude early in the afternoon so as not to interfere with the racing programs.

FAST FIELD TEES OFF AT AGUA CALIENTE TODAY

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 19—(AP)—Faced with four days of tedious golf under pressure of keen competition, almost a 100 tried and proven exponents of the great Scottish pastime today tried out the new course where tomorrow they set out on a 72 hole quest for the $25,000 in prizes awaiting the winners in the first annual Agua Caliente open tournament.

It was the first opportunity for these par-chasers to test their game over the course which holds a $10,000 sack of gold for the champion.

Going into this climaxing tourney of the Pacific coast "Gold Dust" trail, the final stand on the westward seaboard, many of the leading contenders, including such professionals as Walter Hagen, British open champion, MacDonald Smith, twice victor in the Los Angeles open and Johnny Farrell, former national open title holder, have yet to appear among the front rank money winners.

Too much brilliant play by a pair of the younger element, Horton Smith with his three championships and Denny Shute, the Los Angeles $10,000 open king, has made the winter a long empty affair to some of the veteran performers of the links.

Victory in the Agua Caliente classic or even a high place will help to change the aspect for those who have yet to cut in on the big prizes. Besides the $10,000 first place award, there is $5,000 awaiting the second finisher—more than first money in any of the other winter meetings—and a number of other big stakes.

The battle should develop into a hard driving game for the most part. The course is 6,658 yards long. The out nine some 3,362 yards with its 35, has only one par five hole, the 525 yard 8th but the journey home is more troublesome, requiring 36 strokes to come in at standard figures.

Par for the course:

Among those picked by their past performances to make a stern battle for the premier positions were Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente professional and two times P. G. A. champion; MacDonald Smith, Horton Smith, Al Espinosa, veteran Chicagoan; Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio performer and three former open champions, Bobby Cruickshank, New York; Gene Sarazen, New York, and Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla.

Geo. Von Elm, a high ranking amateur, is listed to finish at the head of the simon pures and should terminate his play well up among the leaders of the field.

Well folks, I passed another milestone along life's highway yesterday.

Nope, I'm not telling you the number of it either but I don't feel a bit older than I did last week.

The only thing I will say is that the birthday cake that was presented me by some very good friends had written on it "Sweet Sixteen and Never Been Kissed."

There's one thing I can say for those folks who gave the cake, they made a poor guess on half of that inscription, but I'll let you be your own judge.

But aren't birthdays the darndest things, you never know whether to congratulate or console a person on their birthday. It all depends on whether it's a man or a woman whose birthday it is; and also what birthday it is.

And don't it put you in a nice hole when they say, "Can you guess how old I am today?" Of course if you've known them for years and years you can come pretty close to it but it isn't always the best policy.

Today it's almost impossible to tell a woman's age. She may be on the shady side of 50 but she may look and act like flapperish 18. But with the men it's different, you can usually come within five or six years of the age one way or the other, depending on the life they've lived.

I once heard a woman say to another, "How old do you think I am?" The other woman thought a minute and comes right out with it, "You are 43 years old." Wow, what a faux pas that turned out to be.

The first woman gives the other one of those lower-than-the-dirt looks and says "You are badly mistaken, I haven't reached 35 yet!" "Well," said the other, "What's held you back? You and I graduated from high school in the same class and we was 18 then."

Well do you know those two women haven't spoken to each other since. Now take a coupla men they don't make so much of their ages. Not much. When they are 25 they feel insulted if you don't think they are 40, and when they are 40 they like to be thought 25 but nobody ever does.

When the thatch gets thin and the hair starts to turn to silver it's useless for a man to try to hide his age. He may have young ideas but the old knees creak just the same.

He may think he's just as young as he ever was but when you see him dancing with some dizzy blond until the wee sma hours of the morning you may know he's going to wake up next day full of aches and pains.

There's no place a man reveals his age like he does on a dance floor. He may get away with it anywhere else but there.

CARNERA'S DEBUT IS BIG FISTIC FEATURE THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—The biggest heavyweight in the business furnishes New York boxing fans with the nation's outstanding fistic spectacle this week.

Primo Carnera, of Italy, who grosses somewhere around 285 pounds and whose head is some six feet eight or nine inches away from the floor, makes his American debut against Big Boy Peterson of Minneapolis, in a ten round bout at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

A sell-out looms for this show for Carnera has taken metropolitan fans by storm despite the fact that he has yet to show his wares here. He has packed them in at his training quarters almost every day since he arrived here. If he is anywhere as good as he is big he should dispose of Peterson in short order.

Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro lightheavyweight, who recently knocked out Joe Sekyra in a round, meets Fred Lenhart, Spokane, Washington, in the ten round semi-final. Add Warren, North Carolina heavyweight, takes on Ora Buck Weaver of Kansas in the first ten.

Jimmy Malone, Boston heavyweight, and Armand Emanuel of Los Angeles, clash in the Boston Garden's feature attraction Friday night. Heavyweights also head the card at Cleveland tomorrow night with Johnny Risko, the baker's boy, battling Ricardo Bertazzolo of Italy.

Two champions are down for bouts in which their titles will not be at stake. Bat Battalino, featherweight title-holder, takes on Lew Massey of Philadelphia at the Philadelphia arena tomorrow night. Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, meets Vince Dundee, of Baltimore, in the top bout of the Chicago stadium's card Friday night.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At New York, St. Nicholas arena, Tommy Grogan, Omaha, vs. Billy McMahon, New York, lightweights, ten rounds.

At Cleveland: Jack Gagnon, Boston, vs. Frankie Simms, Cleveland, heavyweights, ten rounds.

PLAINFIELD WINS EASILY FROM MARTIN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 19—The Plainfield soccer team was too strong for the J. B. Martin booters of Taftville here today, winning 4 to 1 in a well-played game before a good crowd. Tommy Lang scored two of the Plainfield goals.

Shyme League Plays Tonight

The weekly contests in the Shyma league will be held tonight with the Yankee quintet clashing with the Giants in the first game and in the second the Athletics will play the Pirates. Plenty of fast basketball is seen in this league, which is developing some of the younger basketball talent.

INDOOR TRACK HAS BIG OPENING AS ACADEMY SPORT AT STATE ARMORY

Before a turnout of about 600 fans, indoor track got off to an auspicious start for the Academy Saturday evening at the state armory, when although N. F. A. lost a meet to the classy Suffield prep athletes they produced an evening's entertainment that packed many thrills through the entire three hours. The final score was Suffield prep, 59, N. F. A. 35, New London Bulkeley, 3. Chapman Tech, which was scheduled to enter a full team for the meet did not appear but Bulkeley from the Whaling City had a sprint team on hand that was able to carry back three points.

The eleven regular events and one special feature kept the crowd's interest right up to the end and saw several worthy individual performances.

Capt. Sam Berkman, the rugged Academy captain, was the individual star performer, garnering 14 1-4 points for his evening's work which included firsts in the 30 yard hurdles and 50 yard dash, a second in the 40 yard dash and 1 1-4 points as a member of the winning mile relay team.

Foster and Olin led the Suffield point-makers, each with 11 1-4 points.

Agnew ran a pretty race to win the 440-yard dash, coming strong on the last lap in a great spurt to cop first place. In the mile relay, the closing event on the programme, the Academy lived up to its reputation for possessing good relay teams by winning the event by a margin of close to three-fourths of a lap. It was the work of Lenkiewitz, running in second position that gave the Wildcats their big edge.

Johnny Lyons lost a heart-breaking race in the mile, Foster copping the event. Lyons started off too strong and after leading for more than half way started slipping back and Foster, who had hung in last place, pulled ahead in the closing yards to win. Lyons made a game effort to pull out ahead but was finally passed by two of his teammates, Lambert and Mahoney. The time in this was especially speedy, 4 min. 32 seconds.

In a special event Johnny Sullivan, of the Duwell ran from scratch against Baronsky, with a 40 yard handicap and Rupert, also of the Duwells, with a 30 yard lead and Sullivan came out in front by approximately ten yards.

Suffield made the only clean sweep of the evening when they copped the 880 yard run with Foster Blark and Rainey finishing in that order. Bulkeley scored its points when Priolo placed second in the 30 yard dash. The medley relay, which went to Suffield, was hard fought through the four distances.

The meet was run off hardly without a flaw and the sport seems to have gained a foothold by the favorable performance Saturday. The new Academy band played before the meet and also made a great impression. The band is yet without uniforms, which it expects to have in time for the baseball season.

The next Academy track meet will be held at the armory either Friday, Jan. 31, or Saturday, Feb. 1 with Stonington and probably Bulkeley of Hartford. Several special events are also being lined up.

EAGLES CUT LEAD OF REDS TO THREE POINTS

BOSTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—The fast traveling New Haven Eagles, by winning two of their three games last week, cut down the Providence Reds' lead in the Canadian-American Hockey league to a game and a half. Last week the Reds were out in front by three full games.

The Philadelphia Arrows also spurted during the week and their two victories jumped them into third place, over the Boston Tigers, last season's champions.

The official standing, including games of January 18, follows:

	G	W	L	T	Pts	GF	GA
Providence	22	13	7	2	28	69	60
New Haven	23	10	8	5	25	55	54
Philadelphia	19	9	8	2	20	46	56
Boston	21	7	10	4	18	55	58
Springfield	20	7	12	1	15	37	55

Games this week:

Tonight, Philadelphia at New Haven.

Wednesday, Springfield at Philadelphia and Boston at Providence.

Saturday, Boston at Springfield.

KILLINGLY PLAY PUTNAM TRADE SCHOOL TONIGHT

Tonight the state trade school of Putnam will try to take Killingly's scalp. The trade school has a fast team, losing to Putnam high by two points, and they have defeated the Radio Five which was an easy victim for Killingly earlier in the season. Previous scores do not determine the winner however, and the trade school may surprise Killingly, or vice versa. Killingly will be a slight favorite as they have defeated both Putnam and the Radio Five by large scores.

Killingly will have to watch three trade school men who have been the high scorers against their opponents. They are H. Young, Walsh, and Ryszewski. These men have been the best bets the trade school have had in the last games, but the others must also be watched.

The trade school team is filling a date left open by Stonington, who cancelled their games with Killingly. As yet no game has been arranged to fill the other date left open by them, but Killingly's management is trying to fill the date.

Killingly will start Slowik and Szafranski, forwards; F. Dascoli, center; Captain M. Young and Wood, guards. The trade school lineup will probably be: Captain Walsh and H. Young, forwards; Rudowsky, center; Ryszewski and Dodge, guards.

There will be a fast preliminary starting at seven forty-five.

TWO GAMES IN THE CHURCH LEAGUE TONIGHT

The Church league will resume tonight at 8:15 at the Y. M. C. A., when the Central Baptist will attempt to even surpass the score of last week's game, when Trinity defeated Jewett City 69 to 5. Jewett City with an inexperienced team is trying hard to just give their opponents a good battle, and with last week's slaughter fresh on their minds will try to stop any repetition of the same.

In the second game of the evening, the Baltic Methodist, who rallied in the second half to beat the Deltas by one point, 21 to 20, last week, will attempt to help themselves to a better position in the league at the expense of the Brothers of Joseph. In case of a Baltic win tonight, it will be a case of another miracle team which has started from the bottom of the league and worked up. On the other hand, a Brothers of Joseph win will mean a tie between them and the Gammas, leaders of the league for two years, for first place.

Although the first game does not promise to be close and exciting, the second means a lot in the standing of the league, and should be well worth the interest of Norwich fans. The standing of the league:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Gammas	4	1	.800
B. of J.	3	1	.750
Trinity	3	1	.750
Baltic	2	2	.500
Central	2	3	.400
P. D. N.	1	3	.250
Stronghearts	0	4	.000

That each one of the first five teams are still very much in the race, is very much in evidence, and the sixth team, still with a slim chance left, is ready to make things hot for the leaders. Jewett City, the new entrant in the league, intends to make this season a tuning up for a successful one next year.

HOROWITZ HIGH POINT SCORER IN BASKETBALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—Ed Horowitz of Yale has taken the lead among individual scorers in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league. The Eli forward pushed in two field goals against Cornell last night to boost his total for three games to 21 points. Tied for second place with 17 points are Lord and Goodpasture of Princeton and Brodbeck of Penn.

Horowitz, Lord and Brodbeck are setting the pace in field goals with eight and Murphy of Cornell and Booth of Yale are tied for foul goals with six each. Murphy also shares with Cheney of Dartmouth the doubtful distinction of making the most personal fouls.

BRUINS NOSE OUT COUGARS IN HARD GAME

DETROIT, Jan. 19—(AP)—The world's champion Boston Bruins nosed out the Detroit Cougars by 5 to 4 in a clean and hard-fought hockey game at Olympia tonight. A hectic second period, which saw seven scores, five in the first five minutes of play, featured the contest.

Clapper, a spare, scored twice for the Bruins, driving their third and fourth goals into the net. Carson, Oliver and Weiland also scored for the winners.

SHYMAS TO CLASH WITH NOANK ON TUESDAY NIGHT

At Parish hall, Taftville, on Tuesday evening the fast Shyma basketball quintet will clash with the Noank Whirlwinds in what is expected to be a fast game. Manager Butson of the Noank club says that the team he will put on the floor will stop the Shymas without much trouble. There will be a whist party before the game.

Holman Signed by Bruins

CHICAGO, Jan. 19—(AP)—Nat Holman, regarded as professional basketball's greatest star, has been signed by the Chicago Bruins of the National league.

Holman, who started the present season with the New York Celtics, which later were reorganized and transferred to Syracuse, N. Y., is understood to have been signed for $12,000 a season, the highest salary ever paid to a pro basketball player.

Eagles Lose

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 19—(AP)—The Philadelphia Arrows defeated the New Haven Eagles, 2 to 1, here tonight in a Canadian-American Hockey league game. The Eagles threatened throughout, but Roberts' goal tending proved too effective.

Roberts has allowed the Eagles only two goals in the last nine regulation and one overtime periods.

Women's Tourney at Los Angeles

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—The Women's National Golf championship will be decided over the course of the Los Angeles Country club, October 13-18. Announcement of the dates for the competition in which Glenna Collett, will defend her title, was made today by H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the U. S. Golf association.

McCarthy Wins Exhibition

Young Tommy McCarthy, local boxer, won a decision over Battling Ridgeway at the White Sulphur Spring gymnasium in a special exhibition match the other night. McCarthy's manager, Jackie Burns, issues a challenge to any 126-pounder in the state.

Putnam Forfeits

New London won from Putnam by forfeit in the Eastern Connecticut Soccer league as the upstaters were not able to recruit a team for the scheduled clash, which was to be played here.

Y. Athletic Activities

The Business Men's class will meet tonight at 5:15. At this time plans will be made for the volleyball league, which is to open on Thursday.

The Y Seniors will engage in another Y state league game Tuesday night when they play Stamford Y at Stamford. Announcement to those to make the trip will be made in Tuesday's paper.

POETRY

Cerelle

There was a score of likely girls
Around the prairie side,
But I went down to Galveston
And brought me home a bride.

A score or more of handsome girls
Of proper age and size,
But the pale girls of Galveston
Have sea-shine in their eyes.

As pale as any orange flower,
Cerelle. The gold-white sands
Were like her hair, and drifting shells
White fairy shells, her hands.

I think she liked my silver spurs
A-clinking in the sun
She'd never seen a cowboy till
I rode to Galveston.

She'd never known the chaparral,
Nor smell of saddle leather,
Nor seen a round-up on a ranch,
Till we came back—together.

Shall I forget my mother's eyes?
"Is this the wife you need?
Is this the way you bring me help
From forty men to feed?"

Cerelle—I think she did her best
All year. She'd lots to learn.
Dishes would slip from out her hand,
And break, the bread would burn.

And she would steal away at times
And wander off to me,
And when the wind was in the South
She'd say: "I smell the sea!"

She changed. The white and gold grew dull,
As when a soft flame dies,
And yet she kept until the last
The sea-shine in her eyes.

There are (I make a husband's boast)
No stronger arms than Ann's,
She has a quip for all the boys,
And sings among the pans.

At last my mother takes her rest,
And that's how things should be.
But when the wind is in the South
There is no rest for me.

—Margaret Bell Houston, in The Centur

The Pioneer

Long years ago I blazed a trail
Through lovely woods unknown till then,
And marked with cairns of splintered shale
A mountain way for other men.

For other men who came and came;
They trod the path more plain to see.
They gave my trail another's name,
And no one speaks or knows of me.

The trail runs high, the trail runs low
Where windflowers dance, or columbine;
The scars are healed that long ago
My ax cut deep on birch and pine.

Another's name my trail may bear,
But still I keep, in waste and wood
My joy because the trail is there,
My peace because the trail is good.

—From "The Light Guitar," by Arthur Guiterman

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"So Mama refused that young photographer?"

"Yes, that's the time he developed a negative and didn't take."—Exchange.

"How did your article on perpetual motion turn out?"

"It's a success. Every time I send it out it comes back."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Fond Mother (treating little daughter to her first soda)—How do you like it, dear?

Little Daughter—It tastes just like your foot was asleep.—Boston Transcript.

"Don't you and your husband patch up your quarrels?" asked a friend.

"Mercy no," replied Mrs. Moneybags, "we can always afford to have new ones."—Pathfinder.

"Where have you been?"

"In the hospital being censored."

"Censored?"

"Yes, I had several important parts cut out."—Montreal Star.

Customer (after clerk has pulled down all but one of the blankets on the shelves)—I don't really want to buy a blanket today. I was only looking for a friend.

Clerk (sweetly)—Well, Madam, if you think your friend is hiding in the other one, I'll gladly take it down for you.—Montreal Star.

A SATISFACTORY RESUMPTION OF INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—The sweeping resumption of industrial activity moved forward satisfactorily and in keeping with the normal seasonal trend last week. Although gains were too moderate definitely to indicate recovery from the current recession, recovering from slack periods are usually gradual, most industrial leaders believe it is too early to look for any brisk acceleration.

The retail trade situation for the second successive week was obscured by the depressing influences of extreme and unseasonable weather in practically all parts of the country. Wholesale buying improved a little, but not beyond the normal January widening of demand. Increasing interest was noted in dry goods and shoes while other lines were somewhat slack. Standard Statistics company reported its wholesale price index at the lowest level in five years.

The automobile manufacturing centers reported further moderate stepping up of activity. Manufacturers are going into production of new models, nevertheless with an ear to the ground.

Industrial statistics coming to hand served further to attest abrupt decline in business in December. Employment statistics indicated that the level as of the end of the year was only about one per cent below that of a year previously.

A rather unsettling development of the past week was widespread cutting of crude oil purchase prices by leading refining companies. Copper producers also seemed to have difficulty with maintaining the 18 cent a pound price level. Statistics for December showed a large increase in refiners stock on hand, despite further curtailing of output, and during the week Anaconda Copper Mining company cut down output further by cessation of operating at three mines.

Wheat futures sagged during the week to the lowest levels of the month, and corn reached a low level for the season.

Freight car loadings for the week ended January 4, were reported at 776,259, a gain of 137,814 cars above the low level of Christmas week, a reduction of 83,423 from the like week of a year ago, but a gain of 22,013 over that of two years ago.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Mortgage & Title Corp., with headquarters in Baltimore, has completed arrangements to acquire the $12,000,000 mortgage business of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., of New York which was conducted by the United States Mortgage & Trust Co., until its recent merger with the Chemical bank.

Net earnings of the Consolidated Aircraft Corp., for 1929 should approximate $1.50 a share, says R. H. Fleet, president.

A bondholders committee has been formed for the protection of the interests of holders of $6,670,000 principal amount of Improvement Bonds of the City of West Palm Beach, Fla. which defaulted in the payment of principal and interest early last year.

Included among the new security offerings tomorrow will be an issue of $1,000,000 4 3-4 per cent bonds of the City of Austin, Texas, maturing serially from Jan. 1, 1931, to 1960, and to be offered at prices to yield 4.50 per cent.

Net income of the Detroit Edison Co. for 1929 totaled $13,494,262 against $12,990,311 in 1928, Alex Dow, president, in his annual report to the stockholders, says that sales showed an increase last year in every classification of electric service except to interurban and street railways. Industrial power sales, however, had less than normal gains. Looking into 1930, Mr. Dow says: "Our guess—not our prediction—is that our own business will be fairly good. We have no fear of its going bad."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Today and tomorrow—only for two more days is it possible to see the glamorous pageant that is now playing at the Palace theatre—the "Show of Shows," a Warner Brothers classic of the screen which has so many stars that even to read the cast is dazzling enough.

Those who have not yet seen this tremendous spectacle should avail themselves of the opportunity either today or Tuesday, for such chances come but once in a lifetime. Probably never again in the history of the motion picture industry will one studio be able to gather together again under one banner in one show so many star actors and actresses.

Here for the price of an ordinary show, you see world-famous celebrities, people whom you read about every day, and people whom you see by only ones and twos or possible threes, in individual pictures. It is a dazzling sight, a sight that you will remember as long as you live.

John Barrymore is there in a powerfully dramatic sketch from one of Shakespeare's plays. His wife, the lovely Dolores Costello, appears in another number. Winnie Lightner is to be seen and heard in "Singin' in the Bathtub," while in the same sketch, handsome Bull Montana, all togged out in evening dress, tenderly croons "You Were Made For Me."

Starting Wednesday the Palace will present another smashing double-feature program. The treats in store for the public at that time will be disclosed more fully later but for the present, all we need to say that the Palace will show "Three Living Ghosts," and "A Most Immortal Lady." Don't miss that one either, for it is one of the best double-shows yet presented here.

Broadway Theatre.

The most surprising screen performance of the season is turned in by Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook in their latest success, "The Laughing Lady," which delighted audiences at the Saturday and Sunday performances. Sophisticated, spicy, and intensely dramatic, with clever touches of comedy, "The Laughing Lady" tells the story of a high-spirited society woman who laughs at everything in life until the slimy fingers of scandal pull her down, and she is publicly disgraced by her husband's lawyer. She determines on revenge and the unfolding of her scheme furnishes an even more thrilling story than "The Laughing Lady." Miss Chatterton's performance is nothing short of marvelous, surpassing even her famous roles in "Madam X," "Charming Sinners," and "The Doctor's Secret." Clive Brook as the cold, merciless lawyer who melts under the fiery campaign of the woman he had scorned, earns new laurels for this master of expression. Added features include the latest Paramount Sound news, Lois Wilson in a smart comedy, "For Love Or Money," and the Eight Victor Artists, headed by Henry Burr in "The Rubetown Minstrels," with a clever, snappy Metrotone musical and dancing revue completing the program.

Breed Theatre.

The much heralded Fox Movietone all talking comedy drama, "They Had To See Paris," in which Will Rogers is both heard and seen, opened an engagement of four days at the Breed theatre Saturday. It is a laugh riot from beginning to end, with occasional dramatic high spots in which Rogers reveals himself not only as a comedian, but as an emotional actor of unusual power.

Rogers is supported by a splendid cast which includes the charming and talented Marguerite Churchill, the sparkling and artful Fifi Dorsay, Owen Davis, Jr., Irene Rich, Rex Bell, Ivan Lebedeff and Theodore Lodi.

The story concerns an Oklahoma family, made suddenly rich, and their experiences in Paris.

Frank Borzage of "7th Heaven" fame directed the picture and Owen Davis, Sr., wrote the dialog, after Sonya Levien had made the adaptation from Homer Croy's widely read novel.

STARCHED HATS SHOWN AS NEXT SUMMER STYLE

PARIS, Jan. 18—(AP)—Somebody has rediscovered the sunbonnet and brought it up to date.

The milliner who takes the credit for launching the style first designed the model in white trimmed with colored embroidery.

There are other linen hats in the winter showings of summer millinery now in progress. Some of the shade hats shown have stiffly starched linen brims.

LAURA BERG, NEW LONDON, INJURED WHEN CAR STRUCK POLE AT JORDAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19—Four young people miraculously escaped serious injury early today when an automobile performed numerous stunts, including crashing through a highway fence and hitting a telephone pole on the Boston Post road. As the crash turned out, Mario Musante, William street; Gordon Mahan, Broad street; Miss Bertha Burdick, Belden court, and Miss Laura Berg, Connecticut avenue, all escaped injury other than bruises, excepting Miss Berg, who is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering with two broken fingers and abrasions.

The party had been at a waffle house in Lyme. When returning to New London during the early morning hours, Musante, who was driving a Ford car, lost control of the steering wheel when Jordan cemetery was reached. The car left the concrete highway and continued to a field where it traveled along a considerable distance parallel with a state highway fence. The course of the car was then diverted for it crashed through the fence, leaped over a brook 2 feet in width and finally came to a stop only when a telephone pole was in its path. The pole was struck with such force that it all but snapped off close to the ground. All four occupants were taken to the hospital, but it was found necessary to administer medical treatment only to Miss Berg. The accident was reported at the state police barracks and an investigation is under way.

BOYS START BRUSH FIRE GETTING OUT ENGINES

Mischievous boys set fire to a quantity of inflamable material, including decayed brush in the rear of the store and residence of Louis Feliman, 436 Montauk avenue, late this afternoon. The blaze was so threatening that an alarm was pulled in from Box 511, corner of Montauk avenue and School street, Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus responded. The fire was quickly extinguished, before damage to any of the houses resulted.

James Wall, a fisherman, was arrested this afternoon charged with breach of the peace and intoxication and will be in court Monday. Wall was on State street and near the corner of Bank street engaged in a row with any other pedestrian and was using obscene language when the brawl was ended by Patrolman William Riordan arresting Wall. He could not furnish a surety on his bond of $100 and was locked up.

MURPHY THREATENED COOK—OUT UNDER $100 BOND

Thomas Murphy, 76 Harrison street, was arrested this afternoon charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He was liberated tonight when he obtained a surety on his bond of $100. Murphy will be presented in the police court Monday. When searched at police headquarters Murphy had two quart bottles partially filled with rye whiskey, the bottles bearing the popular brands "Golden Wedding" and "William Penn." Murphy went to the waterfront early this afternoon and boarding the Keeler Transportation company's tug Watuppa, requested work as a fireman. There was no vacancy among the crew and Murphy was refused. Murphy then produced his liquor and some of the crew were given drinks. One member of the crew went ashore with Murphy and when the two men returned, Murphy, it is claimed, demanded that the cook provide him with dinner. When Murphy was refused he threatened to kill the cook. Capt. J. J. McGinnity made complaint to Patrolman Edward Skozcylas, who arrested Murphy. He has a long police court record having been arrested many times.

POLICE ON THE TRAIL OF CHARLES WILLIAMS

The police Saturday sent about 100 circulars to various police departments requesting that a sharp lookout be maintained for Charles Williams, colored, who is wanted on a charge of murder, in causing the death of Jacob Wheman, of 25 Shapley street, nearly a week ago. Williams, whose home is in Norfolk, Va., has been employed as a cook on barges. Meantime there are locked up at the county jail four men, William Franklin, known as Rattlesnake Pete, Linwood Farrell, known as Peanuts; Ernest Johnson and and Irvian Gillian, all colored, the quartette being held as material witnesses, but when the case finally gets into court it would not be surprising if one of the men in custody is not presented on a serious charge. The investigation being conducted by Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh so far has resulted in the arrested men having made several conflicting statements and from information received from men who saw the Negroes about the time that the assault upon Wheman was made and which resulted in his death, it is known that at least one of the men detained has not related the truth in his statements. Three of the arrested men are of the type that do not resort to manual labor to obtain an existence and are about the streets day and night, particularly in the night season. All have been closely watched by the police for many months, but evidence of their violating the law could not be obtained.

GAS-GETTING SIMPLE, TILL THIEVES ARE CAUGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—Gasoline station thieves were caught early today, in the act of robbing the Shell gasoline station, 693 Broad street. The youthful crooks sought to fill the gasoline tanks of their car with the fuel, but did not attempt to gain entrance to the station proper. The youths under arrest are Oliver Abernathy, 178 Ocean avenue, gasoline station clerk; Francis Axsom, 150 Ocean avenue, laborer, and Oliver Harris, 69 Montauk avenue, lineman. They will be in court tomorrow, charged with attempted theft.

They, with Abernathy's automobile, went to the Shell station about 5 o'clock this morning, broke the lock on the gasoline pump and were about to fill the tanks of the auto, one of which was beneath the rumble seat. Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Bay, who was passing through Broad street, observed the youths at the pump and realizing that the station is closed about midnight decided to make an investigation. Approaching the pump, the officer observed that the hose had been removed and a further examination of the pump showed that the lock had been removed. Inspecting Abernathy's auto the lock was found in it. Abernathy is employed as an attendant at the Gulf gasoline station, corner of Main and Church streets.

An automobile driven by Ralph Ferguson, proprietor of a shop at 88 Broad street and residing at the same address, collided with a machine driven by Albert Brown, 31 Hill street, on the New Haven turnpike, near Jordan cemetery, Waterford, early today. Both automobiles were damaged, but none of the occupants sustained injury. Ferguson was arrested by State Police Officer Arthur Kathe, charged with reckless driving, and will be in the Waterford town court Monday afternoon.

At a meeting of the Junior King's Daughters of the Second Congregational church, the following officers were elected: President, Ruth Sims; first vice-president, Diana Gardner; second vice-president, Dorothy Bater; secretary, Dorothy Primer; treasurer, Margretta Moffitt; musician, Laura Wagner; work committee, Dorothy [illegible] and [illegible] Lambert [illegible] Dorothy [illegible] and [illegible] Hamilton.

POLICE ASKED TO HEAD OFF CHESTER PHILLIPS, LISBON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—John Potter of Lisbon communicated by telephone with the New London police Saturday morning and requested that Chester Phillips, [illegible] be arrested on a charge of theft. Potter stated that Phillips was en route to New York, but a scrutinizing of passengers boarding New York-bound trains did not result in Phillips being arrested, as no one answering his description was observed boarding the trains. Potter did not state the nature of the charge of theft against Phillips.

The condition of Daniel Fitzgerald of Bayonet street, employed by the Connecticut Co. as motorman, is improving at the private hospital where he was operated upon recently for appendicitis.

Elmer Pierce of Deep River was a recent visitor in New London. Mr. Pierce for many years was a drug clerk in this city.

Mrs. Joseph DiMarco and infant son of 870 Bank street, Mrs. Edgar Nowland and infant son, Uncasville and Mrs. Harry Page, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Eugene L. Curtiss

Mrs. Effie E. Curtiss, 51, wife of Eugene L. Curtiss of 207 Vauxhall street, died Friday night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital after an illness of about three weeks. Besides her husband, Mrs. Curtiss is survived by a son, Eugene J. Curtiss, and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Palmer, of Cambridge, Mass. Mrs. Curtiss, who was born in Glen Falls, N. Y., had been a resident of New London 25 years.

Andrew Platz

Andrew Platz, 84, formerly of New London, died Friday at the state hospital, Middletown. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Maude A. Weiss, of New York. Mr. Platz during his long residence in New London was a cigar maker. He had been a patient at the Middletown hospital nearly 40 years.

FUNERAL

Benjamin F. Edwards

Funeral services for Benjamin F. Edwards, formerly janitor of the Huntington Street Baptist church were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. Rev. Richard I. Porter officiating. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

NORWICH AMATEUR PUGILIST FARES HARD OUTSIDE RING

Maurice Moriarty, who described himself as a pugilist, residing at 21 Brook street, Norwich, and whose home nickname is "Mush," was in the police court Saturday, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He was fined $10 and costs. Moriarty attended the fistic battles staged by the East End Athletic club at the state armory Friday night and while there became boisterous. He evidently attempted to stage a bout of his own outside the ring and Patrolman William Manice was summoned to quiet the disturber. Moriarty informed the officer of his ability as a user of his fists and then sought to display his wares on Manice's face. Moriarty is probably sorry for his act, for Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran was near at hand and in quicker time than it requires to relate what occurred, Moriarty's facial expression was considerably mussed and he was yanked from the building and taken to police headquarters for the remainder of the night.

Three cases of intoxication were tried. One man with a police record of 26 arrests was sentenced to jail for ten days. Another, a deckhand arrested on Howard street, was given suspension of judgment that he might return to his work, and the third was fined $10 and costs.

Found Missing Daughter

Mrs. Maggie Perone, 120 Enfield street, Hartford, came to New London Saturday seeking her daughter, Josephine Longo, 11, who, she said, had been enticed from her home by the child's uncle, Tony Longo, 23 Shaw street. Mrs. Perone informed the Hartford police Friday that Longo had been in Hartford where he located the child and induced her to come to this city. The Hartford police informed the New London police of the incident and requested that Mrs. Perone be given assistance in finding the girl. When Mrs. Perone went to New London police headquarters, Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin was assigned to the case. He accompanied Mrs. Perone to Longo's home, where the child was found and delivered to the parent.

FOUND ON BOZRAH FARM—LOPER STOLE TRUCK IN '27

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—After keeping his whereabouts unknown for over two years from the state police at Otsego, N. Y., Jerry Loper of Waterford, employed on the farm of Russell Taylor at Bozrah, was in the police court here Saturday, charged with being a fugitive from justice. He is wanted at Richfield, N. Y., charged with grand larceny because of having stolen an automobile truck from a former employer, William C. Laire, of the latter place. Loper's case was continued to Tuesday and in default of $2,500 bail he was committed to jail. An officer of the New York state police will come to New London and take Loper back to Richfield. Loper was employed by Laire in 1927, under an alias. When he left the Laire farm Loper drove away in Laire's truck but before he succeeded in getting out of the state the truck became disabled and Loper abandoned it. At that time the state police requested the arrest of the thief, but in making the request gave the aliases of Loper to the New London authorities. A few days ago it became known that Loper was the man sought for the auto theft and Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh went to the Taylor farm, where Loper was found and arrested. At first he denied all knowledge of the automobile theft or that he had been in Richfield, but after leaving the farm he admitted stealing the truck. He has waived extradition and will be delivered to the state police whenever the latter arrives in New London. Upon reaching the jail Loper learned that his wife, Loretta, is there awaiting trial in the superior court on a charge of adultery, having been arrested a week ago when found living with a coast guard sailor at Waterford.

CLEVELAND WOMEN TO AID IN GUIDING INDIAN DESTINY

Miss Renie Burdett (lower left) and Mrs. Alexander Winton (above) have been elecetd to the Supreme Council of Indian Tribes of the United States and Canada ,under direction of Chief Thunderwater (lower right.)

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19—(AP)—Two American women henceforth will have much to say about the direction of Indian life.

The Supreme Council of Indian Tribes of the United States and Canada, under the direction of Chief Thunderwater, has elected to membership Mrs. Alexander Winton and Miss Renie Burdett of Cleveland.

Mrs. Winton is president of the Women's National League for Justice to the Indians and Miss Burdett is vice president and secretary.

Both are authors of Indian operas and both dedicated to the proposition of abolishing Indian governmental bureaus.

Mrs. Winton is the wife of Alexander Winton, automobile man. She is the composer of the Indian opera, "The Seminole."

The league, which was organized in Cleveland, is expected to grow into a national organization, the members of which will be club women throughout the United States.

It seeks to restore the old tribal authority to the Indians, to do away with all government chaperoning, to provide good roads and schools on reservations, opportunities for Indian boys in aviation, and freedom from segregation.

Many Indians attended formation ceremonies of the league in Cleveland recently and personally invested Mrs. Winton and Miss Burdett as members of the Indians' supreme tribal council.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

The Pattern

I know of an affectionate and devoted young mother whose love of herself is so strong that her love of her child appears upon close examination to be little more than an extension of her self love.

She herself struggled heroically through a frail and sickly childhood to her present physical strength and unusual athletic skill.

Her baby was beautifully healthy and vigorous, but she was not content. She "exercised" it, taught it all sorts of stunts when it should have been playing in its crib with the aimless delight of babyhood, and at the age of eight months, when it could stand only by means of holding on to something with both hands, she insisted on treating it as if it were a full fledged runabout.

Already this baby is being forced into the pattern of its mother's life.

The mother who thus insists that her child succeed in the very things in which she herself has been successful is vain and egocentric rather than maternal.

There is in most of us who are parents a tendency to identify our children with ourselves. We cannot help it. Their successes are our successes, their failures are ours.

Whether this tendency becomes for them a background of courage and security or whether it places them in the front line of battles not their own, depends entirely on the degree of maturity and disinterested affection to which their parents have attained.

CRYSTAL CHAINS WORN IN SCARF FASHION

PARIS, Jan. 19—(AP)—Crystal chains which are worn scarf fashion are a recent jewelry fad.

There are many ways of wearing the chains. A favorite is knotted once on the left shoulder, with ends falling front and back over the shoulder. Crystal beads and imitation carved emeralds are worn in the same fashion.

GRANDMA'S CLOTHES DO NOT CHECK HIGH JINKS DEB

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—Grandmother's gown disguises the Washington debutante's appearance this winter, but it does not change her modern mind and manners.

She is just as athletic, despite long skirts and tight waists.

A long summer in the open has prepared her for such a strenuous social program as grandmother never could have stood. After dancing all afternoon as the debutantes do now, then again until dawn, grandmother would have fainted in about the fifth dance of the evening.

By that time the 1930 deb is just getting her second wind. Not a step does she falter. Those clinging blue, pink or red taffetas and chiffons which mould her form so tightly are not built up over whalebone. Her own strong figure supports them.

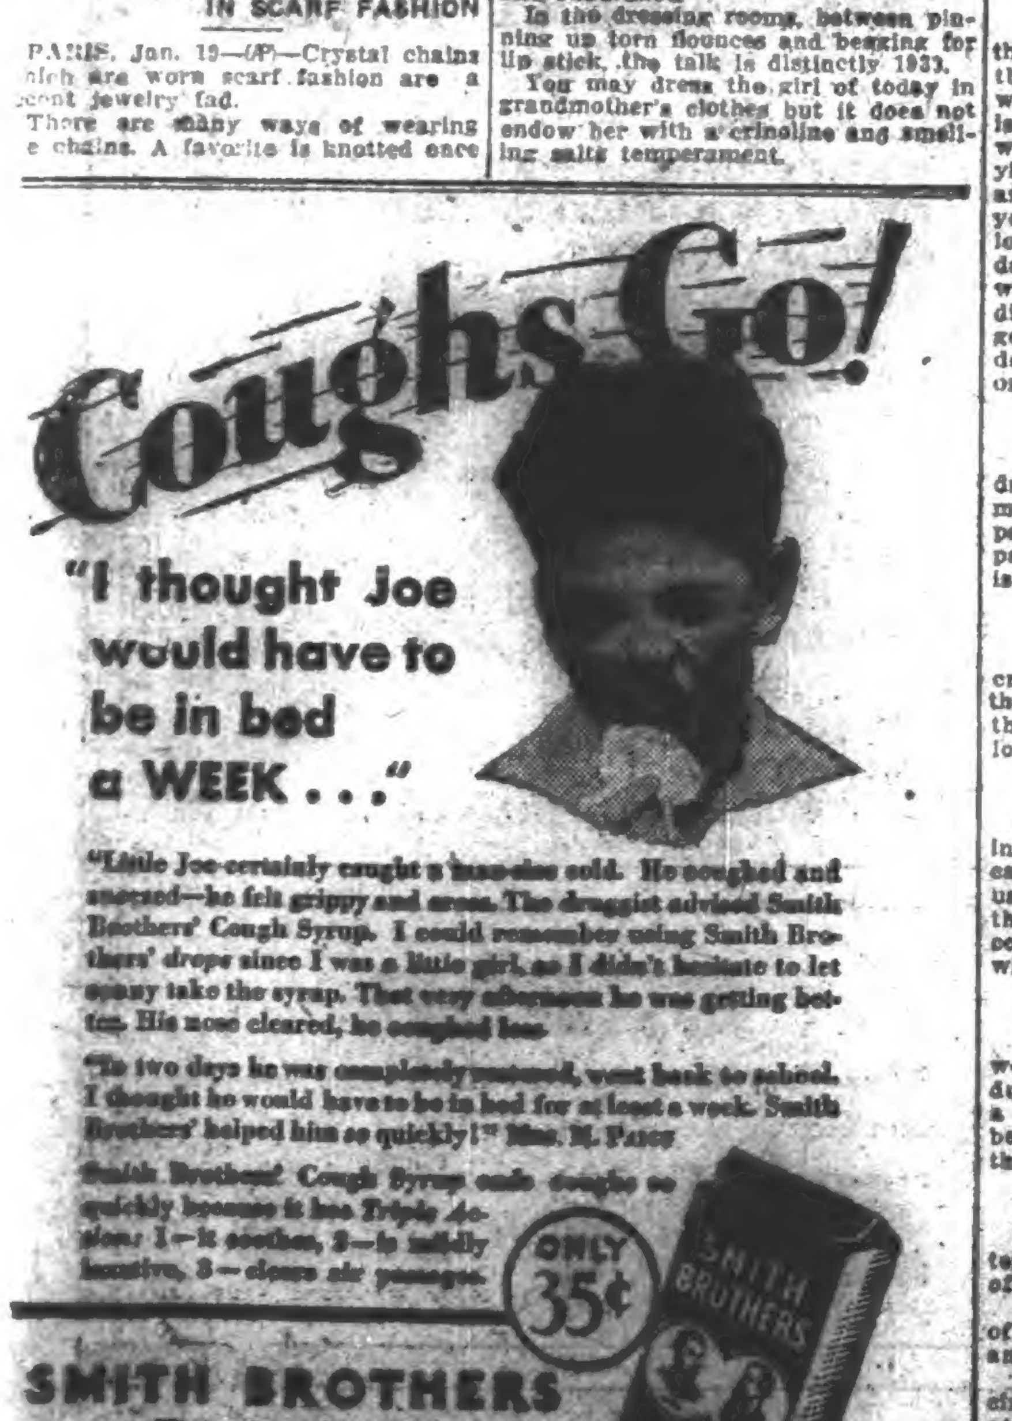
I saw one deb walk sedately with her escort to the middle of the ball room. Only a few were dancing. The long stretch of polished floor gave this pair an idea.

The youth suddenly turned, ran a few steps and skated clear to the far end of the room. His partner gave a little whoop and promptly followed, her long skirts and tight waist no more deterring her than if they had been sweater and knickers.

A little dark-haired deb in red who had been whisked from one partner to another all evening gave a down-south hoedown which required both speed and endurance.

In the dressing rooms, between pinning up torn flounces and begging for lip stick, the talk is distinctly 1930.

You may dress the girl of today in grandmother's clothes but it does not endow her with a crinoline and smelling salts temperament.



Coughs Go!

"I thought Joe would have to be in bed a WEEK . . ."

"Little Joe certainly caught a man-size cold. He coughed and sneezed—he felt grippy and cross. The druggist advised Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. I could remember using Smith Brothers' drops since I was a little girl, so I didn't hesitate to let sonny take the syrup. That very afternoon he was getting better. His nose cleared, he coughed less.

"In two days he was completely recovered, went back to school. I thought he would have to be in bed for at least a week. Smith Brothers' helped him so quickly!" Mrs. M. Pacey

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs so quickly because it has Triple Action: 1—it soothes, 2—is mildly laxative, 3—clears air passages.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Don't try to polish furniture with the dust cloth that removed the soil.

When baking apples, prick the skins with a fork and they will not burst.

A spoonful of cornstarch will take the place of one egg when making an omelet.

Salt sprinkled on the soot on a rug can be brushed up, bringing all the soot along with it.

Use a pancake turner to remove hot pies or other baked dishes from the oven.

Add a pinch of baking powder to the meat or vegetables when you wish to hasten cooking.

Always warm the coffee pot before making coffee. Then sprinkle a little salt on the coffee before pouring on the boiling water and the flavor will be greatly improved.

Delicious sandwiches can be made by spreading cream cheese and chopped nuts on slices of whole wheat bread. Add butter and season well.

After cutting a fowl, soak the parts for one-half hour in cold water, in which has been dissolved a half teaspoonful of baking soda. This removes any unpleasant taste after dressing.

No matter how bright and shiny new aluminum-ware appears, it should be washed thoroughly with soap and water before being used in order to remove the grease applied during manufacture.

Try toasting bran bread for breakfast. Jelly, jam, honey or peanut butter are delicious when spread on bran bread. Or, mix equal parts of honey and peanut butter and use as a sandwich filling.

LIGHT PIE CRUST

Never roll out pie crust immediately after removing it from the refrigerator. Take it out of the refrigerator about an hour before using and you will have a better crust.

COOKBOOK

To keep the page open at a certain recipe in the cookbook, snap a rubber band over the page and the back of the book, lengthwise. This will prevent greasy fingerprints from getting on the pages.

DISHCLOTHS

Dishcloths should never be left in a wet, sodden pile after using and so become fatty and sour and unfit to wash anything. Wash them out in suds after each using and hang them in the air to dry.

RIB ROAST

Many housewives find it more economical when buying a rib roast to have the butcher cut the rib end off so it can be used for soup. If it is left on and roasted with the meat it is largely wasted.

VEGETABLES

To furnish the system with a well-balanced diet, one which keeps neutralizing the acids of protein foods, a large variety of fresh vegetables should be eaten.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Rub the frost-bitten parts with pure oil of sassafras, or oil of peppermint. Use only the pure oil, not the essence.

A lotion for the hands is equal parts of camphor and glycerin. It softens and whitens them. Massage it into the hands several times during the day.

For thin eyebrows apply warm olive oil or vaseline every night before retiring. Or, dip the fingertips in lanolin and massage them each night.

Windows should be opened in a sick room every two hours in cold weather and left to stand open a short while, to give the proper ventilation.

When burns or scalds are healing, rub the new skin several times a day with good sweet oil, to prevent scars. Persist until the new skin is soft and flexible.

FRESH HANDKERCHIEFS FOR BABY.

As soon as the baby learns to use a handkerchief properly he should have a supply of his own. Even before that time mothers should avoid using their own soiled handkerchiefs to wipe the baby's nose, as colds and other communicable diseases may be readily transmitted in that way.

When the baby has passed the toddler stage he should be taught to put his soiled handkerchiefs into the clothes hamper.

CHOKER.

It is a terrific temptation to buy the exquisite chocker necklace, either in real or near-real stones, which one sees everywhere. And it is a temptation to which the woman with a long, slender neck ought to yield. But if your neck is plump and short, flee the tempter and get yourself necklaces considerably longer even though you have to hunt days to find them. Nothing, by the way, is more interesting on a black dinner frock than a necklace of gold in a heavy, twisted rope, undecorated by jewels. Genuine gold or not, the effect is striking.

ENVELOPES OF SILK.

For trunk, suitcase or bureau drawer, a set of four envelope bags made of old rose silk lined with pale blue and trimmed with a patch-work design in colored silks is both a luxury and a convenience.

CROCHET NEEDLE.

Keep a cork on the end of the crochet needle when not in use and the needle will not work through the basket and become broken or lost.

EXTRA CHAIR.

An old camp-stool may be made into an attractive extra chair if the canvas is removed and a cretonne used in its place. Paint the legs of the stool with one of the brilliantly colored paints that will harmonize with the colors in the cretonne.

TO DRY SWEATER.

One of the best ways to dry a woolen sweater that has been washed during cold weather is to lay it on a window-screen, which has first been covered with a white cloth, and then placed over a register.

DISTATES OF FASHION

One of the smartest of smart winter styles is to have one's beret made of the fabric of the coat.

Woolens are appearing in a variety of forms and being used for street and afternoon.

A new lingerie set has brassiere, circular step-ins and a little wrap-around petticoat of white satin and ecru-lace.

Old frocks are made new through the addition of pleated satin at neck and wrists, collar and cuffs edged in neat points or scallops.

White satin, taffeta, moire, chiffon, crepe and lace are various fabrics used, each with a different aspect when executed in the floor length draped silhouette.

DANCING SANDALS.

Lovely sandals fit for a princess are made of white de chine embroidered with tiny scallops of silver. There is hardly anything to these slippers save a couple of straps, which twist in an intricate fashion. Incidentally, they can be dyed to match one's frock.

EVENING BAGS.

Suspended from bags of white silk moire to carry in the evening is a round ornament of glass set in silver and small white stones with a monogram in the center. These circlets, which swing from a narrow strap, add immensely to the charm of the bags.

EVENING TURBAN.

A successor to the summer turban of chiffon is a draped cap of dull gold lace with ends that may be wound about the head and tied as one finds most becoming. This fetching little evening accessory complements the long modeled gowns and is smart with a fur or furred evening wrap.

BUCKLES MATCH COSTUME COLOR.

When there is a belt—and there frequently is this season, there is apt to be a buckle. Hence their forms are the focus of interest. Metal buckles on suede belts are futuristic in design and may be of silver, bronze, gold, copper, or any combination of metal tones to suit the costume and the individuality of the wearer.

Crystal belt buckles and those of rhinestone find especial favor on the slender silk belts of formal gowns. Leather and wood add definitely to the charm of the sports belt. Metal belts are studded with the stone of the other costume jewelry worn. But always the buckle contributes directly to the entire accessory ensemble.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Cranberry stains can be removed from linen by washing with warm water and soap.

Do not roll colored clothes after sprinkling them for ironing. If they are laid flat colors in them are less likely to run.

When ironing soft collars start at the center and iron towards the end, beginning at the center again to iron the other end. There will then be no creases.

To wash chamois gloves use soap lather with several drops of ammonia. Put on the gloves and rub in the lather as if washing and wipe them dry with a linen cloth.

CURTAINS.

The laundering of sash curtains is a simple matter, especially if they are made of net, scrim or some other sturdy, openwork fabric. If so, ironing can be dispensed with entirely. Wash the curtains in the usual way with plenty of soap and warm water, and while they are still wet put them in place on the rods. They will dry smoothly and stretch to just the proper size with the edges even and straight.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

For health and comfort the weight of children's clothing should hang from the shoulders rather than from the waist.

A SMOKE CHASER.

The living room need never be full of smoke if the hostess is provided with a jug containing a powder, which when put upon ash-trays, etc., kills all smell and smoke.

SHOE CONVENIENCES.

A little leather case, which contains a shoe-horn, a button-hook and, wonders of wonders, a shoe-polisher, makes a clever and inexpensive gift for either man or woman.

PASTEL POWDER-PUFFS.

The hostess who entertains much will be glad to receive as a little gift a box, which contains a dozen pastel-tinted powder-puffs, each with a tiny blue forget-me-not in the center.

SILVER.

When packing away silver wrap it in blue tissue-paper, using plenty of it, and put a small piece of camphor in the box in which it is packed. Treated in this way, silver will not readily tarnish.

TO IMPROVISE A BOUDOIR.

Sometimes an alcove of a bedroom is equipped with just a bit more grace and charm than the room proper, and thus a boudoir effect is created where otherwise there is no space for a boudoir. Into such a nook, the built-in corner cupboard fits snugly and tellingly. It is at its best in such a setting if constructed like the woodwork of the room, but with its shelves lacquered or painted in contrasting color to emphasize one of the tints in the room's color scheme. The color in the cupboard may echo the dominant note in the chintz draperies. It should be a subtle background for toilet bottles, boxes and jars, and such odds and ends of porcelain and glass as a woman may want to have near her dressing table.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Fashionable women in London, England, are again wearing monocles.

Women in Paris, France, have again taken to the bicycle as a means of health and pleasure.

Every native woman in Turkey has the right to elect or be elected in municipal elections.

Women now have the right to use the club and lounge cars on Central Vermont railway trains for smoking purposes as well as men.

Dr. Ruth Chan, aged 32, is said to be the youngest and only Chinese woman doctor in Hawaii. Her practice in Honolulu is quite large.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former tennis star, is chairman of a new enterprise which will handle the handiwork of the women of Norway in the United States.

Women in Russia, between the ages of 18 and 23, are to be admitted to military academies for instruction in rifle and artillery fire, aviation, photography, communication and medical service.

BLACK PILLOWS.

For the room that lacks definite character, a couple of black silk soft pillows, among rose, greens, gold and blues, will do much.

CARD TABLE.

When the leather top of your card table begins to look shabby cover it with black oil cloth and paint edges and legs red. It will look like a new table.

SLIP COVERS.

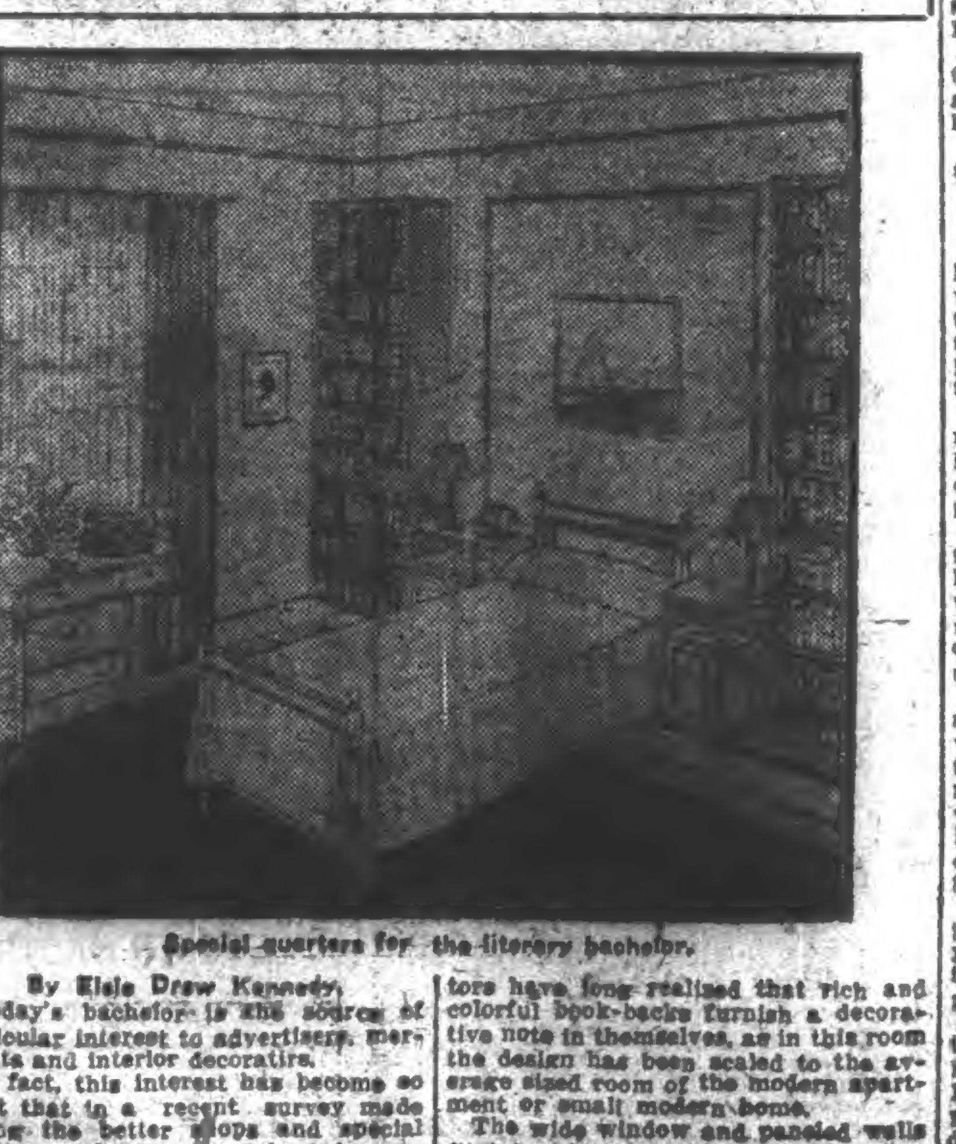
Like furniture covers, slip covers for the upholstery of motor cars can be secured in many good-looking designs. Some are made of especially prepared materials that can be sponged with soap and water without fear of the moisture soaking through to the upholstery. Others can be removed and laundered in the usual way.

RECIPES.

Apricot Tapioca Pudding: Wash three-fourths of a pound of dried apricots, soak them for an hour in three cups of water, then cook them until tender and drain. To the juice add enough hot water to make two cups of liquid, then three tablespoons of minute tapioca and a pinch of salt. Cook over hot water, stirring frequently, until the tapioca is clear, then add half a cup of sugar and cool. Force the apricots through a food press and add the pulp to the pudding. Chill and serve with whipped cream.

Potato and Nut Puffs: These make a substantial main dish for luncheon or supper. To prepare, peel, boil and mash four potatoes of medium size, add to them two tablespoons of melted butter, half a teaspoon of salt and milk enough to moisten well. Whip lightly and fold in half a cup of chopped hickory nut meats and one well beaten egg. Make into small cakes or balls and roll in beaten egg and then in chopped nut meats. Sprinkle with paprika and bake on a buttered baking sheet in a hot oven to a delicate brown. Serve with a garnish of watercress dipped in French dressing.

A HANDY COMBINATION FOR THE BACHELOR



Special quarters for the literary bachelor.

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

Today's bachelor is the source of particular interest to advertisers, merchants and interior decorators.

In fact, this interest has become so great that in a recent survey made among the better shops and special furniture exhibits, the bachelor received prominent and considerable attention.

Manufacturers of fine furniture and advertised lines of merchandise are now developing special types for this discriminating class, while it is a comparatively simple affair to find the proper accents in the way of colorful and masculine accessories—new smoking sets, hunting prints and other details that always appeal to man.

In the accompanying sketch the decorator, evidently noting this important trend, develops this design along simple and unaffected lines. In this case the bedroom is destined to play a dual role; for it is planned primarily for the man of literary taste.

Thus we find the library and bed occupying the same room but combined in such a manner that there appears to be no lack of unity in the design. Indeed, in this case the choice is a happy one, since the decorators have long realized that rich and colorful book-backs furnish a decorative note in themselves, as in this room the design has been scaled to the average sized room of the modern apartment or small modern home.

The wide window and paneled walls fit into the decorative unit with comparative ease, since the unbroken wall space affords a splendid background for the main decorative grouping of bed and bookshelves to the right of the window.

Double bookshelves the same height as the paneling are fitted at either side of the single bed, with smaller cabinets the height of the bed serving as night tables for the telephone and lamps. The fact that the smaller cabinets are fitted with counter shelves and cupboards affords a decided convenience for keeping odds and ends at hand.

The window unit balances nicely with the main decorative feature, since the table is in the same design as the bed and supports a set of books and bowl of flowers. Celanese voile fashions the glass curtains, while the overdrapes consist of a heavy linen-back satin with an invisible stripe of contrasting tone.

The bedspread, severely tailored, is in the same material.

MRS. CATT ENLISTS FIVE WOMEN IN INTERNATIONAL AIM FOR PEACE

Mme. Marie Louise Puech
Ruth Morgan
Carrie Chapman Catt
Mme. Tsune Gauntlett
Kathleen D. Courtney

Five countries are represented by these women in the Conference for the Cause and Cure of War, organized by Carrie Chapman Catt. Madame Puech is from France; Miss Courtney, Great Britain; Madame Gauntlett, Japan; Frau von Velsen, Germany; Miss Morgan, United States.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran leader of women's causes, has obtained the aid of women representing five great powers in her fight for peace.

As part of the Conference for the Cause and Cure of War, which Mrs. Catt founded, these women will urge their respective governments to adopt more pease pacts and arbitration treaties as the surest cure for war.

They also will urge women to stand back of their governments in whatever measures are adopted as a result of the naval conference in London.

Germany's representative is Frau Dorothea von Velsen, who was born in upper Silesia and went to finishing school in England. During the war she did social and political work and was in the occupied districts of Belgium and the Ukraine.

Mme. Marie-Louise Puech of France is vice president of the French Association of University Women and has taken part in international conferences for peace.

Kathleen D. Courtney is one of the best known women in the public life of Great Britain. She was one of the founders of the Women's International League for Pease and Freedom.

Dinner Menu
Spinach and Cheese
Mashed Potato Cakes, browned
Bread Raspberry Preserves
Head Lettuce and French Dressing
Rice Mold and Caramel Sauce
Coffee

Spinach and Cheese for 6

2 cups cooked spinach, 3 hard-cooked eggs, diced, 6 lemon quarters, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 2-3 cup cheese, cut fine.

Melt butter and add flour. When mixed add milk and cook until a creamy sauce forms. Add salt, paprika and cheese. Stir and cook slowly until cheese has melted. Add spinach and cook 3 minutes. Pour into a serving dish and garnish with eggs, lemon quarters and parsley. Serve at once.

If desired, this can be served on hot buttered toast. The dish is a meat substitute.

Rice Mold

2 cups boiled rice, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons sugar, 2 egg yolks, 2 egg whites.

Mix rice, salt and flour. Add milk, butter and sugar. Cook 15 minutes in a covered double boiler. Stir frequently. Add egg yolks and cook 3 minutes. Fold in egg whites and pour into a ring mold which has been rinsed out of cold water. Cool and chill. Unmold and add sauce.

Caramel Sauce

1 cup dark brown sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups water, 2 tablespoons butter, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Blend sugar and flour. Add water and cook until a thick sauce forms. Stir frequently to prevent lumping and scorching. Add other ingredients. Beat 1 minute. Cool and chill.

Nuts or raisins can be added to this sauce for variety. This is a suitable sauce to serve on steamed or baked cottage or fruit puddings.

CAPITAL OWMEN FIGHT TO CAVE OLD MARKET SCENE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—Gay holly berries and bright flowers above wrinkled, Negro faces at historic Center market will continue as a picturesque holiday part of Washington life if the District of Columbia Federation of Women's clubs has its way.

The old red brick buildings of the nationally famous market soon must be torn down as they are in the path of the government building expansion program.

Club women will petition congress to re-locate the market, which now is half way between the capitol and the white house. It is the only public market in the United States owned and operated by the United States government.

There is a romantic atmosphere about the place. Old Negro mammies whose parents were slaves dispense their wares there. They have their regular patrons. Diplomats, senators, wives of presidents and vice presidents have parked their limousines at the curb and elbowed their way through the Saturday morning throngs.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson regularly visited Center market during her first year in the white house. She liked to select meats and vegetables for the presidential table.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah likes to prowl among the stalls to buy fresh ham and eggs from Virginia. Mrs. Edward E. Gann, sister of the vice president, has her regular marketing days.

The mellow, throaty laughter of the old southern Negroes predominates the market hubbub on Saturday morning. The Negroes come from little farms in Virginia and Maryland before dawn.

SKIRTS GOING LOWER IN THE SPRING

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—Skirts are growing still longer.

They will be longer next spring than they were last fall.

The forecast that skirts will keep on growing longer is not the guess of a designer, nor is it the interested prophecy of a merchant who has long skirts to sell.

It is the conclusion of Amos Parrish, "weather man," of style, whose agents watch what women are wearing in every representative sector of American life and who undertakes, by determining trends, to tell department store buyers and executives throughout the land, at twice-a-year clinics, what the mode of the moment will be six months hence.

Next spring, he says, the skirt most in fashion for daytime street wear will be of middle calf length, five to six inches below the knee and 13 to 14 inches above the ground, depending on the height of the wearer.

Most suits and ensembles for street wear and most daytime dresses and coats will be of the same middle calf length.

Three other lengths will be in fashion, if Mr. Parrish's censuses and charts are indicative of tendencies:

For active sports wear, dresses of "upper calf length," three to four inches below the knee, 15 to 16 inches above the ground. A few suits and ensembles for street wear and most evening wraps will also be of this length.

For formal afternoon wear, the longer calf length, 10 to 11 inches below the knee. Of this length also will be a few very formal suits and ensembles for street wear and most of the formal afternoon dresses.

For evening wear, dresses of ankle length at one or more places. A few evening wraps will be ankle length and a few will be hip length.

QUAKER CHURCH SUBJECTS OF CLUB WOMEN'S STUDY

ATHENS, Ohio, Jan. 19—(AP)—President Hoover's affiliations with the Quaker church is causing this to be an interesting study subject with club women his season.

Old Quaker women are sought to give talks before organizations.

FOR CAPELETS COMING INTO SUMMER VOGUE

PARIS, Jan. 19—(AP)—Little fur capes which attain a maximum length of 24 inches over the shoulders are prophesied by fur designers as the chic thing for evening wear next summer.

Black broadtail and white and dyed ermine will be used for most of the capelets, according to one important designer.

The same general line is to be followed in tweed capes for wear with sport dresses, it seems.

NORSE WOMEN USE BOATS TO MAKE BUSINESS CALLS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—Motorboating is to the women of Norway what motoring is to Americans, says Dr. Margrethe Lorange, woman surgeon of Norway, who is visiting this country.

Dr. Lorange owns and operates her own motorboat. Often she uses it for making professional calls. Norway has many waterways and motorboating is practical as well as enjoyable.

NEW STANDARD SUGGESTED FOR SKIRT LENGTHS

PARIS, Jan. 19—(AP)—A new standard of measure for skirt lengths is suggested by a courturier here.

He advises women to wear their street clothes half a hand below the knee, afternoon dresses one hand and evening dresses two hands below the knee.

The measurement brings afternoon costumes halfway below knee and ankle. For the average woman, two hands brings the hem to the ankle.

Sports clothes, as a rule, are the same length as street costumes in the new styles shown for southern wear. Tennis dresses show a tendency to be shorter and golf skirts average two to four inches below the knee cap.

Almost without exception the evening dresses sent south from Paris conform to ankle length. The uneven hemline is the exception among the advance spring dresses.

Trailing panels and trains are also less in evidence.

DREAM HOUSE ATTRACTS THOUSANDS OF WOMEN

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19—(AP)—Fifteen thousand women and girls visited the "Dream house" fixed up by club women here as example of what can be done on a moderate income.

One of the most dilapidated houses in the poorest section of the city was purchased, remodeled and furnished. The new paint, shining brass knocker and dainty curtains fluttering at the windows brought women from far and near.

The idea was part of the program of the General Federation of Womens' clubs to establish model houses of this sort in every community as an inspiration to homemakers.

PERFUMES CONCOCTED FOR SABLE AND ERMINE

Each luxurious fur, the perfume makers argue, demands its own aroma, and the same scent should not be applied to sable and ermine.

This perfume sold for use on sable is heavy and reminiscent of sandalwood. The ermine fragrance is lighter, with a dash of attar of roses in its composition.

German Women Pilots Gain

BERLIN, Jan. 19—(AP)—Women pilots in Germany now number 14 and the students are increasing.

GREENEVILLE

The Third Baptist church held its annual meeting and election of officers last week. After a short devotional service led by Rev. Harry Brainwell, who presided at the business meeting, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the clerk, Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham, and approved. She also gave a very encouraging treasurer's report which showed a substantial balance in the treasury. The chairmen of the other committees gave good reports of the year and especially good was the missionary treasurer's report which shows the church's quota of $625, being met in the monthly payments. A letter of thanks was received from the family of George Howard, to whom the church and a number of the societies gave a radio at Christmas, in appreciation for the many years of faithful service given by Mr. Howard in all departments of the church work.

The following officers named by the nominating committee, Mrs. William A. Lund, Henry Sebastian, Harold Kinney, Elmer Mulkin and Mrs. Herbert Peckham, were declared elected for the coming year: Clerk, Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham; missionary treasurer, Mrs. Clara Haydon; trustees, William A. Lund, Bernard Sebastian, Howard Maynard, Harold Kinne; membership committee, pastor, clerk and deacons, Mrs. Elmer Mulkin, Mrs. Halsch; finance committee, Henry Sebastian, Harold Kinne, Chris. Wunderlich, Herbert Peckham, Mrs. James Spicer, Miss Dorothy Concklin; baptismal committee, Herbert Peckham, Howard Maynard, Elmer Mulkin, Mrs. Spicer, Mrs. Laycock, Mrs. Lucy Peckham; music committee, Mrs. William Lund, Mrs. Alice Cousins, Mrs. Henry Sebastian, Harold Kinne; pulpit committee, Elmer Mulkin, Mrs. Irving Larkin, Mrs. Howard Maynard, Miss Jennie Sebastian, Herbert I. Peckham; communion committee, Mrs. Elmer Mulkin, Mrs. Lucy Peckham, Mrs. Augie Maynard; outside committee, Elmer Mulkin, Chris Wunderlich, Woodrow Sebastian, Millard Mulkin, Leroy Sebastian, Clayton Gallup; Sunday school superintendent, Henry R. Sebastian. A vote of thanks was given to the organist, choir, janitors and other workers and a number of other business projects were taken up after which the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Merton Darrow, of Niantic, spent Friday at the home of her sister, Mrs. George A. Howard, of Central avenue.

The Women's Missionary society of the Swedish Lutheran church met Thursday evening at the church. After the business meeting a short program was enjoyed which included an interesting talk on The Deaconess Institute in Omaha, Nebraska; how it started and of the work carried on. This was given by Mrs. Tongren. A song, I Gave My Life For Thee, by four girls, Ruth Nygren, Carol Pearson, Pearl and Thelma Wise followed, and there was an interesting description by Richard Pearson of his trip to the Omaha institute. A poem, The Deaconess, by Miss Dorothy Pearson, and a hymn, Master, No Offering, by all; a dialogue, What is a Deaconess, by Ruth Nygren and Thelma Wise; "Glimpses on the Life of a Parish Deaconess," by Miss Edna Hansen. During the business meeting a substantial sum was voted to be sent to the general fund of the Deaconess Institute in Omaha. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, Miss Edna Hansen, Mrs. Charles W. Pearson, Mrs. Ethel Caron and Mrs. Henry Wise.

TRAVELING GAVELS ARE BROUGHT HERE TO THE MANCHESTER UNITY LODGE

A special meeting of Hugh H. Osgood lodge, I. O. O. F., M. U., No. 6910, was held on Saturday night in Eagles' hall. Robert McNeely acted as the presiding officer for the evening. There was a large delegation of members of Pioneer lodge of Hartford and Samaritan lodge of Baltic.

After the meeting had been called to order by Brother McNeely and the regular routine of business had been transacted, Past Prov. Grand Master Brother J. Wood introduced the Prov. Grand Master of the state, Brother Morris Goodson of Waterbury and Deputy Grand Master Brother Hanson of Hartford.

At this time the meeting was turned over to the Hartford members who presented two traveling gavels to H. H. Osgood lodge. Brother Hanson making a fine presentation speech and Brother McNeely accepting these with well chosen words, several of the visiting members were called upon for remarks. Among these was the Prov. Grand Master who gave a very fine address.

After the meeting had adjourned a delightful social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served by a committee consisting of R. Schmidt, J. Wood and W. Partridge assisted by a few of the members.

These gavels will be taken to Baltic some time soon by the Osgood lodge and presented to the Baltic lodge to continue their travels over the state.

BAD CHIMNEY FIRE IN TALMAN ST. HOUSE

A bell alarm from Box 4, corner of Main and Talman streets, was rung in by a 13-year-old girl at 6 o'clock Sunday morning for a fire in the house at No. 161 Talman street. The blaze was discovered by occupants of the building, when they were awakened by the thick smoke and made an investigation. It originated in an old-fashioned fireplace in the kitchen that had been closed up with boards instead of brick.

When the firemen arrived the flames had eaten their way from the fireplace along under the floor and up through the partitions. Soot in the basement of the chimney was given as the cause of the fire. Over a barrel of it was taken out by firemen after the blaze was extinguished with chemicals. A portion of the flooring had to be ripped out and a stove moved to get at the blaze.

PLAIN HILL WORKSHOP TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

A one-story frame workshop, 20x20 feet, located at Plain Hill and owned by Walter Chiminski, was destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon. A small shed attached to it was saved by the Yantic fire department, which responded to a telephone call received at 2.17 o'clock. It is understood the contents of the workshop were burned. The cause of the blaze is not known.

Dr. Campbell Will Broadcast

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of Uncas-on-Thames is to speak this (Monday) evening at 7:15 over the radio from WTIC, Hartford. Dr. Campbell's subject will be "The Sanatorium from Within and from Without."

MRS. CHARLES ERWIN GUILD PRESIDENT

The Women's guild of St. Andrews' Episcopal church held their annual meeting in the guild room Thursday afternoon with a large attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Charles Erwin, who gave her report for the past year, which showed that the society had had a very successful year. During the meeting plans were made to hold a card party at a later date. Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved, showing the society's treasury to be in very good condition.

Election of officers for the fiscal year was held which resulted in the following being elected to office: President, Mrs. Charles Erwin; vice president, Mrs. Anthony J. Berlard; secretary, Mrs. William H. Taft; treasurer, Mrs. Charles C. Perry, sick committee, appointed by the president, Mrs. William Mabrey, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. John Telford, Mrs. George Howard Adams and Mrs. Charles Evans; entertainment committee, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. George Howard Adams, Mrs. William Mabrey, Mrs. Howard Gordon; flower committee, Mrs. William Mabrey. Following the business meeting refreshments were served by the reception committee.

RABBI DECRIES DOCTRINE OF SUPERMAN LIFE

Rabbi Jacob Freedman, of New York city and Springfield, a graduate of Columbia university and president of the student body of the Jewish Theological seminary of America, delivered a thoughtful and inspiring sermon Friday evening at the B'nai B'rith rooms, Shetucket street, under the auspices of the Norwich Community synagogue. Rabbi Freedman is rated highly as an orator and lecturer and is well known throughout the eastern and central sections of the states, where he has been frequently heard.

In his sermon the rabbi spoke in part as follows: "Philosophy at the end of the 19th century proclaimed a false thesis, a thesis which is subversive of the best interests of society. It said 'live dangerously for only by so living can you develop your potentialities to the utmost.' Nietzsche was the prophet of this new doctrine and in his book, 'Thus Spoke Zarathustra,' he vividly portrayed this type of person who lives dangerously as the superman, 'Der Uebermensch.'

"This exalted state of the superman could only be attained, he said, if a person mercilessly went forward on his selfish way, using the suffering and the misfortunes of others as the stepping stones to a powerful independent position. Hence the greatness of a man was to be gauged by the number of enemies he had and could make. Power was the supreme goal and it mattered not how one attained it or what one did with it.

"To this thesis Judaism has always been opposed. Such an outlook upon life has never had an appeal to the mind of the true Jew. To him power meant only an opportunity for service, a chance to help others who were less fortunate than himself. It was to be used with moderation and never used obnoxiously, as a repulsive display of vanity.

"Lust for power always brings destruction in its wake. Ambitious Caesar had his fatal Ides of March, mighty Napoleon had his Waterloo. Men such as these have never been the ideals of the Jewish people. Their great men have always been powerful in spirit and character. And humility is the essence of such greatness. That is why Moses occupies the supreme position in Jewish idealogy."

GOVERNMENT SUIT AGAINST GROTON SETTLED FOR $16,093

An agreement whereby the United States government will withdraw a suit of $45,000 against the town and borough of Groton providing the municipalities pay the government $16,093.31 has been arrived at.

The check for the agreed amount has already been mailed to the government and the suit will be withdrawn as soon as papers of mutual agreement are signed by the authorities of the town and borough and forwarded to the government. Attorney Harry C. Brogan is representing the town and borough.

The suit evolved from an agreement made in 1918 between the town and borough of Groton and the Emergency Fleet corporation, in which the municipalities contracted to reimburse the corporation to the amount of $50,000 for money expended in improvement developments at Groton park. The improvements included sidewalks and sewers.

The agreement was that the $50,000 be paid over a period of time and that interest of 5½ per cent be paid annually on all unpaid balances after Aug. 31, 1918. The amount of $29,003 was paid by the town and borough. The borough paid $6,300 and the balance was paid by the town. The last payment by the town was in July, 1923, and the borough's last payment was made in June, 1924.

The money paid annually by the town and borough was equal to the amount of taxes which they collected on the property. The last payment by the borough was for the tax levy of 1923.

The houses at Groton park were sold at auction in 1924, and no payment was made by either the town or borough after that time.

On June 16, 1927, the United States government brought suit for the balance of the $50,000 and the interest.

Representatives of the town and borough appeared at a hearing on the matter before the United States Shipping board last month, and it was at this hearing that arrangements for withdrawal of the suit were furthered.

LINCOLN SCHOOL PRESENTS BOOKS TO SCOTLAND SCHOOL

Through the efforts of the Scotland school teachers, Miss Maud Keelor, a teacher in the Lincoln school of New York city and also a summer resident of Scotland, was secured for a public meeting at which she presented the activities of the Lincoln school. She became interested in the methods and activities of the Scotland school and through her instrumentality, the Scotland school recently received from the Lincoln school, 250 excellent story and reference books which are greatly appreciated by the pupils of the school.

Girls Enjoy Club Meeting.

The Girls' City club, under the auspices of the Woman's City club, held their regular weekly meeting last Friday evening with 23 members present, including two new members. It is very gratifying to those who are interested in the progress of the club to notice this steady growth in membership.

A business session was held, presided over by the president, Irene Combies. Following this, the girls played games, danced and sang and the serving of refreshments concluded another pleasant evening for the members.

Tenth Birthday Party.

A birthday party was given Saturday afternoon in honor of the 10th birthday of Antonetta Di Carlo at her home, 14 Church street. Refreshments were served by Mrs. E. Games were played by the little guests and prizes were won by Olga Longo, Elizabeth Skane, Madeline Pedace, Amedeo Leone, Tony Leone and Nelson Petrone.

Those attending the party were Olga Longo, Louise Manchester, Eleanor Daigle, Madeline Pedace, Lena Madio, Ida Belli, Loretta Leone, Gertrude Edwards, Marianna Pellerin, Elizabeth Skane, Mary Skane, Alice Santini, Vunzio Jacarusi, Amedeo Leone, Vincent Buonanno, Nelson Petrone, Tony Leone, Danny Leone and Tommy Bellone. Many beautiful gifts were received by Antonette Di Carlo.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGHORNS LEAD IN 11TH WEEK

The Storrs egg-laying contest ended its 11th week with a production of 4,449 eggs or a yield of 63.6 per cent. This is an increase of only 30 eggs over last week, but it is 243 eggs better than for the corresponding week last year. The total production for all pens to date is 45,394 eggs as compared with 42,325 eggs for the same period a year ago.

During the past week several changes have taken place among the leading pens. In the Barred Rock section, R. C. Cobb's pen from Littleton, Mass., is again with the leaders, taking third place in that breed. E. H. Rucker's pen of White Rocks hailing from Ottumwa, Iowa, jumped into prominence by grabbing first place. Among the Leghorn breeders it is noted that Hanson's Leghorn Farm of Corvallis, Oregon, has moved up one more step and is now holding third place.

Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Pa., again came through first for the week with a total lay of 66 eggs. Close followers of this pen were Harold G. Colt's Rhode Island Reds from West Hartford, Conn., with a score of 64 eggs. There seems to have been a mad scramble for next position, as three prominent pens vied with each other for third place. Steelman Poultry Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Lansdale, Pa., Hanson's Leghorns of Corvallis, Oregon, and The Locusts from West Cornwall, Conn., that are backing White Wyandottes, all tied with 62 eggs apiece. Fourth honors went to Edward N. Larrabee of Peterboro, N. H. This pen of Reds wound up for the week with 55 eggs.

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 599; Fisher P. Farm, Ayton, Ont., Canada, 464.

Rhode Island Reds—Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 679; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 622; Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 621; Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, Conn., 616.

CONNECTICUT WOMEN'S NAMES IN HONOR ROLL

The Connecticut League of Women Voters is joining with the national organization in honoring the women of the United States who worked for the political enfranchisement and education of women, through a living memorial that is to take the form of an endowment of $250,000 to be presented at the tenth annual convention of the National League of Women Voters which will be held in Louisville, Ky., April 28 to May 3. The interest of the fund will be used to promote the chief aim of the league—"the education of women as responsible voting citizens."

There will be a national roll of honor comprising the names of nationally famous women. There will also be state rolls of honor comprising the names of women not sufficiently well known throughout the country to be nationally memorialized, but whose work was nevertheless of high importance.

Connecticut has nominated the following names for the national roll of honor: Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker of Hartford, Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, and Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees of Greenwich.

Names selected by the committee for the state roll of honor include those of the late Mrs. Willis Austin of this city, Miss Rosamund Danielson of Putnam, Mrs. Rienzi Robinson of Danielson. Others in this list are: Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn of Hartford, Dr. Emily M. Pierson of Cromwell, Mrs. George H. Day of Hartford, Miss Frances Ellen Burr of Hartford, Mrs. Susan J. Cheney of Manchester, Miss Julia M. Hinaman of Hartford, Miss Edith Hastings of Stratford, Miss Mabel C. Washburn of Hartford, Mrs. Carlos F. Stoddard of New Haven, Mrs. Henry Rogers of New Haven, Mrs. Julius Maltby of Waterbury and Mrs. A. E. S. Taylor of Norfolk.

SANCTITY OF MARRIAGE GUARDED BY ONE CHURCH

The narration of Christ's miracle at the marriage in Cana of Galilee, when, as the Scripture records, "the mother of Jesus was there; and Jesus also was invited, and His disciples," was the Gospel read in the Catholic churches Sunday, the second Sunday after Epiphany. The theme suggested the brief but practical sermon delivered by the rector of St. Patrick's church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, before the customary large congregation at the 7:30 mass.

The Catholic church has always regarded marriage as a sacrament, the preacher said. Our beloved Lord raised marriage to this dignity; yet even before His time the Jews regarded it as a God-given institution. The Catholic church has always held paramount the importance of the family, in contrast with the modern frivolity and lightness with which it is held and the laxity of the state as to the seriousness of marriage, during an era when sex is viewed merely as an indulgence as a matter of gratification. All this talk of birth control implies a low view of marriage, with an incidental evading of its responsibilities.

The Roman Catholic church has always taught sex, but in a chaste and serious way and it always surrounds matrimony with dignity and sanctity, the pastor said. It has always held before the eyes of its members the lofty ideal of the mother of Christ as the model of woman and the patron of clean manhood. Monsignor May quoted Saint Paul regarding the high character of a true Christian marriage. As it is today, the one church which lifts its voice without ceasing against the evils of divorce and the disintegration of family life is the Catholic church, in the ringing words of Christ, "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder." It is the great agency which is doing a patriotic work for our beloved country in upholding the family—the safeguard of the country, at a time when there is a growing tendency to hold the state first and make the family subservient to the state. The national danger of reducing marriage to a mere temporary contract, as it is fast becoming, was pointed out and the preacher enjoined his hearers to continue their views of matrimony as corresponding with the church's ideal of marriage as a sacrament which Christ instituted.

Monsignor May was assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin in giving holy communion to nearly every person in the large congregation, precedence being given the Rosary society in going to the altar.

A call was issued to the women of the parish to assemble in the school hall Thursday at 2 p. m. to sew for the poor, especially to work on garments for needy children.

It was announced that the Children of Mary society is to hold a charity card party in the parish hall, also for the benefit of the parish poor.

MOOSE CHARITY BALL REALIZES GOOD SUM

The charity ball conducted Saturday night by Norwich lodge of Moose at the Moose home on Laurel Hill avenue had over 100 couples attending and was successful in realizing a good sum which will be forwarded to Mooseheart to help build the boys' village there.

The music was one of the features of the evening, being furnished by the Novelty Syncopators, six young women, each of whom plays several different instruments and the sextette also renders all the popular songs of the day.

The committee in charge consisted of Dictator Bernard Wunderlich, Walter Blair, chairman, Philip Baumgartner, Frank Hunter, George Amback, Nicholas Sullivan and Robert W. Sterry.

Social Meeting for New Class

Mrs. Pitt's Sunday school class of the Central Baptist church was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Harrison C. Noyes and Miss Elizabeth Noyes at their home on Williams street, Friday evening. There were 16 girls present at this social of the newly formed class, which is a part of the young people's department. The president of the class is Mrs. Gerald Burke, the secretary is Marion Dennison and the treasurer is Doris Racine. The program consisted of sewing, a business session, singing and delicious refreshments served by Mrs. Noyes.

NORWICH TOWN

"MOUNTAINS AND HUMAN LIFE" SUBJECT OF LECTURE

A large congregation attended the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening when the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter delivered a stereopticon lecture on "Mountains and Human Life." It was the story of the home missionary work of the church in the mines and on the mountain side farms of the southland. During the lecture 57 hand-colored pictures were shown with the stereopticon machine by Ralph Smith. The Junior choir, under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich sang a selection.

At the morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "Your Words," taking for a text Philippians 1:27, "Let your conversation be as it becometh the Gospel of Christ." The Junior choir sang an anthem.

Mrs. Richard Carter led the C. E. meeting, giving an interesting talk on "Shall We Abolish or Expand Missions?"

The men of the church and parish are to meet with the pastor at the parsonage this (Monday) evening at 7.45.

Scouts Were Entertained.

The Boy Scouts of Troop 2, connected with the M. E. church held their meeting Friday evening with an attendance of 20. Carl Brend, who is to be the scoutmaster of the new American Legion troop entertained the Scouts during their game period with a number of Houdini's famous stunts. The meeting was in charge of Assistant Patrol Leader Earl Robinson, who acted as scoutmaster. The drill period was in charge of Senior Patrol Leader Donald Olsen. Edward Jordan, with his trumpet, led in the period of Scout songs. Claude Robinson presented the troop a very beautiful lemon-wood bow, to encourage them in their efforts in archery.

The troop is to have a library of books suitable for boys of Scout age. The troop received a copy of the book "Three Boy Scouts in Africa," at Christmas time from Everett Thornton. This book will be the beginning of the troop library. A number of friends of the Scouts have signified their intention of contributing books for this library and the scoutmaster will appreciate hearing from others who are like-minded. The business session was in charge of the scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. S. P. L. Donald Olsen was elected troop messenger.

Scouts Robert Brown and John Laskowski completed their Tenderfoot tests and were awarded badges. Scout Frederick Ross passed his judging test and Scout Earle Robinson passed second class first aid. Scouts Turner and Manning from Troop 1 were visitors at the meeting.

The Drop-in class of the First Congregational church is to hold a meeting Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 with the secretary, Mrs. Charles Learned, of East Town street.

Everready circle of The King's Daughters has planned a meeting for Wednesday evening with Miss Sadie J. Dawson, of the New London road.

HOT TIP AS TO WHEREABOUTS OF LALONE AND MOULTHROPE

Jacksonville Officers Have Left Town in an Automobile For an Unannounced Destination—Action Followed the Capture of Landry in a Drug Store in Jacksonville—Landry Places Blame For Shooting of Detectives on Other Two Escaped Convicts—The Three Men Captured at Macon, Ga., Had Escaped From West Virginia Prison.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 20—(AP)—County authorities tonight believed they were rapidly closing in on two of the three escaped convicts from Connecticut who last Friday night shot down two detectives in a pitched gun fight here.

The third member of the trio, Leo Landry, who was taken into custody in a downtown drug store, signed a confession today admitting that he was one of the three escaped convicts but denying that he fired any of the shots which resulted in the death of Detective W. D. Smith and the serious wounding of Willis Jones, another detective.

Following the arrest of Landry, authorities said they obtained a "hot tip" which they hoped would lead to the capture of the other two bandits, Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope. Officers left town in an automobile for an unannounced destination and had not returned early tonight.

Landry was taken into custody late last night, but his arrest was not made public until after he had been identified by pictures and fingerprints sent here by Connecticut authorities. He was arrested in the drugstore after two patrons suspected him of being one of the bandits and notified police.

Following his confession, Landry was taken to a hospital where Detective Jones lay seriously wounded. Jones identified him as being one of the trio, but said he did not believe Landry had fired any of the shots.

The shooting occurred when Detectives Jones and Smith, recognizing the three escaped convicts in an automobile, crowded the machine to the curb. While the officers were searching Landry for weapons, the other two bandits opened fire. Landry then fled and after the two detectives had been shot down. The two other bandits escaped in an automobile.

THREE MEN CAPTURED WERE WEST VIRGINIA FUGITIVES

MACON, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—A posse of more than 300 officers closing in on a swamp in which it was believed three escaped Connecticut convicts had taken refuge, early today captured a trio of escaped West Virginia prisoners after a battle during which two of them was wounded, one seriously.

The three Connecticut convicts who escaped from the prison at Wethersfield on Jan. 4, were sought for Jacksonville, Fla., officers for the slaying of Detective W. D. Smith and wounding another officer there Friday night.

The men captured here were identified as Adrian Bias, 22, whose left arm was shattered by a burst from a machine gun; Dana Bias, 20, and Basil Childers, 34, who suffered flesh wounds in one arm. The trio was described by A. S. Scroggins, warden of the West Virginia prison at Moundsville as "three of the most dangerous criminals in West Virginia."

Shortly after the capture of the West Virginia trio, Jacksonville police announced that Leo Landry, one of the three men sought there, had been taken into custody yesterday and had confessed to being present when the officers were shot. Jacksonville police said Landry had blamed his companions, Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, who fled in an automobile, with shooting the officers.

The three West Virginia fugitives took refuge in the swamp early yesterday when the stolen automobile they were driving mired in the mud. The squad of patrolmen who had chased the fugitives into the swamp was augmented by others and bloodhounds were taken to the scene to aid in tracking the fugitives. They lost the trail last night and a watch was set to guard the area until daybreak.

A squad of Jacksonville police was hurried here to join in the search. The 50 men who yesterday kept guard over the area were augmented to 150 city policemen, county and special officers.

At daybreak, the large force closed in. The convicts took refuge beneath the house occupied by Mrs. Ira Starnes and her baby and refused to surrender, answering the officers' demand with pistol fire. The officers returned the fire.

Patrolman Julian Poole, armed with a sub-machine gun, poured a fusillade beneath the house, cutting out a pillar behind which Adrian Bias had taken refuge. The trio then fled into the house and took refuge in the bath room, but in answer to Mrs. Starnes' entreaties came out with their arms above their heads to surrender.

After their identification, police said Dana Bias and Childers admitted committing a series of robberies in Huntington, W. Va., after their escape from the Moundsville prison on Dec. 18, before taking a circuitous route to Florida.

Dana Bias and Childers said they had "stolen 50 or more automobiles," and held up a filling station at Tallahassee, Fla.

All three were serving sentences for highway robbery, Dana Bias, 25 years; Adrian Bias, 35 years, and Childers, 40 years.

YOUNG GIRL AIDED TWO YOUTHS IN A HOLD-UP

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Two youths aided by a young girl tonight held up two Broadway shoe stores and escaped with more than $800.

In the first holdup, the girl acted merely as a decoy, but in the second, she searched the victims while her two companions covered them with pistols.

The trio first appeared at a store in the theatre district. After the girl had taken a seat and was being measured for shoes, her companions walked in and drew revolvers. They obtained $22 from a customer and $200 from the cash register. All three fled in a waiting taxi.

Twenty minutes later they entered a store farther uptown. The girl followed the same procedure, but when her companions covered the two clerks, she searched them, taking nine cents from one and a wrist watch from the other. The men took $600 from the cash drawer.

SLOT MACHINES ILLEGAL EVEN WHEN SLUGS ARE USED

NORWALK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The keeping of slot machines was ruled to be illegal today, in city court by Judge Nehemiah Candee even when slugs rather than money is used.

Judge Candee gave this decision in imposing fines of $100 each on Vincent Sweeney, Miss Mary Swiderski, Manuel Josem and Frank Salvato, charged with keeping gambling machines. Appeals were filed by the four defendants.

The judge in his decision said that slugs used in the machines had a value, being redeemable either in money or merchandise.

The disposition of the four cases had been looked forward to with a great deal of interest here in view of the recent injunction issued by U. S. District Judge Edwin S. Thomas in New Haven restraining the seizure of mint vending machines.

AL SMITH IS GOING ON YACHTING CRUISE

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, and a party of friends will embark shortly on the Vincent Astor yacht Nourmahal for a cruise to Havana and return. Announcement of the trip was made with today's docking of the yacht here.

Mr. Astor, who will arrive here shortly will leave here with a party of scientists, after the Smith trip is completed, for a scientific expedition to the Galapagos Islands.

The former democratic presidential nominee will be accompanied by Mrs. Smith, John J. Raskob and his two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kenney and other friends.

MAN STRUCK AND KILLED BY AUTO AT NORWALK

NORWALK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—August Goeblebinger, 66, was killed tonight when struck by an automobile driven by Charles Kellogg.

A charge of manslaughter was lodged against the driver, who was released in $1,000 bonds. Goeblebinger was walking along the Boston Post road when the accident occurred. He received fractures of the skull and spine and internal injuries.

25 YEAR SENTENCE FOR GLADYS MAY PARKS

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Gladys May Parks is in the state prison at Trenton tonight to serve a sentence of 25 years for the death of two motherless children.

Convicted by a jury late Saturday night of murder in the second degree for the death of Timothy Rogers, 3 years old, and of manslaughter for causing the death of his 4 year old sister, Dorothy, the woman was this morning sentenced by Supreme Court Justice Frank T. Lloyd to 25 years for the death of the boy and to 10 years for the killing of the girl, both sentences to run concurrently.

The 35-year-old prisoner, into whose care the two little children had been given after the death of their mother, listened calmly as the justice said he agreed with the verdicts given by the jury and then pronounced sentence. But the moment she turned from facing the court, she displayed fits of temper all the way to her cell on the upper floor of the Camden court house and at times in her cell before she was taken to Trenton more than three hours later.

The woman stamped her feet as she was led from the court room, flung aside the helping hands of attendants as she was escorted to her cell and declared that she never would serve out her sentence, but would commit suicide.

Miss Parks was finally quieted and later received George Parks, her father, in her cell to say good bye to him. The parting was affectionate, tears coming to the eyes of both. As the father left, he promised to visit her often in state prison.

RADIO DEBATE BETWEEN TWO CONGRESSWOMEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—American housewives in many states today had an opportunity to listen to two contrasting views of the complex tariff situation as they prepared lunch in their homes.

The opinions were presented in a radio debate between two congresswomen—Representatives Edith Nourse Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, and Mary T. Norton, democrat, New Jersey. Each discussed the attitude of her party during the 30-minute argument.

Mrs. Rogers declared an increased tariff would not affect living costs, while Mrs. Norton said the present measure was "an extraordinary protection to already over-protected rich industries."

JUDGMENT AGAINST TWO STANDARD OIL COMPANIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Two judges of the United States circuit court of appeals upheld their previous judgment today in declaring that the Standard Oil Companies of Indiana and New Jersey, the Texas Corporation and 46 other oil companies violated the anti-trust laws in pooling the processes for cracking gasoline.

A decree affirming a verdict of guilty pronounced in the lower court was issued and the court enjoined the companies permanently from further violations. The injunction, however, and the decree were stayed pending an appeal to the federal supreme court by the oil concerns.

CABLE PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Jan. 20—(AP)—The world will receive news of the five power naval negotiations through nearly 400 newspaper correspondents accredited to the conference, who will have offices in St. James' palace throughout the proceedings.

RUESSELSHEIM, Ger., Jan. 20—(AP)—Hessian Minister of the Interior Leuschner was attacked by a crowd of unidentified persons when he arrived to open a workmen's home in connection with the Opel works. The minister and his party escaped from their automobile but the car was demolished.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Jan. 20—(AP)—Twelve natives were killed and 29 injured in a desperate tribal battle between Pondos and Shangaans in the Crown mines compound. The police for some time were unable to control the combatants, who for the most part, used knives and stones in their vendetta.

TOYKO, Jan. 20—(AP)—Action of Nationalist government heads in repudiating portions of the protocol signed between Russia and China at Khabarovsk, Siberia, at the close of six months of quasi warfare, appeared today to have endangered final immediate settlement of the Chinese Eastern railway controversy.

EXPECTANT MOTHER IS ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien, accused by the state of having plotted with Samuel Howard Dorr to kill her husband, William J. O'Brien, went on trial in criminal court today, with the prosecution seeking the death penalty for a woman for the first time since electrocution supplanted hanging as a capital punishment in Illinois.

Dorr, a young insurance agent, who, the state contended, shot O'Brien to death in the latter's apartment last November 20, in order to flee with Mrs. O'Brien and obtain her husband's insurance, was convicted of murder last Saturday and was sentenced to life imprisonment. He claimed killed O'Brien accidentally in a struggle to protect Mrs. O'Brien and was quoted as saying he would be willing to testify in her behalf.

The start of the trial came as a complete surprise since it had been expected the state would ask a continuance. Four jurors had been tentatively accepted when court adjourned.

Mrs. O'Brien, an expectant mother, appeared nervous as the proceedings got under way.

CLAIMS ESTABLISHMENT OF WORLD'S AIR RECORDS

ROME, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Renato Donati landed his airplane this evening and claimed establishment of two world records for light airplanes by his flight of 1,788 miles in 29 hours over a closed circuit between Ostia, Anzio and La Dispoli. He was greeted on landing by General Balbo, chief of the air staff. It was said that the best previous mark with the same type of plane was made by a German aviator named Condelius who flew 2,000 miles.

FORMER GRAND OPERA SINGER KILLED BY TRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Elena Averdando Pratt, 58, a former grand opera singer was killed when struck by an electric train today in Bellwood, a suburb. Two gatemen told police she deliberately walked in the path of the train. Her brother, Fred Martin, manager of an amusement park, said his sister lost her voice about ten years ago after a siege of illness, adding that after that "life did not seem to hold much for her."

WATERBURY MAN WAS INSTANTLY KILLED BY TRAIN

WATERBURY, Jan. 20. — (AP) — Struck by a train while walking along the New Haven road tracks at the west end of the city tonight, Lawrence O'Brien, 28, of this city, was instantly killed and his body badly mangled. None of the members of the crew were aware of the fatality. Death was accidental, according to Medical Examiner A. A. Crane.

PLANS FOR REDUCTION OF COTTON ACREAGE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Plans for a southwide reduction of cotton acreage next year will be made at a meeting here Friday of agricultural extension leaders of 13 cotton producing states.

The campaign will be under direction of the National Cotton Co-operative association, according to Dr. Tait Butler, member of the corporation's board.

ROBERT SANDS CROOKER IS DEAD IN GREENWICH

GREENWICH, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Robert Sands Crooker, well known boatman, died at the Greenwich hospital today after a brief illness. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Crooker had been in the boat business for more than 35 years. He was frequently called on by the Indian Harbor Yacht club to measure the courses for important races.

Mr. Crooker is survived by a daughter.

REFUND TO NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE CO.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A refund of $17,857, and a credit of $5,258 to the National Fire Insurance company, Hartford, Conn., for over-payments of income and profit taxes in 1920-21-22, were announced today by the internal revenue bureau. The overpayments were due to an order of the United States board of taxes appeals.

CRITICALLY INJURED BY HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER

HAMDEN, Jan. 20.—(AP) —Thomas Fitzsimmons 61, of Providence, R. I., was struck and critically injured by a hit-and-run driver here tonight. He received possible fractures of the skull and collarbone and was reported on the danger list at Grace hospital, New Haven.

THREE PERSONS REPORTED KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Three persons were reported killed and an undetermined number injured tonight when No. 4 passenger train of the Louisville & Nashville railroad en route to Chicago, plunged into an open switch near Trafford, Ala., about forty miles north of here.

Request For Dry Law Referendum Ignored

Introduced in House By [illegible] Mary T. Norton, Repr[illegible]ative From New J[illegible]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20[illegible] Congress began work today on th[illegible]ministration program for strengthening prohibition enforcement, while the house wets decided on a new departure in their attempt to obtain modification of the dry laws.

The militant bloc unanimously elected Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, as its chairman. It also decided to select an unofficial committee from its membership to hold hearings on bills for the modification and repeal of the prohibition laws.

Awhile earlier, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, representative from New Jersey, had asked for a national referendum on the 18th amendment. In a statement accompanying her resolution, she declared that "Women who believe as I do in temperance realize that as an experiment noble or otherwise, prohibition has failed."

House drys fought back at Representative Black, democrat, New York, when he assailed Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa and Prohibition Commissioner Doran for their denunciation of critics of the prohibition personnel. The New Yorker was forced to withdraw from the record the personal remarks.

No attention was given to Mrs. Norton's resolution as the committees of the dry dominated house and senate started work on the law enforcement program.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, in a breakfast talk with President Hoover, expressed the view that prohibition would come up in the senate when the long pending tariff and Muscle Shoals problems had been settled.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, who has been severely criticising the personnel of prohibition enforcement, declined to heed Commissioner Doran's declaration that the "inflammatory attacks upon our personnel" were to blame for the killing of two dry agents by a suspected bootlegger in Florida Saturday.

"I have an idea," the Idahoan remarked off the floor, "that this fellow was guarding some alcohol which Mr. Doran permits him to get."

REP. FRENCH ADVOCATES ABOLITION OF BATTLESHIP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)— Advocating that all categories of naval ships be clearly defined at the conference opening in London tomorrow, Representative French, republican, Idaho, urged in the house today the abolition of the battleship from the navies of the world.

After a white house conference with President Hoover, the Idahoan addressed his colleagues for an hour. Significance was attached to his views by many because of his position as chairman of the sub-committee which handles appropriations for the navy department.

French said that if the London conference failed to attain definiteness in all categories of naval vessels and reasonable limitation in each category, the construction race between the powers would begin again on those ships on which there is no limitation.

Discussing the entire subject of armaments from an economic view, the Idahoan said the naval construction program of this country would amount to $7,000,000,000 within fifteen years besides the $400,000,000 for maintenance and operation should the London parley fail. He advocated the scrapping of all vessels which had passed from the use for which they were built, and listed the battleship as the first which should be abandoned.

French contended the battleship no longer was the backbone of the fleet, saying the submarine and aircraft would make it necessary for these largest combat vessels to seek the safest harbors in the next war.

YOUNG REPARATIONS PLAN FORMALLY ADOPTED

THE HAGUE, Jan. 20.—(AP)— The Young plan for World war reparations payments, regarded as finally removing the damage bills from the sphere of diplomacy to that of economics where creditor and debtor alike can cooperate, was formally adopted today.

The protocol giving effect to the successor of the Dawes plan was signed in the historic Binnenhof at 4:40 p. m. The many sided problem had resisted solution to the last and even the signing required postponement for six hours to enable an agreement on the eastern reparations phase.

The Young plan has abolished war machinery for collecting reparations and has reduced the indebtedness of Germany from the almost astronomical figures of earlier claims to less than $9,000,000,000.

The considerable concession made to Germany in total reparations expected from her is offset by agreement on her part to issue bonds as market conditions justify to cover the unconditional annuities of about 600,000,000 marks a year. The first slice of this serial loan will come to $300,000,000 and will be floated this year.

FOX CHARGED WITH SPECULATING IN STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Charges that William Fox speculated in the stock market with funds of the Fox Film corporation in a fruitless effort to raise money to meet obligations of the company and its affiliates were contained in a suit filed in federal court today for an equity receivership for the corporation—the second to be filed in the last three days.

The plaintiff in today's suit was Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, of Somerset county, New Jersey, widow of Anthony R. Kuser, one of the original Fox backers, who died last November.

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF PROHIBITION LAWS

MERIDEN, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Paul Latteri, of this city, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Robert H. Alcorn, at New Haven, today on a charge of violating the prohibition laws. Latteri waived examination and was released on bonds of $1,500 for arraignment before the federal court. He was arrested Saturday after federal men confiscated a small quantity of alleged wine and beer in a raid on an establishment conducted [illegible]

Decision Against The [illegible]te Of Connecticut

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—(AP)—The supreme court indicated today that Massachusetts would not be required to change the defense it has offered to the attempt of Connecticut to prevent it from diverting water from the tributaries of the Connecticut river for use in the metropolitan district at Boston.

Connecticut was heard at length in an attempt to compel Massachusetts to amend the answer it had filed. It sought to have stricken out numerous defense which Massachusetts reserved for hearing before the special master. Members of the court took issue frequently with counsel for Connecticut regarding the questions which Massachusetts had the right to present before the special master.

Finding that in its opinion there was not sufficient ground to sustain the demands of Connecticut, the court decided without hearing counsel for Massachusetts to permit the answer filed by Massachusetts to stand unamended, and the controversy, which presents the right of Massachusetts to take water from the Ware and Swift rivers, tributaries of the Connecticut, will now go to the special master for the taking of testimony and the making of findings for the consideration of the supreme court in deciding the controversy.

STORM CAUSE OF PLANE WRECK AND 16 DEATHS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—(AP)— A pitiful, crumpled mass of wreckage in a muddy California bean field 80 miles south of here today marked the greatest disaster in American commercial air transportation. Sixteen persons, eight women and eight men, went to a quick death there last night when one of the most modern sky liners, a tri-motored all-metal monoplane of the Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux line cracked up and burned. All on board were lost, the two pilots and 14 passengers.

It was a sacrifice to the storm, the snuffing out of human life, in the opinion of officials in the preliminary stages of investigation. A sudden squall from the sea pressed the great monoplane down to earth and its destruction as the pilot was seeking to turn and scurry back to safety, in the opinion of D. W. Tomlinson, chief of operations of the owning company who today surveyed the wreckage.

Independent investigations are being carried on by the United States department of commerce, division of aeronautics, the coroner of San Diego county and the T. A. T. line.

TESTIMONY IN $10,000 BREACH OF PROMISE CASE

HARTFORD, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Testimony in the trial of the $10,000 breach of promise suit, brought by Miss Annie MacDonnell, of New York city, against Frank W. Lavery, of Hartford, was started in U. S. district court here today. Judge Warren B. Burrows and a jury were sitting on the case.

Miss MacDonnell told the court that she met Lavery in September, 1928, when she came here to visit relatives, and that after a whirlwind courtship they became engaged. Fourteen letters purported to have been written by Lavery to the plaintiff, and bearing evidence of his love and telling of plans for living together after marriage, were read by plaintiff's counsel.

Miss MacDonnell said that on December 24, 1928, when she was expecting her fiance's arrival on the following day to discuss final plans for their marriage, he wrote her a letter telling her that their marriage was impossible and advising her to find "some young fellow." She is 34 and Lavery is 46. The trial will continue tomorrow.

GANNETT READY TO START 14,000-MILE AERIAL TOUR

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—William H. Gannett, 76, retired Portland, Maine, publisher, arrived here today to start his 14,000-mile aerial tour of the West Indies, Cuba and South America.

Mr. Gannett, who has known 23 years of air travel, believes he is hopping off on the longest air trip ever to be made by a passenger.

During the 17 days of the actual flying that his schedule provides, the aged flying enthusiast will visit 21 countries prior to his return to Miami April 1.

The first leg of his round-trip from New York to Miami, he made by train. The second will start at 7 a. m. tomorrow as he steps into a Havana-bound airplane.

"I hope to celebrate my 77th birthday in Lima, Peru, February 10," he said. "Furthermore, I hope to live to be 100 years old to see the developments in aviation in that time."

LINDBERGH AND PARTY FLY BACK TO LOS ANGELES

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 20.—(AP) —Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and the party he brought here Saturday for a week end visit, flew back to Los Angeles today.

The aviator, who was accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, Mrs. J. L. Maddux and Jack Maddux, Jr., said he would not visit the scene of yesterday's crash of a T. A. T.-Maddux airliner pending a conference with T. A. T.-Maddux officials. He declined to discuss the accident.

AUTO OVERTURNED WHERE OTHER SKIDDED

CHESHIRE, Jan. 20.—(AP)—On the same icy spot where the car of Thomas Cahill, New Haven registrar, skidded yesterday, an automobile driven by Silvio Di Fronzo, and containing two other passengers, overturned today.

The driver was not hurt, but Carmello Mallaucci received a fractured leg and Charles De Cillo, possible internal injuries.

BRITISH GOVT. WELCOMES NAVAL CONFERENCE ENVOYS

Banquet at the Hotel Savoy—Prime Minister MacDonald Described the Hope and Confidence of His Government—U. S. Secretary of State Stimson Replied For the Visiting Delegations—Premier MacDonald Will be Elected Chairman of the Conference Today.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The five-power effort to curb the ever-mounting costs and risks of naval armaments was launched tonight by a welcoming banquet at the Savoy hotel given by the British government.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald described the hope and confidence of his government to the assembled representatives of France, Italy, Japan and the United States. United States Secretary of State Stimson in replying for the visiting delegations expressed the conviction that the conference was one of the rare occasions in history out of which a permanent step toward peace might gain impetus.

The leading representatives of the five powers were welcomed during the day as a body by Premier MacDonald at 10 Downing street and by King George at Buckingham palace. Tonight after the banquet Mr. MacDonald held a large reception for all of the delegates, experts and advisers and their wives.

Meanwhile the final delicate touches were made to the magnificent setting for their labors in the royal gallery of the house of lords.

In the shadowed spaces of the great gallery, where King George will convene the inaugural plenary session at 11 a. m., tomorrow, a minute inspection of the arrangements for the historic meeting was carried out.

The eve of the conference has arrived and passed without the cropping out of a single incident to mar the progress toward successful evolution of a program for naval disarmament and furthering the peace of the world.

Secretary Stimson spoke to the assembled delegates, pleading for a spirit of frankness and good will for the realization of the lofty purposes of the conference, and his words seemed to call a deep note of response from the other delegates and the distinguished guests.

Affirming that "no other result will stand the test of time," Mr. Stimson asked his fellow delegates to "approach this conference table with no desire to over-reach our fellow countrymen but with a sincere will to obtain a result which will be faithful and beneficial to all."

He defined the chief purpose of the meeting as "to transform the process of naval armament from a method of competition to one of mutual agreement and limitation."

Paying tribute to the importance and efficacy of Prime Minister MacDonald's visit to the United States, Mr. Stimson was careful to state that his visit was "neither intended to nor did in any way negotiate changes in the official relations of the countries."

Immediately after the banquet Prime Minister MacDonald hastened to Lancaster house, next door to St. James' palace, and there at the famous old London mansion that once was the center of the capital's social life, the labor chieftain, with his daughter Ishbel at his side, received 2,000 guests at an official reception.

The conference activities today began with the gathering of the 27 chief delegates in the British cabinet room at No. 10 Downing street, where important questions of procedure were decided upon.

The delegates agreed that Prime Minister MacDonald should be elected chairman of the conference tomorrow. After the inaugural session they will adjourn until Thursday, re-assembling at the permanent conference hall in St. James' palace.

Wednesday will be devoted to the further exchange of views among the five delegations, and on Thursday morning each of the chief delegates will make a general statement of his country's naval needs.

PROGRESS IN SENATE ON TARIFF REVISION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP) — In line with its action in the special session in eliminating from the tariff bill the existing retaliatory provision on automobiles, the senate today struck out for similar sections affecting foreign coal, explosives, paper board, wall board, pulp board, calcium acetate or chloride, nitrate and cyanamid.

Under the sections stricken out, the United States has heretofore been permitted to meet foreign tariffs on similar articles from this country whenever a foreign nation levied a duty exceeding the American or placed an import tax on an article on the domestic free list.

In the case of pulp board, wall board and paper board, now dutiable at 10 per cent, the United States, under the action taken today, could not raise this levy to 15 per cent if, for example Canada raised its duty on the American product to 15 per cent. Coal and the other items affected by the senate's action are now on the American free list.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED BY LADY MARY HEATH

RENO, Nev., Jan. 20.—(AP)— Lady Mary Heath, noted woman flyer, filed suit for divorce in district court today against Sir James Heath, on the grounds of cruelty. They were married October 21, 1927.

Lady Heath came to Reno last summer after leaving a hospital in Ohio where she had been treated after an airplane crash. As soon as she recovered from the injuries, she took an active part in women's clubs and dances here.

In her complaint she declares Sir James Heath was 78 years old when she became his wife, whereas she is not yet 30, and that he was wealthy but penurious. She said he would refuse to pay for goods which she ordered with his consent.

He declared he would deny the paternity of any child that might be born to them, she charged, claiming that it cost too much to bring up children.

DENIED RIGHT TO GO ABOARD RUM RUNNER BLACK DUCK

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Judge Ira Lloyd Letts, in U. S. district court today granted a motion of U. S. Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., to dismiss the bill in equity of the Liberal Civic League, Inc., of Boston, which, through its attorney, Conrad B. Crooker, sought to force the federal government to allow Mr. Crooker and two ballistics experts the right to go aboard the rum runner Black Duck. Mr. Boss declared he could not discern in the bill a lawful reason why the league should be granted the right to examine the line of bullets fired into the boat by coast guardsmen on December 29, when three of the Black Duck's crew were killed and the fourth wounded.

TO ASK BENCH WARRANTS FOR GUNMAN BROPHY

HARTFORD, Jan. 20.—(AP)— Bench warrants for John Brophy, 19-year-old gunman, held for the slaying of Policeman James McNamee in Bristol and the five youths captured with him in connection with the killing, will be asked this week by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn in order to bring the case before a grand jury as soon as possible, it was indicated at the state's attorney's office today. Brophy will face a first degree murder charge, the state's attorney said, though he was unable to say how many of Brophy's companions will be charged with the same crime.

The December term of criminal superior court is still in session, the term being held open while the grand jury probing liquor activities in Hartford is at work, and issuance of bench warrants will bring the Brophy case to a speedy determination.

ARGUMENT OVER WARRANT OF SLAIN DRY AGENT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 20—(AP)—A blood-stained search warrant took the center of the stage today in the investigation into the slaying of two dry agents here last Saturday night.

Whether the time element in the search warrant authorized the entry of the agents into the residence of George W. Moore was disputed by federal officials and Moore's attorney.

The warrant found beside the body of Robert K. Moncure, one of the slain agents, bore the usual printed form "day or night" but it was declared that after examination it was authorized the entry of the agents into the residence of George W. Moore was disputed by federal officials and Moore's attorney.

The warrant found beside the body of Robert K. Moncure, one of the slain agents, bore the usual printed form "day or night" but it was declared that after examination it was found the words "or night" had been stricken off with ink.

FLOOD WATERS MAROON FROM 100 TO 150 FAMILIES

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The midwestern branch of the American Red Cross tonight was notified that between 100 and 150 families were marooned by the flood waters of the St. Francis river in the Big Lake district of Arkansas. They were without means of rescue, the Red Cross was told.

The Red Cross made arrangements for construction of six flat bottom boats at Blytheville, Ark., to bring the families out and shipped outboard motors from here to power the craft.

"The situation steadily grew worse today," the Red Cross said, "and a two-foot rise is forecast by tomorrow night. The water is up to the eaves of some of the houses already."

The families are from the rural districts of Mississippi county, Arkansas, and they are on the opposite side of the river from Blytheville.

PARAGUAYAN SOLDIERS BLAMED BY BOLIVIANS

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Bolivian foreign office today issued a communique blaming Paraguayan soldiers for the sanguinary clash Thursday on the Bolivian-Paraguayan border. It declared that 15 Bolivian cavalrymen repulsed a force four times as large, losing one man.

Shortly before, the ministry of war also had issued a communique, stating that Bolivia is eager for the success of the Washington protocol for peaceful settlement of the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute.

Uruguay, one of the five countries that drew up the Washington protocol, has offered Bolivia and Paraguay its help in settling the Chaco-Boreal incidents.

FOUR MEN KILLED WHILE REPAIRING POWER HOUSE

SONORA, Cal., Jan. 20.—(AP)— Four men were killed today by a snowslide in the mountains 12 miles from here. They were repairing a power house when the slide engulfed them.

The dead were Jesus Lerma, Munitas Penas, George Missnovich and Spess Banchiff. The body of Banchiff was not recovered.

Other workmen set out to repair the damaged flume, and it was feared they would be trapped should a second snowslide occur.

VERSAILLES WOMAN AND CHILDREN PICKED UP HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 20—A young mother believed to be suffering from a mental ailment, and her three children ranging in ages from 1 to 5 years, were picked up on the street before midnight Sunday by Officer John Killourey. Officer Killourey was attracted by the pitiable condition of the group. The children were shivering in light summer clothing. They were hungry and told Lieutenant Edward P. Leahy that they had no place to stay for the night. The Salvation Army and Welfare bureau being unable to act in the case, the mother and her children were taken to the town almshouse in the police car. Here they were made comfortable and provided with good food by Superintendent Joseph Nolan and Matron Mrs. Nolan. The woman said at first that she had come from Norwich but it later developed that she had been a former inmate in an asylum. The woman had left home with the children while the husband was at work. The little group trudged over frozen roads for about four miles before being picked up in an automobile and given a ride to this city. The woman said that she wanted to go to Maine. This morning, Superintendent Nolan received permission from First Selectman William A. Buck to drive the family back to Versailles.

Among the many positions being abolished on the New Haven railroad system since the first of the year are those of yardmaster in several places, including this city. Edward A. McSweeney, who has been local yardmaster for the past 11 years, has been assigned to another position on the Hartford division of the railroad. He has been on the night shift since 1925, and his duties are taken over by one of the night clerks of the yard department. The position of yardmaster here had existed for over 30 years and at times two men, working day and night shifts, held the position while the freight business was at high peak.

While descending a sharp grade off the Pleasant Valley road onto West Main street Sunday evening, a machine operated by Ture Olson of this city skidded and crashed into a hydrant. The hydrant was broken off and caused water to spout several feet into the air for some time before being shut off. The machine turned over but was slightly damaged. Olson escaped injury. Speedy repairs were made under direction of Superintendent Henderson S. Moulton of the city water department and water was turned on as soon as a new hydrant had been installed. Officer Roderick Lariviere investigated the accident.

General Secretary Albert B. Smith, Physical Director Eric H. Lind, Nelson A. Daniels and Harold Higgins attended the 63rd annual convention of the Connecticut Y. M. C. A. held at the Hotel Taft in New Haven Saturday and Sunday. They were among 600 delegates from the 26 associations of the state.

The case of Michael Sellerite of New York city, charged with fraud, was nolled upon the payment of costs in police court this morning. Sellerite was arrested in Bristol Saturday by Officer Arthur Hurley, the specific charge being that he sold a quantity of decayed cheese to Philip Pagano, local merchant. Upon receiving information that Sellerite had made restitution to the amount of $42 for the cheese, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton recommended the nolle of the case. The costs of $35.30 were paid.

During a benefit entertainment given in the synagogue of the Sons of Israel Sunday under the auspices of the Ladies' club of the Workman's circle, a mirthful mock-marriage was carried out. Joseph Peck was parson; I. Berkowitz, deacon; Carl Zenchoff, bride; Mrs. Clara Peck, groom; Miss Price and Miss Krasowitz, bridesmaids; Miss Jennie and D. Scheinman, groomsmen; Miss G. Sternlieb, maid of honor; Mrs. J. Heller, mother of the bride; Nathan Cooper, father; Mrs. Kaplan and Mr. Sternlieb, parents of the groom; Miss Chuss, ring bearer; Miss Chasen, flower girl; Miss Kaplan and Miss Axelrod, ushers. A trio, composed of Miss Rosen, piano, and Miss Zenowitch and S. Tennenstock, violins, furnished music. Mrs. I. Berkowitz was chairman of the arrangements and Mrs. Cecelia Chasen, announcer.

The annual financial and spiritual report of St. Joseph's parish by Rev. Henry E. Quinn, the pastor, indicates that the parish is in flourishing condition despite industrial inactivity. The new rectory, considered one of the finest in the state for the average sized parish, was built at a cost of $35,000. Added to this amount were the installation of the heating plant, plumbing, painting, furnishings, etc., which brought the total cost to $52,000. A loan to meet this expenditure has been secured. The parish began the year 1929 with but a few thousand dollars of indebtedness, the large expenditures for church and ground improvements having been met during the early months of the year. When the building of the rectory was started last March the parish was practically free from debt.

The parish had an income of $36,040.49 during the year, including a balance on hand of $1,679.61. The regular parish expenditures totaled over $30,000, the balance being spent for extraordinary work. Under this heading were listed the installation of a new boiler plant in the rear of the church, renovating the pews in the basement and laying a cement floor in the basement. The entire plant of the parish, including the church, rectory, convent and school, is now heated by an oil system.

The spiritual report shows a total of over 3,000 souls. The parochial school has a registration of 427; 229 boys and 198 girls. There are 300 children of the parish attending the public schools of the city and town. During the year there were 67 baptisms, 33 male and 34 female; 138 children received first communion, there were 28 marriages and 52 deaths. The estimated value of the parish property is $300,000, all of which is in good condition. While St. Joseph's hospital is the property of the parish, no revenue is derived from this source by rent or otherwise, any income being diverted into a hospital fund. This feature, and the fact that St. Joseph's school as well as St. Mary's parochial school are self-supporting, with total registrations of nearly 1,300 pupils, is regarded as significant assistance to the town of Windham from a financial standpoint. The parish has enjoyed healthy condition and noteworthy improvements under the pastorate of Rev. Father Quinn, who succeeded the late Rev. John Clark, Nov. 24, 1926. He is assisted by Rev. Francis A. Duch, principal of the school, and Rev. Michael Thompson.

Frank Dittrich, 17, of North Windham was arraigned in police court this morning, charged with trapping without a license, and snaring. He was arrested Sunday by County Game Warden Thomas G. Daniels of Plainfield and through Probation Officer William V. Palmer, Sr., he pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $5 and costs. Levi Upton and his wife, Clara, were given suspended 30-day jail sentences and placed on probation for six months when found guilty of charges of intoxication. Officers Joseph Lachappelle and Albert Montie made the arrests.

A. E. BARBER NAMED AS FIRE DEPT. LIEUTENANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 20—Amos E. Barber was appointed lieutenant of the fire department in connection with other department appointments made at the adjourned meeting of the common council held tonight with Mayor Walter R. King presiding. The vacancies in the department caused by the death of Fire Chief Wade U. Webster and the subsequent promotion last week of Charles A. Reynolds to chief were filled tonight with the appointments of James A. Healy and Charles F. Palmer from call members to the regular department. The latter is understood to be named as the department's mechanic. These appointments were made on recommendation of the fire committee, Alderman Robert A. Hanna, chairman, C. A. Lamoureux and Herbert L. Sanderson.

Three supernumerary officers of the police department were raised to the regular ranks in the appointments tonight of Officers John Killourey, Leo Piche and Ralph Burchnall. Still another appointment made tonight was that of Wilfred Blanchette as tree warden under supervision of the superintendent of streets. This appointment was made on recommendation of Alderman Lamoureux.

Under what appeared a splendid compromise the controversy, which arose last week over the expenditure of the annual permanent street appropriation of $10,000 was definitely settled tonight. At the regular meeting last week Alderman W. E. Webber had moved for the continuation of the lower Main street permanent construction as far as the $10,000 appropriation would allow. That motion was ordered tabled for further investigation. Tonight Alderman Webber introduced a resolution authorizing the street committee, superintendent of streets and city engineer to continue the construction of lower Main street to Capen lane at a cost of $6,500, then to cause permanent road to be laid on Jackson street from Union to Valley streets and then, if sufficient funds remained, to cause permanent construction on North street from Valley to Main streets. All of this construction is to be of tarvia-lithic, the type of material used in previous construction on lower Main street.

The resolution, signed by Alderman Sanderson and Carlsen of the police committee to discontinue the traffic lights on Jackson street and at the corners of High and Valley and Windham and Valley streets, was referred to the mayor and the police committee with power after considerable discussion. The resolution followed the reading of a petition by City Clerk Arthur L. Clark, signed by 63 citizens. In addition to providing for the discontinuance of the lights, which were installed last year, the resolution authorized the mayor and committee to provide suitable police protection for the children at the Windham street school, Natchaug grammar on Jackson and the parochial schools on Valley street.

Chairman Eugene B. Lewis of the police committee, went on record as opposing the resolution, explaining that police officers could not very well be hired to work only at such times as the children were entering or leaving the schools and, inasmuch as they would logically have to receive practically a full day's pay, he did not feel that the funds of the police appropriation were sufficient. Alderman Webber, chairman of the finance committee, signified that he did not feel the appropriation would stand this expense. Alderman Louis C. Vegiard spoke in favor of the elimination of the lights. The motion to refer the resolution back to the committee with power was then made by Alderman Sanderson.

The resolution to paint the name of the City of Willimantic on the police car which was tabled last week was withdrawn on motion of Alderman Carlsen and substituted for another providing that the words "City of Willimantic Police Department" be painted on the car in four inch letters. Alderman Lewis objected to this on the grounds that it defeated the purpose of purchasing a pleasure make automobile to conduct private investigations. The motion was carried however.

The petition of Ralph U. Wolmer, jeweler, to install a sign over the front of his store was allowed with bond.

A communication from Benjamin Axelrod, commodore of Nipnet Canoe club, indicated the lack of swimming facilities of the children of the city and offered to the city the sale of the clubhouse on the Willimantic river for a public bath house. This was referred to the park committee.

A fine photograph of Mayor Walter R. King, suitably inscribed, was suspended over the presiding chair tonight, taking its place with other photographs of the previous mayors of the city.

A resolution by Alderman Lamoureux provided for the installation of a telephone in the office of the mayor adjoining the council chamber.

Commandery Officers Installed

The annual election and installation of officers of St. John's Commandery, No. 11, K. T., was held at the Masonic temple tonight. The installation work was in charge of retiring commander, Eminent Sir G. Percival Bard of Stafford Springs assisted by Past Eminent Sir Richard E. Dodge of Storrs as marshal. The elected and installed were: Commander, Russell W. Potter; generalissimo, Albert B. Smith; captain general, Louis B. Tenney; prelate, Arthur L. Clark; treasurer, Fred L. Avery; recorder, Arthur C. Taintor; senior warden, Earl K. Haling; junior warden, R. I. Longley; warder, Maurice F. Palmer; standard bearer, Charles W. Tryon; sword bearer, Robert H. Fenton; sentinel, Gurdon Rathbun; third guard, Elliot G. Beebe; second guard, James D. Hallock; first guard, Louis P. Dean.

C. of C. Drive Opens

The annual membership drive of the chamber of commerce got off to an auspicious start at a supper meeting at the chamber rooms tonight. President Frank P. Fenton called on Secretary John J. O'Rourke for an explanation of the drive and then introduced James L. Case of Norwich as the speaker of the evening. Remarks were also made by many present, and it was decided to make final reports Wednesday evening.

Officers of St. Joseph's Hospital Alumnae association elected for the year are: President, Miss Elizabeth Nagle; first vice-president, Miss May Keating; second vice-president, Miss May Moriarty; treasurer, Miss Margaret Prue; recording secretary, Miss Luella Tompkins. Miss Nagle and Miss Diana Dansereau were chosen delegates to the state convention to be held in Bridgeport, Feb. 6 and 7.

The matter of securing a permanent clubhouse in the village received favorable action at a largely-attended meeting of the Windham Fish and Game club held in the Windham Center schoolhouse tonight. Three reels of fish and game moving pictures from the Eastman Photoscope library in Boston, Mass., were shown as an entertainment feature.

Students at Windham high school will buckle down to the mid-year examinations which start Thursday and continue until Friday noon. Regular classes were held today.

CHAPLIN

Floyd Laudon who has been ill is recovering.

There are several cases of whooping cough among the children in town.

A republican caucus was held in the Town hall Friday evening, Jan. 17, to place in nomination a candidate for judge of probate for the district of Chaplin to succeed Judge Berton M. Welch who resigned the office Jan. 1. The call for the caucus was read by Miss Ada Lanphead, vice chairman of the republican town committee, in the absence of the regular chairman who was away. W. B. Gallup was chosen chairman of the caucus and Charles O. Locke secretary. The first ballot resulted in Merritt Welch receiving twelve of the twenty votes cast, making him the choice of the caucus for the office of judge of probate. Mr. Welch thanked the voters in appreciative words for the honor. The special election for judge of probate is to be held Feb. 10.

LISBON

A supper and entertainment was given at the Community hall, Wednesday evening under the direction of Mrs. Anna C. Terry for the benefit of the Learned school in which she is teacher of the upper grades. The menu consisted of baked beans, cold meat, escalloped potato, macaroni, potato salad, pickles, rolls, cake, coffee and ice cream. The entertainment followed. There were two plays by pupils of the Learned school, song by a trio from the Central Baptist church, Norwich and other numbers, all of which received hearty applause.

"Ordinary soaps can do great harm"

says the famous beauty expert

CARSTEN of Berlin

"Daily cleansing with Palmolive Soap is the basis of all my treatments, even the most elaborate"

"Ordinary soaps can do great harm. Modern beauty specialists advise a soap made of vegetable oils . . . the pure oils of palm and olives. Palmolive Soap is safe for the most sensitive complexion. It leaves the skin in the best possible condition for a beauty expert's treatment."

Leo Carsten

KURFÜRSTENDAMM 200, BERLIN

Facade of Carsten's famous beauty salon on the Kurfürstendamm in Berlin . . . one of the most elegant shops on an avenue famous for its smartness.

Today, more than ever before, it is important to wash the face with this soap containing olive oil . . . safe, bland, non-irritating.

"NEW beauty treatments, such as ultra-violet rays and radio-active preparations, undoubtedly have their value in certain conditions of the skin, but it must not be imagined that older and simpler methods are superseded," says Leo Carsten, proprietor of the famous "Figaro" beauty shop on the Kurfürstendamm in Berlin.

"Soap and water, for example, are still the finest possible cleansers for the skin," he adds. "You will realize the importance of this when I say that daily cleansing with Palmolive Soap is the basis of all my treatments, even the most elaborate."

Herr Carsten, better known as "Figaro," is head of the leading beauty salon in middle Europe . . . located on one of the most fashionable streets in the world. He, himself, is well known in Berlin social circles as well as in the world of beauty science.

18,900 famous experts agree

In this shop . . . in other beauty shops patronized by the smart women of the world's leading capitals . . . the advice to use Palmolive is part of every recommended home facial treatment.

Palmolive is made of the oils of palm and olives . . . no other fats whatever. Its color is the natural color of those oils. Its natural odor makes unnecessary the addition of heavy perfumes.

This is the Palmolive treatment

This is the way to get the best results: make a creamy lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Massage it into the face and throat. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. That's all. Yet thousands of great beauty experts, millions of their clients, find it the most effective safeguard for beauty. And Palmolive costs so little that one uses it for the bath, of course, as well. Begin these twice-a-day treatments tomorrow. They will protect your skin from irritation . . . keep it fresh, glowing, lovely.

DANIELSON

WEST SIDE MAN DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 20—After attending a picture show at a theater here last night Albert Ledoux of the West Side walked to his home and ascended to the upper floor, where he lived with his son, renting the remainder of the house to two tenants. The son was absent upon his return. Some two or three hours later when the son came home he found his father dead. Dr. Warren A. Tanner, medical examiner, viewed the body. Death was due to natural causes. Mr. Ledoux, a native of Canada, was 61 years of age. He had been a resident here for years.

One matter that organizations fostering Danielson's home-building campaign would like to learn is the names of those persons who are anxious to become home owners under the plan of the Danielson Building and Loan association. It is desired that such persons file their names with Walter Anderson, chairman of the special committee that has been created to assist in selling the shares that are now available. The early applicants naturally will get first consideration. Building of some of the homes likely will begin within two months. All details relative to the building plan will be explained to interested persons by officials of the Building and Loan association.

Those who roam the woods say that protected wild game birds appear to be wintering well. Because of the open season and comparatively small amount of snow that has fallen to date, the birds have had little difficulty in finding sufficient food. Partridges are reported to be quite numerous and flocks of quail, protected for several years past even during hunting seasons, are said to be increasing.

This morning in the town court Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $3 and costs, a total of $12.50, on John Kaczar, a minor, who was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle without being able to show proof of financial responsibility. Frank Poprawa, owner of the car, was fined $5.00 and costs, a total of $15.50, for allowing a minor to operate an uninsured car.

Despite the cold weather eight were at the traps of the Danielson Rod and Gun club yesterday for a shoot. Because of the unfavorable weather conditions and the small number in attendance, no regular program of events was shot, but the men indulged in practice shooting to suit themselves. C. P. Peabody was high in 100 targets with S. L. Ingalls and C. Stainton tied in 75 targets with 69. The individual scores follow: 100 event—Peabody 88; Oberne, 87; Slade, 86; Prest, 76; Castaldi, 71: seventy-five bird event—L. Ingalls, 69; Stainton, 69; fifty birds—G. Ingalls, 50.

Criticism said to have been leveled at town court officials in discussion of prohibition likely will have the reaction of bringing the critics up for questioning. Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that he proposes to inquire of those who are said to have criticised court officials as to whether they have evidence to sustain their criticisms, and if they are willing to produce it as a basis for any prosecutions that may be necessary. Mr. Bill did not indicate what action he might not take if such evidence is not forthcoming.

Mrs. Bridget Murphy Simmons, who is dead at her home in Goodyear, was the widow of Charles Simmons, for many years a resident of this town.

Advocacy was heard today of a plan to improve the interior of the town court, which is located in the basement of the town hall building, at the rear. The court room seldom has been used during this winter, sessions being held for the most part in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill.

It is understood that the state fish and game commission will release additional trout in streams in this part of the county prior to the opening of the fishing season on April 15. The long period of dry weather during last summer caused some of the smaller trout brooks to practically go dry.

The United States Civil Service commission has made announcement that an examination is to be held here in Danielson to fill the place of rural carrier at Brooklyn. Applications for the place may be made up to Feb. 21. It is expected that the examination will be held about ten days thereafter. The salary of a rural carrier on what is described as a standard daily wagon route of 24 miles is $1800 a year, with an extra $30 a year for each mile or major fraction of a mile in excess of 24 miles. The examination will be open only to citizens actually living in the territory of the Brooklyn postoffice.

PUTNAM

POLICE THINK SHOOTING AFFAIR IS EXAGGERATED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 20.—After two days spent in the investigation of a reported shooting alleged to have taken place on the morning of Tuesday, Jan. 14, at the Serine home in Pomfret, in which a bullet pierced the sleeve of George G. Serine and lodged in a wall in his house, state officers of the Danielson barracks today were of the opinion that the report had been greatly exaggerated. Much time was spent by the investigating officers in questioning principals in the case in an effort to track down the person responsible for firing the shot, which came from the barrel of a high calibre weapon. While the theory purporting to show the bullet was one shot by a hunter and went astray was discarded by police early in the course of the investigation the fact has not been definitely ascertained as to whether or not the shot was actually intended for Serine.

A credit bureau to promote the collection of accounts has been organized by the merchants' committee of the Putnam chamber of commerce. The movement is nearly perfected and is functioning with the cooperation of about three-fourths of the city's business houses, members of the plan, which is known as the Putnam Credit bureau.

Harry Stone, alias Earl Sargent, bogus East Cambridge hosiery salesman whose career came to an end in this city last Tuesday when he was arrested by Officer Joseph Page of the local police on a charge of misrepresentation and procuring money under false pretenses, is being held in the Middlesex county jail in Boston under bonds of $2,000, awaiting a grand jury hearing which will be given him on Monday, Feb. 3. This information was received by Captain of Police Alphonse Dubreuil today in a letter from Thomas E. Bligh, chief of the detective bureau of the department of public safety in Boston. In his letter Captain Bligh stated that Sargent was arraigned in district court in Cambridge on charges of larceny in several phases. He waived examination and was ordered held for grand jury investigation.

To Captain Dubreuil, the Massachusetts detective chief extended his sincere appreciation for the invaluable service performed in behalf of the commonwealth in the quick apprehension of Sargent, of whom Captain Bligh in his letter said: "It is a great relief for us to have this fellow (Sargent) in custody because he has been a thorn in our side for the past three years and his activities are now brought to a close."

At the request of Eric H. Johnson, city court prosecuting attorney, Sargent's arraignment in city court here was waived in favor of the more perfect case against him by the state of Massachusetts which resulted in his being placed in custody of the state police from Boston.

The cold wave which arrived Saturday evening and prevailed throughout Sunday and today provided a supply of ice on the various ponds in the city to allow local hockey followers to witness a contest Sunday afternoon between the Shippee Hill All Stars and the Les Canadiens sextet from the north end which was played on Rosann rink, Killingly avenue. The game resulted in a close victory for the flying Frenchmen who tied the score 3-all in the second period and took the game in the remaining few minutes of play when Tetreault caged a long lightning-like pass to score the winning point. Hockey is a sport that is attracting wide interest in this city since the two local teams began their weekly clashes a month ago. The schedule for the past three weeks has been interrupted because of unfavorable weather conditions which made ice unsafe for playing.

JEWETT CITY

ANNUAL BOROUGH MEETING VOTES $2,500 FOR FIRE DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 20—The annual meeting of the legal voters of the borough of Jewett City was held in the town hall at 8 o'clock this evening. Warden Edmond J. Jodoin, presiding, opened the meeting, making the following statements: "We have worked during the past year with the one end in view of keeping down the tax rate, deeming this to be of outstanding interest to the rent payers as well as to those who pay the taxes."

Besides paying $4,000 of the borough debt, items of nearly $5,000 in expenses not classed as ordinary, have been cancelled, making a total of practically $9,000, all of which was taken care of by the revenue collected during 1929.

Streets

There were no better streets anywhere in this section, than were to be seen in the borough. These were neglected for several years after they were built. Some time is necessary to get them back to their original condition. We are making repairs and raising the gutters as speedily as possible, and I believe that at an early date we will again be able to call attention with pride to our borough streets.

Engine House

The engine house has been remodelled and we invite you to visit it. It is borough property, therefore your property, and I believe that following a visit there and an inspection of the fire fighting apparatus, you will be convinced that the money expended for the new truck and needed changes has been a sound investment.

Police

Traffic officers have been placed on duty during the hours when the children are going to and coming from school.

Buildings

Occasion has arisen during the past year to restrict some forms of proposed building, but later, meeting with cooperation, all matters in these particulars were adjusted satisfactorily.

Garbage

The health of the public must be protected. Your board believes that the first step should be a more frequent collection of garbage. We intend starting weekly collections as soon as possible. I would suggest that ashes and garbage be deposited in separate containers, these to be placed at points which will be convenient for the collectors.

We expect the hearty cooperation of the residents of the borough in this matter, as it is an arrangement of general interest. It is but a matter of time when some other method of disposing of garbage will have to be arrived at. Perhaps an incinerator would solve this coming problem.

Electric Light

As has been the case for several years past, the department of electric light and power has been one of appreciable revenue to the borough. This we believe has been the direct result of efficient and economical management, a condition we trust that will continue for many years.

Big sale at Zegeer's store on women's hats. Your choice of $5 hats for 98c. Beautiful ball and street dresses at reasonable prices. Visit our store whether you buy or not.—adv.

The 38th annual reports of the board of warden and burgesses, treasurer, health officer, fire marshal, and electric light commissioners, were accepted as presented.

In accordance with the recommendation of the board, it was voted to lay an 8-mill tax on the property of the borough. The meeting also was in favor of the estimates for maintaining the several departments of the borough for 1930, itemized as follows:

Assessors $120; streets $6,000; police department $2,000; school police $750; fire department $2,500; street lights $3,800; miscellaneous $700; garbage $2,000; insurance $750; interest $5,200; water $2,422; election expenses $100; printing $200; park $100; clerk and treasurer $600; borough officials $600; total $27,842.

Eyes, See Good and see better, Finn Blk. Wed. 6 to 9.—Adv.

The appropriation for the fire department showing a small advance, will take care of a need which meets with popular favor, a proposal touching the pay of members of the fire company. The chief will receive as heretofore $50 per annum, the first and second assistants, with the secretary and treasurer, $25, and the regular members will be paid $15 each year, which is an advance from $5. The excellence of the borough fire department and its equipment is known throughout this end of the state.

Baked bean supper, Pachaug church chapel, at 6 tonight, 35.—Adv.

The report of the electric light commissioners for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1929 shows the receipts for commercial lights to have ben $31,436.59 and for the street lights $3,510.40, a total of $34,946.99. The system has been operated for the fiscal year at a gain of $8,977.22, over the expenditures of $25,969.76, which include an item of $3,569.10 for depreciation. The members of the commission are George J. Moeller, Lloyd G. Buckingham, Daniel F. Finn.

WORCESTER FAKERS FINED IN GINGER EXTRACT CASE

Pleading guilty to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, Raymond Morin and Carleton Meeker, both of Worcester, Mass., paid fines of $35 and costs and $25 and costs respectively in the town court Monday. Attorney Josiah Greenstein of Norwich appeared for the accused. Judge John T. Barry tried the cases and Attorney R. J. Dudkowski, prosecuting for the state. The pair were locked up by Officer Henry Vegiarde, Saturday afternoon, when their illegal operations were brought to his notice. They collected $5 from Mike Kargul, as an advance payment on a quantity of so-called extract of ginger, put up in 2 oz. bottles, and labelled to be good for sprains, bruises etc., alcoholic content 80 per cent. Kargul, getting wise, refused later to accept the stuff, whereupon the salesmen refused to return the five-spot collected in advance.

George Rathbun of Norwich was a visitor Monday in the borough, calling on a number of relatives and friends. Mr. Rathbun has a high class rating among the old time fiddlers of New England, and has been the winner in several contests. Well over 70, he was looking like a chicken, as he received the good wishes of his long list of borough friends.

John F. Barnett, manager of the Finn theater has bought the great screen picture, Cock Eyed World, to show in his theater. Nothing in the recent releases is to be compared with this wonderful presentation, it is said.

The various stores of the borough will be closed again Wednesday afternoon. This arrangement was discontinued through the holidays. Now both owners and clerks are pleased there owners and clerks are pleased thus the custom is to become operative again.

MOOSUP

At the meeting of Rebecca chapter, No. 27, O. E. S., Friday evening, the officers were installed and six candidates were initiated. The following were the officers installed: Worthy matron, Alice H. White; worthy patron, Orren E. Kenyon; associate matron, Sophia Cooper; associate patron, Floyd R. Main; secretary, Mildred E. Daggett; treasurer, Gladys M. Brewster; conductress, Annie B. Knox; associate conductress, Emma A. Appley; chaplain, Clara Gibson; marshal, Effie S. Burdick; organist, Mary Douglas; Adah, Edna M. Main; Ruth, Lillian M. Frink; Esther, Eleanor M. Bennett; Martha, Emma Kay; Electa, Nina Mortimer; warder, Evelyn A. Colvin; sentinel, Milo A. Appley. Following the installation ceremony, a past matron's jewel was presented the retiring matron, L. Mae Lewis; also a bouquet from her officers. The installing officer was Mrs. Ethel G. Ingalls, of Danielson, grand marshal of the O. E. S. of Connecticut, and her assistant was Past Matron Effie S. Burdick of Sterling.

After the meeting, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served and a social hour was enjoyed. Visitors were present from Danielson and Jewett City.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Russell and son, Kenneth, from New Bedford, Mass., spent the week end with A. G. Denison.

Squire Wood of Greene, R. I., was in the village Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mathewson of Greenwich, R. I., visited at Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hyde's Sunday.

Charles Edward Prior, Jr., of Hartford was entertained at Thomas J. Seaton's over the week end.

Mrs. Caroline Blanchard of the firm of Murry, Blanchard & Young, of Providence, attended the dedication service Sunday morning. Harry Milner of Westerly; Mr. and Mrs. Irving W. Davis, Danielson; Mrs. Cora Wood, Wickford, R. I.; Mrs. Ella Gallop, Danielson; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Church and daughter, Ruth, of Bristol, R. I., were present also. Mr. Church is a member of the firm of Church & Howe, architects of the building. Others who attended the services were Alfred Royal, Mrs. Carl Gallop and family, Miss Annie Tillinghast, Mr. and Mrs. Jason Lathrop, Plainfield, and Dana Potter, of Willimantic.

About 30 members of Lodge 113, Masonic order, attended the funeral service held for Dr. Frank Smith, in Washington, R. I. Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe of Moosup read the scripture, and prayer was offered by Rev. O. L. Monson, the pastor of the Methodist church which Dr. Smith attended. Rev. O. L. Monson, Rev. F. M. Buker, Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe and Rev. Faye Hunt each spoke for a few minutes. The points emphasized by them were Dr. Smith as a family man, as a citizen, as a worker for reform, as a dreamer and believer in the future, as a lay Christian worker, and Mr. Monson spoke of his passing as his coronation. Thomas Hope, Thomas J. Seaton, Miss Evelyn Cranska, Mrs. Cora Hyde and Mr. and Mrs. Mack Mott attended the funeral.

Tests recently made indicate that osage orange is the hardest wood grown in the United States.

PLAINFIELD

The calendar at the First Congregational church was given Sunday by Mrs. Jennie Wilde, in memory of Dr. Elmer E. Bennett. The C. E. service was held in the vestry, subject, "Shall We Abolish or Expand Missions?" Leader, Ernest Plassman, pianist, Miss Laura Gallup. The evening service was in the church. Theme, Beautiful and Historic America. A set of colored slides on Washington, America's most interesting city, was shown and there was a moving picture, the Service of Preparedness, also there were songs, slides, Star Spangled Banner and America. The pastor was assisted by Cecil L. Butler and the organist was Mrs. Henry Leach.

The Ladies' Aid society is to meet with Mrs. John C. Kingsley Wednesday at 2:30.

Many local people attended the dedication service Sunday night at Moosup Baptist church.

Mrs. Catherine Prior, who fell on the ice Saturday and broke her ankle, was taken to Day Kimball hospital, Putnam.

Mrs. William Krauss was a recent caller in Danielson.

Mrs. Henry Leach of Wauregan spent Friday with Mrs. Cecil Butler.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

MISS CARLAN THE BRIDE OF EMMETT WELCH, BALTIC

Monday morning Miss Catharine Carlan, only daughter of Mrs. Catherine Birracree, of this village, and Emmett Welch, of Baltic, were united in marriage at All Hallows' church, Moosup, by the pastor, Rev. Father Philip L. Massicot. Their attendants were Miss Theophila Potvin of Moosup, and Joseph Melinsky of Baltic. A breakfast was served at the bride's home. Guests were present from Moosup, Baltic, Danielson, Hallville, Worcester and Hartford. They will make their home in Baltic. The bride received many gifts.

Mrs. Matilda Laplante was dismissed Sunday from Backus hospital Norwich. Several days ago she was taken suddenly ill at the home of her son with whom she makes her home, having recently moved here with the family from Michigan. It is thought she suffered a slight shock.

Miss Catharine Carlan, whose wedding took place Monday, was given a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at her home by about thirty-five friends. Many of them were her shop-mates in the Union mill in Moosup. She received a variety of useful gifts for her new home. Refreshments were served.

Central Rebecca lodge met Friday evening at Odd Fellows' hall. The retiring noble grand, Mrs. Jennie Dawley, was presented a beautiful necklace by Past Noble Grand Mrs. Leona Edgerton. During the evening piano solos were given by Miss Lena Pipher of Plainfield, and reading by Mrs. Ernest Wilde of this village.

Mrs. Emma Bourque, who has been an invalid for several months at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Lavelly in Moosup, was able to visit her mother, Mrs. Louise Labou, for a short time a few days ago. Her mother was able to be about the house the last time Mrs. Bourque visited her, but is now confined to her bed, and totally blind.

Dr. Warren Tanner, Dr. Frank Todd, of Danielson, Dr. Cecil Garcin of Dayville, Dr. Garcia of Moosup were here Saturday to attend the funeral of Dr. James L. Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlan, of Hallville, and James Carlan of Worcester, were in town Monday to attend the Carlan—Welch wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boyle, of Sterling, visited local relatives Sunday.

DAYVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig and Mrs. William Swainson attended the Kellogg concert in Hartford Sunday afternoon. The program featured Sigrid Onegin, contralto and Percy Grainger, pianist.

Among the young people attending the Junior Prom, Friday night were, Jeanette Nicholson, Nora Creighton, Harold Nicholson, Harold Alvord and Tommy Bay.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the pastor dealt with some of the issues involved at the naval parley in London. The attendance at the Sunday school was the largest for several years.

Dog Herds Chickens

MOSCA, Colo. (AP)—Jesse Booth, chicken raiser of this place, has a trained shepherd dog, Blanca, which herds his chickens unaided. Blanca guards the only exit of the henhouses until his master closes the gate.

Terracing Cost Checked

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Records at Oklahoma A. and M. college show the cost of building terraces is about $3.50 or $4 an acre, on fields with a five per cent slope, and which are not badly gullied.

There are natural gas wells in Germany whose output contains helium, writes Kurt Weil in Die Umschau, a German scientific periodical, but there is no prospect of the Graf Zeppelin or any of her future sister airships being filled with German helium, for the combined product of all of the four German wells whose gas contains this valuable element would have to be accumulated for 400 years before there would be enough to fill the Graf. As compared with this, Herr Weil cites the great American well at Petrolia, Tex., which yields 425,000 cubic meters of gas, with a helium content of nine-tenths of 1 per cent. This would fill a Graf Zeppelin in a few days.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

My House

I have a little house somewhere;
Around it thick and long
The cool grass stands, and nightly there
The cricket pipes his song.

The stars through still and dewy hours,
Lean o'er the quiet place,
While fair hands festoon the flowers,
With shreds of silver lace.

The house is narrow, rude, and low;
Yet takes the dawn's first kiss;
Before it the June's roses blow
And the wild clematis.

Above the lintel, year by year
The sparrow builds and sings,
And there, on zephyrs borne, careers
A thousand filmy wings.

There, oft, a wild, shy music wakes;
Winds many an elfin horn,
And there flash into amber flakes
The footsteps of the morn.

Sometimes, when hushed warm moons are bright,
And shrill the locust calls,
My roof-tree basks in lovelier light
Than bathes ancestral halls.

I have a little house somewhere;
Sole tenant I shall be;
And when at length I rest me there
I shall sleep dreamlessly!

James B. Kenyon, in "Reed Voices."

For Tiny Feet

Now as the Christmas Star swings bright,
And all the gentle kneel once more
At midnight near a manger's light,
Let us be kinder than before.

Now when the winter snows are deep,
And hunger stalks and mad thirst wracks
And there upon the ground you see
These myriad of tiny tracks.

Now in this season of good-will,
And wave of warm remembering,
Remember those who seek your door,
And those in steel-traps lingering.

And when you make your new resolves
Upon a fresh and unstained sheet,
Resolve: that earth shall be a kinder place
For all these tiny feet.

Alfaretta Lansing.

Will You?

If by chance I should be absent
When the wintry shadows creep,
And all the earth lies numb and chill
Wrapped in a frozen sleep,—

Will you sweep the snow from the pathway
When the flock of sparrows comes,
And give each hungry waif
A feast of Christmas crumbs?

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Practically all of the members of the Wide Awake circle are acquainted with the busy little bee, but there are some curious facts connected with the life and workings of the bee that are not generally known. Scientists tell us that the bee has two stomachs and 1,000 eyes, and that a queen lays between 2,000 and 3,000 eggs a day.

A hive is made up of a single queen bee, working bees (female and nonbreeders) and male bees, known as drones. As many as 2,000 drones and many thousands of workers are quartered in a single hive. Drones do not sting, but they make considerable noise when flying. The smallest bees in the hive are the workers, and they are armed with a sting.

The queen lives to the age of three or four years, but her fertility decreases after the second breeding season. The worker's life is limited to from 5 to 8 weeks, in which time she literally works herself to death. To hatch a drone requires several days more than it does to hatch a queen or worker. Bees cannot climb a smooth surface like glass, earthenware or tin. The eggs of bees are white, similar to polished ivory, and about the size of a period (.).

For several evenings before swarming a peculiar noise can be heard in the hive. It has been described as a kind of ring or sound of a small trumpet; by comparing it with the notes of a pianoforte, it seems to be the same sound with the lower A of the treble.

Because of its thoughtful provisions for the future and for the care shown its young, the honey bee ranks among the highest of all insects.

Louise Sneed, Hiattville, Kansas—I received the prize book you sent me for which I thank you very much.

Betty Hyman, Norwich—Please accept my thanks for the book that I received from you. I like it very much.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Calf Likes Children

My Dear Uncle Jed: This time I am going to tell you about "My Pet Calf." Sometime ago my father bought a young calf which he decided to raise. My sister and I took a great liking to this heifer. We named her "Rose." She is really like a flower, so sweet and loving. She likes children because we have been so kind to her. Her colors are light brown and white, with striped feet. At times, when I speak gently to her, she rubs her shoulders against me.

Rose was one year old on May 15, 1929. That day I fed her apples and sugar, which is her favorite food. During the summer when she was out in the pasture, we children had a great time with her. Rose is now almost a cow, and whenever I find her laying in the barn, I sit down and play with her. I have to be careful not to get hurt by her horns (which are quite big). Although she might not want to hurt me, she might accidentally do so. Rose appreciates anything I do for her. I wish you could see Rose, Uncle Jed, for I'm sure you would like her.

I send my best wishes for the coming year, to the "Wide Awake Circle."

Visits Slater Museum

Dear Uncle Jed: My first visit to Slater museum was very interesting. I always wanted to see what the museum looked like and last week my wish was fulfilled. Imagine my excitement! The thought that I should visit our city's only but well known museum made me very happy.

When entering the museum I started immediately to look at all the statues which I had studied about in school and was very pleased to see them all before me. Beside looking at each statue I was also told about each and every one. After hours of gazing at the statues, I finally went to look at a great variety of coins from different countries. Next, all the works of art from prehistoric times were looked at. I was really dazzled by their beauty. Another group of articles which greatly interested me were the implements and utensils used by our first inhabitants. In this way I spent a very happy day and was very pleased with everything. My first visit to Slater museum shall never be forgotten.

Single Log Bridge.

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell the Wide Awakes about "A Single Log Bridge River." A single log is the automobile and wagon bridge over the north fork of the Snoqualmie river a few miles west of the summit of the Cascade mountains in Washington. The bridge consists of a big fir tree, 60 feet long and nine feet thick, upon which a deck has been erected, twelve feet wide. A sapling railing affords protection on both sides. It is said to be the only bridge of its kind, and it spans a chasm over 100 feet deep.

In order to test the log, 30 horses, each bearing a load of 200 pounds, were allowed to stand in the middle for ten minutes. This unique bridge just off the route of the Sunset highway, on the Kachess trail, is destined to attract a great many sightseers.

Distances Shortened.

Dear Uncle Jed: In the days of our grandparents' childhood it was hard to have a family reunion as the roads were bad and distances were great and the traveling had to be done by horses. But nowadays all that has been changed and for this change the automobile is to be thanked. The automobile with its good round rubber tires brings the young folks to the old ones.

Good roads and automobiles are operating to bring people more closely together than they have been in the past.

My Trip to New York.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for some time. I am going to tell you about my trip to New York and New Jersey during the Christmas holidays.

My sister and I went down alone on the train. She is 10 and I am 11. We started Friday afternoon and were in New York in the evening. My uncle came to meet us. We had to take a ferry across the Hudson river to get to New Jersey. We had our supper and afterwards went to bed. Saturday morning we went shopping down town. In the afternoon we went to a movie. The name of it was "Clara Bow in Dangerous Curves." Sunday morning we went to church. In the afternoon we went to my aunt's in Brooklyn. We went under the Hudson river, by way of the Holland tunnel, both going and coming. Monday morning we went shopping again. Tuesday afternoon we went to a movie the name of it was "Harold Lloyd in Entering Danger." My! but that was spooky. Wednesday, being Christmas, we stayed home, but had just as much fun. Thursday afternoon we went to New York to see a show, "The Sketch Book." From there we went to my cousins' house in Long Island. We spent the night at another cousin's. Friday we went to the museum of natural history. Then we went back to New Jersey. Saturday my mother and father came down for us with the automobile. They stayed till Sunday afternoon, then we went home after enjoying a nine days' vacation.

Bluejays Build Nest.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the bluejays that live near our house.

One day I happened to look up in a tree and saw a bluejay building a nest. I got some string and left it on a post nearby. I hid in a shed and peeped through the cracks between the boards. Soon the bird flew down and carried away the string in its bill.

The next day my brother climbed the tree and saw that the nest was completed. He described the nest to me and the way he told it I was tempted to see it. I also climbed the tree to look at it. It seemed wonderful that a bird could construct a nest like that.

A few days later I noticed that the mother bluejay was sitting on some eggs. When the eggs were hatched, we had a whole family of bluejays living near us.

Tobogganing

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope this letter reaches you and the Wide Awakes in the best of spirits and I wish you all a happy New Year. Now for my story, the name of which is Tobogganing.

One night about eight o'clock, I went outside to go sleighing, but just as soon as I had stepped out of the door my friends began to call Annie, Annie, come tobogganing down Moran's hill. All right! I shouted, I'll be right with you. I put my sled in the house, and ran to Moran's hill. One girl had a large flashlight so that it was perfectly safe. I jumped on the toboggan and down we went, topsy turvey. When we got up we were all laughing. The owner of the toboggan packed on about 15 and away we went. We enjoyed ourselves the whole evening. About ten o'clock after tobogganing we girls went into an ice cream parlor and had hot chocolate. After that my friends separated and started for home. I, with a loud goodnight to the remaining girls that were with me, wended my way home with a happy heart.

Ferdinand Magellan

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide Awakes: I am going to tell you about Ferdinand Magellan. We have studied about him in school. This is the story of a mountain lad who grew up to be one of the four greatest sailors in the world: Ferdinand Magellan, I hope you will enjoy this story.

Presents Swiss Play

Dear Uncle Jed and Wide Awakes: This is my first letter to the Wide Awake circle. I am going to tell you about our Field day. This happened in the year 1928. Our teacher asked us how we wished to be dressed, like Indians or like Swiss children. Now we had been studying about the country of Switzerland and its people so the majority of us wished to be Swiss children. We were told to bring some black cloth to school, from which we cut a simple Swiss jacket.

We were then divided into groups. Three girls were crocheting, three were embroidering and my friend Madeline and I sang a lullaby and were rocking our doll to sleep. Two of the boys were carving, six of the smaller boys were goats and another boy was the goat boy.

The goats were on their hands and knees running about with the goat boy trying to keep them together.

There were children from other schools dressed as Indians, the Dutch, the French and people from other nations of the world. The supervisor said that our play was one of the best given there that day.

The Sewing Machine

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell the Wide Awakes how the sewing machine was invented. Once there was a poor man by the name of Elias Howe who lived in Massachusetts. He had poor health and could not work. They were poor so his wife had to take in sewing. One night while he was sitting by the fire watching his wife sew he felt sorry for her. She had to stay up late at night sewing. He thought that there was some machine that would make sewing easy. He set to work and after a struggle of ten years he made the first sewing machine. He tried to introduce it into factories and shops but was not successful. He finally introduced it in a factory and from a poor man Elias Howe became a rich man.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Following the engagement of that smart, spicy, society comedy drama "The Laughing Lady," with lovely Ruth Chatterton and clever Clive Brook, which closes at the Broadway with tonight's performances, the talking screen at that popular playhouse will offer a thrilling, smashing drama of the original Broadway—"Mazda Lane," where every blinking light means romance, comedy, mystery, gaiety and heartaches—with William Powell, still suave and smooth, yet in a brand-new character in "Pointed Heels," the real story of the "Gay White Way" as it is today. Powell is a wealthy producer with a flair for the ladies and in particular one lovely show-girl, Fay Wray. Phillips Holmes, a young composer, is also interested in the same show-girl. Helen (Boop-a-doop) Kane and Skeets Gallagher furnish plenty of comedy in their own inimitable way, with the sugary Helen showing a bag of tricks that will prove a riot. Eugene Pallette is a typical stage manager, and the balance of the cast will prove ideal in their roles. A big beauty chorus, with gorgeous costumes, and scenes in technicolor, with the Albertina Rasch dancers featured, add the revue flavor to the story, which behind all the glamor tells a vivid and dramatic fast-moving tale of the stage as it is [illegible] in Coney Island [illegible] so real that one can almost [illegible] the weenies and popcorn. The supporting bill includes a Laurel-Hardy all-talking comedy "The H[illegible]"; Tom Howard, lanky comedian in "The Holdup"; a bouncing ball song-cartoon "Pony Boy"; Bert Wheeler in "Small Timers"; a theatrical boarding house skit, the Variety Three in a speedy cycle of songs and steps, and "Shake It Up," a fast and snappy revuette with girls, [illegible] steps and songs, and the Fox movietone news.

Palace Theatre

A program so unusual that reams might be written about it, opens at the Palace theatre tomorrow where it will run for three days only. It includes nothing less than "Three Live Ghosts," the film version of a thrilling and famous English play, and "A Most Immoral Lady," starring beautiful Leatrice Joy of the melodious voice.

Once again with a double-feature bill, the Palace scores a decided triumph. It is needless to say that "Three Live Ghosts" has already attracted capacity houses in many of the large metropolitan centers, and that "A Most Immoral Lady" is considered one of the most splendid and daring film creations ever produced by Warner Brothers or any other studio.

"Three Live Ghosts" is the story of a trio of war buddies who struck up a friendship in a German prison camp, and who, when they were released, returned to England out of funds and with nothing to console them but the sight of the familiar old London streets. One of them is a Cockney, the second is an aristocratic Englishman who has completely lost his memory, and the third is a young American who has had to leave the States for certain very good reasons, and who, therefore, has little desire to be returning here.

Leatrice Joy and Walter Pidgeon in "A Most Immoral Lady"

In "A Most Immoral Lady," there is an ultra-modern plot in which a "most immoral" but lovely lady skates on thin ice just once too often. Men loved her, women talked about her, but none knew her as you will know her once you have seen this picture.

For the last times today, the Palace is presenting the hit of the year, "Show of Shows," in which most of the great Hollywood stars were gathered into one production, a production by the way which is unrivaled in splendor of cast, music, dancing and setting.

THE LONDON CONFERENCE

Eyes will today turn to London, where there will be opened the conference for the further restriction of naval armament. Just what the result of that conference will be no one knows. There is a sincere hope that it will meet expectations, that the nations represented will find it possible to come to an understanding whereby there will not only be an extension of the Washington agreement concerning battleships, but a limitation placed upon other classes of warships. There are also hopes that it will be possible for the delegates to come to an agreement for a further restriction of battleships.

Here we find an effort that means the continuation of the excellent work that was commenced at Washington. It represents a decidedly different attitude on the part of the nations from that which preceded the war. It means that efforts are to be made in open conference for the purpose of reducing the tremendous sum which the nations have been spending for the construction of war machines, and for the stimulation of greater interest in international peace. It means an effort to reduce the suspicion which has existed in the past among nations.

Before the war there were conferences of national representatives in Europe, but they were for the purpose of secret agreements and those agreements had to do with some future cooperation in case of war. Those were the days of the secret alliances. These are the days of open conferences. Those were the days of arranging secret combinations for the purpose of overpowering others. These are the days when interest in peace is steadily getting stronger and when nations are joining hands for the purpose of furthering it.

Instead of getting ready for war, the London conference means that the nations are endeavoring to carry out the demands for continued peace and their purpose is to get some of the benefits of peace by taking some of the burdens of war preparations from their shoulders.

The time hasn't arrived when the nations can afford to cast aside all thoughts of protection, but it is believed that they will find that it is possible to reduce it to the point of reasonable defense from that point where it might be considered provocative of war and, to say the least, tremendously expensive.

MAGNIFICENT ROADS

According to announcement, there is to be constructed by the state of Massachusetts, between the cities of Worcester and Framingham, a new highway that will outshine most anything in the country. This road will be built at a cost of about $3,000,000 and will be a part of one important highway between Boston and Worcester.

According to present plans, it is intended to use a 120-foot right of way with the elimination of five grade crossings and the construction of either a six or a four-way highway, with a center grass plot dividing the east and west driving lanes.

There are good reasons for believing that this will be a magnificent road, one that will be greatly enjoyed by the residents of the two cities and by those using that stretch of road for any purpose. It should be the means of attracting much traffic and thus relieving other highways, but whether such an elaborate improvement on a comparatively short stretch of road is going to prove entirely satisfactory to the people of that state may be questioned.

It is to be realized that if that is to be a six-way road that the same amount of money would construct a three-way highway for twice the distance and thus give accommodations over a much greater part of the road between Worcester and Boston, or in some other section, while the other three lanes could be constructed some other year after better road facilities have been provided elsewhere in the highway system. Furthermore, there are unquestionably those who are contributing through bond issue taxation or gasoline taxation who feel that there are those much-used cross or country roads which ought to get more attention than they are receiving.

The idea of building these short stretches of magnificent roads is not being followed alone in Massachusetts, but wherever it is done it means that some of the highway users are getting the entire benefit while others are getting none at all, although all may be paying the same proportionate tax. The situation of the fellow off the main road cannot be ignored forever and the day after.

CONSTRUCTION PROSPECTS

If construction work by states, cities and utilities will bring about a reduction in the unemployment of the country the response to the appeal of President Hoover for such work promises to be highly satisfactory.

While the whole volume of activity cannot be attributed to the president's appeal, since certain projects had been planned before that was made, there is unquestionably a widespread recognition of the importance of carrying out plans at this time which might otherwise have been delayed. That they would have been postponed because it was believed to be an inauspicious time with so much uncertainty prevailing seems probable.

The object of the president was to prevent the continuance of that uncertainty, to remove the impression that prevailed more or less that fundamental conditions were uncertain because the stock market had suddenly been driven down, and to do it by doing something constructive. That this has been recognized is well indicated by the announcement by Secretary Lamont of the department of commerce that returns have been received from 36 states and estimates from others which make it possible to declare that construction by utilities and by states and cities will run up to a total of $7,000,000,000, while enough additional private and corporation operations will bring the outlay up to more than $16,000,000,000 during this year.

A striking instance of what the president's appeal is doing is furnished in the state of New York. There has existed the need of large outlays for public institutions for a considerable time. It has been delayed until this year and now, with the president's words in mind, reinforced by the recent disclosures in the penal institutions, the state is asked to boost its annual budget to a record sum and probably put it in a position where it will face an additional bond issue of $50,000,000 another year, or added taxation.

Wherever it is possible to push construction work, even at this season of the year, there is a desire to comply and with such conditions getting better as the years advance the period of threatened inactivity promises to be greatly curtailed, and we cannot overlook in it the guidance of a master hand.

A TERRIBLE TOLL

Up to the past year we had been guided by statistics which showed that there were about 28,000 fatal automobile accidents. That was believed to be enough, in fact, far and away too much. It was an increase over the year 1927.

But now we are told by the National Safety council that there were 31,500 persons killed by autos in 1929 in only 31 of the 48 states. That means a gain of 13 per cent during a year when the gain in auto registrations was only 8 per cent. In other words the number of persons killed increased almost twice as fast as the number of autos in use did.

Last year, during the closing months, it was pictured to the auto owners of Rhode Island that by the averages a certain number of deaths could be expected in auto accidents before the end of the year. It was also pointed out that the auto drivers and pedestrians could prevent some of that slaughter if they would. They were impressed. They accepted the challenge and there was a reduction in the auto fatalities for that period.

This same appeal might have its influence throughout the country if it could be properly presented to the auto owners and pedestrians and the proper cooperation given to the effort for reduction. There is no justification for any such death list. It is outrageous. We see people go into antics when several people are killed equally unjustly, but there is no concerted effort against the prevention of auto fatalities that gets deserved results.

The efforts in behalf of safety are many. Whether they are recognized and followed is another question. It is apparent that there is not enough care, not enough responsibility assumed for the protection of self and others. The importance of self-protection cannot be overlooked and there is quite as great an obligation to prevent taking the lives of others. It will be a happy year when it can be shown that auto fatalities have decreased instead of increased.

RESTRICTING SHIRES

Opinions will probably vary in regard to the accomplishments and possibilities of Art Shires in the prize ring. It must be said, however, that he has managed to get a lot of publicity, if nothing more, but it is not improbable that he will get an increasing amount of sympathy because of the decision that has just been rendered to him by Baseball Commissioner Landis.

Shires has been told in so many words that he must quit baseball or the prize ring. This may be no serious decision for him to make, but there are many who will feel that Shires is being deprived of a lot of fun, if nothing more, and a quantity of that publicity which some of the other baseball stars are getting in one way or another outside of the diamond.

There is nothing to indicate that Shires has any intention of trying to play baseball during the afternoon and participate in a fistic encounter at night. His efforts in the squared arena have been restricted to the off season of baseball, and he might take the view that he had quite as much right to keep in trim by boxing as some of the others have by playing golf or engaging in business during the winter time where they expect their activity on the diamond to be a drawing card.

Possibly the decision in the Shires case will be looked upon as keeping him away from punishment which he would not be able to prevent, but if that is the case none ought to have known that better than Shires himself. Still he is being punished.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Representative Merritt, as member of the interstate and foreign commerce committee, as well as by his personal interest in everything that pertains to the benefit of Connecticut or its people, is deeply interested in the bill now pending to give retired pay to certain members of the life saving service.

Mr. Merritt believes that not only the coast guard service should be properly cared for after retirement, but that the life saving service should be taken care of in the same manner.

The bill referred to would provide for equal retirement pay for both branches of the service. The bill has received a favorable report from Mr. Merritt's committee and he is hopeful it will pass congress at this session. The measure was before congress last year, and passed, but somehow, in the last minute jam of bills, was not signed by the president, and so died through a "pocket veto." Perhaps that may have been due to the crush of last minute measures sent to the white house, perhaps, because it was not included in the budget. Mr. Merritt hopes this year no delay will occur.

In presenting the matter to his committee Mr. Merritt took the stand that such retirement was not only a matter of justice to the men involved, but would greatly add to the efficiency of the service.

The purpose of the bill is to meet emergencies in certain cases where financial help is necessary to save the men from want or hardship.

Political Washington is wondering how the tariff bill will fare at the hands of the house, on its return from the senate, where it spent the summer, fall and winter, being deleted, made over and so changed that the ways and means committee, which originated it, will find scarcely a trace of resemblance to the original measure.

Floor Leader Tilson expects an adequate measure will be passed, both to meet the needs of the country and keep the party platform pledge.

But democratic floor leader, John Garner of Texas, is trying to organize a bloc against it, and bring about a coalition similar to that in the senate. But the house is quite a different proposition. The republican majority is deemed sufficient to meet the few defections without loss of power. In fact it is doubtful if the democrats, as a whole, relish being put in the position of depending on insurgent republicans to pull them through a political battle. One of the democratic senators said this week "I don't approve of coalition with the insurgent enemy to defeat the legitimate enemy. We democrats ought to stand on our own legs, not be led round by the nose by men of another party. When asked "why don't you say so on the floor of the senate, Mr. Senator?" he replied, "not on your life. I have trouble enough now, without being drawn into any more." All the same the staunch democrats resent being shunted to the side track of leadership, and let LaFollette, Borah and Blaine tell them what to do.

The president's innovation regarding state receptions is working out well, so far as one can judge after the first try-out, in the form of a reception to the judiciary.

There will be another new type next week, when the reception for the senate is given. Its main feature of good common sense is that instead of trying to crowd 3,000 persons into the white house receptions at one and the same moment, with only four state affairs on the program, there will be an average attendance of 1,500, which will be a number easily accommodated without the crush of former days.

Moreover it shortens the length of time the lady of the white house must stand in line, shake hands and smile a cordial welcome. It is reduced to less than one hour, then the president and Mrs. Hoover return to their personal apartments up stairs, and the guests stay on or leave as best suits their pleasure.

The third good thing that results is that it actually becomes a reception in honor of the judiciary, the senate, the house, the diplomats, or whatever is the stated group to be honor guests, while under the old regime, it was a joint reception for several groups.

The brief announcements, unofficial of course, that the Hoovers would return to the old time custom of suppers at such affairs, proved unwarranted, as are many advance guess work assertions, and no supper or punch bowl has thus far appeared. It's just a hand shake, a word of greeting.

In several earlier administrations, it was a "good time was had by all" affair. There was a generous supper late in the evening, the Marine band, or the navy band furnished music for dancing in the East room, and even though the presidential party may have have broken up by 10:30 the guests, stayed on till midnight, or later, joining in the dance, crushing their way to the state dining room, for ices, and cool drinks, until they crushed their way to a long line of waiting carriages after the midnight hour had passed. That died in the Wilson administration.

Gradually the custom was modified, until now it is a reception, nothing more or less, delightful, but lacking in some of the old time spirit of freedom of the white house. And with such good results it will probably continue.

A home for the vice president is again before congress. Senator Gibson of Vermont has put in a bill asking the government to erect a permanent home for vice presidents. In his talk, preceding the filing of the bill, Mr. Gibson referred to the fact that, at the end of his term as president, Mr. Coolidge urged such an act, and pointed out its need by his personal experience. President Coolidge refrained from doing so until he was on the point of leaving office, so no question of exercising personal influence could be attributed to him.

New Englanders have never been regarded as a "playful people" yet official records show that whether or not they play, they make more toys than any other section of the country produces. Connecticut carries off the palm. The toy production of that state in 1927 reached the enormous figure of $7,717,-832.

The chief of the specialties division of the department of commerce states that New England contributed toys of more than $100,000,000 in 1927 and that such toys were distributed in the amount of $130,000,000 throughout the country at Christmas.

The women of the Connecticut congressional delegation have taken a leading part in many of the social affairs of the capitol during the past week. Mrs. Bingham, wife of the senator gave a violin recital at the Congressional club on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Bingham is a skilled violinist and the club insisted she be the soloist at the weekly tea given by the club on Fridays. The club is composed exclusively of women of congressional families and its club house, up in the residential section of the city, is large and attractive.

Mrs. Bingham won bright laurels at the recital, Washington newspapers and critics give Mrs. Bingham high praise as an artist. Her program included selections from Schubert, Bach, Van Gluck and Saint Saens.

Senators Bingham and Walcott, and their wives, and Floor Leader Tilson and Mrs. Tilson have been guests at a number of white house and diplomatic affairs during the past week.

The Connecticut society, composed of permanent or temporary residents of Washington who still claim Connecticut as home, will give a fancy dress ball the last of this month, which will be attended by members of the delegation.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—You hear of "blocs," "insurgents," "irregulars," "Al Smith republicans," "Joe Grundy republicans" or what have you.

But despite new terminology to describe the intra-party cleavages on the republican side of the senate, the democratic brethren across the way are not without their own problem.

For them, however, the avowed split with party leadership is a one-man affair as a regular thing. And that one man is Senator Cole Blease of South Carolina, suh.

Here is a Blease confession of political faith uttered on the senate floor:

"I vote as I please. I recognize no caucus. I recognize no leader. I recognize no boss but the people of South Carolina.

Up To The People

"When they do not like the way I vote, they can have another senator and I shall make no complaint. I had to beat one to get here, and I cannot blame another for trying to beat me."

What inspired this reiteration of the Blease bloc's platform was the Bingham incident of the tariff row. Senator Cole added that if he was interested in the tariff—"which I am not—I am opposed to the tariff, and I am going to vote against the whole business when the time comes"—he would see that South Carolina interests were taken care of "if we had anything in South Carolina that the tariff would help."

"That is my position, and I do not care who knows it," he said. "The people of South Carolina know it."

Incidentally, Blease in this same speech got into a tilt with Caraway of Arkansas which produced another statement he frequently makes.

It is to the effect he holds himself responsible for what he says in the senate chamber "and outside, too"

No Bloodshed

"All right," said Caraway, but it was not clear whether that meant he viewed this remark as a challenge to go out in the alley and fight it out and accepted it, or was merely putting an o. k. on something else that had been said.

At least, there was no subsequent report of senatorial hostilities "outside."

What aroused Caraway was Blease's statement that he had believed the lobby investigating sub-committee, which Caraway heads, "was trying to gain an advantage in the tariff fight."

"I held to that opinion until I heard the distinguished senator from Nebraska (Norris), who appointed the sub-committee, make his statement," Blease said. "I know that he is an honorable and high toned senator and I believe what he said; and I accept what he said as true. When the committee makes the same statement I accept what they say as true."

Which probably explains why a single handed raid by Blease on the lobby sub-committee makeup, anticipated by some senators and calculated to support Bingham's charges that it was packed against him or any other "friend of the administration," failed to materialize.

THE NEW NEIGHBOR

"Where did you get that dog?" sang Pamela Allen that night as her pretty sister came into the kitchen with a saucy terrier trailing at her heels.

"Well, animals have always found me interesting," answered Fran, "and this pup picked me up just as I came into the entrance. So I invited him up." Saying this, she turned to the terrier who by this time had sniffed into every available corner in the small green kitchen and was now awaiting attention, his tail spinning around in comical satisfaction.

"Guess he's adopted us for an hour," Fran said, "but he's got the wanderlust in his eyes. He won't stay long."

At the low green table daintily laid with the evening meal the two girls talked over their day's experiences. Pam about business at the library, where she was in charge of the rare editions; Fran about the Paris frocks that arrived at the fashionable apparel shop where she praised beautiful gowns six hours a day to society matrons and their daughters.

There was discussion of this stupid person and that brilliant one, interspersed with much laughter. The terrier, strangely enough, became reconciled to the feminine chatter and settled back on the floor near by, feigning sleep but with his eyes blinking, his nose wrinkled with excitement and his ears not missing a word.

All of a sudden Pam crashed down her teacup. "My dear, I knew I had something to tell you! The man across the hall moved in today, and he has awfully nice manners. And I particularly liked his voice." Fran looked up with little or no surprise. She was glad the other apartment was rented at last.

"I heard him when I came in this noon. He was ordering the moving man to put the grand piano near the long windows. And, my dear," continued Pam, breathlessly, "he has a perfect raft of instruments!"

"Really?" asked Fran impassively. She was watching the terrier eat a pork chop with one swallow. Little glutton. He looked neglected.

"And Fran," her sister went on, completely ignoring the indifference of both girl and dog to what she was talking about, "I just know he's going to be the kind that entertains lavishly until the small morning hours, with much wild jazz. I just know it! We'll probably hear all those instruments tooting at once, and then the landlord——"

"Really, Pam, aren't you being a bit presumptuous? You've always voted for music, even if you can't tell one note from another," she teased, "and if he's such a handsome young——"

"Well," interrupted Pam hurriedly. "I liked his voice and what I could see of the back of his head. And as soon as we hear his music we'll know whom to vote for." There was a defiant glint in her eyes.

And then it happened. The crashing of the miniature china clown, their only choice piece from Dresden. The terrier couldn't stand it up there any longer, so he pulled the runner off the gateleg table. And stood in a corner near the door and barked, and when Fran scolded he barked louder and bolder. There was only one thing left to do. Fran, with good aim, sailed her shoe through the air just as Pam jerked open the door. But, of course, it wasn't a good aim.

"I beg your pardon,' said a nice voice belonging to a tall gentleman standing in the doorway, and who just that instant was being presented with a flying shoe. "Is my dog annoying you?"

Several minutes later Pam, who had floundered into a chair, started to laugh. "Well, that's the first time the back of a man's head lied to me," she said. "He's 60 if he's a day, with a becoming white moustache, and he called the dog 'Luigi.'" She broke into another moment of brief hysteria.

"He didn't think much of our Dresden clown when he said he could easily replace it," Fran joined in.

"At least we have something to look forward to!" Pam sighed. The entire coincidence was too much. Furthermore, she was no longer interested in the new neighbor, not even to know his name.

"But Pam, darling, that's where the joke lies. Read his card," she said, handing it to her sister. "Read that card and remember what you said about jazz into the small hours!"

So Pamela Allen, feeling really very dejected and a little foolish, stubbornly took the white card and read, with her face slowly beaming with amazement: Prof. Wilhelm Von Kirkkopft, Teacher of Music, Schneltsdorf Conservatory, Berlin.

"The classics!" gasped Pam and then after the final laughter had completely exhausted their good humor, she added with all the emphasis of sinister confession: "Of course, I really had hoped right along that he'd be white-haired and sensible!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sneak Thieves in Canterbury

Mr. Editor: The entering of the Miller residence by sneak thieves has caused quite an excitement, especially among the police force of Danielson barracks. It seems the thieves left behind a dilapidated Boston bag, containing a Worcester newspaper, a package of raisins, wrenches and some other tools. The police have been working very faithfully trying to locate the store that sold this kind of raisins, but thus far have been unsuccessful, as so many sell the same kind in Connecticut.

Another home in Canterbury was entered not long ago by sneak thieves, and many valuable things stolen, but never reported. Rather than have the police seen entering different homes, casting shadows on innocent people's characters and creating a scandal, the people stood the loss. Because the deed was done in Canterbury doesn't prove the thieves live there. Why not look in Worcester?

Coast Guard Misunderstood by Many

Mr. Editor: What has the coast guard done to anyone in this section, or elsewhere, to merit such criticism and condemnation as it has been receiving of late? I cannot help but rise to the defense of a worthy organization, which seems to be so misunderstood and ridiculed at this time.

Murder is a terrible thing, for a certainty. I do not endorse that in any extremity, if it can, within the bounds of reason and common sense, possibly be avoided. When our country adopts a certain law, however, and appoints guardians to uphold that law, how can the citizens of our country, even a part of them, feel so bitterly toward those doing their duty? A duty set forth in their orders from those officials sworn to uphold the constitution of the United States and the amendments thereto. Those men placed in charge of patrol boats, armed and given orders to apprehend and check the importation of liquor on our shores are, to my mind, literally "between the devil and the deep sea."

If our guardsmen become corrupt and allow smugglers to pass through for a stipend, they are disloyal to their country and its laws. If, on the other hand, they do their duty, even though it may mean bloodshed, they uphold the honor of their branch of the service and do their sworn work. It doesn't end there, however, poor devils. The wets jump on them and bitterly denounce them as murderers.

I've heard some prominent business men who held a worthy place in our community, bawling out our government for a seemingly needless extravagance in building patrol boats and manning and equipping them to enforce the 18th amendment. These men liked a glass of something stronger than ginger ale occasionally. Well, there are a lot of us who do. I'm not condemning a man because he likes a drink; far from it. As long as he can control his desires to a point where he makes no public nuisance of himself or takes the necessities from those dependent upon him; that seems to me to be his privilege, as a citizen in a free country. But when the said country decides by a legitimate vote to put the ban on intoxicants, why can't the wet advocate be a good sport and abide by the ruling of the majority?

When I first heard of the unfortunate affair between the Black Duck and CG-290, I felt very sorry for the smugglers, that it was necessary for them to meet so tragic an end. But, on the other hand, my own experiences as a boatswain's mate immediately surged back through my memory and I could not possibly see how the patrol boat 290 could be blamed. If the Black Duck's crew had only hove to when the CG-290 was first seen, as they would have if their cargo had been legitimate, all would have been well.

I have friends in both outfits and with the majority of them it is a clearly defined proposition. The smugglers do not think the 18th amendment fair or even constitutional. The coast guard are enlisted to prevent the operation of these malefactors and it is generally understood between the two factions to be a sporting proposition, each pitting their nautical cunning and maritime astuteness, one against the other. The smugglers realize thoroughly the risk they are running and when they happen, by a trick of fate, to run afoul of a patrol boat on a thick, black night, somewhere out in the big pond, naturally they are more or less desperate and with a thousand or so horsepower at their command, they are going to try for a break. That is the chance they take. If they can get going and the good, kind fog, their dearest friend at such a time, will swallow them up before the slower 75-footer can start in pursuit, all well and good.

'Twould thus seem that the coast guard's only sure chance of overhauling the smugglers and making a seizure would be to bring into play the machine gun, so thoughtfully provided for such an emergency. If the patrol boats only possessed the same power or handling facilities of the smugglers, they wouldn't be compelled to resort to their artillery so often. But that is the sad part; most of them don't, and here is the explanation.

Our patrol boats, covering several classes, namely: Destroyers; 125-footers, 110-footers, these last two are oil-engine powered; 75-footers and 35-footers, or picket boats, perform many other duties than those of bringing the elusive rum-runner to justice. They are frequently called upon to tow into port some mariner stricken with engine trouble or leaking badly. Then again, they happen along in the nick of time to assist in putting out a fire on a vessel or in rescuing those who have been forced to abandon their vessel. Then, too, many a craft is saved each year by the timely arrival of a coast guard patrol boat with a length of good manila hawser and a nice big wheel to yank them off rocks or sand bars.

Most of these acts pass along in order with little or no recognition, but let one of the greyhounds get a bit desperate around the holidays after searching all night through a heavy fog, with the nerves stretched to the point of snapping and shoot "at" a smuggler instead of over him, then the understanding citizen arises in wrath to ask what possible good the coast guard is.

As the Sun Goes Down

Mr. Editor: Every one of us as we hurry on, with the countless thousands that are hurrying along that path that leads to some definite end, stops now and then and gives a thought to something that was, something that isn't now. More particularly do the older ones muse and wonder and grope around for an answer, for they saw yesterday something that disappeared on the coming of the tomorrow. Among these could be listed the vanishing Americans. Perhaps many things that we have today are more up to date. And yet we look for the things with a wistful longing, for these were part of our world and of our day and time.

How many can recall the old patent medicine man that would hold forth near the liberty pole at Franklin square? Can you still see him with his stovepipe hat, his Prince Albert coat and his heavy black moustache, heavily waxed at the ends? How he would extol the merits of his wonderful preparations as a panacea for all the ills that the human family was heir to. As he warmed up to his theme he would describe the symptoms so graphically that his listeners would each and every one of them think he had described their trouble and theirs only. How he would tell them that he was only going to pass out a limited supply; and, "Gentlemen! Please don't crowd for I will attend to you all. So just be patient!" Wasn't it all a fine line of cajolery? While he was handing out this wonderful cure-all the people were anxiously forcing their dollars upon his quite unwilling hands and they in turn received a bottle of licorice powder dissolved in water. "And, gentlemen, don't forget to shake it well before using for this is composed of roots and barks and herbs that was discovered by the Indians in the wilds of Patagonia and the wonderful formula was stolen by a party of hunters from a ruined temple, and after great hardships was brought out into civilization." During this spiel he would have his Man Friday play the banjo, and how those fakirs could play. Well, it was all very interesting, wasn't it?

How many of you can recall John T. Raymond in his character of "Colonel Sellars—By gad, sir," with his famous eye water? Just one of those self-same Samaritans who, so kindly gave their time in the interest of suffering humanity to relieve them of their troubles and their—money. After all, were they not very picturesque. Just the happy memory of another time?

I wonder if you don't remember the farmer who would come to your door and ask you: "Do you want to buy a load of wood?" This was so funny and would create so many comical situations that it was featured on the Keith circuit some years back as a sketch. Page Johnny Cleary on this and he may give you quite some information that I am not in possession of at this time.

Don't you kinder miss the old charcoal peddlers with their dilapidated horse and wagon? They fitted in and made it a perfect picture with their musical cry of "Charcoal" as they wandered up and down the streets.

There are many things at this time that we recall and they are gone. Well perhaps they would be considered at this time as too slow. Didn't we think the old hand engines were about the real thing? When the old Wauregan fire engine and the Shetucket company had a real steam fire engine, the man-propelled machine went into the discard. Those steam engines would, in comparison, be out of date when lined up against the up-to-the-minute machines of today. I wonder if some of you old-timers can recall where the fire company got their water supply when they had to fight a fire. I know in the Greeneville section there were cisterns on many corners where the water would run from the gutters and be held in reserve in case of need. In after years, there came your water system and your modern fire-fighting apparatus.

I noted in The Bulletin of recent date the passing of "Tank" or "Grizzly" Adams, perhaps almost forgotten by the present generation, but very much in evidence some 60 years ago. He was at one time a fireman on the Norwich & Worcester railroad and acquired a great deal of his dexterity as a finger billiardist in the billiard parlors of Melvin Foster, which had more than a local reputation. This billiard parlor was located almost directly opposite the old Bulletin office on Main street. This had known many of the big men in the billiard world.

When we write of those things that have passed on, we but disclose to the view of those who read that we are of another time and almost ready to be placed in the discard with the other antiques of yesterday and the day before.

Many things have passed on, even the tramps who were a part of the social system of some years ago. They were a flare-back from the Civil war days. The little German mud gutter bands that would discourse sweet music a mile away, have perhaps crawled into their horns and disappeared.

But, old-timers, hang on to those old things, for they were good, for when they are gone you may still be here, but you have ceased to live. Think it over? We are waiting and watching the golden glow of the setting sun as it sinks and fades in the western sky, and our thoughts drift along the stream of fancy, like dreams that fade and die.

Care Of The Eyes In Every Day Life

By Lewis H. Carris, Managing Director, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Sight is the sense which is used more than any other in our daily vocations, in our recreations, and in our daily associations. What is our personal responsibility in taking care of the eyes?

First: Prevent blindness from babies' sore eyes by use of a proper prophylactic at birth.

Second: Avoid communicable eye diseases by personal cleanliness and avoiding the use of the common towel, handkerchief, or wash basin. If an eye disease is contracted, secure proper medical attention and persist in treatment until a cure is certain. Home remedies will not suffice.

Third: Give special attention to the care of the eyes of children during and after illness. Neglect or abuse of the eyes when recovering from measles, diphtheria, or other children's diseases, may lead to disaster.

Fourth: Take every precaution to avoid loss of sight from accident. Modern industry has greatly multiplied the chances of loss of sight from accident. Most states require proper protection for the eyes of industrial workers. Goggles should be worn even at some personal discomfort when the occupation is hazardous. Those who wear goggles won't have to wear glass eyes. If someone gets something in his eye, he should at once secure competent service. An eye accident must not be neglected.

Fifth: Conserve your eyesight. In addition to the 100,000 totally blind there are many times that number who have suffered so much loss of sight as to handicapped in their occupations. Work under conditions that necessitate as little eye-strain as possible; have good light both natural and artificial; see that the light is adequate and provides proper illumination where the work is to be done.

Sixth: Wear glasses to correct sight if necessary. Modern science provides an aid to nature to overcome some eye defects which, if uncorrected, may bring about headaches, stomach sickness, and other body discomforts. Periodic eye examinations and vision tests should be secured, and the necessary prescriptions followed. As we reach middle life, most of us lose some of our power of sight, and if we are to continue to do effective work, we must year glasses. Properly fitted glasses may prolong our effective working life for years.

First, last and all the time! Make the examination of your eyes a definite part of your program of health audits to avoid physical disability.

Doctors Agree On Best Body, Bone and Mentality Builder

For Frail, Sickly Children

There are any number of tonics and health builders in use today but there's just one which eminent doctors all over the world agree is best to build up rundown, underweight children and to assure them perfect nutrition, sound eyes, teeth, body and bone development—that's Cod Liver Oil.

And now science has discovered a method of putting Cod Liver Oil Vitamins (and it's these Vitamins which are so benecial to health — the oil without the Vitamins is useless) into sugar-coated tablet form—so pleasant to take!

Two McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets equal one full teaspoon of pure Norwegian, Vitamin tested Cod Liver Oil and are equally as good for every ailment, sickness, rundown or underweight condition for which Cod Liver Oil is prescribed.

Puny, ailing and backward children start to pick right up after taking McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets because they do get just the Vitamins they need. Intellect becomes keener, vital energy to resist disease is added, little nervous traits disappear—they grow robust, active and strong.

An ideal way of giving growing boys and girls the necessary Vitamins A and D of which modern foods and cooking methods are robbing them.

WOULD HAVE CLASSES IN OUTBOARD MOTOR RACING

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—The question of distinction of amateur and professional today poked its head into one of the youngest sports—outboard motor racing.

Headed by Paul Carlisle, of St. Petersburg, commodore of the Florida Outboard Motor association, and Chester Spinney, of Tampa, the Florida faction of the first annual meeting of the year old Outboard association launched a determined campaign for creation of two distinct classes, of owners and drivers definitely labelled respectively amateur and professional.

The Florida group also began a movement designed to make the National Outboard association supreme in all outboard affairs with the ability to sanction races and with the dominant position on the racing commission. At present, the N. O. A. co-operates in this regard with the National Power Boat association and the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association.

Definite action on the proposed rule changes is expected later in the week when the race commissioners meet. Two classes—amateur and professional—would be substituted for the present divisions 1, 2 and 3.

It was decided that the second annual national championships this year would be held at Middletown, Conn., Washington, or Charleston, S. C., on a date not yet mentioned.

SEARCH EXPRESS FOR MAN WANTED IN SPRINGFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 20—The Federal express Train No. 173, westbound, was held for awhile here last night while Westerly police and the conductor went through the coaches and sleepers in a fruitless search for a man wanted by Springfield, Mass., authorities. Lieutenant George Champlin received word that Avak Atamian, 65, was the occupant of a berth in the sleeper and was to be held at the direction of Providence police. Lieut. Champlin and Officers Robert M. Kessel and Leroy Norman went through the train at the Westerly station. Two young women passengers seeking excitement assured the officers that "the man wanted" was on the train and volunteered assistance. "Thank God," said a man passenger.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Edward S. Bushey

At 11 o'clock Monday morning, the funeral of Lucy Irish, wife of Edward Bushey, was held at the Franklin Congregational church, Meetinghouse hill, many relatives and friends attending. At their home, "Crissways," North Stonington, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher M. Gallup had as their guest recently W. Clark Allen, of New York.

Miss Nancy E. Lucas, of Sachem street was hostess to the Monday Study club, reading the paper, its title, "A Trip Through Rural France," which was illustrated by post cards. At this meeting the members decided to continue the study of English history for the year, taking up the period of the Stuarts, up to the time of the Georges.

Smoke But No Fire

The fire department made a needless run at 11:53 o'clock Monday morning for a supposed fire in a garage at No. 34 East Town street, Norwich Town, owned by Miss Clementine Bachelder. A resident in that section had the impression that smoke was issuing from the garage, so a telephone call was sent in to the department. An employe of Miss Bachelder, it was learned by fire officials, was burning rubbish in the rear of the building.

H. D. LARRABEE ACCEPTS LEADERSHIP OF BOY SCOUT FINANCE CAMPAIGN

H. D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., will head the approaching Boy Scout drive for funds for 1930. Mr. Larrabee was prevailed upon to take the important post at the urging of scores of prominent Norwich business men. It is conceded that scouting is on a sounder footing in Norwich than it has been in many a year, and with a successful campaign for funds put through, a program can be launched which will put Norwich in a class with New London, Hartford and New Haven.

The organization set up thus far has brought into being a citizens' general committee of which Arthur M. Brown is chairman, with the heads of over 60 different organizations, schools, churches, etc., represented. From this large committee a committee on prospects, headed by Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and assisted by many, has been formed and has been busy for a week on lists; a publicity committee headed by James Pedace, with John L. Sellman, R. W. Whaples, Dr. K. K. Markoff, L. E. Millea assisting, has arranged for an unusual publicity program; an arrangements committee headed by Earl W. Taggart, assisted by Jean Kieffer and Wilbur S. Williams, has arranged for four dinners for the workers, on Feb. 7, 10, 12 and 14th; a pre-campaign committee headed by James L. Case will soon get into action; an auditing committee composed of William M. Wyman and Walter G. Casey has just completed the audit. With the acceptance of the chairmanship by Mr. Larrabee, the workers' committee can now be formed.

A special luncheon will be held at noon today (Tuesday) at the Wauregan hotel where representatives from Rotary, Lions, Contact, Chamber of Commerce, will meet as guests of the executive board of the scouts to help launch the campaign as a community project. In assuming the leadership, Mr. Larrabee stresses the need that every division head, captain, worker, and contributor cooperate to the fullest in making the campaign a success.

According to the scout executive, all committees have been very active. An excellent list of friends and contributors to Boy Scouting has been made up, an unusual publicity program and dinners have been arranged, and a national speaker engaged for the opening supper, Feb. 7. Norwich stands a good chance of getting Dr. George Fisher or Ray Wyland, two of the organization's most prominent speakers.

A great deal of work remains to be done, and the executive committee asks for the support and cooperation of all. Scouting, it is pointed out, is a community project; it should be one of a community's chief prides.

Eight thousand dollars is the goal set to run the scouts of the Eastern Connecticut council for 1930. There are now 461 scouts under this council and with present plans for new troops, by 1931 the membership should have doubled and the quality of the work been greatly raised.

A training course for leaders has just been completed in Norwich and 15 men will receive certificates from the national office. Two training courses are now being conducted in Putnam and Stafford Springs, respectively, by the executive. Another is planned to be held in Willimantic in the spring. All three of these centers have been encouraged to put on their drives for funds during anniversary week, Feb. 7, and profit by the local organization work.

During the week set aside for personal solicitation a mail campaign will be conducted to 1,000 different homes to those whose financial circumstances will not permit of their giving large amounts. A pin will be enclosed with a Boy Scout emblem. Thus, everyone will be given an opportunity to contribute something.

According to Scout Executive Sellman, it costs approximately $10 to keep a boy a scout for one year. At least four persons will be sought to guarantee four new troops of 25 boys each for a year. A score of others will be sought who will each guarantee ten boys for one year; a score more who will guarantee five boys for one year. Two hundred will be sought who will guarantee a boy for a year, and 400 will be sought who will guarantee a scout for six months.

"The boys are willing and waiting to become scouts," declares Mr. Sellman. "We are securing more volunteer leadership. Norwich has an opportunity to double its membership of scouts, increase the quality of the work several fold. Will men and women respond to the boy need as workers, captains, leaders and contributors? We are confident that they will. The next few weeks will show."

HARTFORD MAN SPEAKS TO PARK CHURCH CLUB

Preceded by a banquet at 6:30, the Men's club of Park Congregational church held its annual meeting Monday evening with attendance of about 60 for the banquet, which was served under the direction of William A. Lund, with the following menu:

Grape Fruit
Roast Lamb Brown Gravy
Mint Jelly
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Carrots Peas Cranberry Sauce
Rolls
Pineapple Shortcake, Whipped Cream
Coffee

The table decorations were in pink and there were song sheets at the places for the group singing during the supper hour.

President Lyle H. Fillmore called the business meeting to order and annual reports were presented, that of Treasurer Howarth Collins making a pleasing showing. Later in the meeting the club voted a substantial sum towards hymnals for the church and a contribution in the Boy Scout financial campaign.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Lyle H. Fillmore; first vice-president, H. Clinton Atterbury; second vice-president, Arthur Wirth; secretary, Frank W. Clapp; treasurer, Howarth Collins.

John Richardson, the new secretary of the chamber of commerce, who was the guest of a member at the banquet, was introduced by President Fillmore and called upon for remarks, to which he responded briefly in an interesting way after pleasing the gathering with a vocal selection.

Dr. George Wells of Hartford Seminary foundation was the speaker of the evening, holding the close attention of the company as he spoke upon the topic, "Some Opportunities Which Confront the Church." One of the greatest opportunities which the church has, he said, was in the education of the parent along religious lines and in his opinion the church had a greater opportunity to educate the person individually than the public schools.

WILL SHOW WORK OF THE VETERANS BUREAU

The First district, the American Legion, has made arrangements for a special district open meeting here at the Elks hall next Friday evening. This has been arranged by a special committee consisting of Charles Colt, chairman; Imbert Fellows of this city, Col. Henry S. Dorsey of New London and Thomas P. Sears of Taftville, and will be of particular interest to World war veterans of New London county owing to the fact that the meeting is called for the sole business of hearing Major T. J. Bannigan, regional manager, and Dr. Stephen Maher, regional medical director of the United States Veterans bureau, explain the workings and the benefits to be derived from the bureau. This meeting is open to all ex-service men and women and to the general public, it not being necessary for any one attending to be a member of the American Legion. It is felt by those in charge that much valuable information can be secured from the talks that will be given at this time and those that attend the meeting will have a clearer meaning of what this department of the government really means to the unfortunate and disabled of the World war.

Major Bannigan and Dr. Maher at this time will come prepared to answer any questions that may be asked and if there are any veterans in this vicinity who feel that they are entitled to additional benefits this will be an opportune time to come and receive the information that they seek at first hand.

It is hoped by the American Legion leaders that every World war veteran in this vicinity will take advantage of this meeting and that Elks hall will be filled to capacity.

WILL TRY TO FORM POWER SQUADRON CLASS

Under the auspices of the Chelsea Boat club an attempt is to be made to form here a class in power squadron work with members from this city, Groton, Mystic, New London, Noank, and other adjacent points. The power squadron is made up of such amateur navigators as would have sufficient interest in boating to learn the rudiments of ordinary seamanship. The instruction would be given at the Coast Guard academy at New London and would be without cost except for books.

CONNECTICUT TEAM WINS NATIONAL POULTRY JUDGING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 20.—The Connecticut Agricultural college poultry judging team placed first in the inter-collegiate national poultry judging contest held at Madison Square Garden, January 15 to 18, thereby winning the sweepstakes prize, a 26-inch silver trophy cup. Louis Schaible, '30 of Shiloh, N. J., a member of the Connecticut team, was also presented a gold medal for being high individual in the entire contest, and a second medal for being high man in the standard judging.

The other two members of the Connecticut team, James Gwin, '30 of Tyrone, Pa., and Anton Scholtz, '30, of Boston, Mass., were also granted awards for outstanding performances at this contest. Gwin, second high man in the utility judging, was presented a silver medal, and Scholtz, third high man in the standard, received a bronze medal. The awards were presented at a banquet of all the colleges represented. The Connecticut team was coached by David E. Warner, assistant poultry professor at the state college. The other teams placing in the contest were: Cornell, second; North Carolina, third; West Virginia, fourth; and New Jersey, fifth.

This was the first victory for Connecticut in several years, but is the fourth time that the team has won. In any year the team did not place below third place. The silver cup will remain permanently in the possession of the college and will be placed on exhibition there.

The judging began at eight o'clock in the morning and was continued until two o'clock in the afternoon without stopping even for lunch. The intercollegiate poultry judging contest is considered the main event in the educational department of the Madison Square Garden show, and the state college team won against competition from some of the leading college teams in the country.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED BY MASONIC TEMPLE CORP.

At the annual meeting of the Masonic Temple corporation, which was held Monday evening at the temple on Washington street, directors were re-elected as follows: Howard L. Stanton, Albert S. Comstock, James C. Macpherson, E. Allen Bidwell, Guy B. Dolbeare, Arthur M. Brown, Herbert M. Lerou and Herbert R. Kind. George A. Keppler was added to the directors, filling the vacancy caused by the death during the year of Nathan A. Gibbs.

Officers were re-elected as follows: President, Howard L. Stanton; vice president, Albert S. Comstock; treasurer, Guy B. Dolbeare; secretary E. Allen Bidwell; counsel, Arthur M. Brown; auditor, Albert S. Comstock; finance committee, Howard L. Stanton, Albert S. Comstock, Guy B. Dolbeare, Charles L. Stewart, John A. Ferguson, Roy D. Judd; building committee, Arthur M. Brown, James C. Macpherson, Herbert M. Lerou, E. Allen Bidwell, Herbert R. Kind, George A. Keppler, Nelson J. Ayling; house committee, James C. Macpherson, E. Allen Bidwell, Herbert M. Lerou.

CHARGED WITH FAILURE TO PAY IN RESTAURANT

Two Montville men, Stanley Morawiec, 37, and William Johnson, 45, became entangled in the toils of the law early Monday evening for their alleged failure to pay for an order at a West Side restaurant. A charge of defrauding a restaurant in addition to a charge of intoxication was preferred against them and they were locked up at police headquarters to await their presentation in city court this (Tuesday) morning. The arrests were made by Officers Pounch, Patterson and Garrish.

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The annual parish meeting of Christ Episcopal church was held Monday evening in the Sunday school room with the rector, Rev. Thomas Richey, presiding and reports of the past year showed a period of progressive activity.

Officers were elected as follows: Senior warden, W. Tyler Olcott; junior warden, William R. Clark; treasurer, James M. Sanford; clerk, Joseph H. Hall, Jr.; vestrymen (three years), Earle M. Wood, Henry R. Taft, John Hoffman, (one year), Richard [illegible]; delegates to diocesan convention, W. T. Olcott, W. R. Clark; alternates, E. M. Wood, J. H. Hall, Jr.; delegates to archdeaconry, Joseph C. Worth, John Lucas; alternates, Lambert I. Hamilton, Harrison L. Crooks; auditors, John Lucas, Joseph C. Worth.

Sandwiches and coffee were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

SHOWS ORIGIN OF MYSTIC ORAL SCHOOL

The Mystic Oral School for the Deaf, which is now a state supported institution, had its origin 48 years ago in Whipple's Home School for Deaf Mutes, according to a circular in the possession of Mrs. Grace D. Wheeler of Stonington, which she obtained from her father, Richard A. Wheeler. The circular is reproduced as follows:

In delightfully located on a hill overlooking the Mystic valley with its beautiful river, and the united villages of Mystic River and Mystic Bridge. The view from the house extends across Long Island sound, embracing Mason's, Fisher's, and several smaller islands; and further to the east may be seen a bit of old Ocean, usually dotted with sails. Hills, groves, fields and rocks, a few neat looking farm-houses, a road winding along the bank of the river, and a beautiful cemetery on the opposite side, complete the picture in front of the house, while in the rear, a woods, chiefly cedars, but overtopped here and there by giant chestnut trees, serves to break off the piercing north winds, and offers the most tempting inducements for walks, and is full of the cunningest nooks, which the children eagerly appropriate for "play houses."

The situation combines the following desirable conditions:

On account of the beauty and attractiveness of the place, the pupils enjoy staying at school, and eagerly return after vacation, or any temporary absence.

The atmosphere is clear and bracing, not as intensely cold in winter as in many places in the same latitude, and delightfully cool in summer, with a breeze from the sea during a portion of nearly every day through the warm months, so that the general healthfulness of the place is almost unrivaled.

The Home school is near enough to the village, with its R. R. station, post office, stores, markets, etc., (less than a mile and a half,) to be entirely convenient, while it is far enough removed from all of the ordinary sources of temptation and danger, to allow the fondest parents to rest fully assured of the safety of their absent child, as far as perfect safety can be secured by human means.

The originator of the Whipple Home school is Jonathan Whipple; who, so far as is known, was the first in America to publicly prove the possibility of teaching the deaf and dumb to talk.

His youngest child, a boy, named Enoch, was born deaf. With no thought of the grand and philanthropic results which were to flow from such an humble beginning, after having observed that his little deaf son would only attempt to speak when looking at the mouth of the person speaking to him, Jonathan Whipple, who had never attended school a day in his life, succeeded by his own ingenuity and shrewd, common sense, in so far developing the system now known as "Articulation and Lip-reading," as to teach his mute son to talk, and to understand what people say to him by watching carefully the motion of their lips. This deaf son is now nearly fifty years old, and so perfectly has he learned the trade of using his organs of speech, that strangers who do business with him seldom mistrust that he does not hear.

Jonathan Whipple is still living, now in his 81st year; and he has seen the system which he inaugurated, and which, through years of almost hopeless apathy on the part of the public, he cherished with a sublime faith in its ultimate recognition and final success, developed and perfected in the third generation, so fairly and fully, that to doubt the ability of the deaf, with proper instruction, to learn to talk, is utterly impossible after once witnessing the results which have been achieved in the Whipple school.

The principal of the department of instruction, Zerah C. Whipple, has carried this system to almost complete success. He is the inventor of the "Natural Alphabet," which shows the various positions of the organs of speech in speaking, and enables the pupil to acquire a correctness of articulation almost impossible by the old system of imitation, and it is also a great help in learning lip-reading. The "Natural Alphabet" has received the hearty approval of many eminent educators, including Prof. B. G. Northrop, of New Haven, secretary of the Conn. board of education. This alphabet is copyrighted, and is not used in any other school for deaf mutes.

The school is now conducted by the firm of J. & Z. C. Whipple & Co., comprising the three families of Jonathan Whipple, Jr., son of the originator, Zerah C. Whipple, (a grandson), and N. Frank Whipple, who married Zerah's youngest sister; and it is probable that there is not another group of persons in the United States better fitted by nature, education, and moral training to successfully conduct an enterprise of this kind, than the above named firm.

The children have every care and attention that it is possible to bestow. Their health, their morals and their happiness are carefully looked after, and the instruction they receive is most practical and thorough.

Besides being taught the ordinary branches more perfectly than in most of the sign schools, the pupils at the Whipple school are taught to talk, and to understand words spoken by the mouth, so that they can converse with their friends or strangers, without having to resort to the pencil, or to use a language of signs, or pantomime.

The terms are ninety dollars ($90.00) per quarter, payable in advance. The first three quarters consist of ten weeks, each; the last quarter, of thirteen weeks, making a school year of forty-three weeks.

These terms include board, tuition, all the incidental expenses of the school room, and the washing and ironing of one change of clothing a week. In case a pupil is sick, the actual expense incurred will be charged.

Correspondence is solicited, and all letters will be promptly answered.

Visitors are cordially welcomed at the school, and opportunity given to all who contemplate placing deaf children away from home to be educated, to examine the system of instruction thoroughly, and to make all needful investigation on every point.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

NEW LONDON CITY COUNCIL TO PROBE EXPENDITURES OF SCHOOL BOARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan 20—At the meeting of the city council this evening the board of school visitors was subjected to the severest criticism any department of the city ever received from the council. A proposition to print the annual report of the board of school visitors at a cost of some $318 was turned down.

Councilor Fox said that it was the policy of all the cities to cut expenses to the bone, and said that New London should commence on the cost of the printing of the activities of the school board. If we can get along without printing it we should do so. The proceedings are printed in the daily newspapers. He said that too much money is spent needlessly on reports that no one cares to read. A number of pictures are printed in the reports and the rest is a lot of bunk, generally, he declared.

City Manager Holt replied that there were no cuts in this book, that it was simply a statement of the board's proceedings and "we cannot very well eliminate that." "I think we can!" said Mr. Fox. "That department is spending 40 per cent of the taxes raised." He said to reprint the activities of the school board was a lot of junk and the taxpayers could cut that expense out if they would.

He declared the taxpayers were denied the privilege of attending the meetings of the school board and that to get in there one must pass through three or four armed doors and past three or four watchmen. If any doors should be wide open, he said, they are those of the school board. He objected to spending $350 to print a report of their activities. He said that he didn't know of the happenings of the meetings but that what is wanted to be published is published in the newspapers.

This started Councilor Miner. He said that the finance committee had had three or four meetings and that the policy was to keep down the taxes to the rate of last year and quoted a section of the charter which provided for the purchase of standardized articles at the lowest cost. He thought that the activities of the school board were covered in the year book of the city, but City Manager Holt said that this report was not covered by that book.

Mr. Fox inquired whether there was any item set up in the budget for the expense of publishing this report. He was told that it came under some other expense. Mr. Fox said that he understood that the city paid $4 500 to a man to take care of the ball bats and teach the boys baseball. Mayor Twomey thought the expense should be cut off, if it could be. Mr. Fox moved that the printing of the report be laid on the table and it was so voted.

Then Councilor Miner made some comparisons and favored the policy of securing standardized articles at the lowest cost. He pointed out that that provision of the charter compelled competitive bids for cost of construction over $300. He saw no reason why it should not apply to the activities of the school board. He made comparisons of the heating of schools and showed that there were great deviations in them. He pointed out that $550 was appropriated for school baseball equipment. One school had the benefit of that, while others did not. He pointed out the discrepancies in the amounts paid for stationery. The School of Commerce paid $1,800 for 114 pupils and Bulkeley $876 for 871 pupils.

Another item was the expenditure of $100 for graduation. In another school there was no appropriation for graduation. The High School of Commerce had 104 students, Bulkeley 881, Chapman Tech 538, W. M. I. 430. The expense of these pupils was: Commerce, $159; Bulkeley, $413; Chapman Tech, $517; W. M. I., $452. He said there was a great diversity but W. M. I. was largely supported from other funds. He said the set-up in the budget for Bulkeley was $155,000, Technical, $78,000.

The same curriculum is followed at Tech as at Bulkeley. The policy is inconsistent. "We are paying $155 at Chapman, $177 at Bulkeley and $261 in the School of Commerce. He thought the thing was possible of correction if the council and the school board worked it out. Mayor Twomey agreed with him that the expenses of the schools could be reduced by cooperation between the board and the council. Allusion was made to the Fitch school at Groton and it was said that there was no mechanical instruction in that school, which accounted for many of the pupils attending Chapman Tech.

The consolidation of all the schools was recommended. It was hinted that the School of Commerce was not organized or established by the board of education, but by members of it.

Councilor Fox asked the city manager to bring in an account of the pupils in the high and graded schools. He said that the cost for 85 pupils of $350 per pupil was not disputed by the superintendent of schools. He pointed out that there were six pupils in one graduating class and 10 or 11 in another at the School of Commerce. One class in Latin had four pupils. He also said that the teachers in the other high schools would be asking that their salaries be raised to the rate of the School of Commerce, which was at the rate of $6,000 per year and traveling expenses, which were $1,343.48 last year. "That is rubbing it in!" he declared.

Mr. Fox wanted a check-up on all the expenses. He said construction expenses should be made by the city's highway department; he wanted to know if the purchasing department had a record of the expenditures and said that if we check up we'll find out if we can do some economizing.

He also said that no law of the state compels the state to maintain a physical department at a cost of $4,500 a year and said that we should give consideration to the employment of such an individual, before another contract is made with him. The council voted to tender the board of education the use of the city hall to hold their meetings in public, pointing out that it was well lighted, well heated, had janitor service and was open six days a week.

It was voted to make the width of Ledyard street 50 feet, in response to a request from the state; also to rent the house of Mrs. Cassius Harris at a cost of $25 a month to accommodate the new Coast Guard academy. Nine permits for building applications were granted.

The Fishers Island Farms, Inc. asked the city to endorse a plan for the federal government widening the Fishers Island channel. It was stated that the trade of Fishers Island comes largely to New London and Councilor Scott said that in the neighborhood of $60,000 to $100,000 a month was spent in wages over there.

A lease of the section of the wharf at the foot of State street, formerly used by the Griswold houseboats, was made to Daniel Dumont of Gales Ferry, to establish marine taxi service, sell gasoline and small boats. The rental is $600 for one year.

John Szeligowski of Groton seeks to purchase the Edith Reed property on Atlantic street, which has been condemned, with the understanding that he can re-build. Referred to the public safety committee.

A contract was made with the Providence Pipe and Foundry Co. to supply 200 length of six-feet pipe for $1,609.74.

It was voted to lease land of the city near Hillside home to Ben Pescatelli for garden purposes at the same rental as last year.

City Manager Holt reported on the proposition for a crossing at Maple avenue. He proposed three projects, one at a cost of $23,000, one for $8,000 and another for $93,000, the last providing for an underpass for passengers and the opening of a new street to Paquot avenue. The report was accepted but not acted upon.

MONTAUK AVE. REPAIRS APPRECIATED BY DRIVERS

The streets of the city are gradually being repaired, something which has been needed for a long time, and as a result Montauk avenue is in better shape today than it has been in a long time. The ruts and depressions have been filled with tar and blue stone and the danger of automobiles receiving damage has been greatly lessened. However, there are other streets and avenues about the city that are in need of attention and probably will receive it before long. These are Pequot avenue and Ocean avenue, the latter avenue of traffic being out of repair on the lower end aproaching Ocean beach. Before more snow falls these heavy arteries of traffic will undoubtedly be repaired.

STONINGTON VOTES $9,000 TO WIDEN WEST BROAD ST.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 20—Seventy-five qualified electors attended the special Stonington town meeting, held Monday night in Stonington town hall, with Town Clerk Elias B. Hinckley presiding and Selectman John Fribance of Mystic, clerk. The first proposition was the widening of West Broad street in Pawcatuck with an appropriation of $9,000 for the widening. Speaking in favor of the proposition were L. C. Purtill, John H. Gallagher, James Ryan, Jeremiah Healy and C. Leo Higgins. The proposition was voted.

The second matter was the naming of a patrolman for Mystic. This measure was also carried and the meeting adjourned.

BELTON A. COPP DEAD—PROMINENT BANK MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 20—Belton Allen Copp, 76, one of the most widely known bankers in New London, died early today at his residence, 164 Thames street, Groton, following a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Joseph Copp of Groton and Belton A. Copp, Jr., a resident of the south; also by a daughter, Mrs. Warren B. Burrows of Hartford, wife of Judge Burrows of the United States district court. Mr. Copp had been ill for several months and from the time he was stricken no hope for his recovery was held out. For the past two weeks he had been confined to the bed. Mr. Copp was president of the National Whaling bank and the Savings Bank of New London. He served as president with the National Whaling bank for many years and about a year ago was elected to the presidency of the Savings Bank of New London after the death of the former president, William Belcher. Mr. Copp was born in Groton and had always resided there. In early youth he entered the employ of the National Whaling bank, when the late Sebastian D. Lawrence was at its head. Because of his knowledge of banking business and his sound judgment in the investment of stocks and securities, Mr. Copp's advancement was rapid, for his judgment quickly revealed his banking ability and instincts. He filled all of the important offices in the bank until he finally became its head, a post he filled with ability until his health caused him to abandon business activity. Mr. Copp amassed an immense fortune through his sound judgment in banking affairs and was recognized as being the wealthiest resident in this vicinity.

Samuel Epstein died Sunday at his residence, Jefferson avenue. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon and burial was in the Hebrew cemetery, Jordan.

Taken to Cheshire

Clarence King and Charles Jordan, the former convicted of automobile theft and the latter of statutory burglary, at the present term of the criminal superior court, were taken to the reformatory at Cheshire today by Sheriff Sidney A. Brown.

Car Abandoned

Leland Grassette, 29 Summer street, reported to the police Sunday night the theft of his Chrysler automobile. At 4 o'clock this morning Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray found the car abandoned on West Coit street. It was taken to the police garage where it was later claimed by the owner.

FUNERAL.

The funeral of Andrew Platz, formerly of New London, who died last Friday at the state hospital, Middletown, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Edward A. Haynes

Mrs. Alice M. Haynes, 61, wife of Edward A. Haynes, 28 Hope street, died today at the private hospital. Besides her husband, Mrs. Haynes is survived by three sons, Hamilton, Walter and Joseph Haynes, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry Taitzen, all of New London; also by a sister, Mrs. Harriet Maynard, of this city. Mrs. Haynes was born at Hadlyme, but had been a resident of New London for many years.

MRS. EDWARD McDONALD DEAD; MOTHER CRITICALLY ILL

Mrs. Clara McLaughlin McDonald, 39, wife of Edward McDonald, formerly of New London, and daughter of Mrs. Annie McLaughlin, 393 Broad street, died at her home in Watertown, N. Y., Saturday, following an illness of but a few days with pneumonia. Besides her husband and mother, Mrs. McDonald is survived by two sisters, Misses Helen and Madeline McLaughlin, and a brother, Edward McLaughlin, all of New London. Mrs. McDonald was stricken ill early last week and when her condition became serious, her mother and sisters were summoned to her bedside, arriving in Watertown before Mrs. McDonald died. Mrs. McLaughlin was suffering from a severe cold when she departed for Watertown and, while in that city, she, too, contracted pneumonia. A special car brought the funeral party to this city and upon the arrival of the train in New London this morning, Mrs. McLaughlin was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where her condition is critical.

George Marquardt, Groton, has sold a building lot on the easterly side of Montauk avenue to Edward E. and Gertrude L. Darrow.

JOHN TANNER EXPIRES WHILE DRIVING AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 20—John Tanner, 68, retired foreman of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons Co. printing press works, of 176 West Broad street, Pawcatuck, died suddenly about 9:20 Monday night at the wheel of his automobile on the Westerly-Watch Hill road, near Avondale. His automobile ran off the side of the road. Mrs. James F. Davis of 44 Clark street went to the gas filling station of Joseph Daussault to inform them and to summon medical aid. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly answered the call, accompanied by Police Lieutenant George H. Champlin and found death due to heart trouble.

Mr. Tanner had recently returned to his home in Pawcatuck from the Deaconess hospital in Boston, where he had received treatment.

He was born in Cranston, R. I., July 17, 1861. He is survived by his wife. Several years ago he retired from active work as a machinist after many years at the Cottrell printing press plant. VILLAGE BOY MAKING GOOD AT A WESTERN COLLEGE

Hubert Ellis, a couple of years ago, left the Fishing Village to attend St. Louis college in that town, being a young fellow and his first time away from his mother's apron string. So the Sardine band in their green uniforms marched to his home on Pearl street, with Leader Keith Ebbetts swinging the stick. Young Ellis was packing his Broadway suit case, ready for his journey to the west. The band marched up to the door, played several tunes ready to give the Noank boy a send off. The members of the famous Sardine club were told to come in. The ex-Bulkeley student was dressed to kill, a new suit with shoes to match, a million dollar kid, ready to make good in the world. There was a good time for a few hours and Elihu Rathbun made a speech, saying: "We are all sorry to see you leave the village but as long as you make good in college, and attend to your books, we will be happy. When you are on the football or baseball team play your head off for the college. If you make a mistake don't feel blue; you will make it up the next day. Always keep your head up. In behalf of the band, I present this little gift of remembrance from the Sardine band wishing you the best of luck during your college days." So, Ambush Ellis (a nick name given by his classmates at Bulkeley, in New London) said "Well, I sure thank you for being here to give me a send-off on my first visit away from home. Also again, I thank you for the gift. I will try to remember every one with a postcard or letter."

The gift was a stickpin with H. E. on it also a key ring.

A light lunch was served with coffee and radio cake. Then the band formed in front of the house and with the village boy in the center and about a hundred in line they marched to the railroad station through the different streets as the band played. Reaching the station, Ellis had to wait a few minutes, for the train was at West Mystic. So the boys in the green suits started to play "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and "Gee! How We Will Miss Him in Our Home Town!" Tears were in Ambush Ellis' eyes as the train headed toward the west and he waved a good-bye to all. It was the biggest send-off any young fellow ever got going to college, a real time. A long while afterward his friends found out how the Noank boy made out in the west, making a hit with the students and wearing no hat all the year around; the coldest day day, Hugh Ellis can be seen on Olive street. His classmates named him Hugh an account of his wearing no hat and with the sun shining hot in the west, around 105 in the shade, you will still see the Noank boy going out for the football team. Making the big team in his second year with over 150 players to pick from and only 85 for his position. He played in two full games. Catching the ball in the air he made a long run for a touchdown and helped win the gridiron battle for his college, playing without headgear. He was cheered for over 10 minutes by the fans for his great run. The N. F. A. football chasers ought to remember Hubert Ellis a few season's ago, as he gave them a headache when the Speedboy picked up a fumble when a Norwich player missed it. Ambush Ellis long arms picked up the pig skin and raced for a touchdown for the Orange and Black team tying the score for Bulkeley. Norwich had a crack team, winning every game and the Tigers had not won a game all season. It sure was a bad headache for the Wild Cats to let a Fishing Village student of Noank be a real hero for Bulkeley. He could have anything in the Whaling city that day and the fans on the stands stood up for a long while cheering Ellis. Today, Young Ellis' name and picture are on the walls of the Bulkeley school as a hero with the rest of the heroes of years before him in the hall of fame. Ellis is a three letter man and got his sheepskin at Bulkeley with the rest of his classmates, now gone to part of the world and may never be together again. In Norwich today they have not forgotten that 6 to 6 tie at Mercer Field before a crowd of 7000 wild fans, who saw one of the greatest battles of football between the two old rivals. Our village young man has made good in the west and hope he can keep up his work in his next two years at college. He has not told anybody what he is going to be. Some of his former classmates in New London think he will be a doctor not a quack doctor, but a real doctor.

MRS. LUCY BRIGGS PEABODY DIES MONDAY AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 20.— Mrs. Lucy E. Briggs Peabody, 79, formerly of Griswold, died Monday morning at Westerly hospital, failing to rally following a surgical operation. She was the widow of Thomas Hazard Peabody, publisher for many years of the Westerly Tribune, former member of the Westerly town council, Rhode Island general assembly, and former probate court judge of Westerly where for many years he was a well known practicing attorney.

Mrs. Peabody was the daughter of Ira Greene Briggs and Lydia Andrews Briggs, born in Hope, R. I. She was united in marriage with Mr. Peabody, Sept. 8, 1874, at Griswold. Mrs. Peabody was one of the oldest surviving members of the First Baptist church on Broad street, a member of the W. C. T. U., and belonged to Phebe Greene Ward chapter, D. A. R.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. George W. Carroll of Norwich, Conn., a nephew, G. Wyman Carroll, of Norwich, and a niece, Mrs. Charles Larkin, of 29 Pleasant street, Westerly.

DEAD LIMB IN FALLING INJURES WOOD CHOPPER

W. C. Evans, 22, formerly of Philadelphia, residing with his wife and child at 28 Main street, White Rock, sustained painful injuries about 10 a. m. Monday, while chopping wood with other lumbermen for Frank Shippee in the Nardone woods, White Rock. In felling a tree the dead limb of another tree was knocked off and falling inflicted a ragged cut 6 inches long. Blood flowed from the wound and he was taken by other workmen, William Burdick and Edward Cavanaugh to his home. Dr. John E. Ruisi dressed the wound.

Jan. 17, 1930. Albert H. Spicer, Jr., transferred to George B. Utter, two tracts of land at Misquamicut, lots Nos. 137 and 138, plan of Pleasant View beach lots, C. E. Chandler and S. B. Palmer, engineers, Norwich, adjoining lands of Thomas Perry.

Jan. 17. Shelter Harbor Corp. Inc., to Adele Dodd of Detroit, Mich., lots Nos. 60 to 80 inclusive, section 8, at Shelter Harbor.

Palmer chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons, of Pawcatuck, Ex. Ernest F. Stenhouse, high priest, held a convocation Monday night in Masonic hall. Following the business session there was an exemplification of the Royal Arch degree by the chapter officers, on a class. Custodian of the work, Past Grand High Priest of Connecticut Colin S. Buell, of New London, and suite were present to witness the work. At 6:30, in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett commandery No. 27, K. T., a committee consisting of Dudley W. Stewart, chairman, Capt. James O. Babcock, Carl F. Anderson, Francis F. Johnson and Fayette F Freeman was in charge of a supper with members of Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay as waiters. Following was the menu: Roast suckling pig, celery and pickles, baked potato, mashed turnips, apple pie, coffee.

This (Tuesday) evening the annual preliminary budget meeting will be held by Westerly town council in an endeavor to fix an appropriation large enough to carry on the town's business for the ensuing year. The total expenditure for the past year was $512,875.92. This preliminary meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock, according to announcement by Horace E. Burdick, president of Westerly town council.

The financial meeting this year will come the first Tuesday in February, which is the 4th.

New officers, it is expected, will be elected this week for the Watch Hill Riding and Polo club, according to Judge Herbert W. Rathbun who has been retained by Watch Hill summer residents in the reorganization of the club. Formation of new policies and plans for the 1930 season will come up at the same meeting. At an informal meeting of club members last week the club voted to have President Calvert B. Cottrell act as temporary secretary and manager. Charles P. Hammond, secretary and founder of the club, was relieved of further duties.

The club faces an indebtedness of between $15,000 and $20,000 as the result of its two years' existence. Its lease of the Oaks inn property on Shore road, owned by Dr. John Champlin, of Westerly, has two years to run. Local creditors of the club were instrumental in bringing about the present reorganization.

OBITUARY

Matthias Ousley

At Pawtucket, Matthias Ousley, 75, husband of Josephine Nardone Ousley, died Saturday morning at the residence of his son, Julius Ousley, 67 West avenue, after a lingering illness. He was a former resident of White Rock when boss of the White Rock mill, and was a member of Berkshire Lodge of Masons, Adams, Mass. Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Frank Walker of Fall River, and Mrs. John Cox of Brooklyn, N. Y., two sons, Attorney Julius Ousley of Pawtucket and Matthias Ousley, Jr., of Greenville, S. C., and by four grandchildren.

Albert Langworthy

Albert Langworthy, well known Westerly farmer, residing at Langworthy's Corners on the Shore road, died Monday morning at his home, following an illness confining him to his bed since last Friday. He was born February 3, 1845, the son of Albert B. and Abby Crandall Langworthy. With the exception of two years when he lived on the Post road, his entire life was spent at the present location of the Langworthy home. He married February 4, 1869, Melissa Macomber and in 1919 they observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Langworthy died September 11, 1927. Mr. Langworthy was a member of the Dunn's Corners Seventh Day Baptist church. He is survived by a son, Edward B. Langworthy and a daughter, Mrs. Raymond Barber, of the Shore road. He leaves eight grandchildren.

At Bradford Sunday evening, the choir of Pawcatuck Congregational church presented its Christmas music program in the Niantic Baptist church giving excerpts from Handel's "Messiah." Mrs. Joel Sherman directed, and Albert R. Bailey was at the organ.

Westerly Rifle club, at its annual meeting at the Dixon street state armory, re-elected officers as follows: President, Harold Mudge; vice president, William Stilwell; secretary, Thomas Onberg; treasurer, Caleb Mudge.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Michaud, of Eagle Lake Camps, Me., were Westerly visitors Sunday and Monday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ward Stoddard, and making a trip to Watch Hill. They are motoring to Miami, Fla., to pass the winter months. From their Maine camp last year were shipped out 96 deer and of the 97 licensed visitors, one hunter losing his shipping tag was unable to get his deer out. Of a total of 17 bears sent out from Maine last year two came from the Eagle Lake camp.

Mrs. Fred Chase, after being the guest of her sister, Mrs. George McBride in Pawcatuck, left Monday morning to return to her home at New Hampton, N. H.

Courtland P. Chapman and his sister, Miss Elizabeth Chapman, left the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Palmer Chapman, in Avondale, by automobile Monday to motor to Venice, Fla., to pass a month or six weeks.

Miss Frances Young, of Haversham, left Monday for a visit in Providence.

MYSTIC

Conrad Kretser slipped and fell on the ice, Saturday morning. A doctor was called and he was taken to hish home on Pearl street. Latest reports say that his hip is so badly swollen that it is impossible to know how badly hurt he is.

Clarence Coogan is substituting as rural delivery man, on the route covered by Frank C. Wheeler of High street.

Another accident due to the slippery going Saturday mornin, was when Mrs. John Chapman of High street, went to the door to put out a milk bottle. She slipped and fell, cutting her hand badly. She was taken to the hospital in New London, where the hand was dressed and Mrs. Chapman then returned home.

Treffly Morin sang the offertory solo at the Congregational church, Sunday morning. Due to the stormy weather Saturday evening, the choir rehearsal was postponed.

The January meeting of the B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist church, Old Mystic, is to be held this (Tuesday) evening with Miss Agnes Austin. The Ladies' Aid society of the church will meet with Mrs. Anna R. Williams, Wednesday afternoon. The attendance at the Sunday school session Sunday was 55 and the collection was $4.03.

Mrs. Fannie Travens was unable to sing at the Union Baptist church Sunday morning, owing to a severe cold. Mrs. Ira Avery was the soloist, her solo being "Consider the Lilies."

This (Tuesday) afternoon the Missionary society is to hold an all day session with Mrs. Julia B. Coates. At noon there will be a covered dish dinner. White Cross work will occupy the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Allyn have gone to Daytona, Florida, where they have spent the past 11 winters.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Coogan have recovered from mumps.

Mrs. Albert Wells has returned from a visit in Waterbury. Her friends are glad to know that she is feeling much better, after having been confined to her home by illness.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Patrick's church is to meet in the vestry Thursday afternoon. Refreshments will be in charge of Mrs. James Hanley and Mrs. Justin Stafford.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Burdick of Old Mystic entertained Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Colver of Westerly, and Miss Katherine Wheeler and a friend from Providence, at dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Avery and son, Junior, of Groton Long Point, visited Mrs. Avery's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Beckwith, Sunday.

PENDLETON HILL

Wednesday, an ambulance from Backus hospital, conveyed Richard Palmer to that institution. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Birdsey C. Palmer and a nurse from the hospital. His case seems to baffle the several physicians who have attended him up to this time. He suffers no pain but runs a very high temperature accompanied by violent attacks of perspiration.

Mr. and Mrs. Birdsey Palmer are daily visitors at Backus hospital in Norwich.

The Sewing society met Wednesday with Mrs. George Palmer. Seven sat down at a bountiful dinner of baked beans, mashed potato, macaroni and cheese, sour pickles, corn chowder, brown bread, mince pie, layer cake and coffee. A crate of Hollywood oranges was passed around after dinner. The members made holders and aprons for an approaching sale.

Miss Lucy Lester is better, but not yet able to sit up.

Messrs. Palmer and Wight are making repairs to their building, a nearly new blacksmith shop and parking space for four cars, are among the improvements at this fine old place.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Fashion revels in the soft, enchanting curves of the modern figure. Don't sacrifice that graceful contour by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When tempted to treat yourself too well, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the modern, alluringly-rounded figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

PERMIT GRANTED FOR NEW DWELLING HOUSE TO BE BUILT ON ELISHA ST.

Despite the rainy weather of the past week of so progress on local building projects was made during the past week especially where the interior work was being done. At the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft but three permits were granted during the week, one being for a house to be erected by Joseph Dugas on Elisha street. The other two permits were for additions to present buildings. The permits were as follows:

To Mrs. Ida Schornberg to build an addition to the present frame garage in the rear of 284 Mt. Pleasant street. The addition will be 9x16 feet. The foundation will be of stone. The estimated cost is $35.

To Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dugas to erect a two-story frame house on Elisha street. The house will be 26x32 feet and of colonial design.

The foundation will be of concrete and stone and the superstructure of balloon frame. The exterior finish will be in colonial clapboards and shingle roof. The interior finish will be in hard plaster on celotex. All floors and trim are to be in hard wood while the bathroom will have a tile floor and tile walls. The house will be heated by steam and the plumbing will be in brass. The estimated cost is $6,000.

To Urula Rymsya to build an addition to the present house at 5 Golden street. The addition which will be 4x20 feet will be used as a two car garage. The estimated cost is $200.

At the Norwich Inn Contractors Peck, McWilliams Co. have made exceptionally fine progress with the building during the past few weeks. The building has been roofed in and the windows set in place so that the interior work can go on unhampered by the cold weather. The lathers and plasterers are at work and are making good progress so that the finishers will be able to start work within a very short time. If work progresses as rapidly as it has in the past few weeks it is expected that the Inn will be ready for occupancy almost by the time of the opening of the golfing season.

Other work in the city is coming along at a good rate. The foundation work on the Norton Memorial at the Academy is being done by Contractor W. S. Spencer who expects to start on the super structure as soon as the foundation is completed.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were four sales of real estate, exactly the same number as during the same week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,600 and $42,650.

There were no sales of real estate in New London during the past week as against ten sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $21,854 and $53,885.

NEW LONDON

The proposed W. M. I. auditorium, according to plans announced by Colin S. Buell, principal of Williams Memorial institute will include, in addition to the auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000 persons, a gymnasium, a library and cafeteria below the main floor, a gallery seating 500 and three rooms suitable for class rooms on the second floor and the power plant in the basement. The building will be of brick construction and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy in September, 1931.

Included in the deficiency estimates submitted to congress by President Hoover last week is an item providing $850,000 for the new Coast Guard academy buildings on Nameaug avenue. An appropriation of $1,750,000 has been approved by congress for the construction work and it is the plan to secure $850,000 at once in order to get the work started and to obtain further appropriations as needed to complete the work. Secretary Mellon of the treasury department has asked that the amount to be set aside for the construction work here be increased to $2,600,000. In his request Secretary Mellon lists the proposed buildings as follows: Administration, $160,000; cadet barracks, $430,000; academic, $300,000; engineering, $435,000; gymnasium and armory, $300,000; enlisted men's barracks, $35,000; general storehouse, $42,000; boiler house and stack, $75,000; observatory, $3,500; superintendent's quarters, $32,000; officers' quarters, $50,000; wharf and boathouse, $15,000; roads and walks, $56,000; grading, $76,000; fencing, $22,000; piping, etc., $110,000, and contingencies, $128,000.

CONN. BUILDING DROPS SHARPLY IN PAST MONTH

Building permits issued by cities and towns in Connecticut during the month of December not only underwent their customary winter slump, but also fell considerably below the state's permit figure for December, 1928, according to the monthly building survey conducted by the committee on industrial development of the New Haven railroad. December permits, issued by the 23 communities covered in the railroad's survey, were less by more than a million dollars than either the November, or December, 1928, figures.

New Haven contributed nearly half of the entire December building total of the 23 communities, Yale university again bringing the Elm city figure to the top of the list with permits for the erection of two hospital buildings valued at $1,750,000. The general trend of building activity in Connecticut in December is reflected in the fact that only five cities and towns showed gains over the preceding month, and only six over December, 1928.

Communities recording gains in building permits over November figures were Derby, Hamden, Middletown, New Haven and Norwalk, while those enjoying increases as compared with the same month last year were Meriden, Middletown, Naugatuck, New Haven, Norwich and Willimantic. Comparative figures for December, 1929, and December, 1928, as reported in the railroad's survey are as follows:

City	Dec. 1929	Dec. 1928
Bristol	$ 16,490	$ 75,460

GAIN IN ACTIVITY SEEN IN BUILDING

The 1930 construction requirements of the United States total nearly $9,000,000,000, according to statistics just compiled by the Copper and Brass Research association in its annual building survey.

Although building during 1929 fell below the average of the past five years, there are many factors which point to increased activity for 1930. It is possible that a new all-time construction record may be established.

The survey discusses in detail the building requirement for the coming year and compares it with last year. Trends of distribution of building activity are analyzed according to classes of structures and geographical sections of the country. Under these headings the association says:

"There are so many variable factors which partially control the construction industry that all statistical estimates must be considered in connection with careful judgment of intangible points.

"Fundamentally, building depends upon the increase and distribution of population and the standard of living. Other conditions affecting building may be traced to these. As long as our population continues to grow and our standards of living to better, no more than temporary recessions of building activity need be anticipated.

"Currently our population is increasing at the rate of about 1,650,000 persons per year. In addition to housings and other accommodations for these people, construction must be provided for population movements, such as shifts from farms to cities and from cities to suburbs. It is estimated that 4,000,000 persons have moved from farms to cities since 1910.

"Half a billion dollars must be spent annually to replace buildings destroyed by fire and storm.

"Buildings of all types wear out, or become obsolete. By far, the largest part of all structures at present, fall in a group which shows a weighted average economic life of about forty years. Thus 2½ per cent of the value of such structures will be used up during 1930 and should be replaced.

"In addition, current wear and tear of buildings expressed in alteration and repair jobs set another huge demand to be met annually by the construction industry."

HIGHER PRICED WALLPAPER WILL REPAY PURCHASER

In buying wallpaper it does not pay to be too cheap with ourselves. The cost of an entire room done in a truly good durable paper of artistic design and good color does not cost much more than the price a woman generally pays for a nice dress for herself. Every woman understands that the dresses that have good lines, wearable material and chic cannot be obtained without an expenditure equal to the value. This is, naturally, as true with the clothes one buys for a room.

One wears a gown only alternately with other clothes. A room must wear the same garment continuously for at least several months, a good paper may last years. So it is economical to buy wallpaper printed on heavy enough stock to be durable and which has in back of it the experience and talent of a skilled designer.

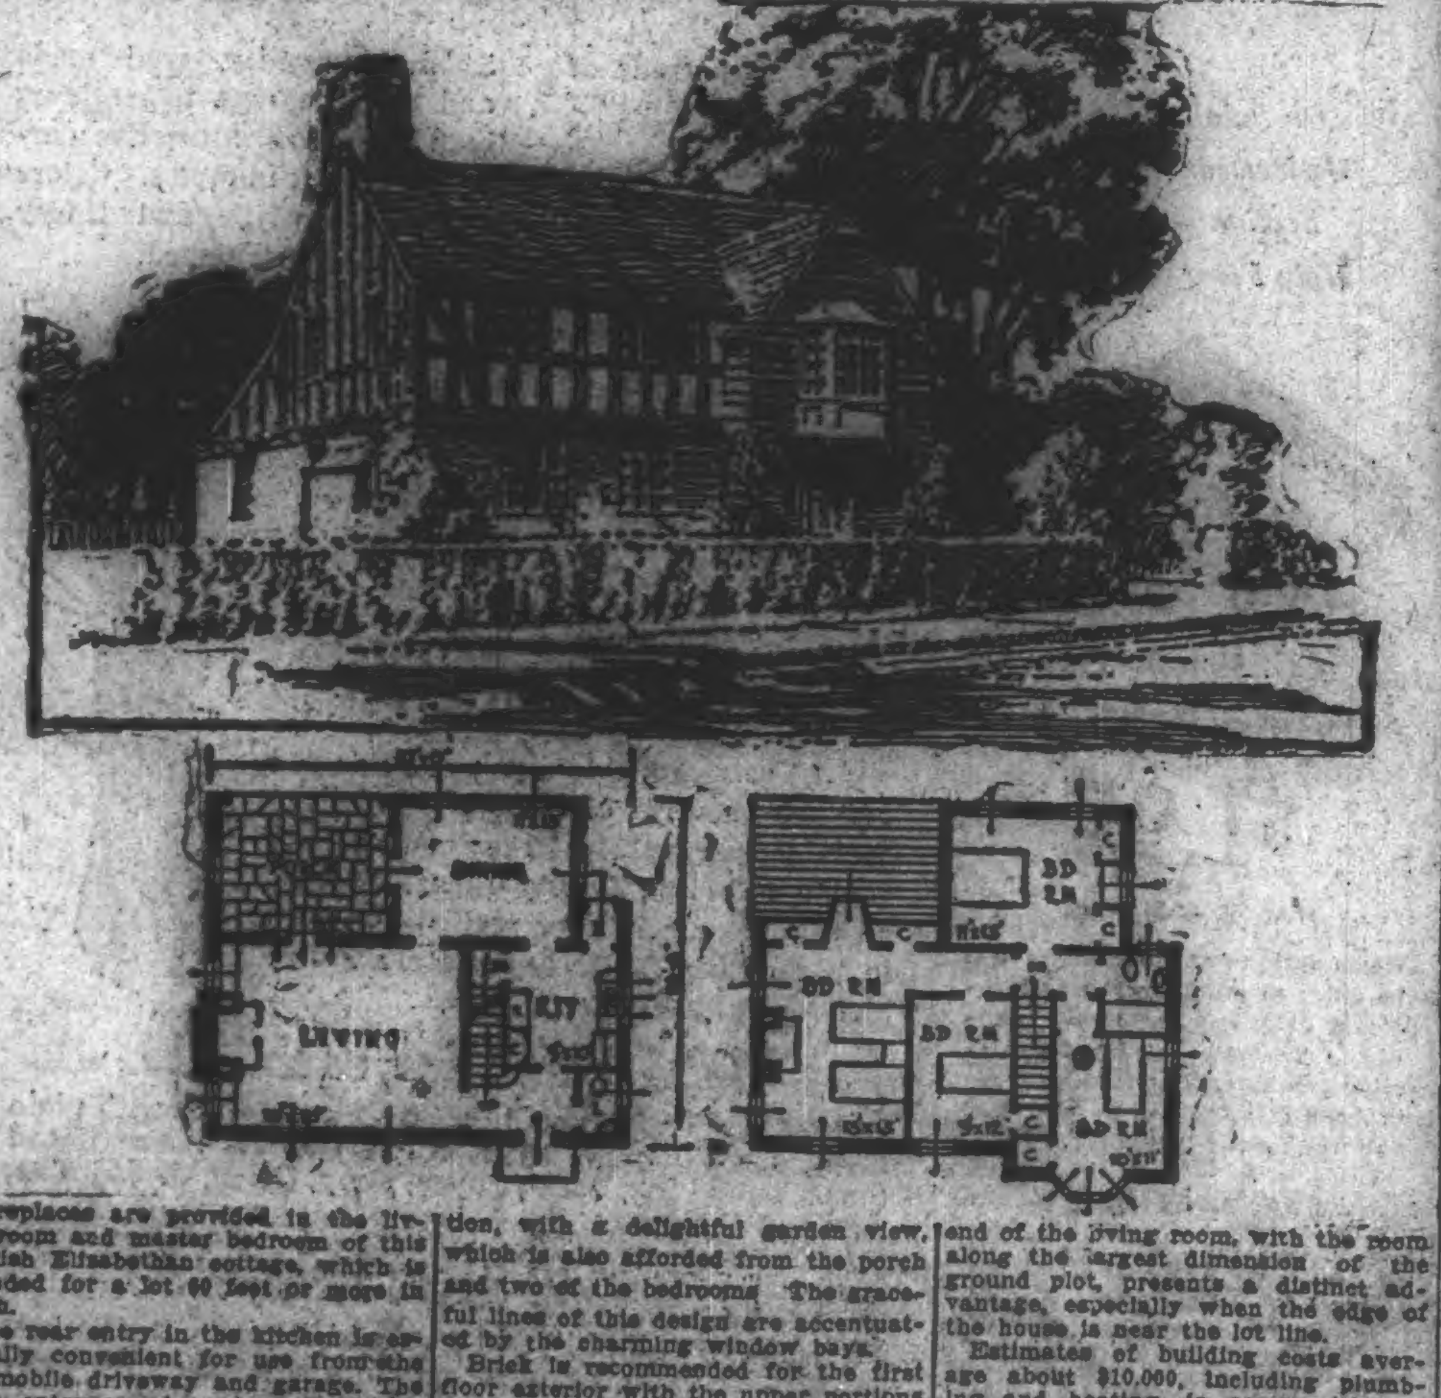
The cheaper papers have exactly the same value as cheap cloth; no more or no less. They have their part to play in dressing and decoration but it is unreasonable to expect them to wear and give an air of distinction.

SHOULD CUT LOCUST WHILE IT IS GREEN

Procrastination, so often termed the thief of time has a way of melting out a little punishment that teaches a lesson. Take the case of fire wood. Locust, one of the less expensive woods to burn and one not so popular, because it makes a slow, hot fire, rather than the flashy blaze that makes a fireplace romantic, serves him ill who delays in preparing it in the proper lengths.

When green, locust cuts easily, as do all green woods, but when it has seasoned it becomes so hard that it will take the temper from a saw, if the sawing is kept up for any length of time. Sometimes it is necessary to use a little oil on the teeth of the saw to make the sawing a little less arduous.

Old England's Charm Is In This Cottage



Fireplaces are provided in the living room and master bedroom of this English Elizabethan cottage, which is intended for a lot 60 feet or more in width.

The rear entry in the kitchen is especially convenient for use from the automobile driveway and garage. The front entrance gives immediate access to the living room, kitchen and stairs.

The dining room is placed in a secluded and desirably detached location, with a delightful garden view, which is also afforded from the porch and two of the bedrooms. The graceful lines of this design are accentuated by the charming window bays.

Brick is recommended for the first floor exterior with the upper portions of stucco, half-timber and clapboards. A natural slate or tile roof is preferable, but wood shingles may be used.

The location of the fireplace at the end of the living room, with the room along the largest dimension of the ground plot, presents a distinct advantage, especially when the edge of the house is near the lot line.

Estimates of building costs average about $10,000, including plumbing and heating, in communities of moderate size, and less in the smaller cities. Concentration of the plumbing in the kitchen area accomplishes a building economy and insures satisfactory operation.

COLONIAL HOUSE BUILT ON PRUNIER TERRACE

The above is a photograph of one of the two new houses on Prunier Terrace just off Bliss Place built as an investment by F. E. Prunier of 33 Julian street. The house is one of the most attractive in that locality, and is completely modernized. It is of the old colonial block-house type of architecture with the overhanging second story such as was seen in the days of the stockade and blockhouse.

The exterior is finished in wide white colonial clapboards with shingled roof. The windows are of the small pane colonial type and there are to be colonial shutters on the windows. The interior is nicely finished with oak floors with the exception of the bathroom where there is rubber tile on the floor. There is a fireplace in the living room and the dining room and kitchen is in white rubber tile with white fixtures and shower bath.

There is a built-in garage in the basement. The heating is by steam and the plumbing is of brass. The electrical fixtures are of antique design. The grounds about the house are exceptionally well laid out and attractive.

PORCELAIN FINISHES PROVE VERY POPULAR

Porcelain or vitreous enamel finishes have attained an important position in the electrical industry chiefly because of the spotless and easily cleaned surfaces which they provide for many domestic appliances, such as electrical ranges and refrigerators, clothes washers and ironers, dishwashers, and numerous other electrical kitchen accessories. Sundry products, such as electrical kitchen clocks, are porcelain-enameled to match in appearance the appliances mentioned.

With ceramists making available a steady widening range of colors and decorative effects in porcelain enamels, the field of application of these finishes is being extended to many appliances other than those intended for the kitchen, but which are subject to a good deal of handling and finger-marking.

Porcelain-enamels result from applying vitreous materials to metal surfaces under heat, fusion being the objective. It is furnace treatment through which the vitreous finishing material becomes fused with the surface of the metal that distinguishes this process from those frequently referred to as enameling and consisting of the spraying on of nitro-cellulose and kitchen lacquers. A porcelain enamel becomes as much a part of the metal body as does the glaze on a piece of chinaware or porcelain.

A TIP TO GARDENERS

If you plan to make use of manure or other rough fertilizer on your garden next spring it would be wise to have it hauled now, when the ground is frozen and there is no danger from ruts. Trucks leave no tracks on frozen ground, whereas if they are allowed to cross after the ground has thawed it means damage that takes months and years to overcome.

WOULD REVIVE TECHNIQUE OF OPEN WOOD FIRE

"There was a time—all ancient houses attest it—when the wood fire was mankind's main dependence for comfort and even existence during nature's fits of inclemency," observes a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. "Those were the days before the radiator became standard in this country and the coal grate in England, when the wide hearth and the roaring flame were a commonplace of domesticity, when the Yule log vied with rum punch or egg-nog as an expression of Christmas cheer.

"It is hardly necessary to remark that the race has traveled a long way since that halcyon era. How long a way may be gathered from the fact that 'The Art and Mystery of a Wood Fire' is a featured article in the January number of 'The Countryman,' an Oxford publication. In it Mary, Countess of Lovelace, its author, seeks to re-educate her generation in the technique of the open fire of wood describing in much detail the size and construction of the fireplace best suited to its efflorescence; the number, nature and dimensions of the logs to burn; the implements to use in their control, and so on. Her carefully assembled pointers remind one of those meticulous essays on ancient sports, once common among the plebes, with which today only the aristocracy can afford to be familiar and concerning which, therefore, they are fond of posing as authorities.

"Very likely the open wood fire remains less of a luxury in America than it does in England. But the moral is plain even among us—namely, that what were yesterday's necessities among the humblest become today's luxuries among the most exalted. It constitutes a curious reversal of the trite formula so beloved of the high-powered salesman, that today's luxuries become tomorrow's necessities."

Who Makes Your Fire Insurance Rate?
Trained experts compute it; but property owners — individually and collectively — create the conditions which determine the cost of their fire insurance.
Several major factors enter into the determination of fire insurance rates, such as structure, occupancy, the quality of private and public fire protection, exposure from other property and general loss experience.
Surveys Available
The agent who writes your insurance—or your broker—or you, yourself—can obtain an itemized explanation of how your insurance rate is computed. There is nothing secret about it.
The Stock Fire Insurance companies solicit your interest, and offer free of charge the advice of rate-making bureaus to assist in eliminating hazards or correcting defects which may result in lowering your rate.
Seek Counsel
Do not attempt unsound fire prevention measures, but seek the counsel of the accredited experts of rating bureaus who are anxious to tell you the proper way to make improvements.
Insurance companies generally prefer risks eligible to a low rate to those which carry higher ones. A low rate indicates better conditions, better maintenance and less chance of fire.
While the National Board of Fire Underwriters has nothing to do with rates or rate-making, as a bureau of standards it does publish information which rate-makers use to measure the comparative strength and usefulness of materials and devices.
In Connecticut fire insurance rates are computed by the New England Insurance Exchange, Stamping and Rating Department, Central Division, Hartford, Connecticut; Western Division, Bridgeport, Connecticut.

PRICES SHIFTING AND INDEFINITE IN MARKET OF SPECULATIVE APATHY

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—The stock market began the new week today with a relapse into speculative apathy. Price trends were shifting and indefinite, and represented little more than the shifting of accounts of professionals scalping for a point or two. Sales totaled 1,632,600 shares, only moderately above the turnover for Saturday's abbreviated session.

Business news was mixed and manifestly not of sufficient moment to carry the market out of the doldrums. It had its favorable aspects, nevertheless. The Chevrolet division of General Motors announced that dealer demand had caused a revision upward of production schedules. Building contracts let during the past week showed moderate expansion. The estimate of the secretary of commerce placing contemplated outlay for public works and utility expansion at $7,000,000,000, while reassuring, was about in line with earlier expectations. Less favorable was the testimony before the senate interstate commerce committee to the effect that few radio manufacturers earned a profit in 1929. The Fox embroglio was complicated further by a second receivership petition.

The market was subjected to rather sharp bear pressure during the first hour, rallied moderately before midday, and wore a ragged aspect until the last half hour, when prices firmed up under the influence of short covering. Net changes at the close were largely narrow. The price index of 90 leading stocks showed a gain only 1-8 of one point.

Credit remained easy, with call loans again renewing at 4 1-2 per cent, and the rate later dropping to 4. The stock exchange's compilation showing the ratio of member borrowings to the market value of listed shares was issued after the close, showing a decline of only 0.16 per cent to 8.16 per cent. The backing and filling nature of the market during December was reflected in the fact that the average price per listed share rose only 45 cents to $57.38, as of Jan. 2.

Amusement shares, with the notable exception of Fox Film which sagged close to its low, were sent upward by bulls endeavoring to get a public following on the theory that the industry is depression proof. Radio Keith again was in good demand. Tobacco shares also were bid up briskly for a time, on rumors of higher prices, both retail and wholesale, but profit taking appeared in this group before the close. The National Bellas Hess shares were strong in response to association of a former Montgomery Ward official with the management, the preferred jumping 10 points. American Zinc shares turned upward on rumors of a plan to pay off the accumulated preferred dividends.

Shares gaining 2 to 5 points included Abitibi Power, American Machine and Foundry, Delaware and Hudson, National Biscuit, United Store preferred, General Railway Signal, American Brake Shoe and First National Stores. International Business machines jumped 5 points. Grigsby Grunow sagged a point to a new minimum. Radio Corp. declined about 2 points to a new low for the movement. J. I. Case lost 2 and Union Pacific nearly 4 points.

Commodities largely moved in narrow ranges. Wheat futures lost about 1-2 cent on reports of good weather and disappointing foreign demand, but regained most of the loss. Corn sagged a little, reflecting increased stocks at Kansas City, and large receipts. Cotton closed practically unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were dull and fairly steady, with the exception of the Spanish peseta, which had another sinking spell. The Brazilian milreis was unchanged, although a shipment of gold to New York was rumored.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—Dull trading and mixed price movements again characterized today's curb market. Most of the active issues pointed upward, but some rather large losses developed in some of the ordinarily inactive specialties. The day's sales ran slightly above half a million shares, with professional operators dominating the day's business.

Tampa Electric ran up nearly 6 points on rumors that a change in ownership was imminent. American & Foreign Power warrants, Utilities Power & Light and American Superpower advanced 1 to 2 1-2 points and Electric Bond & Share improved fractionally. Public Service of Northern Illinois broke 8 points to 210, duplicating last year's low price.

Except for a drop of 2 1-2 points in Electric Shareholders preferred and a gain of 1 point in Third National Investors, the investment trust and trading corporation issues showed only narrow fractional changes. Directors of the Tri-Utilities Corp. inaugurated dividends at the rate of 30 cents in cash and 1 per cent in stock quarterly. The company controls nearly $300,000,000 of public utility properties in 26 states.

Club Aluminum rallied slightly on the announcement that the Jewel Tea Co. had signed a three-year contract to manage its property. Federal Screw declined slightly in the face of unofficial reports that 1929 earnings will approximate $6 a share. Deere & Co. broke 15 points, Daniel Reeves 18 3-4, Aluminum Limited 12, and Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea 4 1-2.

Cosden Oil dropped nearly 10 points on a couple of sales but the other petroleum issues showed little change. Aviation Corp. of the Americas fell back a point on reports of large losses in the establishment of South American air lines. Fox Theatres also lost a point on the announcement of new legal proceedings against the parent company.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Frequent nervous changes today in wheat values here ended with something of a setback all around. Weakness of wheat prices at Winnipeg during much of the day had a bearish effect, as possibly pointing to likelihood that Canada might get a preference in North American export business. On the other hand, more or less buying took place as a result of assertions that the federal farm board would authorize its allied cooperative organizations to deal in wheat futures if so desired.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-8c to 3-8c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1-8 a 1-4c to 3-8c down, oats 1-4c to 3-8c off, and provisions varying from 3c decline to a rise of 7c.

Final downturns today of Chicago wheat prices were in the face of announcement of 3,624,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply during the last week, and notwithstanding that wheat export business today from North America aggregated more than 1,000,000 bushels. The fact that 400,000 bushels of overseas purchasing today consisted of domestic hard winter wheat taken for Portugal, failed to offset apprehension altogether that breaks of late in the Winnipeg market had made Canadian wheat relatively more attractive to transatlantic buyers, as compared with wheat from the United States. In this connection, enlarged selling developed here on all price bulges for future deliveries and it was noticed that a large part of the selling was credited to eastern account.

Meanwhile much talk was heard that Canada is likely to increase her weekly export clearances of wheat, and do so at the expense of the United States as a result of federal farm board activities tending to uplift values. It was contended that under such circumstances the United States wheat surplus at the end of the season will prove unwieldy, and that there is no conclusive evidence of both the Canadian and United States surplus being required to take care of overseas demand. On the other hand, considerable attention at times was given here to smallness of primary receipts of domestic wheat, today's total being only 728,000 bushels against 1,653,000 bushels a year ago.

Corn and oats sagged owing in large degree to sympathy with wheat. A sustaining factor, though was extreme dearth of rural sales of corn, with western receipts scanty.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to an advance of the hog market to the best level in many weeks.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Prices of listed bonds drifted aimlessly today in one of the quietest sessions of the month. The dullness was taken as a normal consequence of the heavy new financing, which is still in process of absorption.

Money was plentiful and some business was done in 30-day loans at 4 per cent, the lowest in about a year. The renewal figure on call funds was 4 1-2 per cent, but the charge dropped to 4 early in the afternoon when outside money was quoted at 3 1-2.

Domestic issues of high rating held firm, but there were signs of heaviness in the lower priced bonds, particularly industrials. Rails and utilities showed little change. Foreign bonds lost some of last week's momentum, yet the European government group and several of the South Americans advanced. French 7 1-2s touched 120, dropped to 118 1-2 and closed at 119 3-4 for no net change. There was fair demand for the obligations of Belgium, Norway and Greece, the last named government's 6s rising 2 points.

It was the dullest day in weeks for the securities of the United States. No transactions were recorded in the Treasury certificates, a most unusual occurrence, and only a handful of the Liberties changed hands.

The high grade rails were firm. Santa Fe general 4s, Baltimore & Ohio first 5s, Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Pennsylvania general 4 1-2s and St. Louis-San Francisco prior lien 4s gained about half a point each in a slow market. Rock Island 4 1-2s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Pennsylvania 4 3-4s, and the Southern railway group eased.

Telephone and light and power company bonds held up well. The new American Telephone 5s showed no net change, but Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, Laclede Gas 5 1-2s, Montana Power 5s, New York Telephone 6s and 4 1-2s and Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s made a little progress.

Most of the consequential fluctuations in the industrials appeared in the lower priced bonds, including the foreign sugars. Losses of 1 to 2 points came out in Fisk Rubber 8s, Lehigh Valley Coal 5s, Vertientes Sugar 7s and Sugar Estates of Oriente 7s. Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s and Inland Steel 4 1-2s, among the high-grade industrials, were also soft. National Dairy 5 1-4s equaled their 1929 peak of 99 on a good turnover.

The dullness of stocks caused convertibles to trade apathetically. International Telephone 4 1-2s lost a point, but otherwise final prices varied slightly from the Saturday close.

New financing is expected to maintain a fairly heavy volume, especially in the utility description. The first large issue of the week comes tomorrow in this group. It is a $25,000,000 offering of New England Power Association debenture 5 1-2s, due in 1954 and priced at 95.

Recent reports that United States Steel planned the immediate redemption of the smaller bond issues of subsidiaries met with contradiction today. Although it is regarded as probable that most of this indebtedness will be retired eventually, it was said that no such steps were contemplated in the near future.

To determine how many trees are grown in forests of the United States and how fast they grow is the object of an economic survey to be conducted by the United States forest service. The information gained will form a basis for developing a forest policy and practice for the future. Dr. A. E. Ziegler, former director of the Mt. Alto Forest School in Pennsylvania, will have charge of the study of the financial aspects.

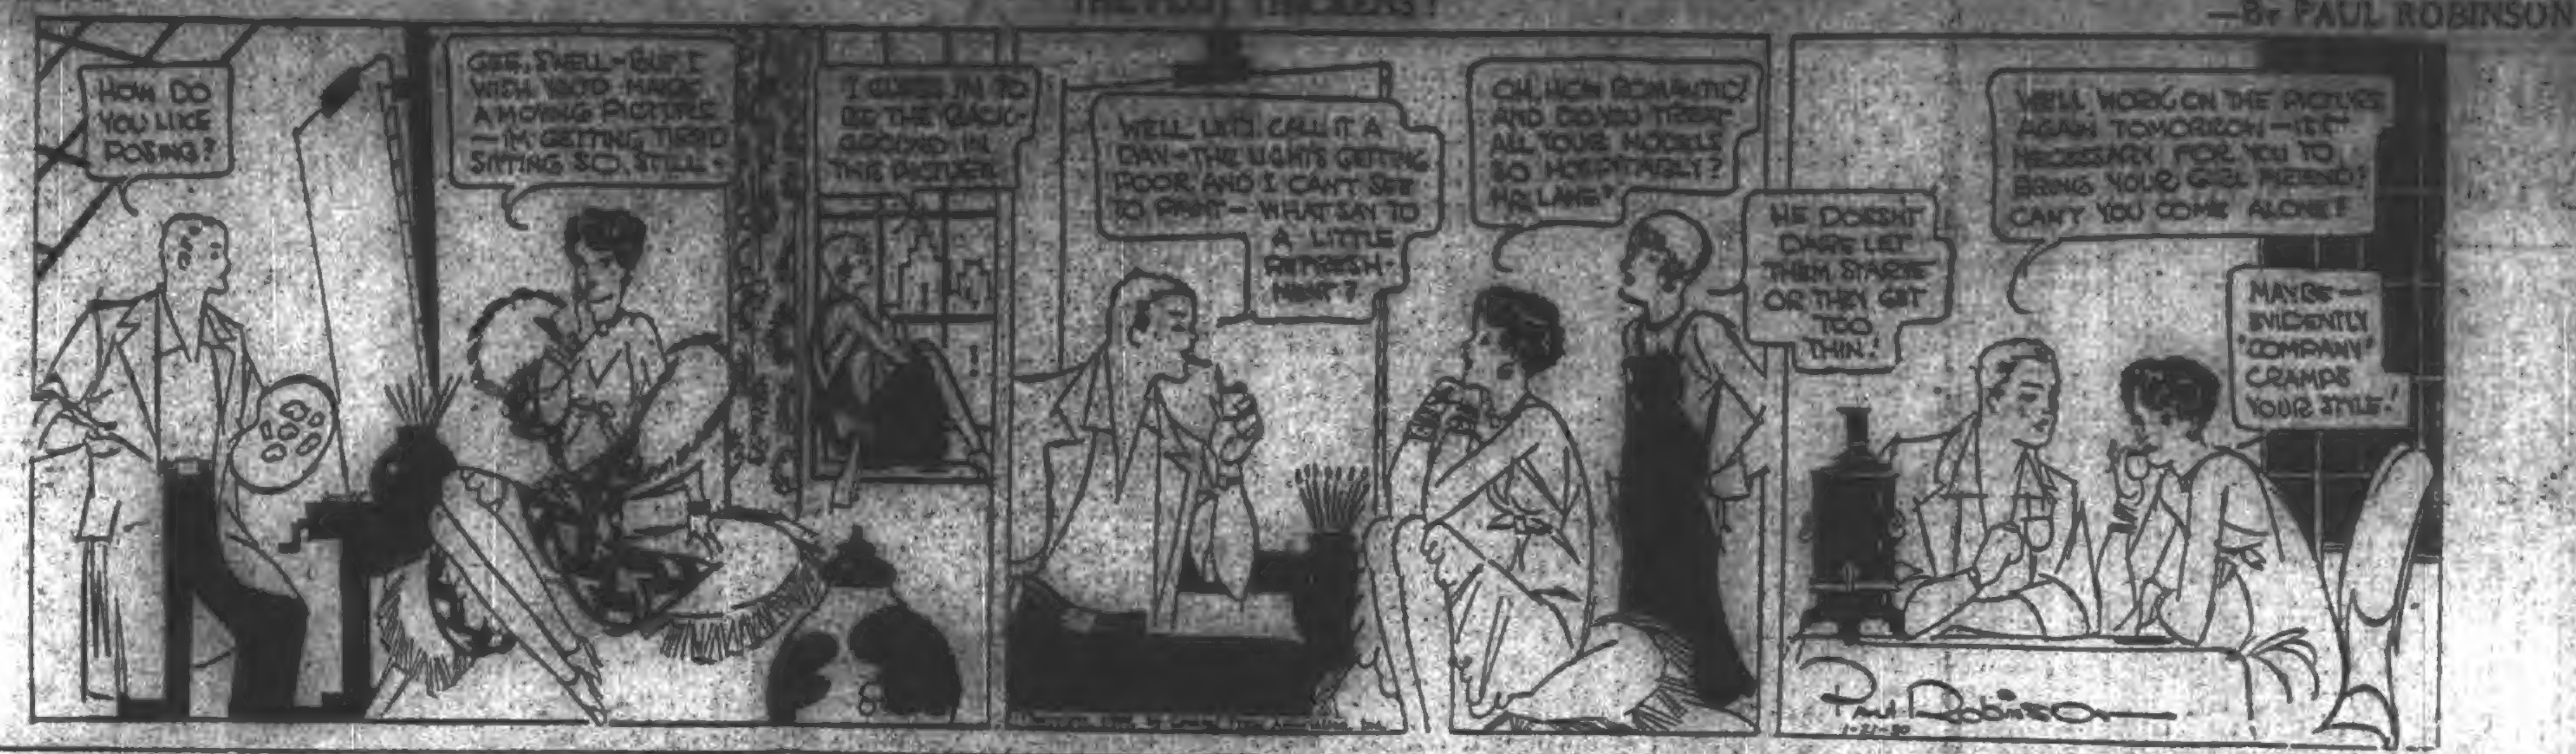
THE PLOT THICKENS!

—By PAUL ROBINSON



HOW DO YOU LIKE POSING?
GEE, SWELL—BUT I WISH YOU'D MAKE A MOVING PICTURE —I'M GETTING TIRED SITTING SO STILL.
I GUESS I'M TO BE THE BACKGROUND IN THE PICTURE.
WELL, LET'S CALL IT A DAY—THE LIGHT'S GETTING POOR AND I CAN'T SEE TO PAINT— WHAT SAY TO A LITTLE REFRESHMENT?
OH, HOW ROMANTIC! AND DO YOU TREAT ALL YOUR MODELS SO HOSPITABLY? MR. LANE?
HE DOESN'T DARE LET THEM STARVE OR THEY GET TOO THIN!
WELL WORK ON THE PICTURE AGAIN TOMORROW—IT'S NECESSARY FOR YOU TO BRING YOUR GIRL FRIEND? CAN'T YOU COME ALONE?
MAYBE— EVIDENTLY "COMPANY" CRAMPS YOUR STYLE!

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Timmy the Flying Squirrel Is Cross.

Whate'er you do let truth prevail,
E'en though your efforts thus may fail.
—Old Mother Nature.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel, having set his heart on a thing, is not easily discouraged. He had started out to find his cousin, Timmy the Flying Squirrel. He knew that Timmy was living in a hollow tree somewhere in the Green Forest, but just where that tree was he didn't know. You see, previously he had not been particularly interested in his Cousin Timmy. Chatterer had tried to find out if Drummer the Woodpecker knew. Drummer had replied that he didn't, but that it was none of his business anyway.

"Yank Yank the Nuthatch may know," thought Chatterer. "Yank Yank uses holes in trees."

So Chatterer hunted up Yank Yank, and Yank Yank treated him much as Drummer the Woodpecker had. Then Chatterer tried bright-eyed Tommy Tit the Chickadee. Tommy snapped those little black eyes of his and told Chatterer just what he thought of him for trying to find out another's secret. Then Chatterer thought of Sammy Jay. There is little going on the Green Forest that Sammy Jay doesn't know about. There is very little those sharp eyes of Sammy's miss. But Sammy and Chatterer are not the best of friends and Chatterer knew that it would be of no use to ask Sammy right out. He must contrive to find out first if Sammy knew where Timmy lived and then think of some way of finding out where it was, provided Sammy did know.

"Pooh!" exclaimed Sammy. "Have you just found that out?"

"I know something that you don't know," barked Chatterer as Sammy Jay came along.

"What do you know that I don't know?" demanded Sammy sharply.

"I know where my cousin, Timmy the Flying Squirrel, has his home," boasted Chatterer.

"Pooh!" exclaimed Sammy. "Have you just found that out? I've known where Timmy has been living ever since he moved the last time."

"When did you see him last?" demanded Chatterer.

"Oh, I haven't seen him for some time," replied Sammy.

"Then how do you know he is living in the same place he was?" demanded Chatterer triumphantly. "I don't believe you know where he's living at all."

Sammy simply glared at Chatterer. Then, without a word, he turned and flew away. Now, because the trees were bare of leaves it was easy for Chatterer to see Sammy for a considerable distance. He suspected that Sammy had flown right straight to the tree in which Timmy was living. Chatterer started in the same direction Sammy had taken. He traveled through the treetops for the most part. Presently he caught sight of Sammy high up in a certain tree, apparently very busy about something. Chatterer flattened himself behind the trunk of the tree in which he then was, and waited. After a while Sammy Jay flew toward where he had left Chatterer. He didn't see Chatterer.

Chatterer hurried straight over to the tree where Sammy had been so busy. He climbed that tree and examined it carefully. On the under side of a dead limb he discovered a small hole. His nose told him at once that in the hollow into which that hole opened Timmy the Flying Squirrel was fast asleep. Chatterer grinned. He had found out what he had wanted to know. Then he did a most impolite thing. He went right in to Timmy's home and wakened Timmy, who was fast asleep. Then he was sorry, for Timmy wakened cross. He wouldn't listen to anything that Chatterer had to say. He drove Chatterer out. And then he went back and curled up to sleep.

The next story: Timmy Has a Taste of Corn.

Sometime before Christmas a Springfield (Mass.) man selected two floor lamps from the catalogue of a mail order house for two relatives, relates the Boston Globe. One he ordered to be sent directly to a town in upper New York state and the other he asked to be consigned to him intending to deliver it in person to the relative in a nearby town. Christmas came, but the lamp did not. Vexed at being forced to dig up a substitute present at the last moment, the man decided to write a sharp letter to the mail order house. Before he did he received a letter from upper New York state thanking him for his gift. The writer said it was really too much for him to have sent two floor lamps, but both were welcome and would be used.

Feelin' Sorta Lonesome

Feelin' sorta lonesome for the friends of [illegible]
[illegible]
Lookin' back an' yearnin' for them dear old fashioned ways.
[illegible] the [illegible] at was mine in bygone years,
Feelin' sorta lonesome an' tryin' ter hide
my tears.

Feelin' sorta lonesome for the mill-pond
an' the mill,
Wonderin' if the water wheel keeps on turnin' still.
Listenin' for the croakin' an' singin' o'
the frogs,
Feelin' sorta lonesome for the turtles on the logs.

Feelin' sorta lonesome for the birds I used to know;
All of 'em was friendly, anyhow they acted so.
Harkin' for their comin' an' the melodies they bring,
Feelin' sorta lonesome for the flashin' o' their wing.

Feelin' sorta lonesome for the clover an'
the bees,
Sniffin' for the perfume o' the blossomin' apple trees.
Missin' all the posies once a-noddin' up ahead,
Feelin' sorta lonesome for a path an'
where it led.

Feelin' sorta lonesome for the squirrels
an' chipmunks, too,
Thinkin' o' the medder an' the crick a flowin' through.
Wanderin' with the memories an' hopin'
'at they'll last,
Feelin' sorta lonesome for the happiness
'at's past.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Teacher—What is the order of Bath?

Johnny—Tommy comes first, then Willie, and then the baby.—Chicago Tribune.

Pretty Waitress—"Are you the fried haddock?"

Susceptible Diner—"No; the lonely sole."—Exchange.

Siwash—My girl's lipstick seems to have a different taste from others.

Hotdog (absent-mindedly) — Yes, sort of orange flavor, isn't it?—The Pathfinder.

"Do you know your wife is telling everyone you can't keep her in clothes?"

"That's nothing; I bought her a home and can't keep her in that, either."—Montreal Star.

"So you met Alice today?"

"Yes; I hadn't seen her for ten years."

"Has she kept her girlish figure?"

"Kept it? She's doubled it."—Army & Navy Journal.

Teacher—So you confess to being the one who wrote on the blackboard "Our Teacher Is a Mutt"?

Jimmy—Yes.

Teacher—I'm glad for once you've spoken the truth.—Detroit News.

Little Lucy had been shown her mother's new evening gown, which had only arrived from her dressmaker's that afternoon.

Her eyes gleamed with real feminine approval as her mother slipped the dainty thing over her shoulders for a brief second or two.

"I think it's lovely, mummie," she said softly. "Are you going to wear it this evening?"

"Oh, no, dear," replied the other. "This is for me to wear when ladies and gentlemen come to dinner."

"Well," returned Lucy wistfully, "can't you pretend that daddie is a gentleman just for tonight?"—Exchange.

"You must drink hot water with your whiskey," the doctor told his patient; "otherwise you mustn't take it at all."

"But how shall I get the hot water?" the patient queried. "My wife won't let me have it for the whiskey toddy."

"Tell her you want to shave," the doctor said, and took his departure.

The next day the doctor asked the wife how his patient was.

"He's quite mad," she replied. "He shaves every 10 minutes."—Pearson's Weekly, London.

BROUILLARD-LEE BOUT LOOMS AS SENSATION OF SHYMA CLUB CARD

LOU BROUILLARD

For the lovers of sock the Lou (Dynamite) Brouillard-Arthur Lee eight round semi-final on the Shyma club card for Friday night looks like a sweet dish. From past performances of these two youngsters this bout looks like the sensation of the evening as far as real stiff slugging is concerned. Brouillard is well known to local fans as a slugger of the first magnitude and no one doubts his ability to swap punches with any man his weight.

Arthur Lee of Bridgeport is a newcomer to the local rings but a brilliant reputation as a fighter precedes him. Lee has met and fought the leading 148 pound boys in the state and has acquitted himself in fine style. He has beaten such boys as Jimmy Clinch, the Meriden battler, and Leo Larivee, the socking Bridgeporter, which in itself is a splendid recommendation. Lee may be a more finished boxer than Brouillard but at the same time when he hits his blows carry plenty of steam with them. From all indications it would be a pretty safe bet to say that the bout would not go the limit.

Reports from the Taftville camp of Minnew (Shires) Beauregard are that he is in the pink of condition and down to 148 pounds for his four round bout with Mush Moriarty of Norwich. The only thing that is bothering Minnew is the fact that Mush may prove a touch customer. Minnew after hearing of Mush's activities in New London the other night remarked that, "any guy with enough nerve to sock a cop in the cop's own home town ain't going to be afraid of me." But Minnew says that neither is he going to be afraid of Mush because he is not going to let the Norwich battler take any pot shot at him.

But just the same this opener is going to be some little battle, both boys being born fighters and boys who will never go down, unless knocked loose from their feet. Mush is one of the gamest little battlers the town has ever turned out and as much can be said of Beauregard. It will be some bout—and how.

DODGERS MAKING PLANS FOR BIG DRIVE IN 1930

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—Brooklyn has no manager under contract, but that is not interfering with plans for a bigger and better season in 1930. Contracts have gone forward to some two score players. The 66 year old Wilbert Robinson, although not yet re-elected either as president or manager, still is filling both posts to the satisfaction of 50 per cent of the owners.

Uncle Robby is enmeshed in the throes of a baseball civil war with the Ebbets interests standing solidly behind his administration and the McKeever half of the ownership anti-Robinson. Brooklyn, although it could finish no better than sixth in 1929, had a successful year at the box office. From a playing standpoint the season brought a series of nightmares. At the outset Glenn Wright, a great shortstop for Pittsburgh, pulled up with a lame arm which did not respond to treatment.

The great Dazzy Vance, strikeout king and one of the game's great pitchers, was sick during a part of the campaign and won only one more game than he lost.

Wright's status will remain in doubt until he tries to throw at the Clearwater training camp. If his arm has regained its wizardry, the club probably will be made, for a good shortstop to team up with Bissonnette, Eddie Moore and Wally Gilbert, will provide a satisfactory infield. The outfield is good enough with Babe Herman, runner-up in the league batting race, Johnny Frederick, a youngster who made good in his first year, Harvey Hendrick, jack of all baseball trades, and Rube Bressler, veteran but still an effective batsman.

The pitching staff should be fair, even if none of the youngsters makes the grade. Vance, Clise Dudley, Win Ballou, Watson Clark, Doug McWeeny, John Morrison, and Ray Moss comprise the chief pitching assets.

MASSEY WINS DECISION OVER BAT BATTALINO

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20—(AP)—Lew Massey, Philadelphia featherweight, was awarded the decision over Battling Battalino, world's featherweight champion, in a fast ten-round bout featuring the card at the Arena tonight. The title was not at stake. Massey weighed 137 pounds, Battalino 127 1-2.

The Hartford, Conn., Italian started off in whirlwind style and in the early rounds of the bout ringside experts doubted if the Philadelphian could stay the limit with the hard-socking champion. Massey seemed to be more confident in the latter rounds, after the Battler had smacked him hard often in the opening sessions, and tore into the title holder with both arms swinging. Battalino was under the handicap of an infected finger on his left hand and favored the injured member throughout the fight. He pulled his left hand punches repeatedly and appeared not to close the hand tightly at any time.

Both boys were after a knockout and each tried to put over a haymaker as early as the second round. Battalino relied principally on his authoritative right and frequently sent Massey's head back with hard shots to the head and face. Massey, always a tough opponent for any in his class, fought cautiously half the way and then, possibly aware of the Battler's injured left, mixed it up with the champion at every opportunity. He has had a winning streak extending over a year and a half, not having a reverse in 35 fights.

It was learned after the bout that Battalino's finger had been lanced Saturday, and that he had been advised at that time to cancel tonight's fight. He did not wish to disappoint the fans, however, and insisted on entering the ring. He put up a great battle and many of the fans thought he had won.

In the ten-round semi-windup, Young Terry, Trenton, N. J., scored a technical knockout over Stuffy McInnes, Scotland, in the fifth round. Each scaled 148 pounds.

At the end of another spectacular ten-round bout, Jackie Pilkington, New York, was given a decidedly unpopular decision over Ernie Caesar, rugged Philadelphia Italian.

Pilkington weighed 134 1-2; Caesar, 135.

SHYMA CLUB TO CLASH WITH NOANK TEAM TONIGHT

The Shyma club basketball team of Taftville will try to continue their winning streak tonight at the Parish hall, Taftville, when they tackle the fast Noank Whirlwinds in a game that no doubt will make the locals play their best in order to come out on the long end of the score. The visitors are reported to be one of the fastest teams ever turned out at the fishing village, holding wins over some of the fastest teams in that section of the state. Among those defeated are the Mystic All-Stars and also several of the New London teams.

The locals, fresh from their win over the fast Plainfield Buddies, without a doubt the fastest amateur team in eastern Connecticut, are practicing hard for this game and Manager Sullivan feels sure that they will send the visitors back to the fishing village on the short end of the score. The Shyma team will take the floor in the following order: Rabbit Gauthier, left forward; Lefty Dugas, right forward; Pete Finn, center; Capt. Jim Murphy and Lemieux, guards; Jerry Peltier, S. Finn, Labarre and Phaneuf will be held in reserve.

The Whirlwinds are also sending up a fast line-up: Robertson, rf; Chesbro, lf; Clark, center; Marks, rg; Buddington, rg; Butson, lg; H. Robertson, lg; Sweet, center. As a special attraction, there will be a big whist party to go along with the game so that a big crowd is expected at the Parish hall, Taftville, tonight.

MAHANEY WILL BE HEAD COACH; MARSTERS ASSISTANT

BOSTON, Jan. 20—(AP)—The appointment of Hilary Mahaney, former Holy Cross end, as head coach of the Boston university football team, was announced tonight by George V. Brown, director of athletics.

Mahaney has been acting as line coach for the past four years and his promotion resulted from the recent change in Boston university's football policy, which caused the athletic committee to dismiss Reggie Brown and Ed Robinson and engage Al Marsters, Dartmouth backfield star, as an assistant coach.

Though Boston university's 1930 football plans have not reached a definite stage, it is expected that Marsters will devote all of his attention to the Terriers' backfield squad while Mahaney continues his work with the ends and linemen.

RISKO WINS DECISIVE DECISION FROM BERTAZZOLO

Risko clubbed the big Italian all over the ring. Bertazzolo was down twice in the seventh round, once for a count of nine and once with no count.

In the final round Bertazzolo was hanging on grimly while Johnny hit him with everything but the corner stools. Bertazzolo seemed unable to defend himself and Risko landed rights and lefts to the jaw without difficulty. Risko weighed 193 3-4; Bertazzolo 210 1-2.

INDIANA VS. ARMORY A. A. TONIGHT

One of the strongest professional basketball teams that has ever played on the local court will make their initial appearance in the Danielson armory tonight. The Phi Delts who are the holders of the Mid-West professional championship for the past two years are coming to this town with a quintet of basketball shooters and trick play artists that have won them quite a reputation wherever they have played. The Phi Delts are composed of ex-college stars most of whom have won all state positions on the teams with whom they have played.

In the lineup of the Phi Delts will be Bob Youhler, all state center of Indiana; Dick Ockoman, all western [illegible]; Curtis Milligan, Ex-Indiana normal forward; Joe Thurston, former Florida university star; Bob Thompson, ex-Butler college star; Bob Parr, former guard of Indiana State Normal; Wally Winshik, former center at Earlham college, and Charlie Rofts, former forward from Purdue college.

With an aggregation as hereto mentioned there is no question but what the Armroy A. A. will havie their hands full when these teams meet on the home court of the Armory A. A. tonight. As an added attraction to this game the famous Alabama Hill Billies orchestra of Birmingham, Ala., will play before, between the halves, and will wind up the evening's festivities with a big dance, starting immediately after the game. There will be no reserved seats on sale for this game.

The way the used car market shoots up and down (mostly down) has got nothing on the stock market.

And here's one who knows it. One day the old buggy may be worth so much and then the next day the price has been shot all to pieces.

The other day I happened to stop at a dealer's place in New London and I asked him what he'd allow me for the old hack in trade for a new one.

Well, he looks the car over and makes his offer which sounded fair enough, so I told him I'd be down in a day or two and let him know about it.

A week passed before I had an opportunity to go to New London again and yesterday I went in to see him. I'd decided in the meantime to make the trade.

Well, you can imagine my surprise, not to say chagrin, when the dealer says how prices had dropped and the car ain't worth so much as it was last week.

He says his used car market was flooded and that he had a lotta cars on the floor that he couldn't move. He meant for cash and not mechanically. He's real nice about it, saying how sorry he was and all that. You know how them salesmen talk.

But that didn't get me a new buggy either. Nope, I didn't make no trade, but as I didn't buy the car on margin I guess I'll have to hold it until there's a rise in the market.

I guess you got to keep your hand on the pulse of the used car market like you do on the stock market. Buy 'em when they're low and sell 'em when they're high, whenever that is.

Gosh, it's harder to sell a used car nowadays than it is to sell a set of second hand false teeth.

Well, there's a lotta more miles in the old buggy yet so I guess I'll chug along in her for a spell yet.

Now don't you auto salesmen come pesting me to buy a car. One disappointment is enough.

BAPTISTS AND BALTIC ARE WINNERS IN CHURCH LEAGUE

Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. the Central Baptist and Baltic Methodist quintets were returned victors in their church league games, the Baptists beating Jewett City 28 to 16 and the Baltic team turning back the Brothers of Joseph 21 to 14. RICE LEADS FIELD IN PALM BEACH TOURNEY

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 20—(AP)—Grantland Rice, veteran sports writer and present links champion of the Artists' and Writers' association, today led the field in the third annual midwinter tournament at the Palm Beach Country club for qualifying honors. Rice, who had not touched a golf club since late in October, was wild on his first nine, but steadied on the incoming trip for a 35 to total a 75 medal score.

Hal Evans was next in line with a 77. Rube Goldberg, cartoonist, had high honors for the day with a total score of 140 for the 18 holes.

Match play in three flights starts tomorrow.

Rex Beach, runner-up to Rice in last January's affair, was held up by business at his Sebring, Fla., home and was unable to qualify.

BEZDEK TO HEAD NEW SCHOOL OF ATHLETICS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 20—(AP)—Retirement of Hugo Bezdek from active coaching of Pennsylvania State's football and baseball teams to assume directorship of a new school of education and athletics at the college, was approved today by the college board of trustees.

Bezdek's dropping out of the coaching position was voluntary, the board announced. The grizzled veteran with two more years to his coaching contract stepped out in order to be able to perform his duties. Both changes are effective July 1, 16930.

In his new position, Bezdek will have a voice in the selection of his successor as coach.

Creation of the new school is in line with a programme begun three years ago at the college for the betterment of athletics, one of which was the elimination of scholarships and subsidies to athletes.

Ruth Qualifies

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20—(AP)—Babe Ruth's 48-43—91 on the Country Club Estates golf course here brought him in with 95 other amateurs today to qualify for the Glenn H. Curtiss annual trophy tournament. Tournament play in six flights will start tomorrow.

Bill Klem, big league umpire, polled a 99 for his day's work but came in under the limits for qualification.

Don McAllister, Miami, led the amateurs with a 38-37—75.

MILLER STARTS QUEST OF $25,000 OPEN WITH CARD OF 75 TO TIE FOR FIFTH PLACE

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Mexico, Jan. 20—(AP)—Blazing a trail through the first round of the world's richest golf tournament, Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., professional, today shot par 71 golf to place himself in a one stroke lead over the field of 115 starters in the Agua Caliente $25,000 open tournament.

While Dudley was mixing brilliant golf with some rather mediocre play, to match his prowess against the treacherous course, MacDonald Smith, Long Island, N. Y., settled to the tedious and nerve-wracking grind to shoot a steady 72 for second place.

Only two strokes behind the leader came Harold Long, Denver, a "dark horse" entrant, and Al Watrous, Detroit, with 73.

Nine others, including two amateurs, climbed into fourth position by putting behind them the eighteen holes of play over the course made heavy by rains last night, with cards of 74.

Dudley, in turning his surprise score, displayed a dazzling brand of golf on the trying home nine to come in with a 34, two under standard figures, after covering the out nine in 37, two over par.

Smith went out from the start to match the perfect figures of the course, going out one over par. He came back with the same cautious golf, to equal 36. While his card showed only two birdies, he was over standard on only three holes.

In the fourth place tie came an array of those favored to make the strongest bid for the $10,000 first prize and 19 other money places. Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo.; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Bobby Cruckshank, New York; Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Calif.; Harry Cooper Buffalo, N. Y.; Charles Guest, Los Angeles, and Ed Stokes, Denver, all had cards of 74 for their efforts.

Tied with them were two simon pures, George Von Elm, Detroit and Fay Coleman, Culver City, Calif. The nearest other amateur, Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, turned in a 78.

The course rose up to smother the efforts of a number of the outstanding golfers under an avalanche of strokes which pushed them far down the list. Gene Sarazen, New York, former open champion, shot a 75, while another former open champion, Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla., trailed with a 76.

Tied with Farrell were such experts as Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion, and Denny Shute, young pro from Columbus, Ohio, who recently climbed to fame by winning the Los Angeles $10,000 open.

Walter Hagen, British open champion, finished well down the list with a 78, with him was Tony Manero, winner of the Catalina open tourney.

Cooper shot 27 holes of golf today, making a 36 on his second out nine for a 110 total. Tonight, he was on his way back to Los Angeles where tomorrow he will be married to Miss Emma Buchanon of Los Angeles. The Buffalo pro will return with his bride Wednesday and play the remaining nine to catch up with the field.

Six players were eliminated today while a trio of others picked up after making a bad game of it on the first few holes. Those eliminated were: Eddie Loos, Pasadena, Calif.; Herb Walters, Gary, Ind.; Werner Hoy, Los Angeles; Sam Gayer, Chicago; Jim Hines, New York, and Al Albrego, La Jolla, Calif.

The fifty low scorers and ties after tomorrow's round will continue in the final two days of thirty-six hole play.

Miller was five over par on the way out but he was one under on the incoming nine which is considered the harder nine. The local boy is now tied for 12th money and fifth position in the tourney, amateurs not sharing in money awards. If Miller maintains his average he should place well within the money.

PROF. AIGLER CRITICIZES CARNEGIE ATHLETIC REPORT

ANN HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 20—(AP)—Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, of the University of Michigan Law school tonight told the university senate that "bulletin 23" of the Carnegie foundation was "wild, disappointing and disheartening," and "almost vicious."

The statements were contained in Prof. Aigler's annual report to the university faculty as chairman of the board in control of athletics. Prof. Aigler also is a member of the faculty committee of the western conference.

He charged the investigator for the foundation had employed "the methods of a prosecutor" rather than "an investigator."

In the Carnegie bulletin, Prof. Aigler said, "anything ranging from the earnings of an athlete-student, however honest the job might be, to outright athletic scholarships and barefaced financial payments are classified as subsidies, and no particular differentiation is made in condemnation."

KELLY TO HELP BUSH WITH THE WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Jan. 20—(AP)—Manager Donie Bush today selected Mike Bernard Kelly, erstwhile pilot of the Spartanburg, S. C., club of the Sally league, to help direct the baseball destinies of the White Sox in 1930.

Although his major league career was confined to a short workout with the St. Louis Cardinals as catcher, Kelly is considered as a smart coach. Kelly succeeds "Big Ed" Walsh, former White Sox star and coach, who is expected to confine his activities to scouting.

Bush refused to talk on the case of Arthur "The Great" Shires, fighting White Sox first baseman, today other than he expected Shires would be back at his former post when the training season started. Shires still is under suspension by the club and must be reinstated before contract terms are arranged.

HOLY CROSS RUNNERS TO RUN IN N. F. A. MEET

The next Academy indoor track meet will feature runners from Holy Cross and Connecticut Aggies in addition to a promised three-cornered duel between Stonington, Bulkeley of Hartford and N. F. A. This meet will be held next week, either Friday or Saturday.

Coach Murphy of the locals is busy lining up his features for this meet and, now that the sport has become established for local fandom, he expects a packed audience. The local mentor is also working on the possibility of arranging special events for local amateur athletes, including Johnny Sullivan, Joe Jackson, other Dwell runners and speedsters from other parts of Eastern Connecticut.

The Wildcats expect to compete in several of the large meets during the next two months, including the Hartford meet.

DR. A. L. BULL, FAMOUS ATHLETE AND COACH IS DEAD

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 20—(AP)—Dr. Alfred L. Bull, a prominent figure in football and rowing at the University of Pennsylvania, thirty years ago, died here early today. Dr. Bull, who had been engaged in dentistry in this city for more than 30 years, was 53 years of age. He was graduated from Pennsylvania in 1898.

From 1893-1916, Dr. Bull was a prominent figure in athletic life. He was one of the first All-American football players named by Walter Camp, being honored while at Pennsylvania with the position of center on the All-American of 1895. Following graduation from Pennsylvania, he held coaching positions at University of Iowa, Franklin and Marshall college, Wyoming seminary here, Georgetown college, University of Pennsylvania, Lafayette, Muhlenberg.

LOCAL SOLDIERS ORGANIZE TWO BASKETBALL TEAMS

The local national guardsmen have organized two basketball teams one representing Battery B and the other known as the Armory A. A. Those making up the Battery team are Patsy Ferra, Frank Decker, Johnny Dosh, Ray Coderre and Arthur Gates. Those comprising the Armory A. A. are William Riley, Harold Frink, Victor Fontaine, Dan Callecci and L. Sabatino.

The teams would like games with the Baltic Independents or the Shyma Juniors. Games can be arranged by calling Patsy Ferra or Joe Besade at the state armory.

OLSON'S SWEDES PLAY RETURN GAME WITH PLAINFIELD WFD.

Those that saw the spectacular game between the Plainfield Pros and the combination team of Olson's Swedes and Jim Thorpe's Indians will welcome the announcement that this team plays a return game at Plainfield on Wednesday evening. In the first game the Swede-Indian outfit nosed out the Pros 27 to 25 with a basket in the last ten seconds of play, Olson shooting from midfloor to make the basket. Manager Salisbury of the Pros claims that Wednesday's game will be just as fast and close but of course can't promise that the game will be won in the last few seconds of play.

He will use the lineup that held the visitors in their last appearance game-ty, Kasper and Bruce forwards; Conway, center; Williams and Bennett guards; Dinkman, reserve guard. For a preliminary attraction the undefeated Putnam Celtics will clash with the Plainfield Buddies.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The far western disturbance is advancing southeastward over Arizona and New Mexico, and another is central off the Texas coast. Pressure is low from Hudson straits eastward over the Greenland Iceland region and it is high elsewhere over North America and the western Atlantic ocean.

The two southwestern disturbances will likely move northeastward as one disturbance with increasing intensity during the next two days. This disturbance will cause general precipitation east of the Mississippi river and following its passage considerably colder weather will overspread.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Gentle to moderate northeast and east winds and overcast weather Tuesday, probably snow or rain by Tuesday night.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Increasing northeast winds and overcast weather with occasional rain over south and rain or snow over north portion Tuesday.

Forecast

For southern New England—Cloudy followed by snow or rain possibly mixed with sleet Tuesday and Wednesday, colder Wednesday afternoon or night.

Observations

GREENEVILLE

DESCRIBES COAST TRIPS FOR MEN'S CLUB MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Men's club of St. Andrew's Episcopal church was held Monday evening in the Guild room of the church with a large attendance and President Lockhart presiding. After the business meeting a social evening was enjoyed. The entertainment consisted of slide pictures by W. C. Kendall of his three automobile trips to California and Mexico. Mr. Kendall explained the slides and this proved very interesting. Among those shown were the Grand Canyon and the petrified forest of Arizona, Yosemite valley and the Redwood highway, also Columbian River highway, Portland, Ore.

Following Mr. Kendall's entertainment, Mr. Bowers and Scotty Powers entertained with witty sayings and songs. Mr. McDonald gave many of the latest dances and James Muller recited poems. Luncheon was served by the reception committee and Rev. E. J. Norris made a few remarks.

The Polish Citizens' club had installation of officers in their clubrooms at Pulaski hall on North Main street Thursday evening. During the evening short talks were made by several of the members. The principal speakers were B. Smigulski, who spoke concerning the benefits that a member obtains in joining the club. S. Zawtalinski's topic was what the club had gained for him and Joseph Romanowski described his trip to Hartford and what transpired at a state republican meeting that he attended recently, telling of the progress that the party is making for future developments. During the evening, K. Jaskiewicz rendered several solos in pleasing manner. After the business meeting was over the members enjoyed a bounteous chicken supper, after which a social hour was enjoyed.

The Greeneville N. M. Sewing circle met at the home of Mrs. Helge Erickson on Golden street Friday evening with a large class being present. During the first period of the evening sewing of fancy articles took place, after which a social hour was enjoyed with singing and piano solos being rendered. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Harry Richmond and Mrs. William Day. The circle will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Wickham of North Main street.

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting, conducted by Elmer Mulkin, was held Sunday evening at the Third Baptist church, with a fairly large attendance. Many of the members seem to be greatly interested in the membership contest which started the first of the year. A prize will be given to the member receiving the most points within the contest time.

Music was furnished by the church orchestra. A quartet, consisting of Clarence Parkhurst, Woodrow Sebastian, Christopher Wunderlich and Harold Kinne, rendered selections. Friday evening the C. E. executive meeting will be held and reports read on the work carried on during the past year.

The K. B. Sewing class of Auxiliary 18, A. O. H., was held at the home of Mrs. Mary Sullivan on Main street. The first part of the evening was given over to sewing, followed by a social hour. The hostess served a delicious salad supper. Mrs. Sullivan was assisted by Mrs. Catherine Lord, Mrs. Adeline Lovitsky and the Misses Geraldine and Eileen Sullivan and Dorothy Kilcollum. The class will meet with Mrs. Margaret Welsh on upper Boswell avenue next Thursday evening.

LOST

14 Pounds of Fat

Finder Is Welcome To Have It —I'm Mighty Glad To Get Rid of It.

Some folks are naturally fat but there's a lot of people who put on pounds of unhealthy fat because they haven't got enough energy to move about to keep it off.

It's not laziness in most cases—but a condition brought about by sluggishness of the internal organs—the liver bowels and kidneys. As a result poisons and harmful acids that kill vigor, ambition and energy get into the blood —the whole general tone of the body is lowered and fat accumulates.

Thousands of overstout men and women find in Kruschen Salts a far better means of reducing than by taking baths or drugs.

The little daily dose of Kruschen Salts keeps the organs functioning properly every day and fills you with such a feeling of radiant vitality and vigor that before you know it you are fairly "jumping out of your skin" with energy instead of moping around—and reduction follows as a matter of course. Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts from Lee & Osgood or any good druggists—if it doesn't change your entire idea about reducing, get your money back.

A jar of Kruschen Salts that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c—take a generous half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning.

GET THAT KRUSCHEN FEELING

SUGGESTS CENSUS TAKERS COULD GET POPULAR VOTE ON PROHIBITION

That the question of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act should be left to a vote of the people for ratification, rejection or modification as a means of elimination of the present high-pitched squabbling pro and con and the like, was suggested by Mrs. Marion Atwell of New York city in an address on current events before the Woman's City club Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel. The method proposed by Mrs. Atwell to be used in securing the referendum vote was through the employment of the federal census takers, who are to start work the first of April of the present year. She said that these men asked innumerable questions and "why not another question." She classed this method as one that could be done without any extra expense to the country and "it seems to me to be a splendid and very true way of getting the majority opinion of the people of these United States on the question. I don't see why it shouldn't be practical," she said.

In opening her address Mrs. Atwell took up them much advertised and talked of naval conference to be held at London, which she said must be a success as a failure would be a tragedy. She said that France holds the key to the success or failure of the conference, and in referring to France's statement to the other powers in regard to her attitude on the matter Mrs. Atwell said a most delightful answer was sent back to France. It was worded with such a spirit of conciliation.

Mrs. Atwell remarked that the subjects that will probably be discussed at the conference will be battleships, destroyers, submarines and perhaps other things. The nations having the largest number of these are as follows: Cruisers, Great Britain; destroyers, United States; submarines, France first and United States second; aircraft carriers, Great Britain.

We have not reached parity with Great Britain, she said, but we are moving toward this parity in battleships. When the suggestion was made that Great Britain was willing to scrap their battleships the naval powers with the exception of the United States favored the abolition of them. We do not want the elimination of battleships to be discussed and our delegation will try to avoid it at the conference.

Mrs. Atwell then made a comparison of the money spent on battleships in 1928 and for educational purposes the same year in this country. The sum spent in 1928 on battleships was 336 millions of dollars, while less than three and one half millions was expended on the bureau of education, 1 1-4 millions for the children's bureau and one million for the state department, which she said should be highly financed. She pointed out that it costs 35 millions to build one battleship. Perhaps we will realize that we don't need these battleships and replace them with smaller ones.

France will not want to dwell upon the subject of submarines nor will Great Britain's delegates seek to bring up them atter of the potential war value of merchants ships. These questions are taboo at the conference. The eyes of all the world are turned towards London, even Mexico is watching and Russia and Germany are interested. Mrs. Atwell stated that the American delegates are hopeful and optimistic over the results of the conference and are prepared to take less than the best. If the conference fails how it will affect President Hoover, said the speaker, as he feels criticism so much. He may get immune from it later, she added.

In closing her most interesting talk Mrs. Atwell spoke of the Hague conference, at which the Young plan was made a reality, and of the noticeable breaking up of the liberal party in England, at which Lloyd George is at its head, whom she said they do not trust over them nor does anybody else, and also of the prohibition question.

EFFECTED ORGANIZATION OF COMMUNITY FARM BUREAU

Organization of the Community Farm bureau, a branch of the New London County Farm bureau, was affected at a meeting held Saturday night at the Preston City Baptist church at which officers were elected as follows: President, Joseph Clark, Ledyard; vice president, Byron Kinney, Griswold; secretary and treasurer, Lizzie B. Smith, Preston. The following committees were appointed: Programme, Miss Annie McClimon, Lizzie B. Smith, Mrs. Sydney Hall and W. W. Service of Preston, and Miss Margery Brewster of Jewett City; membership, W. W. Service, Joseph Clark and Miss Brewster.

It is the purpose of the bureau to bring the residents of rural districts into closer contact with the workings of the farm bureau, this one that was formed Saturday covering farm bureau members in Ledyard, Preston and Griswold.

S. Buckingham McLean, state commissioner of agriculture, who is also president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, was a speaker at the meeting, giving a talk that was illustrated by pictures.

JUDGMENT FOR DEATH OF THREE THOMPSON MEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 20—Judge Winfred H. Whiting after default in superior civil court today, found for the plaintiffs and assessed damages in the sum of $7,442.17 in each of four $15,000 suits brought against Eugene Jackson of Dudley to recover for the deaths of four residents of Thompson, Conn., and Oxford, as the result of an automobile accident Nov. 19, 1927, in Texas Village, Oxford.

The men killed were Walter S. Henries, Jr., Suava Condos, and Arthur T. Forgit, all of Thompson, Conn., and Alfred F. Barry of Oxford. Jackson is now serving a sentence in state prison meted out to him in superior court here on a manslaughter charge as a result of the accident.

Jackson was employed as a chauffeur by Mrs. Samuel Conant of Dudley. He was returning from a turkey raffle in her automobile with these four men as passengers, when the machine left the highway and struck a pole.

Dismissals at Backus Hospital

Mrs. Joseph Rogers, Yantic, and George Grimshaw, 544 North Main street, were the patients dismissed Monday at the Backus hospital.

Dismissals at St. Theresa Hospital

Recent discharges at St. Theresa maternity hospital were: Mrs. Florence E. Benjamin and infant son, of Preston City; Mrs. John Moreau and daughter, of 269 Norwich avenue, Taftville.

TO LAY CONCRETE ON NORWICH-PUTNAM ROAD

The laying of three and three quarter miles of reinforced concrete pavement on the Norwich-Putnam road through Griswold, Canterbury and Plainfield is among twelve new projects on which State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald is asking for bids. These projects cover about 22 miles of highway and the construction of one bridge.

The major projects in this group will take place upon Route No. 10 running between Hartford and Middletown on the west side of the Connecticut river. Near the Hartford end in Wethersfield will be built about four and three-quarters miles of reinforced concrete pavement on the Wethersfield-Rocky Hill cut-off. The pavement will be laid on an entirely new location. At Cromwell on the same route the department will build slightly more than one and one-half miles of waterbound macadam pavement, a job that will require special grading work.

Other large projects included in the group will be the construction of about five and one-third miles of waterbound macadam on the road running on the east side of the Housatonic river from Derby through Seymour and Oxford to the Stevenson dam.

FATHER AND SON SENTENCED FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

The liquor law violation cases of John and Alexander Kornacki, father and son, alleged proprietors of the Greeneville Bottling Works, No. 26 Sixth street, came up in the city court Monday morning and fines and jail sentences were meted out in each case. The former was fined $200 and costs of $21.46 and given a jail sentence of 30 days, while his son received a fine of $200 and costs of $21.46 with a jail sentence of 30 days, suspended on recommendation of City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy on account of his youth. No sympathy was shown for the elder Kornacki, Attorney Cassidy recommending the maximum penalty in his case as he felt that he was responsible for his son's connection with the liquor business.

The younger Kornacki was arrested Thursday evening by state and local police, while his father was arrested the following day. Only a small amount of liquor is alleged to have been found at the bottling works at the time of the raid, but actual sales were claimed to have been secured at the place.

FINES AND JAIL SENTENCE IMPOSED UPON CHIODAS

Mrs. Rose Chioda of this city and Alphonse Chioda, 21, of Worcester, were found guilty of violation of the liquor laws in the city court Monday morning. Mrs. Chioda was given a fine of $200 and costs of $18.06 and a jail sentence of 30 days, a suspended judgment imposed by Judge Arthur F. Libby for her conviction of the same offense in May, 1929. A fine of $200 and costs of $21.46 was imposed in the case of Alphonse, together with a jail sentence of 10 days.

The Chiodas were arrested Wednesday evening as a result of a raid conducted at their place at 48 North Main street by a squad of state and local police. Six cases of home-brew beer were seized by the officers, in addition to alleged actual sales of liquor secured previous to the raid.

TAKING APPEAL FROM JUDGMENT FOR $5,000

In the suit of Noyes Main of Wequetequock, Stonington, in which Judge C. L. Avery gave him a judgment for $5,000 in the superior court here recently, notice of apeal to the supreme court has been given to Clerk John H. Walker by the defendants in the case.

Mr. Main who brought suit as administrator of the estate of his eight-year-old daughter, Constance, got the judgment against George Emin of Fairhaven, Mass., and Clifton H. Whitaker of New Bedford, Mass., who was driving one of Emin's automobiles when it struck and killed Constance Main on June 14, 1929.

RAISED PROPERTY LISTS FOR 290 TAXPAYERS

Taxpayers who have had their property valuations raised in the grand list by the assessors, Arad R. Manning, John B. Oat and Fred G. Prothero, are receiving the usual notices from the board by mail. The board has made 231 increases and 59 additions, making 290 taxpayers who have been notified.

Taxpayers who object to the figures placed by the assessors have opportunity to appear before the board of relief during February to show reason why their tax figure should be reduced.

To Speak at Conference

The dinner to be held at the Hotel Elton in Waterbury Tuesday evening, Jan. 21, under the auspices of the Connecticut Council on International Relations, will mark the culmination of a day spent in the consideration of international problems.

The speaker of the evening will be the Hon. Rennie Smith of the British parliament, who will speak from the point of view of a member of the British labor party on the pertinent subject, "Can We Reduce Navies?"

There will be two luncheons in connection with the conference Wednesday. One will be held at the Woman's club at 12 o'clock, under the auspices of the Connecticut Council on International Relations. C. C. Hemenway, editor of the Hartford Times, will be the speaker upon "International Issues in the Congress."

A second luncheon for men only will take place at the Hotel Elton, also at noon. The Rotary club of Waterbury will act as host to the men's clubs of the city and state. The speaker will be Thomas M. Steele, president of the First National Bank of New Haven. His subject will be, "In the Wake of the Kellogg Pact."

PUTS CHILD INSTITUTIONS IN FIRE TRAP CLASS

Sharp criticism of the public and private agencies working to meet the needs of the children of the state was voiced by Kenneth I. Messenger, state commissioner of child welfare, in a talk before the Connecticut Children's Aid society.

The work of the 23 private institutions which serve in this field was particularly criticized. Many are veritable fire traps, permitting the children to sleep above the second floor, in violation of the state laws, he said. In some cases, the infirmaries are situated in remote parts of the buildings, where access in case of fire would be difficult.

Some of these homes received their share of criticism because of their poor furnishings, especially in the dining rooms and kitchens. As a remedy for such conditions, Mr. Messenger suggested better directorates that would keep in close touch with conditions.

In criticizing the various county homes, the commissioner said that they often tried to cut down expenses to a point where efficiency was greatly impaired. He cited one case, without mentioning the name of the home, where children were kept until they were 18 years of age. The reasons for this, according to Mr. Messenger, were that the homes receive a certain amount from the state for each child under their care, and that in the spring these children can be turned out to work in the potato fields to further enrich the county.

The situation in the juvenile courts came in for some serious criticism from the speaker, who said that in some instances the judges are not fitted to handle cases involving children, being unsympathetic to the needs and problems of youth. He also stated that probation officers are appointed not for fitness but for political reasons.

The adoption proceedings of the state are not wisely organized, Mr. Messenger asserted. To adopt a child it is merely necessary to retain an attorney to tell the judge of probate of the good points of the prospective foster-parents, he said. One instance is cited where a child was adopted by a man who was known to be feeble-minded.

As a remedy for these conditions, the commissioner urged a campaign of public education. At present, he stated, it is next to impossible to obtain relief from the legislature. Only when people make an issue of such abuses can political help be obtained. In support of this statement, he said that many wise and well-directed bills had been shunted out of existence for political reasons, while very few citizens realized that they had ever been proposed.

Preceding Commissioner Messenger's address a business meeting was held. Thomas Hewes of Farmington, a Hartford attorney, was elected president to succeed Philip B. Gale. The latter reviewed his administration of the past seven years, calling attention to the increased service the society is now able to offer. During 1929 there were 1,223 children under care of the Children's Aid society, he said.

The financial report for 1929 was read by Charles W. Jaynes of West Hartford, assistant treasurer of the society, and showed total expenses for the year 1929 of $102,681.78. According to figures read by Robert H. Schutz, chairman of finance, the society is seeking voluntary contributions of $37,650 for the year 1930. This figure is an increase made necessary by the increased number of children who are appealing for help.

STATE'S 4-H TEAM MADE SECOND IN POULTRY JUDGING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 20.—The Connecticut 4-H poultry judging team, in national contest with seven other states at the Madison Square Garden poultry show, January 15 to 19, placed second in the judging of production classes. Frank Neiderwerfer, of Rockville, was alternate, and Edward S. Walford, assistant poultry specialist at the state college was in charge of the trip.

Edward Sladsky was second high individual in the judging of production classes. Sladsky was also high man at the 4-H state fair held at Durham, August 1, and was second high man at the contest held at the junior short course at Storrs last summer.

A. J. Brundage, state leader of 4-H clubs in Connecticut, in commenting on the poultry contest held in New York stated that the present system of training young poultry judges not only in breed characteristics, as was done previously, but also to judge the birds' ability to produce eggs, is developing a new school of poultry judging. Hollis Cummings last year got 186 eggs per bird, from his flock of 100, in the junior Connecticut 4-H egg laying contest. He is a senior in Lebanon high school, and is a student in the vocational agricultural course.

The trip to New York city was a new experience for the members of the team. Young Cummings had never before spent a night in a hotel, and it was something of a novelty for the others, also.

In the whole contest the Connecticut team placed seventh, and was led by Massachusetts, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Maryland and Virginia.

Bee Tee Club Met

The Bee Tee club meeting was held last week at the home of Mrs. Harvey Goodale, on Boswell avenue. Cards were played, the first prize being won by Mrs. Henry Deragon and the consolation prize went to Mrs. Fred Thompson. Light refreshments were served by the hostess. Next week's meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Stephen Harrison on Wednesday evening instead of Friday.

Patent To Willimantic Man

A patent which was filed March 15, 1929, has been granted to Henry C. Bacon of Willimantic, for adjustable means for catching glass in threads.

RE-ELECTION OF PRESIDENT BY CONTACT CLUB

"Community Ideals" was the subject of an interesting talk given by John Richardson, the new secretary of the chamber, at the annual meeting of the Contact club of the Norwich chamber of commerce at the Wauregan hotel Monday noon. In his extemporaneous address Mr. Richardson alluded to the advantages of the city, pointing out its ideal location and remarking that the members of the club should be proud of their city. Mr. Richardson said that through contact a great spirit for the town could be built up.

At the business session E. O. Rodier was re-elected president of the club and the other officers chosen are: F. Russell Smith, first vice president; Abner Schwartz, second vice president; James F. Fleming, treasurer, and John Richardson, secretary. The meeting unanimously elected the slate of officers, as recommended by the nominating committee, Wilbur S. Williams, John Lyston and James F. Fleming. It was voted to change the time of meeting from 12 noon to 12.15 o'clock.

TO HAVE LIGHTS FOR EAST GREAT PLAIN POND

The cold weather of the past few days has given good ice for skating on the ponds about the city, smooth on the surface and sufficiently thick to make it safe.

The recreation commission is arranging to have electric lights strung at the pond at East Great Plain, which is one of the favorite spots for skaters because it is so accessible. It is expected that the lights can be put up before the end of the week so as to take advantage of the present cold spell and provide night skating at the pond.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED BY LESTER & WASLEY CO.

When the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Lester and Wasley Co., Inc., was held Monday morning at the company's office on Franklin street, William H. Cruickshank and Percival W. Chapman were re-elected directors and Charles I. Smith auditor.

At the subsequent meeting of the directors, officers were re-elected as follows: President, William H. Cruickshank; vice president, H. M. Briggs; secretary, treasurer and general manager, Percival W. Chapman; assistant treasurer, Harry W. Cardwell.

NORWICH TOWN

TRIP TO WHITE MT. STATE A STRENUOUS EXPERIENCE

Ralph H. Marsh, proprietor of the store at 20 Town street, has returned from an automobile trip of nearly 400 miles, over the week end, which took him as far as Hooksett, New Hampshire. He was accompanied on the trip by his father Charles Marsh of Norwich. Leaving early Saturday morning the first stop was at Litchfield, where they called on his aunt, Mrs. Charles Leach. In proceeding on the journey which was through snow and sleet after reaching Worcester, Mass., another stop was made at Londonderry, N. H., where they called on Mrs. Josephine E. York, grandmother of Ralph Marsh. At Hooksett, where the Messrs. Marsh remained over night they were guests of another aunt, Mrs. Charles Emmerson. All through New Hampshire, ten inches of snow was experienced and from Hudson it was necessary to use automobile chains. Good sleighing in that location was reported. On the return trip, Hooksett was left at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, the party arriving in Norwich at 4 p. m. after a some-what thrilling trip. At times before reaching their destination, ice formed so fast on the windshield, it was necessary to open it that the driver might see ahead of him.

Norwich Town friends are in receipt of a card from the former Miss Elizabeth Olaf of Yantic, now Mrs. E. Ellis, who is spending her honeymoon at Miami Beach, Florida. The card features the beautiful Tropical Rock Garden and Pool, Bayfront Park, Miami.

Norwich relatives recalled that Sunday, Mrs. Rebecca Moriarty of Worcester, was [illegible] years old. Mrs. Moriarty and Mrs. Francis A. [illegible] of McKinley avenue, who was [illegible] Sunday January 19th, are cousins. Mrs. Moriarty who is quite well and alert, has all her faculties except that she is very deaf. She is great aunt to Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Norwich Town.

Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) occupied the pulpit at the First Congregational church Sunday morning, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey. Rev. Mr. Foster developed the thought "Trust in the Lord," and one will then be prepared for what comes. The text was Isaiah 40:31. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary; and they shall walk and not faint.

The topic of the Young People's C. E. service Sunday evening, in the Congregational chapel was "Shall We Abolish or Expand Missions? Why?" Scripture reference was found in Matthew and Acts. Miss Jessie E. Hyde was the leader.

Gifts on 94th Birthday

Mrs. C. P. Lane, a member of the Bacheler household on East Town street, reached her 94th birthday Thursday last January 16th. Mrs. Lane an esteemed member of the First Congregational church, received gifts, fruit, flowers and cards from the various organizations in the church, friends and neighbors. She has been a shut-in, in her room for over three years, for the past two years having been confined to her bed. Mrs. Lane is under the constant care of both a day and a night nurse. At Christmas time she received a like demonstration of affectionate remembrance from friends.

Local residents who are associates with the Connecticut [illegible] society, which has headquarters at [illegible] Washington street, Hartford, have been invited to attend the annual meeting to be held Wednesday, January 29th. [illegible] have been issued by the recently [illegible] of [illegible] Johnson, who succeeded Charles Wheeler, the latter part of 1929.

Tribute to Late Miss O'Neil

For approximately half a century the late Miss Mary Ann O'Neil was identified with the Reid & Hughes Co., where she was connected with the piece goods department and had seen many changes in styles come and go.

Miss O'Neil was kindness personified, always radiating good cheer, invariably courteous to customers, well liked by everyone, rendering long and faithful service to the store. "Mary," as we knew her, will be greatly missed by all her friends, whose name was legion.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

OPENING SESSION OF THE LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE

Entire Assemblage Remained Standing For Six Minutes as King George Delivered Address in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords—Head of Each Delegation Spoke Briefly After the Plenary Session Had Been Formally Opened—National Views on Naval Affairs Will Be Exchanged Today.

LONDON, Jan. 21—(AP)—Launched by King George in the glittering royal gallery of the house of lords, the five-power naval disarmament conference today became a fact and a reality. The idealism of President Hoover's talks with Prime Minister MacDonald last autumn while seeking the means to promote disarmament and world peace, has ended in action.

Swiftly following on the inaugural plenary session this morning, the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese delegates bent themselves again to the study and solution of the difficult tasks before them and continued their work until late tonight.

The exchange of national views on naval affairs will be emphasized tomorrow, and then on Thursday morning the delegates will reassemble at St. James' palace in the first of many private meetings to elaborate a new international treaty reducing or limiting fleets, and guaranteeing the peace and security of mankind.

In a great hall glittering with gold, King George stood this morning in front of a golden throne and formally opened the conference.

Before him was a silver microphone, which caught his words and sent them resounding round the world on the waves of an international radio hookup. To his right and to his left, at a table shaped like a horseshoe, stood the delegates of the five great naval powers of the world, members and former members of British cabinets, ambassadors and naval experts, and row upon row of newspapermen were grouped around them.

Everyone present rose as his majesty entered the hall, and remained standing during the six minutes that he took to finish his speech. As soon as he had finished he left the royal gallery, and then Secretary of State Stimson formally moved the appointment of Prime Minister MacDonald as chairman of the conference. This was seconded by Premier Tardieu of France.

With the plenary session formally opened and the prime minister in the chair, the heads of each of the delegations rose and briefly spoke of the hopes that the conference had roused among all the peoples of the world.

Mr. MacDonald declared that every country alike, rich or poor, was stricken by the burden of armaments. He pleaded that international agreements must be subject to periodical revision in order to meet changing conditions.

Secretary Stimson, following Mr. MacDonald, spoke in the same spirit, holding that the goal of disarmament could only be reached by successive stages with frequent revisions.

Premier Tardieu of France, after declaring that "success in this limited enterprise would make possible success in our whole effort toward disarmament," pointed out that "failure would mean that we would be burdened with a limitless mortgage."

Former Premier Wakatsuki of Japan and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy brought the earnest support of their countries to the cause of disarmament.

A feeling of complete satisfaction with the results of the opening day dominated the American delegation tonight.

The attitude of the other great sea powers voiced by their delegates was consistent with the American desire that the conference should be built on a framework of international confidence.

Secretary Stimson took a nap after the ceremonial session in the house of lords gallery and then applied himself to the speech in which he will present the detailed American naval views at the conference table on Thursday. He later accompanied Dwight W. Morrow to the first of many important informal conversations among the delegates.

Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Grandi had already gone to work at one of the most difficult problems of the conference. Hardly had Mr. MacDonald adjourned the plenary session, when they struck at the question of Franco-Italian differences and at luncheon discussed their naval needs.

The impression tonight, however, was that they had made little progress toward bridging the deep gulf separating the two Latin powers on the subject of naval parity.

Meanwhile M. Wakatsuki again led the Japanese delegation to the prime minister's residence at Downing street, but more for the purpose of meeting the British dominion delegates socially than for serious discussion.

COMMONS INTERESTED IN NAVAL DISARMAMENT

LONDON, Jan. 21—(AP)—The subject which held the attention of the world centered on the royal gallery this morning—naval disarmament—was carried over into the house of commons, also in Westminster, when it resumed its sessions after the Christmas holidays.

The question was put "whether any, and if so what, steps were being taken to consider either in conjunction with America or not how far this country can accept freedom of the seas."

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returned the written reply, "While his majesty's government is not in communication with the government of the United States on the subject they have the question under consideration."

Further asked if the question of freedom of the seas had been raised at the naval conference, Mr. MacDonald answered in the negative.

CONNECTICUT DAIRYMEN IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

HARTFORD, Jan. 21—(AP)—Tuberculosis among Connecticut cattle is now only a minor disease problem, and within five years, will probably be practically eradicated, according to C. L. Johnson, state commissioner on domestic animals, in his address at the opening meeting of the annual convention of the Connecticut Dairymen's association, held at the Hotel Garde, here this afternoon.

Commissioner of Agriculture B. McLean Buckingham urged support by all dairymen of the co-operative marketing organizations, since efficient marketing of dairy products can be achieved in no other way, and since marketing is equally important with efficient production. Both are essential, he said, if Connecticut dairymen are to compete successfully with other states.

Owners of pure bred herds must improve their stock quickly to keep ahead of graded stock, according to Prof. E. G. Woodward of Salisbury, Conn., another speaker. He suggested selective registration and the use of proven sires as valuable aids in this improvement.

INCREASE IN EMPLOYMENT IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—An upward trend in employment during the last two weeks for the first time since the stock market deflation last November, was reported to President Hoover today by Secretary Davis.

"The tide of employment all over the country has changed in the right direction," the chief executive said, after receiving information that the steel, iron and automobile industries, along with virtually every other major industry in the country, had shown increased activity since January 1.

Secretary Davis said "we can expect a great deal of business in 1930," and that the present year "should see us well on the way to complete recovery" from the depression during the last few months of 1929.

DINNER GUESTS WERE POISONED BY FOOD

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 21—(AP)—Apparently poisoned by food, between 50 and 60 guests of a dinner given here last night by Camellia City circle, number 1002, Companions of the Foresters of America, were ill today. Ten or twelve of the more seriously stricken were in hospitals but were expected to recover.

Dr. Jacques Gray, epidemologist of the state board of health, was summoned from Berkeley to examine samples of the food served.

STAY OF EXECUTION OF DR. JAMES H. SNOOK

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 21—(AP)—The Ohio supreme court late today granted a stay of execution to Dr. James H. Snook, slayer of Theora Hix, Ohio State co-ed, postponing his electrocution to February 28.

HUNTING WILD ANIMAL IN VICINITY OF WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—A wild beast, real or mythical, which has been the object of an unsuccessful ten-day chase along the city's outskirts, today had so thoroughly convinced Washingtonians of its reality that an augmented force of police and citizens joined in the hunt.

Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington baseball team and his favorite fox hound, Rock, were among those trailing the beast, which is currently believed to be a panther or mountain lion.

Recently a hog was found dead, having been terribly mauled by a powerful animal with long sharp claws. Reports today from the same section said a dog had been killed after a sharp battle with an apparently wild beast. Tracks have been found in plenty, but as yet no one has seen the killer.

LIQUOR SMUGGLERS AND HI-JACKERS IN BATTLE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 21—(AP)—Guns of liquor smugglers and hi-jackers roared today on the western end of Navy Island, Canadian territory, in the upper Niagara river, in a reopening of warfare between Detroit and Buffalo rum runners. The result of the battle, however, has not been ascertained, the river being filled with ice floes and customs men refraining from visiting the island because of the danger.

Navy Island long has been a base of liquor operations, being across the imaginary line and immune from forays of United States federal officers.

BROKER PLACED UNDER ARREST IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Jan. 21—(AP)—William J. Smart, president of Homer L. Gibson and Company, Ltd., Toronto, brokerage concern, was arrested today on instructions of the Ontario attorney general's department. Information here was that the charge was conspiracy.

Smart was taken to court street police station while an effort was made to raise $100,000 bail.

Homer L. Gibson and Company has been operating in Toronto and other Ontario cities for several years. The company deals chiefly in mining securities.

THREE MEN MISSING AFTER CAVE-IN OF ROOF OF MINE

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 21—(AP)—Three men are missing and believed dead, and a fourth was rescued this afternoon following a large cave-in of roof in the Jermyn mine of the Hudson Coal company at Jermyn, 15 miles north of here.

The missing men are Harold Van Sickle, William McAndrew and "Sunny" Charles, all of Jermyn.

Patrick McAndrew, a brother of one of the missing men, was rescued by fellow mine workers after two hours work. He was injured about the legs and body but not seriously.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

MADRID, Jan. 21—(AP)—Six persons, including two former lieutenant colonels of artillery, were arrested for agitating against the government.

MADRID, Jan. 21—(AP)—The reference by Premier Primo de Rivera to "the few months remaining of my government" in announcing today a new minister of finance strengthened the conviction in some quarters that the dictator would carry out his expressed intention of retiring this year.

BERLIN, Jan. 21—(AP)—Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring United States ambassador, was given a farewell banquet by the foreign office. Among those present were Chancellor Mueller, former Chancellor Cuno, President Schacht of the Reichsbank and other leaders of the intellectual, industrial and political life of Germany.

METHODS OF CUSTOMS PATROL DENOUNCED

OCOLA, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Denouncing as "high handed and outrageous," methods employed by customs patrol inspectors who "ride up and down the highways of Florida away from any border holding up automobiles of citizens to search them for liquor," Federal Judge Lake Jones of Jacksonville today dismissed a charge against Willie Lewis, on trial for transporting liquor.

Two customs patrol inspectors had testified against Lewis. One of them, T. S. Wisehart of Tampa, told the court he found liquor in only about half of the cars he searched.

"Citizens of this country have rights," Judge Jones said, addressing one of the inspectors on the witness stand. He added:

"No law in the world gives you the right to ride up and down the state holding up citizens."

EMPEROR DISSOLVED THE JAPANESE DIET

TOKYO, Jan. 21—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito dissolved the Japanese diet today upon request of Premier Yuko Hamaguchi, who hopes by an election February 20 to gain a majority for his party, the minseito, which has held only a minority of seats in the lower house.

The dissolution took place soon after the diet reconvened today following a recess. Premier Hamaguchi, Foreign Minister Shidehara and Finance Minister Inouye delivered speeches. Brief interpellations by the opposition followed, and knowing he could not command a majority vote, the premier declared the diet dissolved.

ACTRESS JANE CARROLL MARRIED IN GREENWICH

GREENWICH, Jan. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Charles, known on the stage as Jane Carroll, was married this afternoon in the town hall by a justice of the peace to Ambrose Spencer M. Crummey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Safford A. Crummey, 100 Central Park south, New York city, and Goshen, N. Y.

Mr. Crummey was a student at the Sheffield Scientific school, Yale university, from 1920 to 1922. Mrs. Crummey, a native of Louisville, Ky., divorced her first husband. She was formerly with the Ziegfeld Follies and is now mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jackson.

COURTROOM CLEARED AT DIVORCE CASE HEARING

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 21—(AP)—After clearing the courtroom, Judge Allyn L. Brown in superior court today heard evidence in the suit for annulment of marriage brought by Edward J. Knorr, Derby realtor, against Mary A. Knorr, on charges of fraudulent representation.

Knorr claims that he had been intimately acquainted with his wife for two years before their marriage in 1926, and that he had married her after she told him she was about to become a mother. After the marriage, Knorr charges she admitted this to be false.

CLOSING SHADY RESORTS IN ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 21—(AP)—Under instructions from Safety Director William S. Cuthbert and Police Chief Doran, the police were active today with the result that practically all the speakeasies, disorderly houses, gambling resorts and other illegal places have been closed.

Last night and early today the police arrested 35 men and women, found in questionable places. Some are held as principals, but the majority as material witnesses.

BEVERAGES SEIZED IN EAGLES' CLUB, SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 21—(AP)—A quantity of beverages was seized in club rooms of the Syracuse aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, tonight in a raid led by Captain Charles W. Kress, prohibition chief here. Two men were arrested.

The Eagles' club rooms at Binghamton were visited by enforcement officers earlier today, according to reports reaching this city.

POLICE SEIZED SKATES OF DISOBEDIENT CHILDREN

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 21—(AP)—There were enough skates in the Dormont police station tonight to accommodate every officer but they were merely skates "under arrest."

Police seized the skates after 30 boys and girls had violated instructions of officials of the municipal pool to keep off the pool's thin ice.

COAST GUARD CUTTER STRUCK SUNKEN ROCK

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 21—(AP)—After striking a sunken rock between Sound Island and Olga Point at the southern end of Neva Strait at 11:35 a. m., the coast guard cutter Unalga was heading toward Sitka, under her own steam, she radioed to the coast guard station here today.

DEATH OF THE WIDOW OF WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Baird Bryan, widow of William Jennings Bryan, the late Commoner, died tonight at the home of a daughter here.

Removal of airplane 'crashes' from "the realm of unexplained mysteries," through provision of properly lighted and emergency fields, was urged in a statement by Senator Bingham of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautic association.

Jacksonville Police Make Second A[illegible]st

Prisoner Had Been [illegible]quent Companion of Three Escaped Connecticut Convicts

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Police this afternoon announced the arrest of a second man in connection with the shooting here, last Friday night, of two city detectives.

While refusing to divulge the name of their prisoner, who was arrested in Orlando, Fla., officers said he was known to have been a frequent companion of the three escaped Connecticut convicts who were involved in the shooting of the detectives.

Leo Landry, one of the Connecticut trio, was captured last Sunday night. Others involved are Watson Moulthrope and Roland Lalone.

It was learned that officers who left here yesterday for an unannounced destination in search of the men had been unsuccessful. They went to Daytona Beach, where Moulthrope lives, but found no trace of the fugitives.

From Daytona Beach, the officers went to Orlando, where the second arrest was made.

Police believe that Lalone and Moulthrope may have struck west toward Mexico. Border patrolmen over Florida and in neighboring states have been advised to be on the alert, so that the two fugitives may be headed off if they should attempt to leave the country.

Local police tonight awaited the arrival here of County Detective Edward J. Hickey and George H. Bradley, parole officer at the state prison at Wethersfield, Conn., who left Connecticut yesterday to assist in the hunt and to question Landry.

UPHOLDS AL. SMITH'S PRONUNCIATION OF RADIO

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Classical endorsement of former Governor Alfred E. Smith's much-debated pronunciation of "radio" with a short "a" was adduced today in a letter to Mr. Smith from Nathan Haskell Dole, author and translator of the works of Tolstoy.

Mr. Dole, who signed himself "A Transplanted Bostonian," and now lives in upper Manhattan, wrote:

"In the Latin word 'radius' the 'a' is short, as is proved by a line in Ovid's Fasti, where it appears as 'radio' in the ablative case. Consequently, the pronunciation rad-i-o, which you made famous in one of your speeches, must be regarded as correct.

"There seems to be no more sense in 'raydio' than there would be in changing rad-i-cal to 'raydical'."

GEN. WEYGAND CHIEF OF STAFF OF FRENCH ARMY

PARIS, Jan. 21—(AP)—General Maxime Weygand, former aide to Marshal Foch, was called "General of Dictatorship" and "a military leader ready for a coup d'etat," when his nomination as chief of the general staff of the French army came up for ratification in parliament today.

The socialists, communists and radicals leveled their heavy artillery against the general, incidentally choosing the moment when Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand were absent to launch a most bitter offensive against the government. Minister of War Maginot rose in defense of General Weygand and on a question of confidence the nomination was ratified by a vote of 311 to 113.

TOOK POISON AT HOME AND DIED IN HOSPITAL

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 21—(AP)—Thomas Murta, 22, died at the New Britain General hospital today shortly after he had taken poison at his home.

Murta, police said, had been brooding since last night when his wife, who objected to his drinking, left the house, taking their only child with her. Police were trying to locate Mrs. Murta tonight.

Murta had returned to his home this afternoon in the hope of finding his wife and child there. His mother, Mrs. Debarth Murta, and a brother, who reside in a tenement in the same building, accosted him and upbraided him because of his drinking. Shortly afterwards he was found by his mother on the verge of unconsciousness lying in the hallway of the building.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE TO COMBAT BUSINESS FRAUDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Chambers of commerce of cities within a 100-mile radius of New York established a new working liaison today to combat business frauds. The plan was effected at a meeting of the Better Business bureau held in the offices of the New York Merchants' association.

Seventeen chambers of commerce and other organizations were represented. It was announced that the new arrangement would place at the disposal of the out-of-town chambers the fraud-fighting resources of the Better Business bureau, and lend to the New York bureau the fraud-reporting facilities of the chambers.

[illegible]oast Guard Bills Pending In House

One Calls For $3,000,000 For Coast Guard Academy Buildings at New London.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—More than half dozen bills concerning the U. S. Coast Guard are now pending in the house, and all are of specific interest to Connecticut, where the Coast Guard academy is located, with New London as the base.

The bills come from the interstate and foreign commerce committee of which Representative Merritt of the Fourth district is a high-up member.

The bills are approved by the Connecticut delegation and have just been favorably reported out of the committee. They are on the so-called Wednesday consent calendar, and yesterday that calendar was before the house, but the bills were not reached, and will come up again in two weeks, unless crossed off the calendar or passed over by request.

Mr. Merritt today asked that his bill for the retirement pay for certain members of the service go over, and it was granted. Later it will come up for a vote.

Of the remaining bills one is for the purchase of a new type motor boat and equipment from Great Britain. The cost would be approximately $50,000 but the committee and department believes it would be valuable for use by the U. S. Coast Guard.

Of greater interest is the bill providing for a larger appropriation for the construction of new buildings for the Coast Guard Academy at New London. The sum is raised from $1,750,000 to $3,000,000.

The city of New London has donated a fine site overlooking the Thames river, where the buildings will be located. It is not the purpose of the bill to change the building plans, but the secretary of the treasury had reported the sum first named was not sufficient and recommended the increase. The buildings will be plain and simple in design, but entirely fire-proof and adequate to meet all requirements.

Still another of the pending bills is to raise the pay of Coast Guard commandants to the level of chiefs of bureaus in the navy department, the raise to continue while the officer ranks as commandant.

A bill to readjust the commissioned personel of the Coast Guard, and place officer engineers on the same basis as line officers is on the calender.

Mr. Merritt, as member of the committee, has given his warm support to all these measures, as being for the best good of not only the Coast Guard, but of the state of Connecticut, where the guard headquarters are located. Representative Freeman of New London is deeply interested in having the bills pass as, in fact, are the other members of the Connecticut delegation.

It is encouraging to note that several of the measures have the outspoken approval of the secretary of the treasury.

AN AWARD OF $200 IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

HARTFORD, Jan. 21—(AP)—Miss Annie M. MacDonnell, of New York city, was awarded $200 by a U. S. district court jury, here late this afternoon, at the conclusion of the trial of her breach of promise suit against Frank W. Lavery, of Hartford. Miss MacDonnell had asked $10,000 damages, based on the allegation that on the eve of her wedding in December, 1928, Lavery wrote her a letter calling off all plans for the function. Counsel for the plaintiff, upon hearing the verdict, filed a motion to set aside the verdict, and Judge Warren B. Burrows announced that oral argument would be heard on the motion on or after February 4.

GENERAL ATTACK ON PARAGUAYAN FRONTIER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—Declaring that he feared a conflict was imminent, Pablo M. Ynsfran, charge d'affaires for the Paraguay legation, informed Francis White, assistant secretary of state, today that his government had informed him that General Kundt, commanding officer of the Bolivian army, had ordered a general attack on the Paraguayan frontier.

The Paraguayan diplomat told Mr. White that the Bolivian commander had ordered an advance of airplanes into the disputed Chaco Boreal yesterday. He said the Bolivian frontier was filled with mobilized fighting units of the Bolivian army.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HOOVER GUESTS OF HONOR AT DINNER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover were the guests of honor at a dinner given tonight by Secretary Hurley and Mrs. Hurley.

The banquet was the fourth of the dinners given by officials in Washington to which President and Mrs. Hoover will go. They previously have attended dinners given by Vice-President Curtis, Secretary Stimson and Secretary Mellon.

TRAINS AND MOTORISTS SNOWBOUND THROUGHOUT KANSAS AND OKLAHOMA

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 21—(AP)—Snowbound trains, stranded motorists, failing fuel supplies and closed schools tonight told the story of winter's continued assault on the southwest and Rocky mountain states, already worn from repeated buffetings.

Near zero and sub-zero temperatures added to the worries and miseries of cities and rural sections alike.

In Kansas and Oklahoma drifting snow held several railway trains fast and entirely halted transportation on numerous branch lines.

Governor W. W. Holloway of Oklahoma was a victim of winter's latest outburst. He was a passenger on a Frisco train stalled in a snow drift in the Canadian river bottoms southwest of Oklahoma City.

A Missouri-Kansas-Texas freight train was stalled thirty miles south of Parsons, Kansas. A Missouri Pacific freight was held fast at Hoolar, Kans., and another at Clearwater, Kans. A Frisco freight was snowbound between Winfield, Kans., and Enid, Okla.

Amarillo, Texas, reported a temperature of one degree below zero. Cattlemen feared heavy losses. Storm warnings were raised along the Texas coast.

More frigid weather was reported to the north, especially in the Rocky Mountain region, however. More snow fell in Wyoming and Colorado. Subzero temperatures were general in Montana.

Reports of snowbound motorists were common in Kansas and Oklahoma. Thirty automobiles and five busses were said to be held at Pierce Pennant terminal, nine miles east of Tulsa, Okla.

Snow drifts ten feet high were reported in southern Kansas. Near Augusta, twenty-eight marooned motorists spent last night in a farm house.

The legal right of the federal prohibition department to compel a telephone company to reveal the location of suspected bootleggers' telephones was attacked on constitutional grounds in United States district court in San Francisco by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

PROHIBITION IS BLOCKING LEGISLATION BY CONGRESS

House Wet Bloc Intends to Debate the Question Every Day if Possible—Wets and Drys Clashed in Both Branches as Bills Were Introduced to Carry Out the Recommendations of the Law Enforcement Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—President Hoover's program to strengthen prohibition enforcement advanced in both branches of congress today as house wets and drys again clashed over the 18th amendment.

Bills to carry out the recommendation of the law enforcement commission to empower United States commissioners to hold summary trials of casual and light offenders of the dry laws were introduced in the house by Representative Christopherson, republican, South Dakota. His move was approved by a judiciary sub-committee.

This course was decided upon in executive session after George W. Wickersham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, and Dean Roscoe Pound, a member of that commission, told the group that the proposed legislation did not conflict with the constitution.

No sooner had this been done than Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, charged on the floor that these measures would mean depriving the people of their constitutional rights to trial by jury.

Arrangements were completed to begin hearings before the house expenditures committee tomorrow, when Secretary Mellon, Prohibition Commissioner Doran and probably Attorney General Mitchell, will appear in support of the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition enforcement unit from the treasury to the justice department.

In the senate, the judiciary subcommittee considering the King measure to effect the same transfer also plans to hold hearings this week with Mellon, Mitchell, Wickersham and Pound as witnesses.

The house wet bloc prepared to attempt to keep prohibition discussion in the open. The members intended to debate the question every day in the house, if possible.

While these developments were in progress, Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, a dry, defended on the floor the use of wood alcohol for industrial purposes. He attacked the bill recently introduced by Representative Sirovich, democrat, New York, to prevent the denaturing of industrial alcohol with wood alcohol. At the same time, Prohibition Commissioner Doran took issue with Sirovich in a statement denying the former's charge that wood alcohol was responsible for the deaths of persons who consumed it as a beverage after being converted.

Doran said in another statement tonight commenting upon the Sirovich proposal that the "drugs he lists in his bill would do about as much to denatured alcohol as would be done by adding a sprig of mint or a cherry to a quantity of it."

"I understand the congressman is a good doctor," he added, "but he has a lot to learn about effective denaturants for alcohol. Practically everything he suggests is a heavy non-volatile addition to alcohol which can be distilled out with the greatest ease by any bootlegger's chemist."

"MILLIONAIRE KID" TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Stanley Prysbyl, the "Millionaire Kid," who police say blazed a golden trail through Miami night clubs with his one-fifth share of the $300,000 Carson pre-nuptial dinner robbery in Buffalo, N. Y., November 14, was in Dade county jail tonight. He planned to fight extradition to New York on robbery charges.

A woman, known as Ethel Mason, arrested with the "Millionaire Kid," as they entered his apartment early today was in another part of the jail, silent as to her association with Prysbyl and her plans for the future. City and private detectives, who came here from Buffalo in search of Prysbyl, said she is a member of a well known family of that city.

"I'd rather die than go back to Buffalo to face charges," the "Millionaire Kid" said in jail today. "I'm going to fight any move that's made to take me back."

BROWN AND PERO WERE INDICTED FOR MURDER

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 21—(AP)—Indictments of first degree murder were returned today by a grand jury against Arthur H. Brown, Orazio Maltese, and Vincenzo Pero, in the slaying of Dominick Zito, whose body was found several weeks ago in a field in Orange.

The indictment returned against Pero came as a complete surprise. He was released in $2,000 bonds recently from the county jail where he had been held as a material witness. The indictment against him was returned after the grand jury, of which Judge Omar Platt, of Milford, was foreman, had asked Judge Carl Foster whether a person having knowledge of the commission of a crime of murder and thereafter concealed that knowledge and assisted others to conceal it could be indicted for first degree murder. Judge Foster replied affirmatively.

MRS. SCHROEDER AND GLENN DAGUE WAIVE EXTRADITION

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, who are wanted in Pennsylvania for the slaying last December 27 of Corporal Brady Paul, state highway patrolman, waived extradition today in a sudden reversal of their plans after Governor John C. Phillips had refused to grant continuance of the hearing.

The unexpected collapse of the prisoners' opposition to extradition cleared the way for their return to Pennsylvania to face murder charges and authorities who arrived here today, hurried the couple to a waiting automobile and drove rapidly out of the city.

$50,000,000 INCREASE VOTED FOR FED. HIGHWAY AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—An increase of $50,000,000 annually in federal highway aid was approved unanimously by the house today with the passage of the Dowell bill to authorize appropriation of $300,000,000 for road building in the fiscal years 1931, 1932, and 1933.

The measure, against which no voice was raised through four hours of discussion, now goes to the senate. It would provide $125,000,000 each to be expended in 1932 and 1933, and that an additional $50,000,000 be expended in 1931 along with the $75,000,000 already authorized for that year.

SPURIOUS U. S. $100 BILLS CIRCULATED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Jan. 21—(AP)—The police announced today that a communist named Franz Fischer, alias Voight, whose present whereabouts are unknown, had circulated counterfeit American hundred dollar bills which had been detected by the federal reserve bank. It was said that the counterfeiters had a widespread organization outside of Germany and also had made spurious bills in the denominations of ten, twenty and fifty dollars.

STOCK BROKER LEAPED TO DEATH FROM 12TH STORY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—(AP)—Bernard J. Camp, 33, a New York stock broker, leaped or fell to his death today from his 12th story room in the Hotel Sylvania.

Police said they believed Camp had jumped from the window but they discovered no motive for suicide.

BREAK IN VAUDEVILLE TEAM OF MORAN AND MACK

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21—(AP)—The vaudeville team of Moran and Mack, better known as the "Two Black Crows" has come to a parting of the ways.

In superior court George Moran, whose real name is George Searcy, has obtained a temporary restraining order against Charles Mack, prohibiting him from using the names "Moran" and the "Two Black Crows" in further acts. Mack's birth name is Charles E. Sellers.

The disagreement followed the signing of a contract by the comedians in which Moran was named manager of the team. Moran claimed he was not versed in "business or legal matters" and he signed the paper without knowing that he would receive no compensation from Mack for assuming the managership.

Moran alleged he asked Mack to cancel the contract but that his former partner refused. Superior court granted Moran a temporary restraining order.

Mack originated the vaudeville skit in 1917 and since then has had several partners. Recently the pair came here to appear in films after a successful stage career.

BANKER UNABLE TO EXPLAIN DISAPPEARANCE

WORLEY, Idaho, Jan. 21—(AP)—Michael Kraemer, manager of the State bank of Worley, who mysteriously disappeared Monday, leaving the bank vaults open, came back today almost frozen and unable to explain his action.

Police of the northwest had been asked to search for the banker, and directors of the institution began an inspection of the books on the theory that financial troubles might have caused him to leave. They said nothing seemed wrong with his accounts.

The vaults were left wide open, cash was in the tills, and the key to the bank was left on a counter as Kraemer, who was in sole charge of the bank, walked out, leaving the funds unguarded.

Members of his family explained today that the banker had just completed some intensive work on the books, which might have caused a nervous breakdown. As Kraemer staggered home today, he could only say he had "been down on the tracks" and after that he was reported as physically unable to talk. The temperature was around ten degrees below zero during the night he was exposed to the elements.

FEAR OF FLOODS ALONG BANKS OF THE WABASH

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 21—(AP)—There was alarm again today along the banks of the Wabash in Indiana when an ice gorge formed and threatened to dam up the flood waters still pouring down from the stream's upper reaches.

Government engineers took steps to break up the ice that is jammed in the Wabash for a distance of seven miles near the town of Riverton in Sullivan county. Once the jam is broken it will relieve conditions upstream but anxiety is felt that a wall of water will be released that will once more threaten the historic city of Vincennes. That city only obtained a respite late last week when a cold wave checked the river as it approached the dangerous stage of 26 feet.

FLEEING NEGRO SHOT BY COAST GUARDSMAN

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Leon Sanders, Negro, who was shot by coast guardsmen during a chase of a liquor-laden speedboat in the Miami river last night, was reported resting easily in a local hospital tonight.

Sanders was wounded in the right thigh after he had fired from the craft, coast guardsmen reported. Two companions, who Sanders said were white men, escaped when they ran their boat aground and leaped to the shore.

WOMAN KILLED HER UNCLE BECAUSE HE BEAT HER

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—While hundreds of persons looked on, Francis Calerno, 66, tonight was shot and killed in Union square. Police arrested his niece, Carmell Muce, 26, and said she told them she shot her uncle because he beat her.

Police reserves were called to control an excited throng of 2,000 that gathered at the scene.

LOCAL HOTEL SHOWS GOOD PROFIT FOR PAST YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 21.—A net profit of $9,146.20 with an increase in total revenue of $13,068.57, is shown in the annual report of the Nathan Hale hotel submitted at a directors' meeting of the Community Hotel Corp. held Monday night. During 1929 the revenue was $114,597.25, of which $42,-895.75 was obtained from rooms and $72,301.50 from food. In comparison the 1928 figures were $36,294.25 from rooms and $65,249.43 from food, a total of $101,543.68. The total operating expenses in 1929 amounted to $89,031.36 and in 1928, $86,793.97, leaving an operating profit of $25,566, which with other income such as rentals, etc., with profit before fixed charges, makes a total of $30,898.05. The operating profit in 1928 was $14,749.71 which with other income and profit before fixed charges amounted to $19,326.78.

A net profit of $9,146.20 is shown after the deduction of fixed charges, taxes, interest, depreciation, etc., of $21,751.85. In 1928 there was a net loss of $1,173.51, the items of fixed charges, interest, depreciation, etc., having totaled $20,500.23. The gain during the past year over 1928 therefore amounted to $10,319.73.

The report shows that the percentage of occupancy was 53.9 per cent, mortgage bonds retired by payment $9,600 and notes paid $2,500, the latter two items amounting to $12,100.

General Edward Olmstead, treasurer of the American Hotels Corp., which operates the local hotel, was present at the meeting and during a brief talk explained the operation of the corporation's chain. He complimented the directors and the local manager, Charles E. Mayo, on the successful management during the year and expressed strong optimism for the future of the Nathan Hale.

FUNERAL

Dr. Lorenzo L. Gaucher

Funeral services for Dr. Lorenzo Lionel Gaucher, practicing physician and surgeon in Hartford for the past seven years, were held at his home, 208 Newbury street, Hartford, Monday morning, and at St. Augustine's church. DePasquale, Dr. William P. Daly and Dr. Leo Gervais, Frederic J. Corbett, Robert Travis, Lew Drummer, Kenneth Stewart, George Spach, James M. Hayes, Albert R. Bellerose and B. J. Berube. The active bearers were Ernest Bioron, Joseph Castonguay, Edward Jalbert, William Desmond, Donald Dockrell and William C. Callery, Jr. Burial was in Mt. St. Benedict cemetery, Hartford, where a committal service was conducted by Father Bellerose, assisted by Father Rosenberger, Father Barry, Father Eagan and Father O'Connell.

A thoughtful and interesting talk on The Ethics of Selling was given at the regular luncheon-meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon by Rotarian Fred J. Dawless of New Haven, manager of the Connecticut branch of the Crucible Steel Co. Rotarian Dawless was introduced by Roland B. Jordan, chairman of the vocational committee of the club. He had as his guest George Benedict, also of New Haven. President Louis H. Arnold presided over the business session, during which it was announced that a musical night, under the chairmanship of Song Leader Ralph H. Gibson, would be held at the hotel Monday evening, Feb. 3, at 6:30 o'clock. Coach Sumner A. Dole announced the basketball game to be played at Storrs Saturday evening between the Springfield and Aggie teams. During a song-fest, Walter S. Jordan led a group in singing Pull Your Shades Down, Marian.

Mrs. Balmana Bachand

Mrs. Balmana Bouvier Bachand, 32, wife of Arthur F. Bachand, died of acute indigestion about 5:15 o'clock this forenoon at her home on Trapelia road. She was born in Canada and besides her husband, leaves six children; Leo, Harvey, Jean, Gerard, Theresa and Paulina; her mother, Mrs. Leona Chenette of Worcester, Mass.; two brothers, Honorey and Henry Bouvier of Worcester; two step-brothers, Rosalpha and Leo, and one step-sister, Mrs. Paul Roberts, also of Worcester.

Instructions for the annual federal and state inspections of the unit, to be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 4, were given tonight at the regular weekly drill of Co. C, 169th Infantry, C. N. G., held in the state armory. Captain Ellison S. Smith stated that the federal inspecting officer had not as yet been named. Major Joseph R. Morrison of this city, commanding the First Battalion, 169th Infantry, will inspect on behalf of the state.

An attempt that has already met with a substantial degree of success, is being made here to reorganize the Democratic club, a political organization that has been idle for some time. A membership committee, working under the temporary chairmanship of Joseph F. Gaudreau, has secured 40 new names for the club. It is planned to elect permanent officers at another meeting next week.

A six months' suspended sentence to the state inebriate farm was imposed in police court this morning in the case of Felix Beaudry of this city, charged with possession of a rifle and a shot gun contrary to the alien law, and intoxication. Judge Foss placed Beaudry on probation for one month in custody of Probation Officer William V. Palmer, Sr. Officers Arthur Hurley and Roderick Lariviere made the arrest.

Edward A. McCarthy, president of the Cleminshaw Municipal Service Co. of Hartford, which had the contract for revaluing the town of Windham property, visited the temporary offices of the company here today.

Surveyors are at work on the highway leading northerly from Chaplin to Phoenixville, giving some credence to a report that this stretch of highway is to be rebuilt in concrete within two years. The road from this city to Chaplin is at present of concrete construction.

Prosper Vegiard has been awarded third prize in the national contest of the sale of Lyric radios in Connecticut. The award is a handsome receiving set.

It is expected that the Windham Center Fish and Game club will begin building a clubhouse by spring. Tentative plans of the house have been discussed, the building to accommodate over 100 members. A report on the probable cost of construction is to be given next month by a committee composed of Walter Abbe, Guy S. Richmond, Eden C. Cook, Paul Hopkins, Homer M. Harrington and Donald McDonald, this committee having been appointed by President Jack Thompson.

While at work on the new mill of the J. D. Tatem Handle Co. in Eastford Monday afternoon, Edward Trappel, a painter in the employ of the concern, sustained a fracture of the right ankle in a fall of 20 feet from a ladder.

While on his way to the Rotary club meeting this noon, Charles B. Pomeroy of 327 South street slipped and fell, injuring his back. He was taken to his home.

Mrs. H. MacWay and little daughter arrived from St. Joseph's hospital Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Josephine Brown of Windsor and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Adams and family of Willimantic called on Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown one day last week.

Two sessions of court were held here last week; Tuesday afternoon at Otto Hattin's, three young men were tried who had been arrested for hunting without a license. William Curtiss had previously broken a game law and he was fined twenty-five dollars and costs. Robert Walker and Guy Stevens were fined ten dollars and costs each. Ernest Hattin and A. Moritz prosecuted the case.

The second trial was held at Knowlton Memorial hall Wednesday morning when Lysle Harrington was arrested for non-support. Gertrude Harrington was arrested for non-support. Gertrude Harrington entered the complaint. The husband was defended by Lawyer Kelley of Willimantic and found not guilty. Clarence Barlow and Justin Burrill tried this case.

Rev. E. B. Verney preached a sermon Sunday morning on the Youth of Today. He pointed out the fact that frontiers have gone, but as the great electrical engineer, Steinmetz, said, the youth of today will expend its energy in the spiritual realm.

Mrs. Clarence Barlow spent several days last week with Hartford relatives.

Stafford Springs

Through the generosity of Gardiner Hall, of South Willington, the Olympics, a Stafford Springs basketball team has been granted the privilege of using the Willington gym. Charles Ward, manager of the Olympics, is now arranging an attractive schedule of games to be played during the winter. There is much complaint about the Stafford high school gym on account of it not being of regulation size for basketball games and it is difficult to get good out of town teams to come here after they have once used the local floor.

DANIELSON

REPORTS SHOW P-A CO. HAD VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 21—The annual meeting of the stockholders of Powdrell and Alexander, held in Boston yesterday, brought to them from their officers and executive staff the best report in the history of the corporation. The company was one of the most highly successful in the textile industry in New England in 1929, a difficult period for manufacturers of fabrics of any kind in this part of the United States.

Earnings for 1929 were the greatest the company has known. There was some slackening of production during the latter part of December, but that is regarded as merely a seasonal condition. Forecast of prospects for 1930 are very encouraging. This concern manufactures curtains and its sales field is the entire United States and much of Canada. It markets its products through its own sales organization. Its organization is highly perfected, and its policy of operation provides for taking raw cotton in the bale, processing through all manufacturing operations up to the finished and boxed curtain and shipping the product to hundreds of destinations where the sales organization has obtained orders.

As successful as was 1929, the company has not yet reached the limit of its expansion and looks for new high records of production and sales during the present year. The company has six mills in operation in this town, and has under consideration the expansion of its bleaching operations this year, which plan entail the building of a new bleachery. Stockholders of the company are scattered far and wide through the country, but numbers of them are resident here.

FUNERALS

Joseph Porter

At noon today at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home on Furnace street, services for Joseph Porter, who died at his home in Foster, were conducted by Rev. L. M. Spaulding. Burial was in the Slater cemetery on the eastern border of Killingly. The bearers were J. Lester Brown, Luther W. Cole, M. D. Whittaker and Hiram O. Wood.

Mrs. Charles Simmons

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Bridget Simmons, widow of Charles Simmons, was held from the home in Goodyear with services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Kost was celebrant of the high mass of requiem, attended by numbers of relatives and friends. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery. Bearers were Charles Donahue, Edward Murphy, Thomas Simmons, Joseph Leavens, Charles Carver and Wilfred Breayea. There were many floral remembrances. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

Mrs. Mary Kurt

From the Martin T. Burns funeral parlor in Academy street the funeral of Mrs. Mary Kurt, who died in East Killingly, was held this morning, funeral services being at St. James' church at 10:15. Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Wood of New York are visiting with Mr. Wood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wood.

That the teams in Killingly's Inter-Church Basketball league are evenly matched to an unusual degree is indicated by a four-team tie for first place that follows of the playing of last night's games, the Dayville Pioneers defeating the Collegians 26-25, while the All Stars took the Whirlwinds 13-10. The tie for first place now existing is between the All Stars, Pioneers, Collegians and Whirlwinds, each having won two games.

Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Mrs. Frank J. Gorman and Mrs. Rene Buteau were winners at bridge at a meeting of the Entre Nous club with Mrs. Lucien Lambert.

Competent girl wanted to do bookkeeping and stenography. Apply at once to The Church Co., Danielson.—Adv.

Officers of the Killingly Trust company are: President, Nathan D. Prince; vice president, Charles A. Tillinghast; treasurer, Ralph H. Dunbar; assistant treasurer, Frank J. G. Bailey.

Elimination of the snake-like series of curves on the Danielson-Jewett City highway near Tadpole pond will be one of the benefits accruing from the construction of about three and a half miles of concrete highway that the state highway will ask bids for in the immediate future.

There was slight damage to the two machines involved at noon today when a car operated by Assistant Treasurer Henry Puckett of the Goodyear company and coming south on Broad street was struck by a car driven by Dr. Ray P. Masicotte of Pawtucket. The physician's car was being driven east on Reynolds street.

The Bohemian club through its trustees Charles Hale, James Sayles and Charles Franklin, have given formal notice of intention to dissolve its corporate existence, in accordance with a recent vote of the members. There is the chance that it will be succeeded by another club.

On Thursday evening of this week there is to be a joint meeting of the Danielson and Putnam Rotary clubs at St. Alban's parish house, off Broad street, and an interesting program will be arranged for the occasion.

Scores of pupils in the schools in the various communities of the town of Killingly made perfect attendance records for the first term of the present school year, it is announced, and many other perfect records of attendance are credited to pupils in the schools of Brooklyn.

Friday of this week will mark the opening of the intensive campaign to interest the local public in purchasing shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association. This campaign will continue until the end of the month. Its development will be watched with interest.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Mr. and Mrs. James Carlan have returned to their home in Worcester, after a few days' visit with relatives here, where Mr. Carlan formerly lived.

Miss Rose Carlan, of Hartford, has returned home, having attended the Welch-Carlan wedding. The bride was Miss Carlan's niece.

Rev. Frank A. Fuller, of Putnam, has been a visitor at the home of his nephew, Elwood Byles. Mrs. Byles is improving, but is yet unable to walk.

Much sympathy is being expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Couture, of Moosup, whose three-year-old son Donald died Sunday evening after a short illness. Mrs. Couture was Miss Rose Wakeley, daughter of Mrs. John Wakeley, of this village.

The Art and Travel club was entertained Monday afternoon by Mrs. Willis Rouse. The guests were: Miss Mary Tracy, Miss Faith Loudensager and Miss Mary Loudensager. Mrs. Alfred Hill was the reader. She read, "Lost America." A delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

Many local people "tuned in" at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning and heard King George speak.

Miss Mary Ladd left Monday for a few months stay in Florida at the home of her brother, Augustus Ladd, a former resident here.

Mrs. George Loring and son Billy are ill with colds and throat trouble.

Charles McFarland, who has been employed for several years at the Central Worsted mill, has resigned and will be with the Killingly Worsted Co.

PUTNAM

LOCAL POLICE ON WATCH FOR SOUTHBRIDGE ROBBER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 21. — Police of Southbridge and this city were enjoined in a search for an armed bandit who held up and robbed a gasoline filling station in Southbridge at five o'clock last night, relieving the attendant of about $60 in cash. The lone bandit as far as could be learned by police was without an automobile and it was believed that he made his escape by boarding a public utilities transport vehicle. A description was forwarded the police by the victim, who thought the unknown person fled in the direction of Putnam. Sergt. Alpherie Spooner ordered all officers of the local department to be on the lookout for the bandit who was said to have fleeced the Southbridge gasoline station attendant at the point of a gun.

Captain A. J. Dubreuil of the police department has assigned supernumerary police officers to traffic duty on Providence street on Sunday mornings in order to free the street from traffic jams which occur before and after the masses at St. Mary's church. Captain Dubreuil's Sunday morning assignments were made primarily to afford protection for the scores of children attending the eight o'clock mass.

Philip Fouey, of Front and South Main streets, was in Providence yesterday, where he was the guests of relatives on Randall street.

Martin E. Griffin and Thomas Griffin, of Boston, were in this city today to attend the funeral service of their mother, Mrs. Martha Griffin, which was held this morning at St. Mary's church.

There are a few candidates for appointment to the state police force residing in this city who will appear at the Danielson barracks on Thursday afternoon to undergo preliminary examinations.

Leonard H. Mellor, superintendent of the National Rhea company, was away from the city today on business.

A large delegation from the student body of Putnam high school is expected to accompany the school basketball team on its journey to Oxford, Mass. tomorrow where it will meet the Oxford high team in the first out of town game of the season.

FUNERALS

William Desautel

At St. Mary's church this morning, funeral services were held for William Desautel, north end baker, who died Sunday morning at his home on Batty street, following a brief illness. Rev. Ernest J. Boileau was celebrant at a solemn requiem high mass, assisted by Rev. Joseph D. Casey, deacon, and Rev. U. O. Bellerose, subdeacon. The service of music was rendered by members of the 10:30 o'clock choir. Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery. Rev. Father Bellerose officiated at a committal service at the grave.

Mrs. Martha Griffin

The funeral of Mrs. Martha P. Griffin, aged resident of this city, who died Sunday at her home on Gilman street, was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at St. Mary's church. Rev. Joseph D. Casey celebrated the solemn high mass of requiem, assisted by Rev. J. C. Mathieu, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale, as deacon, and Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, as sub-deacon. The Gregorian chant and a special programme of music was sung by the male choir of the church. Rev. Father Bellerose conducted a committal service at the grave at St. Mary's cemetery, where burial took place. The funeral service was largely attended by relatives and friends.

Sister Angelina Threasa

This morning at 9:30 o'clock, a group of nuns of the noviate of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost and from St. Mary's convent, and relatives and friends gathered in the little chapel at the mother house of the order on Church street for the funeral mass of Sister Angeline Threasa, who died Sunday after a long illness. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. G. E. Jegou, chaplain at the mother house. The solemn chant and the programme of music which accompanied the mass was sung by the choir composed of nuns and novices.

Before taking the vows of the order of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost, Sister Angeline was Miss Pauline Benoit, daughter of the late Henry Benoit and Mrs. Benoit of this city. Sister Angeline was but twenty years of age. She was born in Putnam where she resided until she responded to her calling for a life of service in the sisterhood. Sister Angeline was educated in Putnam. She attended St. Mary's school, graduating with honors. Her preliminary training was had at the mother house of the order in this city and upon its completion she sailed for France to finish her studies at the European mother house at St. Brieuc, were she assumed the vows and took the veil. Sadness entered Sister Angeline's life shortly before she became enrolled in the sisterhood. The liner on which she was sailing had been at sea only two days when her father, the late Henry Benoit of Bridge street, was taken ill and died. Sister Angeline, herself of a frail constitution, contracted an illness shortly after her enrollment in the order. She returned to her native country to continue her work at the mother house in this city. Sister Angeline was widely known in this city. At an early age she devoted her life to her church and while a student at St. Mary's school, only a brief span of years ago it was known to her schoolmates and teachers that she was to enter the convent upon completion of her studies. Sister Angeline's mother and members of her family reside on Bridge street.

Mrs. Edward F. Fisher entertained several members of the Cosmos club at a charity bridge which was held at her home on Oak hill last evening. The hostess was assisted by Miss Winifred Mellor, a club member, who served and poured. The affair was given in the interests of the Cosmos club milk fund which is providing milk for the city's poor undernourished babies. The bridge was largely attended and the proceeds will greatly increase the amount of the fund.

Two keepers have been posted to guard the contents of the men's and ladies' wearing apparel store of Horowitz brothers on Main street which was closed last Saturday afternoon by a common court writ of attachment served by Sheriff Charles E. Ayer, of Dayville, in favor of Samuel Diamond of Grove street, who has instituted a damage suit against the proprietors of the establishment.

Chief Merrill R. Keith of the police department at Northbridge, Mass., a former resident of Eastford and member of the state police department was in this city today relative to the investigation of an action now before the superior court. While here Chief Keith renewed many of his former acquaintanceships.

At nightfall tonight the city was clothed in a blanket of snow four inches deep with the prospect that the storm would continue until late into the night. The flakes, of a dry nature, began falling lightly at an early hour this morning and continued throughout the day. Highways became treacherous lanes of travels and cars slithered from one side of the road to the other on hills and inclines, until several hours after the huge motor plows of the state highway department, stationed on South Main street, had covered all of the trunk line highways in this section of the county. Superintendent of Streets Frederick Dumas, at an early hour, had assigned his forces to the task of removing snow from the city maintained highways and clearing of sidewalks. At a late hour this afternoon no word of automobile accidents had reached the local police station. Trains and motor coach lines maintained their regular schedules, experiencing no delays on the head of the storm.

NORTH STERLING

Mrs. William Nicol is ill with erysipelas.

G. F. Pierce is gaining steadily and hopes are held out for his complete recovery.

Miss Ruth Spooner, who is ill at the home of her parents here, is able to be about and out of doors.

Mrs. Ralph Hansen and Mrs. William Nicol were callers during the past week at the homes of Mrs. Wilfred Rioux and Mrs. Arthur Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cross of South Killingly called on Miss Ruth Spooner Sunday.

The Killingly end of the Margaret Henry road has three very bad places where gravel would come in handy and make it possible even in mud-time. Residents in the rural districts would appreciate it very much if the first selectman would fulfil his promise of a year standing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hansen and Mr. and Mrs. John Winther were callers on relatives in Pineville Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bernway of East Killingly were callers at the home of William Spooner on Sunday.

JEWETT CITY

STATE CEMENT ROAD BIDS BEING RECEIVED

Bids are being received for Jewett City's new state cement road, which is to extend from Bishop's to the new Quinebaug viaduct. Just below Joseph Roode's plain, the proposed section will be built through parts of the territory of three towns, all within a distance of 800 feet. The northeast corner of the town of Canterbury and the northwest boundary of Griswold come together a little below Bishop's, as the southern Plainfield line. First Selectman D. F. Finn has received notice that the S curve bridge contracts are soon to be submitted for bids.

This forenoon only, special sale at Zegeer's store. Women's and children's low or high cut overshoes, values to $3 for $1.49. Store closes all afternoon.—Adv.

THE LYCEUM AND THE BAND EXPIRED BUT LEFT ESTATES

Generally speaking, defunct organizations have found their final terms of existence speeded up because of a depleted treasury. These conditions had nothing to do with the last days of the Hopeville lyceum, or the Old Jewett City band. The demise of these two, one-time flourishing institutions was painless and moreover hundreds of dollars appear to their credits on the deposit ledgers of the Jewett City Savings bank.

The Hopeville lyceum having been organized in 1841, passed out of existence in 1900. Its last treasurer was the late Arthur Lawton. The something over $100 that has accumulated, is still ticking away at interest. The Jewett City band, for many years off the stage of action, has a bank account of over $250. The treasurer, John H. Tracy, is still the custodian of these funds, and he as well as twenty or more surviving one-time members are waxing anxious regarding their disbursement. Mr. Tracy, when he had the book written up Tuesday, said he hoped to hear from the members, now scattered all over the country, what opinions are relative to eliminating the account with equal benefit to all the one-time wind-jammers. As a coincidence one of the hornblower's name was Weeks.

Today (Wednesday) the Junior Epworth League of the Methodist church is to meet in the vestry at 3:30. At 7:30 in the evening there will be a lecture on Enlightened Women in Darkened Lands. G. H. Thornton will have charge of the lantern when the 53 slides are shown. Rev. J. W. Carter will deliver the lecture.

Some Taxpayers Slow

The amount of borough property, subject to assessment, as shown by the report of V. E. Jodoin, collector of taxes, was $2,611,014. One of the setbacks always to be considered in the borough's financial account is the delinquent tax payers. That account figures up to $664.67 on the levy of 1928. Mr. Jodoin collected in 1929 $20,193.09 on an assessment of 8 mills. The sum of $60.62 was abated by the board of relief.

Radio fans all over the borough tuned in at 6:15 a. m. Tuesday, and heard the British king and the members of the peace commission speaking in London.

SUCCESSFUL BENEFIT WHIST OF CATHOLIC COUNCIL

The Catholic Woman's Council benefit whist held Monday evening was attended by a large number. The prizes in order went to Mrs. Henry Cadieux, Miss Anna Ruszenas and Miss Beatrice LaPage, Adelard Bryant, Louis Guillotte and John LeClaire. The committee included Miss Margaret Driscoll, chairman, Mrs. M. H. Shea, Misses May Driscoll, Katherine Barnett, Anna Ruszenas, Josephine Ambot, Edwardina Boucher, Anna Walsh and Mrs. Edmond Jodoin and Mrs. Louis Guillotte.

Mrs. G. H. Prior left Tuesday for Fredericton, New Brunswick, where she is to address the Provincial Convention of The King's Daughters. She will be the guest of the Countess of Ashburnham during her stay.

Traffic Officer Blake and "Bud" Jodoin, with their newly organized bowling teams, are scheduled to appear in a few more of the greatest contests of the season, with Bud's invincibles leading two straight. According to reports before the game started Monday evening, William had the victory whistle all ready to blow, but it appears that it is some easier to do the traffic act than to control the rolling balls. A gallery of 50 was in at the game Monday. Officer Blake said Tuesday night that the next game would be so different that Bud would hereafter believe in earthquake.

INSTALLATION CEREMONY PRECEDES JACK HORNER PIE

The Woman's auxiliary to the American Legion passed a very pleasant evening Monday, when there was installation of officers by Miss Rosanna DesJardins, past president. The officers are: President, Mrs. E. M. Gray; first vice president, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox; second vice president, Mrs. Mary Godek; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Adelbert Babcock; chaplain, Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt; sergeant at arms, Mrs. John Gaipes. During the evening Mrs. DesJardines and Mrs. Godek were appointed to have charge of the sale of poppies Memorial day. After the business meeting, a Jacky Horner pie held a mysterious package for each one present. Sandwiches, pickles, [illegible] cookies, candy, peanuts and coffee were served.

... a fine—fast—powerful Eight

We count this our greatest achievement. From front end to tail light it is a new design. In appearance and finish it is commandingly beautiful. And in smoothness it surpasses anything we know.

It outranks anything we have ever done in design, performance or value.

The roadability and riding ease are not excelled by any car at any price. And the price at which it sells questions the wisdom of ever paying more for any car.

with even faster speed ... with greater power ... with quicker get-away ... also challenges in good looks—in real values—in reliability and in price ...

Its challenge is distinctive and unusual in those fine qualities which owners prize most highly. In appearance it is a completely changed and modern car. The bodies are longer, wider, lower. It challenges your interest with big car spaciousness and comfort.

The motor is larger and smoother. The performance range is notably increased. It gets quickly away at the stop, is strong on the hills and swift on the straightaway.

You won't be content with any less comfortable or less good looking or less distinctive car. It is a thoroughbred automobile and it challenges your attention because of its price.

WHY NORWALK PROTESTS

Thoroughly justified are the objections that are being made by the parents of Norwalk school children to the questionnaire which has been submitted to the latter. The wonder is that they haven't kicked up more of a rumpus than they have.

It seems to be that a Yale professor wants to learn what impression has been gained by the children between 8 and 14 from the movies. He goes about it by submitting incomplete sentences to the school children and asking them to fill in the words "No," "Some" or "All," according to whichever meets their judgment. For instance, one question is, "—— doctors in the United States prescribe liquor to those who do not need it," the blank to be filled in by one of the three words.

Some of the sentences deal with Protestant ministers and their intelligence, others with petting and necking, one with chorus girls and the lives they live. Then there are questions concerning kissing, breaking with a girl because she allows anyone to kiss her, others in regard to prohibition, concerning members of the police force and robbers, and in most instances such answers as the children might give would be more likely to have been influenced by discussions among their elders than by the motion pictures.

That the parents should feel that ideas are being put in the minds of the children that they do not harbor seems fully justified. Because the effort is backed by a Yale professor does not relieve the situation. What seems even more surprising is that it should get the endorsement of the superintendent of schools at Norwalk and that it should be conducted with the approval of the state board of education.

According to the Norwalk superintendent, he favors it because he thinks it will reveal what the children are taught to believe about these questions. If that is the case, why should the responsibility for the questionnaire be placed upon the moving pictures and what they teach? The professor thinks the children would have no idea about these matters but for the movies, when as a matter of fact it appears to be quite the opposite in most of the instances. This means an injustice to the children and to the movies.

WHEN CITY PAYS THE BILL

The city government of New Haven is concerned at the present time over the practice of paying for the maintenance and operating expenses of automobiles owned by city employes. There arises the claim that some are paid more than others and that some get allowances for which there is no justification.

It is presumed that this practice has grown out of the fact that certain city employes, owning automobiles, have put them into use when they were called upon to meet some requirement concerning city work at a point about the city, or outside, and sooner or later there has been something said about reimbursement for the use of the car.

In all cities certain officials have always been provided with transportation. It was required in their work. As long as horses were employed there was little chance that they would be driven for other purposes than work, but as soon as the automobile came in and replaced the horse then there was a temptation to use the machine for such business as was necessary and also for pleasure purposes. The result was that the machine might be in operation day and night and the city paid the maintenance and operating cost, whether it was used for business or pleasure purposes. The outcome was that if one or more could get this advantage out of the city others wanted it, and if certain private cars were used for certain officials others wanted the same right to be recompensed as they drove to and from work or about the city.

Other cities have come to a recognition of the fact that just as close tabs have to be kept and restrictions placed on the use of city automobiles as was formerly the case with city horses. Joy riding has been prohibited and maintenance and operating expenses are restricted to those incurred in actual city work.

If this is what the city officials of New Haven are endeavoring to accomplish, it can be no cause for surprise. No doubt they will find opportunity for substantial reductions in such expenditures when they come to make a distinction between what is right in the way of such expenditures and what is not.

THE HAGUE RESULTS

The outcome of the conference at The Hague was the logical one. It represents an accord that is in keeping with present-day conditions and thought, though it means a marked change from the days right after the war.

The peace treaty was signed at a time when harshness was to be expected. It was impossible to minimize the horrors of the great conflict and Germany was called upon to pay more than it could be expected in one way and another. Germany has managed to bring this to the attention of the Allies in such a way that it has been able to secure modifications.

There came a time when Germany was unable to pay. Possibly it might have been delayed, for Germany afterward recognized its mistake in so shaping conditions that there was an occupation of its valued territory. But the step was taken and the regrets did not bring relief. Later, through a conference of nations, there was signed an agreement that was known as the Dawes plan. Americans studied the situation and produced a method of meeting the situation. That prevailed to the advantage of all and for the creation of better relationships until Germany felt the time was ripe for asking for more concessions. The Dawes plan had worked well but there was need for a change.

Nations met again and the outcome of the deliberations was the Young plan, another American suggestion for dealing with the reparations question. Through compromises, adjustment of differences was accomplished and it is the acceptance of the final details of this plan that has been completed at The Hague.

This agreement concerns the nations of Europe more than it does this country and yet such a treaty arrangement as has been made separately by this country with Germany is dependent upon the success of this plan. That it will operate for the better economic conditions in Europe is believed, that it will facilitate the settlement of debts by other than Germany is assured and that it will further relieve the tension between European nations is to be expected. It is to the advantage of Germany, but whatever gives greater assurance of reparations adjustments means an advantage to all.

PATTERSON'S DISMISSAL

However valuable a deputy warden George Patterson may have been considered at the state prison, the fact that he knew of an attempt to get hacksaws to a lifer that he might escape, and failed to report it, justifies the call for and the submission of his resignation.

The hacksaws were wanted for Lalone. He must have been known as a desperate man and a bad actor under conditions favorable to him. There may be a certain amount of talk in a prison that can be regarded as a "joke" but when it concerns a plan to escape there is good and sufficient reason for taking all precautions to prevent it, joke or no joke.

As it turned out, the subsequent results to the offering of a bribe to Patterson proved to be no joke. The deputy warden did not fall for the offer, neither did he take preventive measures. Lalone and two others have escaped. They got away by the use of improvised hacksaws. Had they been as carefully watched as the knowledge in the possession of the deputy warden called for they would still be behind the bars at Wethersfield and the man hunt in Florida would not be on.

There probably is no reason to regard Patterson as being in collusion with their efforts to escape. He, nevertheless, made a grave mistake when he refused to attach enough importance to information conveyed to him to apply preventive measures. It was a grave error of judgment, one which he probably will not commit again, but it is apparent that his usefulness to the state prison is at an end. He could not expect that any such failure to carry out his duty would be overlooked. It is because of the failure to assume the proper responsibility and because of too much leniency that there has been so much trouble and so many breaks in prisons.

THE CALIFORNIA CRASH

Coming so soon after the awarding of a prize in the competition for a fool-proof plane, the crashing of a big air liner in California, causing the death of 16 persons, brings a demand for a searching investigation of the affair. Well should it, for there should be the withholding of none of the facts.

It is one of those instances, however, where those who know what the matter was, or who were in the best position to know, are dead. The crumpled and burned machine, the location, the eye witnesses and the weather conditions offer certain evidence, but even among the experts opinions differ as to what happened to cause this great tri-motored plane to crash, or, as one witness claims, to explode.

From all accounts, flying conditions were not good. The big plane was being flown too close to the ground it would appear but if, as thought, one of the wings struck the side of a hill, or the ground in a bank while turning, it not only should have been apparent to those watching, but the ground should show if there was any contact.

It seems not improbable that it was another one of those instances where fog had made flying dangerous and chances were being taken in trying to continue under such conditions. While pilots may risk their own lives in such a manner, it is certain that they should have greater consideration for the lives of those who are entrusted to their judgment and skill.

From the investigation underway it is to be sincerely hoped that there will be sufficient information of a positive character obtained to serve as a guide for the prevention of any further accidents of that character. They are certainly not a help to aviation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

January is the month when hard study is given the new seed catalogues.

The man on the corner says: Snow is never as beautiful as when seen in a picture.

While it is claimed the roads of the United States lead all others in mileage, how do they compare in regard to the mud?

You might find those who would tell you that prohibition is a complete success or a complete failure, but you probably know better.

The home is said to be the place of most danger because of the many accidents there. Possibly that is why people don't like to stay home any more.

OMELETTE

From kitchenward came the unmistakable sizzle of things frying. Eddie raised his head from the luxury of his pillow, cocked an ear and took in great lungfuls of the smell that went with the sound. Automatically one foot went wagging in search of his slippers.

"Oh, boy!" he chortled. "Sunday morning breakfast in my own house. What the dickens did Pansy's pa mean about marriage being swell if you could weather the jolts?" Loping enthusiastically from the morning shave, Eddie met breakfast emerging from the kitchen.

"There!" said Pansy triumphantly, setting down the platter on the table and standing back to view her handiwork. Isolated in the large white center of the platter lay something shapeless, wrinkled, deep brown.

"Ha!" said Eddie, sniffing, "what have we here—liver?"

"Liver—indeed not," cried Pansy. "That's omelette." Eddie subsided into his chair.

For three years he had been eating mostly at restaurants. He had sort of forgotten, if he had ever known, that all bacon does not come to the table crisp and crinkled, all coffee is not amber clear, all biscuits are not mounds of fluffy delight. But as he pushed away from the table this first Sunday morning of his husbandhood Eddie felt a strange homesickness for the reliable, if stereotyped, breakfast of a nice restaurant.

"Guess I'll go for a stroll," he murmured. With one backward glance at his front window to be certain Pansy was not there waving him good-by, he broke into a brisk trot, headed for the nearest shop. As he swung onto a high stool Eddie's roving eye lit upon a stooped, gray furtive figure hunched over coffee and doughnuts beside him. It was Pansy's pa.

"What!" said Eddie. "You, too?"

"Yu—" said Pansy's pa incoherently. "Pansy, I take it, cooks like her ma. What—er—did she try to feed you?"

"Omelette," said Eddie.

"Omelette," mused pa. "It runs in the family. I used to like omelette."

"So did I." Silence. Then, from pa. "I suppose I should have warned you. But how was I to know Pansy was going to inherit her cooking from her ma?"

"Oh, well," said Eddie cheerily, "cooking is just like pitching or selling automobiles—you kinda hafta get the knack. Pansy will learn all right. I'll buy her a cookbook."

"Yu—good idea—cookbook," murmured pa, and slid noiselessly from his stool.

The girl at the cookbook counter assured Eddie that it was the best cookbook for the young, inexperienced bride. "It had everything in it."

"Omelette?" queried Eddie carefully.

"Whole chapter on omelette."

Contrary to Eddie's fears, Pansy was not insulted by the presentation of the cookbook. She was delighted.

"I've just been wondering what to put on that funny little kitchen shelf Cousin Lilly gave me," she cooed. "I'll make a cunning oilcloth jacket for it—like I saw in the magazine so it will match everything in the kitchen." And for a whole evening Eddie watched hopefully while Pansy snipped and stitched and puckered her rosy lips—and finally held up the cookbook buttoned snugly into a red and white checkered oilcloth cover.

But Sunday morning, nevertheless, found Eddie clambering on a tall stool for his Sunday breakfast. A moment later, Pansy's pa slid onto the stool beside him. He did not look surprised.

"Didja try the cookbook," he asked conversationally.

Eddie nodded.

"Work?" Eddie shook his head. "What did she give you this morning?"

"Omelette," said Eddie.

"I've got another idea, though," hastened Eddie. "I slipped a dollar bill into the chapter where it tells how to make omelette. Good, eh?"

Pa looked thoughtful.

"Sounds good," he hazarded cautiously.

Another week. Another Sunday. Pa eased himself onto the stool beside his son-in-law. "Did it work?" he began without other preamble.

"The dollar, you mean? Nope—at least not yet. We had omelette this morning—same old omelette." Pa, braced by a shot of coffee, burst into confidence.

"Eddie, I tried that dollar stunt myself once. On ma—the year we were married."

"What happened when she found it?"

"Well, I kinda waited—and waited—and nothing seemed to happen. I sorta forgot about the dollar till you mentioned it. Then I got to wondering. Last night I went and looked in the book." Pa hesitated as though to soften the blow. "The dollar was still there."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan 21—A lot of new representatives, particularly minority members, found it difficult to make political hay during the special session of congress.

There was little committee work and few sessions of the house where they could air their views and break into print back home. The long interruption in house proceedings while the senate struggled vainly with the tariff bill sent most of them home to do what political fence repairing they could against the re-election campaigns of next year.

But not so with some. Here and there was a lad who knew his political onions. He had Washington experience, although not previous services in the house.

While the senators usurped front, back and inside pages with their doings, these wise ones dug in on departmental grind. And the proof of it is apt to be plain when the votes come rolling in next November.

Experience

Take Louie Ludlow, a representative from Indiana. Being a house junior and a democrat, neither the special nor the early regular session gave him much opportunity to barge into the Congressional Record.

But Loie is a veteran of two decades in the press galleries. More than that, between times he has hoofed it about the whole farflung layout of government departments, bureaus, commissions and so on, searching for news.

Politics is a middle life adventure for him. But if you suspect he let any political grass grow under his feet despite these handicaps you are very much mistaken.

Those years of press work taught him publicity values. The Indiana boys in the gallery, particularly the Indianapolis lot, since Louie's constituency is there, rarely lack for story material from him.

Pulling Strings.

But his press background brought him other things as well. It gave him knowledge of just where the most effective strings are to be found in Washington and just how to go about pulling them when you want to get something done for the folks back home.

And the busy and amiable Mr. Ludlow got results—also good publicity. He got a cruiser named for his home city, for instance. He got Indianapolis put on the airway maps.

He plugged hard to dig out a list of all Indiana World war veterans' widows entitled to sail on the government tour of fields of honor in France. He did endless departmental chores for constituents; for any Indiana voter who wrote him.

Ludlow is ambitious. And what happens next autumn at the polls back home may disclose him to have advanced toward realization of his political ambitions. Yet some more leisurely folk will see mystery in his success and look in vain for its explanation in the Congressional Record.

There are others. Wesley Jones has ten years of house and 20 years of senate service from Washington, won by similar hard work. It gives results, even in politics.

YOUR HEALTH

Treating "Stomach Aches."

By C. W. Brunkow, M. D., Portland, Oregon.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Many times when a physician has been called to see a case of "stomach ache" he finds that the treatment already given by the mother or the patient himself has really been injurious and may retard recovery. The treatment is frequently due to memory of having seen a doctor advise the same treatment in what is considered a "similar case." If parents and patients can be prevailed upon not to start any treatment that might be harmful until a definite diagnosis has been made, many errors of home treatment will be avoided.

Everyone knows of the frequency with which stomach aches appear in children, and how common is abdominal pain in grownups. Most people wrongly thing that the best thing for a stomach ache is a good purging which is promptly and so easily provided. But a diagnosis of "stomach ache" gives no more explanation as to its cause than does an auto mechanic who tells you there is an "abnormal noise" in your misbehaving car; and you should no more consider speeding up the bowel than you would let the auto mechanic throw the throttle wide open and race the engine for several hours as treatment for the car's illness. This, however, is so frequently done that one rarely has an opportunity to congratulate a mother on not having given a "good big cathartic."

The fallacies of giving cathartics in "stomach aches," most of which are not stomach aches at all, are manifold aside from the "racing of the motor" and actually inducing pain. This racing and cramping may be enough to rupture an appendix which might otherwise pass safely through its acute inflammatory stage, and surgical conditions such as intussusception (which is a form of intestinal obstruction) strangulated hernia, etc., might be mentioned as being made worse by the routine cathartic.

Purgation results in watery stools and marked loss of body fluids which are as necessary as sufficient oil in your automobile. This is particularly true in cases of pyelitis and many cases of stomach ache, particularly in little girls where the trouble is not in the abdominal cavity, proper, but is behind it in the urinary tract. Other cases outside the abdominal cavity, but for which a purge is often given, are due to trouble in the chest, and many pneumonia patients are robbed of their body fluids so necessary with their high fevers. Yet who would drain a motor of its oil with a hot radiator? Closely allied to the above condition are the ordinary upper respiratory infections, colds, influenza, grippe, etc., which not uncommonly have associated a "stomach ache."

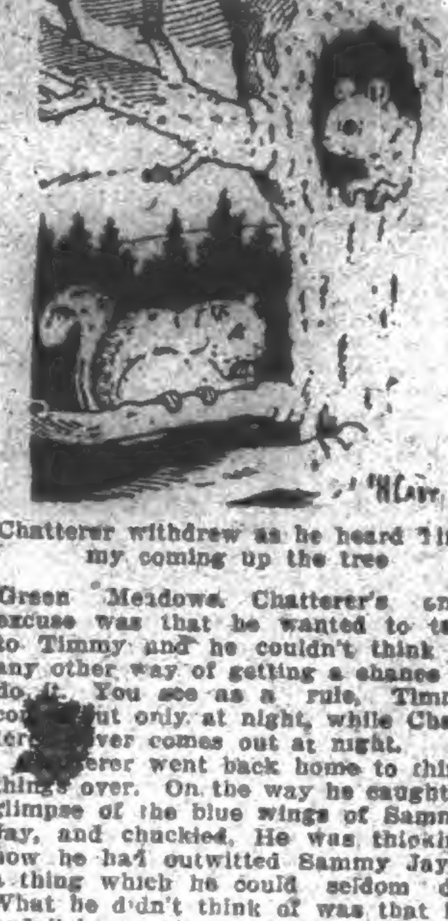
This entreaty is for less universal use of catharsis, and if its plea is followed by the public, much harm may be avoided in the treatment of undiagnosed "stomach aches." Try such harmless procedures as the giving of a small enema, application of ice bag or hot water bag. If this does not give relief, then it is only fair to find out what is wrong with the human mechanism, for there is much evidence to indicate that the mere giving of a purge for stomach ache has done more harm than good.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Timmy Has a Taste of Corn

Most folk by appetite are led;
Good nature you will find well fed.
—Old Mother Nature.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel realized that he had made a mistake. He realized that he had made very much of a mistake in entering the home of his cousin, Timmy the Flying Squirrel, and wakening him. Entering the home of another, unless for the purpose of stealing from or killing the owner, simply isn't done among the little people of the Green Forest and the



Chatterer withdrew as he heard Timmy coming up the tree

Green Meadows. Chatterer's only excuse was that he wanted to talk to Timmy and he couldn't think of any other way of getting a chance to do it. You see as a rule, Timmy [illegible] only at night, while Chatterer [illegible] comes out at night.

[illegible] went back home to think things over. On the way he caught a glimpse of the blue wings of Sammy Jay, and chuckled. He was thinking how he had outwitted Sammy Jay—a thing which he could seldom do. What he didn't think of was that he hadn't been quite honest in outwitting Sammy Jay. You know, it is never smart to be untruthful. When Chatterer had told Sammy that he knew where Timmy the Flying Squirrel lived, he had been untruthful.

When Chatterer reached home he sat down to think things over. It was clear to him that if he wanted to see his Cousin Timmy the Flying Squirrel when the latter was goodnatured, he would have to sit up later than he was in the habit of doing. Unless it happened to be a very dull, dark day, Timmy wouldn't come up until about the time the Black Shadows began to creep through the Green Forest. That was the time that Chatterer wanted to be inside his own home. Chatterer is afraid to be out after dark. Timmy is just as much afraid to be out in daylight. So you see it is no wonder that they do not often meet.

"Perhaps," thought Chatterer, "Timmy will come around tonight to find out what I meant by wakening him out of a sound sleep in his own home. That is what I would do if I were in his place. If he does come, he'll probably be in a bad temper. I know what I'll do. Yes, sir, I know what I'll do. I've got some corn hidden in one of my storehouses. I'll put some of that corn where Timmy will be likely to find it. He won't be cross long after he tastes that."

So Chatterer brought some corn from one of his storehouses and put some of it up in a crotch of the tree near his home. Then he waited for the Black Shadows to come creeping through the Green Forest. Finally he saw them creeping, creeping, creeping between the trees. It was bedtime. But Chatterer didn't go to bed. He sat in his doorway and waited. He was almost ready to give up hope that Timmy the Flying Squirrel would come, when he heard a soft thump on the treetrunk down below him. Then he heard the faint sound of claws on bark. And a moment later Timmy the Flying Squirrel appeared on a branch near at hand.

Chatterer withdrew as he heard Timmy coming up the tree. He was down inside, but where he could peek out when Timmy finally arrived. Timmy looked disappointed. He sat waiting on that branch for some time. Then he started to come toward Chatterer's doorway. This brought him to the few grains of corn Chatterer had left in the crotch. Of course Timmy discovered it at once. He stopped and ate a kernal of corn. He smacked his lips and began on another. "My, this is good!" said Timmy.

"I know how you can get all you want of it," said Chatterer, poking his head out.

Little Talks on Thrift

Few Persons Today Who Are Not in A Position To Save Money

Students of economic conditions in this country tell us that poverty is steadily being eliminated through the processes of education. There was a time within the memory of many now living when dire poverty existed in every city if not in every community. The general standard of living has been steadily advancing for the last fifty years and conditions are such today that there is hardly a person anywhere who is not in a position to have money if he so chooses.

This does not mean that all who are able to save are doing so. There are many who do not.

Numerous persons excuse themselves from practicing thrift on the plea that they cannot save anything and maintain a good standard of living. While it may be true in some isolated cases that circumstances over which they have no control make it impossible for them to get ahead in the world, these instances are exceptional.

The old saying, "Where there's a will there's a way," applies with full force to the practice of saving money. Those who do not save or who think they cannot are not fair with themselves. They are unwilling to make certain sacrifices. Their minds are based by false pride or egotism. Their viewpoint is incorrect.

If they should think the problem clear through they would determine to find ways by which they could save something even though the amounts be small.

Upon one's ability to find such ways of saving money, depends very much of one's chances of success in life.

This is a phase of the matter that should be given the deepest consideration. Also it should be borne in mind that those who are not sufficiently interested in their own welfare to lay by a certain portion of their earnings for the future do not care enough about real success ever to achieve any substantial place in the affairs of men.

Before there can be success there must be a desire to succeed. And this desire must be so deep that it overcomes every barrier.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Leafing Out

James owned a few bantam chicks of which he was very proud. When they reached the feathering stage he was much interested, and in telling some of his mother's friends about them said: "My chickens are all leafing out now."

Santa's Mistake?

Martha noticed on Christmas morning that her little brother had two wheelbarrows. She had been told that Santa had left her things on one side and brother's things on the other.

"Well, daddy," said Martha, "Santa either made an awful mistake or else he wanted me to have one of those wheelbarrows."

AMERICAN TARIFF LEAGUE SPENT $40,000 IN CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—How the American Tariff league spent $40,000 to advocate a protective tariff policy during the 1928 presidential campaign was described today before the senate lobby committee by W. W. Barbour, treasurer of the league.

Between verbal clashes with Chairman Caraway and other members of the committee the former president of the league testified that a "hookup" had been arranged with Dr. Hubert Work, at that time chairman of the republican national committee, whereby the two organizations would work together in promoting their tariff policies. He said it was decided later, however, not to work with the republican national committee because contributions to the league came principally from corporations, and if the money was used in conjunction with the republican organization "it might be misunderstood."

STATEMENT OF DEPOSED CLEVELAND CITY MANAGER

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Calling his removal from public office a week ago, "a political assassination," W. R. Hopkins, deposed Cleveland city manager, today attacked the council majority who voted for the ouster, with charges that he was deposed because he fought increased rates for the East Ohio Gas company, conflicted in policies with Maurice Maschke, republican leader, and refused to allow councilmen to run the police department.

Hopkins made his charges as a counter-attack on the list of reasons which council said a week ago were the explanation of his dismissal. They had accused him of failure to provide for proper maintenance of the municipal light plant, negligence in failing to prevent a playground deal in which the city was swindled out of $33,250, and that he usurped powers of council and mayor. Several less important charges also were listed.

The former city manager's attack was embodied in a prepared speech which he read before a crowd of several thousand citizens and through a radio broadcast. He answered the charges against himself with a categoric denial. "Where facts are alleged," he said, "they are with few exceptions inaccurate, incomplete and untrue."

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 21—(AP)—General Domingos Oliveira succeeded in forming a cabinet to replace that which resigned more than a week ago. The majority of his ministers are army officers of high rank. One is a naval commander and the only civilian is Gustavo Ramos, professor of the faculty of letters. The premier himself has had no political experience but has a good record as military governor of Lisbon.

ROADSTER IN COLLISION WITH G. & E. TRUCK

A truck owned by the gas and electrical department of Norwich, and operated by Frank Case of Whitaker avenue, was struck by a roadster machine driven by Ovila Marion, of Jewett City, at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning on the Norwich-Montville road near the Norwich Inn driveway. The latter car owned by a Plainfield person and the city department truck were considerably damaged in the mix-up, most of the damage being to the rear ends.

At the time of the accident the Plainfield machine was traveling towards New London and the G. and E. truck was coming out of the driveway of the new inn, the latter car attempting to make the easterly side of the highway. The lighter machine is said to have skidded for 150 feet before the rear ends of the two cars tangled up. After the impact the roadster continued down the trolley tracks and came to a stop up against a pole.

The collision was investigated by state police from the Groton barracks, but no arrests were made. A hearing is to be held today, (Wednesday).

JUDGE ORDERS COURT DOORS CLOSED AGAINST STANDING ROOM CROWD

The $35,000 alienation suit of Mrs. Helen Antzis, wife of Samuel Antzis, against Mrs. Rose Beckley Frink, wife of Charles W. Frink, all of this city, went through its third day of trial here Tuesday in the superior court with Judge C. L. Avery presiding.

The trial will be continued this (Wednesday) morning but there will be no afternoon session of court as Judge Avery is to attend a funeral in New London in the afternoon.

There was a constantly increasing number of spectators in the afternoon session of court Tuesday until there was a standing crowd all along the back of the seats and part way down the middle aisle. After a recess, Judge Avery directed Deputy Sheriff M. J. Martin, the court officer, to exclude from the court room all who could not find seats and to keep an officer at the door to see that no more came in. Thereafter Deputy Sheriff George Hoxie was stationed at the door to see that the judge's orders were obeyed.

Defense Testimony Reached

Defense testimony was reached in the afternoon session of court, after a good part of the morning had been occupied with cross-examination of the plaintiff, Mrs. Helen Antzis.

In the defense testimony there was considerable cumulative evidence from relatives of Mrs. Frink, her father and two sisters, as to the occupancy of a room at the Frink house, 20 Lincoln avenue, by Antzis. All testified to their knowing that he did not occupy this room, but that it was the room occupied by Mrs. Beckley up to the time of her death in June, 1929, and that afterwards the nurse occupied the room. The Beckley family resided at the Frink house while Mrs. Beckley was ill there from September, 1928, to June, 1929.

Plaintiff Cross-examined

When court came in Tuesday morning, Attorney H. W. Higgins concluded his examination of his client, Mrs. Antzis, and she was then taken in hand for cross-examination by Attorney G. C. Morgan of counsel for the defendant.

As the examination became more heated, witness and attorney were often talking at once until the court stenographer had to throw up her hands and declare that she could not get notes on the testimony at the rate they were going.

To Attorney Morgan, Mrs. Antzis denied that she drove her husband out of the house with a knife or that she entertained a man in her room at the Marguerite. She denied making trips to Albany, Hartford and Providence but admitted taking a trip with a Mrs. Rogers. She admitted that Val Luppert went on this trip, but denied that Luppert took her home after she was discharged from the hospital after an appendicitis operation. She denied making a threat to sue Mrs. Frink to show her up or stating in a restaurant that she would get some money out of a suit.

Attorney Higgins introduced the file in the $50,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Frink against Mrs. Hazel Smith Ulmer and followed this by calling as his last witnesses, who were Raymond B. Ayer and Frank H. Palmer of Preston, who had worked on the Antzis farm, both testifying that the couple got along happily.

Defendant on the Stand

Attorney C. V. James and G. C. Morgan began the case for the defendant just after 1 o'clock by calling Mrs. Frink to the stand.

She testified to marrying Charles W. Frink on June 30, 1923 and said she is now living at the home of her father, 35 Lincoln avenue. She told of keeping the books of the dairy business from 1925 up to the time a receiver was appointed in Dec. 1929, and of Antzis coming to work in December, 1926.

She said she had been with Antzis in the company automobile almost every day, this following when she found that December bills in 1927 had not been distributed by the foreman at that time and in January she went over the routes with Antzis so as to acquaint him with the route and then later in collecting. She said this was with the knowledge and consent of her husband. After the incorporation they went twice to Hartford to arrange financing, accompanied by Mike, who was Sam's brother.

She denied emphatically that she had ever been with Sam at any place out of town except upon matters of business. The business had over 600 customers, she testified, all of whose accounts she took care of, as well as the producers' accounts, and it would take both of them about three hours daily on the books, and in the summer especially the work kept them up late at night.

In reply to a question from Judge Avery, Mrs. Frink said that the business was handling about 2,000 quarts in the summer time and about 1,500 quarts in the winter.

Asked about dancing at the house, Mrs. Frink said the only dancing was when Mike Antzis showed some tap steps at one time, and when she was asked if she could explain the empty liquor bottles at the house, she said she thought her husband could explain those. She declared that her only use of liquor was to take a cocktail occasionally.

Questioned about the testimony of Mrs. Antzis about a ride with Sam and turning off into a side road, Mrs. Frink said they were getting milk from a person in Jewett City at that time and they went to see about it.

Only When Husband Home

Sam never stayed a night in the Frink house unless her husband was home, the witness said. Sam always had clothes at the house because the dairy help were wearing white and he kept his clothes at the house so that he would have something to change into to go out collecting.

On cross-examination, by Attorney Higgins, she denied that Antzis kept a complete complement of clothes at the Lincoln avenue house. She said she never invited Sam to stay over night at the house, but when he stayed it was at the invitation of her husband.

On Cross-Examination

Attorney Higgins questioned her about trips with Sam to Montville and Schiller's camp and she contradicted her husband's statement that she danced with Sam at Schiller's. Questioned about a trip to Point Judith, Mrs. Frink said she had paid Antzis $25 for that trip and she met him there at the entrance to Mrs. Ulmer's place. She said this wasn't a trip on dairy business but it was for the good of the business. Since the new dairy was built, Mrs. Frink said, it had been hard going in the business. Preceding the receivership, the indebtedness was about $30,000.

Judge Avery stopped the attorney in continuing this line of questioning about the finances of the business.

Asked about calling Antzis at night at the Antzis house, Mrs. Frink said there were occasions because of accidents to the trucks or the use of trucks by the help, or to check up milk shortages, and at times Antzis was kept at the house by the business demands until 2 o'clock in the morning or later, but he never stayed all night except upon invitation of Mr. Frink.

Sister Gives Testimony

Miss Elizabeth Beckley, 35 Lincoln avenue, a sister of the defendant, a Norwich school teacher for the past 25 years, testified that the dairy office had been at the Frink house on Lincoln avenue since 1925, when Mrs. Frink began to combine her household duties with her business duties. She testified to her knowledge of Antzis and Mrs. Frink working together at the house on the business affairs.

Miss Beckley testified to being at the Frink house continuously up to June, 1929, and she said that there was never any appearance of sociability between Antzis and Mrs. Frink. The witness said she and her sister regularly retired about 11 o'clock and she always went upstairs with her sister. Often Sam was left downstairs, still at work on the dairy business. She said that when Sam slept at the house it was when Mr. Frink had come home from the sanatorium and Sam and Frink would go out together, come home late and talk till all hours of the morning. At those times Sam slept on the davenport.

Thomas H. Beckley, father of the defendant, resident at Lincoln avenue, testified that his daughter was doing all she could to keep the business going and that it was always a business relation between Antzis and his daughter and it had never occurred to him that there was anything else. He said he had tried to get this late work in checking up stopped, but finally came to the conclusion that it was necessary.

Whenever Sam stayed at the house, the witness said, he himself was there and nothing of a scandalous nature had ever occurred at the house. While the Beckley family was at the Frink house Mr. Beckley said he slept there.

On cross-examination it was brought out from the testimony of Mr. Beckley that Frink was drinking what the witness called "rot-gut." He said he thought Mrs. Frink condoned this and covered it up and bore her burden well.

Afternoon Session

At the opening of the afternoon session, Miss Mary A. Beckley, a sister of Mrs. Frink and a Norwich school teacher, was the first witness.

She gave testimony corroborative of that of her father and her sister, Elizabeth, as to Antzis staying at the Lincoln avenue house at the invitation of Mr. Frink. She said she had been riding with Antzis and Mrs. Frink, mentioning the Schiller camp as one place they went to. She said there was no flirtation at the house between her sister and Antzis.

Miss Genevieve McCormick, a Norwich school teacher for 17 years, testified that during the last two or three years she had been at the Frink home for three or four evenings every week and would see Frink, Antzis and Mrs. Frink working in the office. She said there was a clear view of the office from the street. She told of going riding with Antzis and Mrs. Frink to visit camps and other places and said she had never seen any display of affection or acts of impropriety between Mrs. Frink and Antzis. They played bridge at the Frink house but Antzis never joined in the game. At times Antzis would drive her home on the way to his own home.

Nurse Gives Testimony

Miss Catherine Shea, 239 Central avenue, a nurse for the past 23 years, who took care of Mrs. Frink's mother at the Frink home for two months until Mrs. Beckley's death last June, was the following witness. She remained at the house for a time after Mrs. Beckley's death and said she knew of Mrs. Frink and Antzis working in the office at night, where she could hear the adding machine going.

Miss Sophy Cimikoski, a senior in the Norwich Free academy, who has worked at the Frink house from 1927 to the present time in taking care of the baby, testified that she always went with Mrs. Frink and Antzis when they went pleasure riding and she never saw any display of affection between them. She said she took care of the baby on the rides, sitting on the back seat while Mrs. Frink was on the front seat.

The husband of the plaintiff, Samuel Antzis, of 30 Warren street, where he has lived for the past six months, was the next witness. He said he had formerly had rooms at the Wauregan hotel and the Marguerite building.

Before the testimony had gone very far Judge Avery inquired of defense counsel what the purpose of calling this witness was.

Counsel replied that it was to show the relations between Antzis and his wife upon which the judge remarked that counsel could try the case in their own way, but he felt that the evidence would not have any great bearing on the case.

Counsel for the defense then withdrew Mr. Antzis from the stand temporarily.

Brother of the Plaintiff

Max Feinberg, a brother of Mrs. Antzis, formerly employed with the Frink Dairy Co., now in the employ of Antzis with the Star Dairy, testified to Mrs. Antzis telling him to say that she and her husband got along fine. I asked her why, the witness said, and she said "You know how Mrs. Ulmer is being sued and my lawyer Mr. Higgins and Charles Frink and Mrs. Ulmer told me I could get some money out of this and just now I need the money very badly."

The witness told of Mrs. Antzis scratching him on the neck with her nails at one time on the farm. He said she was always looking for a disagreement with her husband and he had seen her throw a block of wood, a flaming lamp and a knife at her husband.

On cross examination he said he had seen his sister sell whiskey to two workmen on the Preston farm. He did not see any money passed. Questioned further he said he didn't see any whiskey. At the request of Attorney Higgins, Judge Avery ruled this testimony out.

The witness said he had had no use for his sister ever since she gave him the scratching on the farm.

David Cohen, a restaurant proprietor on West Main street, testified to hearing Antzis and Mrs. Antzis arguing outside the restaurant, when Mrs. Antzis said she was to sue Mrs. Frink, and Antzis asked his wife if she thought he had anything to do with Mrs. Frink. To this Mrs. Antzis answered, "No," according to the witness, but that counsel was urging her to push the case.

On cross examination, Cohen denied that he had tried to take Mrs. Antzis out for an evening, but had been turned down.

Miss Sarah Crumb of Ward street, testified to Mrs. Antzis saying to her about three weeks ago in a restaurant: "Believe me, Sarah, I'm going to lie and lie like h—l to get that money from Mrs. Frink."

On cross examination she said she had told Mrs. Antzis in the court house corridor that she didn't know why she had been summoned in the case. She admitted presenting a compact to Mrs. Antzis and she had done some typewriting for Mr. Antzis for which she had not been paid, and which she had done at the present office of the Star Dairy, in Mr. Beckley's office.

Papers Ruled Out

Albert Rogers, 111 Talman street, was called to the stand and asked if his wife had gone off with Mrs. Antzis and had sent a telegram back.

Attorney Morgan produced a telegram and another paper, both of which Judge Avery ruled out.

Michael Antzis, a brother of Samuel, testified that there was no harmonious relationship between the Antzis couple. Once Mrs. Antzis threw a clock at her husband and another time a knife. Once she slapped his face on the street on Broadway.

Through the witness defense counsel introduced three letters written in 1924 at Montville from Samuel Antzis to the witness. They were admitted over the objection of Attorney Higgins, but they were not read in court.

The witness said Mrs. Antzis had driven her husband out of the house. He always came out scratched up and once slept in the silo and often in the barn. He told of a threat Mrs. Antzis made to sue Mrs. Frink unless her husband would come back to live with her.

On cross examination the witness said he had $1,000 in the Star Dairy and $300 in the Frink Dairy. He said he was not prejudiced in the case but had heard a lot of lies told in the testimony. Attorney Higgins gave Antzis a long and vigorous cross examination.

On re-direct examination, the witness told of coming to the Marguerite rooming house with Sam one night and going to Mrs. Antzis room where they found her in her nightgown and a man there. The two men went to their room, the witness said, and later Mrs. Antzis broke in their door.

Samuel Antzis Testifies

Samuel Antzis was recalled to the stand at this point. He went into details as to his employment with the Frink Dairy. He said he spent from 3 to 6 hours daily on the accounts and at the end of the month it took practically all night to make out the bills. Mrs. Frink, he said, looked out for the finances. The witness said he spent no time at the house which was not required by his business duties. When he stayed all night at the house, he would sleep on the couch in the living room. He said he never stayed except when invited by Mr. Frink and he denied that he ever occupied any room at the house. He told of his wife coming to see him about some horses he had sold, being accompanied by her "boy friend," a man named Luppert, who she said was going to beat him up unless he gave her money from the sale of the horses.

PEASANT NEEDLEWORK AT CONVERSE ART GALLERY

An exhibition of peasant needlework, modern and antique, has been arranged by the art committee of the Woman's City club, in Converse Art gallery. The private view for club members will be on Friday, January 24, from 3 to 5, and from 7 to 9 p. m. It will then be opened to the public.

The material comprises important embroideries from some of the New York guilds of foreign workers. One curtain, in crewel, is a duplicate of one embroidered for Vassar college, another is like a pair which were embroidered for the offices of Harold Pratt. The same women did the curtains which Mr. Rockefeller had made for the International house in New York. These hangings make a stunning exhibition in themselves.

Besides these large pieces, much beautiful work has been loaned by private collectors. These pieces are from nearly every country in Europe, as well as India and the Near East.

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED BY CHARITABLE CIRCLE

Charitable circle of King's Daughters held its annual meeting Tuesday evening in the junior department rooms of the United Congregational church, 14 members attending. Mrs. J. Herman Tubbs was re-elected leader and the other officers were also re-elected, as follows: Vice-leader, Miss Bessie L. Wilbur; secretary, Mrs. John Kukla; treasurer, Miss Hattie Carter. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were submitted, showing the circle to be in a flourishing condition. There were also reports on the Christmas benevolences.

Philathea Class Meeting

The Philathea class of the First Baptist church held its monthly meeting Monday evening in the social room of the church with the entertainment committee in charge of the supper at 6:30. Mrs. Frank Davis, first vice-president, presided at the business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler. There were 22 present.

GALES FERRY

The Gales Ferry Epworth league chapter was represented by its officers, Courtland E. Colver, Jr., Misses Helen and Margaret Colver and Miss Em Beth Bennett, with Rev and Mrs. Jerome Greer and Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, at the second meeting of the mid-winter institute of the Mohegan Trail Circuit league, held in Mystic M. E. church Friday evening.

W. R. Earp, chief electrician on the submarine O-1, who has been at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard for the past seven weeks, while the submarine has been undergoing repairs, returned to his home in the village Thursday night.

The following books were placed on the shelves at the Gales Ferry Public library Friday: Ayres, Luckiest Lady; Benson, Salad Days; Colver, Lookout Girl; Connor, The Runner; Cullum, Tiger of Cloud River; Parmenter, Silver Ribbons; Haycox, Free Grass; Rinehart, Two Flights Up; Wells, Tannahill Tangle; Weston, Wings of Destiny; Curwood, Swift Lightning.

Local radio fans were pleased Sunday morning to again hear young Miss Marjorie Bulcock, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a former summer resident at Brown's Crossing, who was on the program during the children's hour over station WJZ.

John Whittier of the Navy hospital at Chelsea, Mass., was a visitor Saturday with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlbutt, when enroute to the home of his parents in Wakefield, R. I.

Barnabas, Acts 11:24, was the theme selected by Rev. Jerome Greer for the Sunday morning sermon at the Community M. E. church. The church quartet sang A Pilgrim's Journey, as the offertory anthem. A missionary program, arranged by Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt, missionary committee for the church school was given at the opening of the school session, following the morning service. The numbers announced by Supt. Courtland E. Colver were: Hymn, From Greenland's Icy Mountains, sung by the united schools; twenty-third psalm, repeated in concert by the schools, and prayer by Rev. Jerome Greer. Song, The Lord Is Our King, He Is Reigning Above, junior department. Reading, The Dear Old Story, Miss Em Beth Bennett. Hymn, Stand Up, Stand Up For Jesus, school.

The Epworth league evening meeting was conducted by Miss Em Beth Bennett, the topic being another in the series, Appreciating Other People. Junior girls sang at the offertory and the Misses Helen and Margaret Colver sang, God Is Love, as a duet. Reports from the League institute held Friday evening in Mystic, were given by Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, Miss Helen L. Colver and Mrs. Jerome Greer and were followed by Rev. Mr. Greer, who also brought a message from the institute during his closing talk. A social hour followed, during which a game of Bible baseball was introduced by Miss Bennett. Sides were captained by C. E. Colver, Jr., and Elmer B Tubbs. Rev. and Mrs. Greer, on opposite sides, answered the most questions and the result was announced as a tie.

Emil A. Gunuskey of the Long Cove district was pleasantly surprised at his home Saturday evening by a party of neighbors and friends who paid him a call in observance of his birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Orville D. Allen and children, Orville, Jr., Stewart, Jack, Vera, Robert and Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Solon F. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. C. Alton Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Morton E. NEW LONDON TIPPED OFF TO WATCH FOR THREE WATERBURY GUNMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 21.—A general alarm was sent to practically all police departments of the state tonight in an effort to take into custody three gunmen, who held up a gasoline station in Waterbury. The three men drove to the Liberty Oil company, Waterbury, and purchased three gallons of gasoline. Two of the crooks then drew revolvers and backed the attendant against a wall where he was held a prisoner while the third ransacked the cash register. The crooks drove away in the auto, a Nash, but its registration was not obtained. One of the gunmen is described as being about five feet, six inches in height and weighs about 165. He wore a dark overcoat and suit and gray cap. The second is described as wearing a gray overcoat and cap and the third wore a white sweater.

An automobile truck driven by Samuel Einhorn, 31 Morgan street, collided with the traffic beacon, corner Connecticut and Lincoln avenue this afternoon, smashing the globe and light. Einhorn said that he would pay for the damage incurred.

Patrolman George McCaskey was unable to perform duty tonight, being ill at his home, Maple avenue.

Abandoned Car Stolen

Conrad Frisch, 836 Bank street, reported to the police today that a Ford coupe, carrying Connecticut registration 74'530, had been parked in front of his residence since Sunday last. He said that he had been informed that the car was driven to its parking place by two men and that they were observed to apparently abandon it. Inquiry revealed that the auto is registered in the name of Raymond Hoffman, 40 Phelps street, East Hartford. It was taken to a garage and placed in storage.

NORTH WINDHAM MAN DROVE ON WRONG SIDE OF BEACON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 21. — Orrin Moseley, of North Windham, was arrested this afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing a traffic beacon on the wrong side. He was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow.

George Sheehan, 31, of West High street, who has a police record for various offenses against the law, was arreste dthis afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrolman Dennis Murphy, charged with intoxication while making a nuisance of himself on Shapley street. Sheehan was locked up and will be in court Wednesday.

STR. NEW HAMPSHIRE ON LINE—PASSENGER SERVICE RESUMED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 21.—Steamer New Hampshire, New London line steamer, that has been off the line a week or more, has resumed her regular schedule so that now there is passenger as well as freight service. While the steamer was off the line only freight boats were operated between New London and New York. The New Hampshire was taken from the line following being in collision in New York harbor with one of the Colonial line steamers out of Providence. The New Hampshire was so badly damaged that for repairs the steamer went into dry dock.

The court martial of 23 sailors, United States Coast Guard, charged with intoxication and stealing seized liquor of the rum-runner Flor del Mar, adjourned at noon today with the disposition of another case. Adjournment was taken to permit the prosecution to prepare the additional six cases yet to be tried.

The meeting of New London chapter, No. 58, National Sojourners, was held at the Hotel Mohican last night when officers were installed as follows: President, Lt. Col. Nathan Horowitz; vice presidents, Lieut. R. J. Dindot, Capt. H. G. Hamlet, Assistant Surgeon, Judd E. Hammond and Lt. William T. Babcock; secretary, Jonathan L. Johnson; treasurer, Edward S. Huntley; chaplain, Commander Roy L. Lewis; sentinel, Christopher Culver. President Horowitz announced the following committee appointments: Membership, Commander F. A. Zeusler, chairman; Lieut. William T. Babcock, Lieut C. F. Grisham; entertainment, Lieut R. J. Dindot, chairman; Lieut. Commander, G. R. O'Connor, Capt. Robert C. Rice; publicity, Capt. W. Ellery Allen, chairman; Thomas McGinley.

Mrs. James Armstrong, of 26 Howard street; Mrs. James Finch, 16 Shapley street; Roland Falvagna, 230 Montauk avenue; Mrs. John Littlefield and infant daughter, Niantic; Norman Daboll, the last named who had suffered from severe burns, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Bessie Gruskin has sold the residence, 7 Shapley street, to Mary Czerepak.

Two mechanics' liens levied against property, corner of Lower Boulevard and Pequot avenue, owned by John A. Connor of this city, by Wesley Cook of Groton, were released today. Cook has been paid the sum he claimed was due him in providing Connor with labor and building material.

More Haste, Less Speed

John Johnson, colored, a sailor stationed at the Submarine base, was in the police court this morning charged with driving without a license, and was fined $25 and costs, which he paid. It was Johnson's anxiety to reach the base that caused his appearance in court. The sailor was driving on Main street last night and at the corner of Crystal avenue, an automatic danger signal held up several automobiles, including Johnson's car. Johnson became impatient and, turning into the driveway of a gasoline station at the corner, he sped through to Crystal avenue. Johnson's act was observed by State Police Officer John Smith, who arrested the driver. Johnson told the court that he was driving under orders of his superior officer and that he considered he was immune from obeying all other orders or rules relative to the driving of motor vehicles. He testified to having driven an automobile seven years in Virginia and always complied with rules of the road during that period of time. He was advised to do so hereafter.

To Jail For Begging

Chester Coleman, colored and a stranger, was charged with begging in the highway and was sentenced to 20 days in jail. Coleman was detected soliciting funds on Bank street last night by Patrolman William Riordan, who arrested the offender.

Offended Last April

Thomas F. McLaughlin was charged with driving without a license and was fined $10 and costs. The specific offense of McLaughlin was committed April 29, last, but he was not arrested until today.

Charges Nolled

Robert Watrous, 25 West Colt street, was charged with reckless driving and evasion of responsibility, but because of lack of evidence the charges were nolled. Watrous was arrested on Bank street last night by Patrolmen Edward Skoczlas and William Riordan, upon complaint of William Bellamy, 115 Riverview avenue. Bellamy claimed that the auto Watrous was driving collided with the former's car and that Watrous refused to stop to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned. In court Bellamy was unable to positively identify Watrous as the driver of the colliding auto, while Watrous stoutly denied that his auto had collided with Bellamy's auto or any other car.

Man and Woman Penalized

Two cases of intoxication comprised the other cases tried. A man with a record of about two score arrests, principally on charges of intoxication, was arrested on Main street last night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy and today was sentenced to six months in jail. The other case was that of a woman who was found intoxicated last night at the corner of State and Bank streets, where she was arrested by Patrolman Louis Tooker. The woman was fined $10 and costs.

Woman vs. Woman

Mrs. Josephine Connolly, 14 Orchard street, complained to the police this forenoon, alleging that Mrs. Gertrude B. Crowley, 31 Summer street, was guilty of reckless driving and failing to grant right of way, requesting that Mrs. Crowley be arrested. The complainant was advised to confer with Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer. The complaint of Mrs. Connelly was the result of a slight collision of the automobiles they were driving earlier in the day, corner of Ocean avenue and Squire street.

REQUESTS JAIL TERM—FRASER MAY GET HIS WISH

It is seldom that inebriates who go before the police court many times seek incarceration; more often the victim of drink pleads with the court for leniency or "just one more chance," for much of their time has been spent in the county jail. But this morning, Daniel Fraser, farm hand and former tug boat employe, requested Deputy Judge John McGarry to send him to the workhouse for six months. Naturally, Fraser was drunk and his request was denied, for he was locked up in a cell to await a hearing in court tomorrow. If Fraser is of the same desire, which he probably will not be tomorrow his request may be granted. During the session of today's court, Fraser climbed the stairs to the court room and possessing a voice that is deep and strong, he yelled to the court to send him to jail and he wanted to go there for six months. While Fraser was yelling for his commitment, Patrolman Arthur Feeley took charge of the jail-seeking citizen and quickly lodged him in a cell.

At a meeting of Royal Workers' Circle, held recently at the home of Regina Whitney on Broad street, the following officers were elected: Leader, Mrs. Merrill S. Beckwith; first vice leader, Louise Milne; second vice leader, Louise Milne; secretary, Lillian Lathrop; treasurer, Gertrude Hyslop; work committee, chairman, Agatha Cutler; entertainment committee, chairman, Althea Allen; lookout committee, chairman, Elsie Ruddy; membership committee, chairman, Irene Colby; flower committee, chairman, Nana Robinson.

Joseph Santin, of Stonington and Albert G. Benson, of Providence, were tried in the Groton town court yesterday charged with speeding. Each driver was fined $10 and costs.

MAIL PLANE FORCED DOWN ON GROTON FIELD IN STORM

A mail plane, piloted by F. L. Pond, which left Newark early this morning en route for Hartford and Boston, was forced down here during the severest part of the snow storm when Pond lost his bearings, the plane landing at the aviation field in Groton. A mail truck from the New London post office was sent to the field and transferred the mail matter to the local post office where it was despatched to its destination by train. The plane left Newark at 5:30 o'clock and when over Wallingford the snow starting falling thick and fast. Pond was forced to fly at reduced speed and he soon lost his course. After several hours in the air and attempting to find his bearings, the plane arrived off the mouth of the harbor. Instead of following the sound, Pond flew over the river where he realized that he was off his course. Sighting the aviation field, Pond made a successful landing.

The storm of today did not interrupt railroad or trolley road traffic seriously. A few trains were slightly delayed arriving here, but trolley cars were kept close to schedule, for snow plows were run over the various routes through the time that snow was falling.

MICHAEL STEVENS, NORWICH, HAS CLOSE CALL TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 21—Michael Stevens, 4 Thames street, Norwich, can consider himself a lucky man. This morning the automobile he was driving crashed against a telephone pole and was wrecked, but the driver escaped with injuries no more serious than minor bruises. Stevens was driving on the Military highway north of the submarine base about 7 o'clock when the speed of the auto caused it to skid. Before Stevens could bring the car under control, it left the highway and hit the pole with terrific force. State Police Officer Arthur Kathe arrested Stevens on a charge of reckless driving. He will be tried in the Ledyard justice court.

Walter Wallin, 32 Warner street, Groton, was arrested in Waterford yesterday by State Police Officer Frederick Johnson, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving an unregistered car. He was presented in Waterford town court later in the day and was fined $1 and costs.

MRS. EDW. MCLAUGHLIN DIES DAY DAUGHTER IS BURIED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 21—A short time after her daughter, Mrs. Clara McDonald, of Watertown, N. Y., where she died Saturday from pneumonia, was laid at rest here today, Mrs. McDonald's mother, Mrs. Annie McLaughlin, widow of Edward McLaughlin, of 393 Broad street, died from the same malady. Mrs. McLaughlin passed away at Lawrence-Memorial hospital and the latter part of the week, the body of the mother will rest with that of the daughter. The death of mother and daughter has called forth expressions of sympathy for the bereaved members of the family, Misses Helen and Madeline McLaughlin and Edward McLaughlin. Mrs. McLaughlin contracted a severe cold early last week and while treating it was summoned to Watertown because of the critical illness of her daughter. While in Watertown, a day or two before the death of Mrs. McDonald, the mother developed pneumonia. A special car was secured and, together with other mourners the stricken mother accompanied the body of her daughter to New London. Upon the arrival of the train here, Mrs. McLaughlin was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where she passed away 30 hours after she was admitted for treatment. The funeral of Mrs. McDonald was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. George Clark, with Rev. Michael Reagan deacon, Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan sub-deacon. Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley was master of ceremonies. The bearers were Albert St. Germain, Arthur Russ, John Duggan, Walter Sullivan, James Ahearn and Frank Delap. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Clark.

THE TALE OF A SEA TURTLE THAT STOLE A $80 ROW BOAT

The boat Frances, Capt. Billie Nusantic and Mate John Singer, recently went out to the fishing grounds off Block Island after the flat fish which for the last three weeks have been scarce. To get a barrel was like hunting for a pot of gold. All the fishermen have been saying, "This sure has been a hard winter for us! The weather is against us, one day good and the next three days London fog! But in the fishing game you have got to buck that kind of luck. One week you might put away $200 and the week after you might get a check with green stamps or enough to buy cat meat!"

The Frances got two barrels of flat fish after being 17 hours on the salt waves so the boat was headed toward the fishing village with the church steeple to steer by for that is what the sea captains go by. Mate Singer saw some big thing in the water with its head out smelling the salt air. Capt. Musantic thought it was a sub coming up from a dive under the water. But getting closer, it was a monster sea turtle, big as a house, it seemed to Capt. Musantic, a former cowboy in the days when he used to swing the rope and pick an apple from a boy's hand on the run, also could make a rope talk. He told Mate Singer to grab the wheel, for he was going to do a Hoot Gibson stunt on Mr. Turtle that would give Tom Mix a thrill if he was only there.

Mate Singer got closer and with a long throw, Captain Musantic made a perfect hit over the head of the turtle and giving it a St. Louis lumber knot that never slips and tying the turtle to the row boat steered for the dock, after spending two hours to get the express-train turtle of the salt water. It was Mate Singer's first, and his eyes were big as down east teacups when he saw the monster. "Gee! How much does that houseboat weigh?" Captain Musantic had to laugh. "Well, around 556 pounds!" The shell was about four feet across, the head as big as a banana stock, feet large as a five-inch stovepipe. Sea turtles are strong as a C. V. engine with a load of flat cars on behind.

About 100 feet from the dock the engine on the good ship Frances went dead and no one in sight, for it was around 5:30 p. m. The fog was about to shut in so the turtle had to do his stuff. Bringing the monster of the turtle family around to the bow of the boat, getting the rope in the middle of its back, Mate Singer said, "Come on, Spark Plug!" He towed the boat close enough so Captain Musantic, eagle eye, judged the distance and sent the rope over the pile the first time, making the good ship fast for the night, so no Long Island storms could hit around there.

Getting the two barrels of fish on the dock, ready for the truckmen for New York, "How about the turtle?" "Well, we will tie him to the row boat for the night and in the morning we'll ship the monster to New York and get enough to buy a topcoat each and a pair of summer shoes!" The turtle was made fast by the mate by enough of lines to hold a battleship. "Now, you be here in the morning for we want to show our brother fishermen the largest sea turtle ever brought into this village!" So the two tired fishermen went home for the night. Sitting by the oil lamp, Mate Singer was telling the story about the turtle that his captain threw a rope over its head and as the oil was getting low, his father was ready to go to sleep, listening about the capture. At last he did fall asleep, the glasses dropped to his lap, the paper went on the floor and Mate Singer thought it was time for him to hit the hay.

In the middle of the night, Singer's father heard someone talking, but thought it was outside; but it was the mate saying, in his sleep, "Don't you run away tonight, I need a new top coat and a three-button pair of shoes! So be yourself, Mr. Turtle!" The next morning his father said, "You were talking in your sleep over that turtle. I'm glad you did not catch a 1,000-pound swordfish. You might have had him taking away the house!" After putting away his bran and cream of wheat, a sugar doughnut and a cup of coffee, he started for the dock to meet his captain and ship the monster turtle to New York. Both fishermen got there at the same time and looked to see if the turtle was still there; but he had gone, taking the row boat with him! The two lines were broken. The big turtle escaped during the long hours of the night, taking also a $80 row boat. Mate Singer could bust out crying! His top coat and shoes had gone, never to return, as the turtle swam away.

Captain Musantic told all the fishermen if they saw a row boat with no one in it and a turtle towing it to get the boat and shoot the turtle without warning. All the fishermen had a hearty breakfast laugh over the monster pinching a row boat and the lines to go with it. Well, that is what you call a fisherman's hard luck—steal your $80 boat while you are sleeping!

Architects for Norwich Inn

"Try Norwich First"

WITH a commendable spirit to "TRY NORWICH FIRST," the architects have asked the Reid & Hughes Co. to submit bids on rugs and other furnishings for the splendid new Norwich Inn that will be opened in a few months.

This is the kind of co-operation that is appreciated—and this store feels complimented by the action the architects have taken. We shall endeavor, on our part, to submit the most favorable quotations by sending our staff buyer to New York for personal interviews with the foremost rug importers and manufacturers in this country.

We may or may not secure the contract—but in any event there is mutual satisfaction for the architects and the Reid & Hughes Co. in "TRYING NORWICH FIRST."

Let's all work together to place Norwich in such a commanding trade position that it will be considered good business as well as loyal to our home town to "TRY NORWICH FIRST."

WESTERLY

TENTATIVE TOWN BUDGET FOR 1930 TOTALS $505,120

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 21.—A budget of $505,120 for 1930 was presented to the Westerly town council tonight by the various heads of the town departments. The budget this year shows an increase of $41,730 over last year, the biggest increase being found in the highway department estimate, where an additional $44,970 is asked, for new construction and maintenance of the town's highways.

The highway department, through its engineer, A. L. Leon, presented the 1930 budget for new and incompleted highway projects as follows: Broad street bridge, $8,080, on which the need for work is very important; Ocean View avenue; Atlantic avenue, 900 feet; Bowling lane; Central park; Main street, school to Beach street; High street, Grove avenue to Pleasant street; Clark street; Oak street; Weekapaug road and cross street, together with sidewalk work, general supervision, equipment and repairs; and highway repairs for a general total of $144,930.

The next meeting of the council to pare down the budget will be held Tuesday evening in the council chamber when budget amounts will be made ready for presentation to the annual financial town meeting, to be held Feb. 4th.

The chairman of the tax commission, Howard E. Thorpe, informed Council President Burdick that the tax assessors might be able to find $500,000 more in valuation which would represent increases in the intangible and tangible personal property and real estate, on which would fall the burden of the increase, which last year amounted to $800,000. He stated that it was the plan of the assessors to gradually increase valuation in anticipation of the building of the new Junior high school which would require a $2,000,000 increase over a period of a number of years. He said that the tax assessors' plats had been completed for all sections of the town with the exception of the White Rock and Bradford districts, meaning that the Watch Hill section, Misquamicut, Weekapaug and the Westerly fire districts had all been platted, carded and indexed. Last year's assessments amounted $452,000 of which $452,000 had been collected and this year $475,000 might be looked for.

The appropriations asked are as follows:

Highways	$144,930
Schools	161,000
Police	25,000
Town officers	31,000
Town hall	4,000
Street lights	20,000
American Legion War Memorial	1,500
Printing and advertising	4,000
Interest on schoolhouse bonds	14,500
Miscellaneous	10,000
Mothers' aid	4,000
Assessors' plats	1,200
State tax	21,000
Redemption of debt	42,000
Interest	12,000
Charities, hospitals, etc.	9,000
Total	$505,130

CONTEST IN BARNES HEARING IN THE PROBATE COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 21.—In the probate court Tuesday afternoon, Judge Edward M. Burke conducted the following business:

Estate of Harry W. Curtis of Providence, with summer cottage on Westerly-Watch Hill road, at Avondale. Petition received from wife, Bessie W. Curtis, that she be appointed guardian of the person and property of her husband, a patient at the Jane Brown hospital, having suffered paralysis of the right side Oct. 24 and being now of unsound mind. Petition was to succeed a temporary appointment of herself with a release by herself as permanent guardian to herself as temporary guardian. Bond was made $300,000 with American Surety Co. as surety. J. Henry Reuter of Providence-Biltmore hotel was named as appraiser.

Estate William H. Barnes. Interest in this estate brought many relatives into court. A petition was received from Jeremiah I. Barnes, Orsemus Barnes and Mrs. Emily M. Tillinghast, brothers and sister, respectively, and represented in court by a niece, Mrs. Edris (Tillinghast) Datson, wife of John F. Datson. Petitioners sought to have a guardian appointed of his estate as a person of unsound mind and that Albert Barnes, a brother, be so named. Opposing were many nieces and nephews, represented by Attorney John A. Enos of Providence, who declared he represented the ward and that Jeremiah I. Barnes desired his name retracted from the previous petition, inasmuch as he had not seen his brother when signing the petition and had recently found him all right and of strong mind. Judge Burke asked William H. Barnes, who appeared in the court room, to step forward for examination and learned from him that he was 74, a bachelor, living at his home on his 100 acres on the Boston Post road with his niece, Lida Sherran, his housekeeper since Jan. 7, after he had been laid up for several weeks and had been a patient at the private hospital. He had money in the bank, also about $75 on his person when taken to the hospital. Judge Burke stated that he hesitated to appoint a guardian on the strength of his testimony and would rely more on the testimony of two physicians.

Attorney Enos, representing Mrs. Ida Sheraton, a niece, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duhamel and others, declared that Dr. Anderson was in court and that the petitioners had asked for the appointment. Mrs. Datson said she had not anticipated any attorney's appearance to object and asked for the continuance of the case to the next regular session. Attorney Enos said that Mrs. Datson had the money taken from Mr. Barnes, which she stated she held until a proper person was named. William H. Barnes stated that he needed the money and wished his nephew, Hoard Barnes, named as his guardian; he was obtaining his supplies from him at this time, as he had no money. In opposition, it was stated that he had been taken from the Anderson hospital in an irregular manner and at that place his interests were being well cared for. Judge Burke stated that he would appoint a cordial guardian and continued the case two weeks that other parties at interest might procure counsel.

Estate Samuel Ketchum Tobin. Will read and of the witnesses, Dr. John W. Helfrich and Constance E. Dudley, R. N., the latter appeared in court to testify. A son, Rev. George Edgar Tobin, was confirmed as executor and bond made $15,000 without surety. Arthur L. Perry was named executor.

Estate Harry H. Littlefield. Petition received from the widow, Mrs. Mabel Littlefield, represented by Attorney C. E. Roche, for a second six months' allowance of $100 a month for herself and four children, aged 6, 8, 10 and 12 years, respectively. Many opposing creditors were present, represented by Attorney John Ferguson, who questioned at length Mrs. Littlefield. At the end of a lengthy hearing, Judge Burke granted the six months' $100 allowance, saying the children under the law would not be allowed to go without shoes and clothing even if, on the bankrupt estate, the creditors would eventually foot the bills.

Estate Lewis S. McNeil. Petition of widow for a $75 six months' allowance granted.

Estate Thomas Spezzia. Petition received for the sale of interests at $178.98. Bond of Administrator John Pucci was made $340.

Estate Alvira C. Sisson. Petition granted for the appointment of Alva A. Hall of Stonington as administrator. Bond was made $200 with A. T. L. Ledwidge as surety and he was also named as appraiser.

Estate of Lina T. Lyons. Receipts and releases were filed in court by William H. Lyons, Kathryn I. Lyons, Robert E. Belknap and Elizabeth T. Belknap.

Estate Elias F. Wilcox. Petition received and granted for the filing of a copy of an exemplified foreign will.

Was Native Of Cranston

John Henry Tanner, of 135 West Broad street, Pawcatuck, who died suddenly shortly before 8 p. m. Monday, behind the wheel of his automobile near Avondale, was born in Cranston, R. I., July 17, 1861, son of John H. and Lydia Tanner, who came to Westerly to live when their son was a small boy. At the age of 14, he was learning his trade after school hours at C. B. Cottrell & Sons company, and after over 50 years of active work, retired three years ago. He married Minnie Berry, daughter of Captain and Mrs. John Berry, in Noank, Dec 28, 1882, and for the past 78 years, they resided at 135 West Broad street. Besides his wife he leaves a sister, Mrs. William Culverwell of Pawtucket, two nieces and a nephew, Charles Culverwell, of Edgewood, R. I. Mr. Tanner joined Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church Feb. 24, 1894 and became a member of the choir when it was under the leadership of Deacon Ira B. Crandall. When Mr. Crandall retired from the office of chorister, the place was taken by Mr. Tanner, who for 36 years, except for short intervals, has been the leader.

The rooms of the Elks' home, Potter-Hammond block and two of the adjoining rooms of the Westerly Square and Compass club, in the Potter-Langworthy block, High street, will be used this (Wednesday) evening at the meeting of Westerly lodge, B. P. O. Elks, No. 678. Dr. J. M. O'Connell, district deputy for the state of Rhode Island, will pay his official visitation to the lodge. A large class will be initiated.

STONINGTON MAN AND WIFE BOUND ON LIQUOR SALES

Before Judge William A. Wilcox in Stonington town court Tuesday, Benny Coneau of Mystic was arraigned on two charges, illegal possession of intoxicating liquors on his premises and illegal sale. State Trooper Arthur Whitmarsh described the raid made on the Coneau premises by him and two other troopers of Groton barracks Saturday night, January 11. The liquor seized was brought into court as evidence. Coneau pleaded guilty to the charge. Coneau has once before been in the Stonington court on the same charge and had been given a suspended sentence of 30 days. Judge Wilcox bound him over to the superior court. He was released in bonds of $1,000. Mrs. Catherine Coneau was arraigned on a charge of illegal sale of intoxicating liquors. October 15, 1929. Mrs. Coneau was brought before Judge Wilcox with the same charge and was convicted and fined $200 and costs. Mrs. Coneau pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the next session of the superior court. She was released in bond of $1,000.

In the case of State vs. Clarence Donath, of Mystic, charged with reckless driving of a motor vehicle through the village of Mystic, the accused pleaded guilty and was fined $15 and costs. Prosecuting Attorney Henry P. Hammacher represented the state in each case.

A concert program presented by the Overseas Male quartet of Providence was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience Monday evening in the auditorium of the Westerly high school, under the auspices of the First Baptist Men's class.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Elizabeth K. Thomson

Mrs. Elizabeth Kerr Thomson, in her 86th year, died Monday at her home on Rocket street, following a short illness. Mrs. Thomson was a native of Scotland, born at Haugh-of-Urr. In 1881, she came to America and made her home for 31 years in Niantic, now Bradford. She had lived in Westerly for 39 years. Her husband died some years ago. She leaves a brother in Australia and one in California, and a number of nephews and nieces, including Mrs. William Ledward of Westerly and Mrs. Mary Sanderson of Boston.

Sighted Ford's Mail Plane

Attention was attracted Tuesday by a yellow low-flying biplane which shortly before noon, proceeding apparently with the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. as a guide, headed over the business section of Westerly in a northerly direction. It was believed to be carrying mail from Newark, N. J., to Boston. The craft was proceeding at good speed, but was flying very low. It was snowing hard at the time. Doubtless this was the mail plane forced to land at Groton later.

Lux Toilet Soap cares for the loveliest complexions in the world

You can keep your skin exquisitely smooth just as 9 out of 10 glamorous screen stars do . . .

LONG ago our own charming Hollywood stars discovered that for attractiveness a girl must have soft, smooth skin—and discovered that Lux Toilet Soap keeps the skin at its very loveliest.

Then the famous Broadway stage stars became equally enthusiastic about this delicately fragrant white soap. Never have they been more grateful to it than since so many of them are playing in the talkies!

And now—in France, in England, in Germany—the European screen stars have adopted Lux Toilet Soap.

In Hollywood Alone
511 Lovely Actresses Use It

Every girl who appears under the blaze of the great close-up lights must have flawless skin. And the talkies have so many, many close-ups!

In Hollywood alone, of the 521 important actresses, including all stars, 511 are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. And every one of the great film studios has made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

At the request of the Broadway stage stars, it has been placed in their dressing rooms by 71 of the 74 legitimate theaters, and by other leading theaters all over the country.

"No girl can be attractive unless she has the very loveliest skin." This is the conclusion of 45 leading Hollywood directors who pick the girls who will most surely win popularity on the screen.

Small wonder, then, that Lux Toilet Soap has become the chosen soap of the world's most famous stars!

If you aren't already using this delightful soap, order several cakes—today. Its caressing lather will keep your skin lovely, just as it keeps the skin of the famous stars.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(P)—With the exception of foreign obligations and the convertibles, listed bonds drifted lower today. The prospect of rather heavy new offerings in the utility field kept buying inquiry at a low ebb and although the pace of the market quickened after early dullness, the day's business was unimpressive.

Developments abroad, especially the settlement at The Hague, strengthened the already firm position of European government loans and there was good demand for bonds of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, Denmark and Norway. In addition, the Australian listings reflected better support. The 7 per cent obligation of the German republic was very dull.

Reports of new offerings centered on the International Telephone company, which was said to be planning a $75,000,000 issue of 4 1-2 per cent debentures priced at around 93. Officials of the utility asserted that although the company was contemplating new financing, neither its nature nor its terms had been decided upon. However, it was believed that a flotation of about the size mentioned would soon be undertaken by a J. P. Morgan & Company syndicate.

One of the day's development was a statement by Secretary Mellon, made in a report to the senate banking committee, that the situation in bonds was "now clearing and improving as anticipated" and that recent developments indicated the possibility of marketing a federal land bank bond issue "in the not distant future at a rate which will be satisfactory in the light of general market conditions and which will not impose an undue burden upon the banks."

Most of the domestic issues were extremely dull. The banking groups which underwrote last week's heavy volume of new securities reported further progress in distributing their bonds, and there was apparently little interest left for listed obligations. The rails, including those of the best grade, softened, with resultant declines in Atchison General 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas First 4s and prior lien 5s, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s, Virginian 5s, Southern Pacific 4s and Western Maryland 4s.

Utilities likewise eased, although the new American Telephone 5s held firm on the largest turnover in the entire list. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, International Telephone 4 1-2s, Montana Power 5s, Laclede Gas 5 1-2s and Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s yielded minor fractions.

There were few important changes in the industrials. General Steel Castings 5 1-2s gained 1-2 and American Smelting 5s lost the same amount. Schulco 6 1-2s, Series A and B, rose 5 and 6 points respectively on small dealings. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s dropped a point to 100 3-4 compared with their 1929 low of 100, while Standard Oil of New York 4 1-2s lost 1 1-2.

Improvement in the stock list brought fair gains to the convertibles. American Telephone 4 1-2s retained 1 1-4 points of a 2 point rise. Atchison 4 1-2s and International Telephone 4 1-2s each rallied nearly a point, while Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s, on which the conversion privilege soon expires, advanced 3 points.

United States governments were heavy under the firmness of time money. The Treasury 4s fell 17-32s of a point, but dealings in all listings were light.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"They write stories about it, they paint pictures about it, they live for it—yes, and they die for it—but this is the first time I've seen it," casually remarks debonair William Powell, as the suave, smooth, tricky theatrical producer in "Pointed Heels," the new all-talking drama at the Broadway, starting today. "What are ya ravin' about?" asks Eugene Pallette as his hard-boiled stage manager. And Powell's surprising answer is "Love!" Sharing the honors in this thrilling story of the New York show world of today, are Fay Wray as a lovely revue girl, Phillips Holmes, as the youthful composer whom she marries, and whose romance Powell vainly tries to wreck, with Skeets Gallagher and Helen Kane of "boop-a-doop" fame as a team of vaudeville hoofers whose comedy is a riot, with the roly-poly Helen doing a new "bit" that is a positive scream. The cleverly laid plot of the producer to lure the young bride to his apartment is wrecked when he finds out that she really loves her penniless husband, and he gracefully withdraws from the field, and bends his efforts to making the revue starring Fay a success, bowing in defeat to the little god "True Love." The surrounding program is packed with variety, including Laurel and Hardy in "The Hoosegow," a feature-length comedy, "Pony Boy," a bouncing-ball song-cartoon, Tom Howard, the elongated comedian in "The Hold-Up", Bert Wheeler & Co. in "Small Timers," a theatrical boarding house skit, the Varsity Three, crooners and steppers, and a snappy girlie-revue, "Shake It Up," with the latest Fox movietone news.

Victory Meeting

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 28, the Woman's crusade will hold a victory meeting in the Assembly hall of Trinity Methodist church, this occasion being a recognition of the 10th anniversary of national prohibition. The guest of honor and speaker will be the Rev. John Newton Lackey, D. D., pastor of the very large Central Baptist church in Hartford. Before entering the ministry Dr. Lackey was engaged in the teaching profession. A man of sound judgment, a forceful speaker and a citizen well-informed on all the great issues of our day, he will doubtless bring a very worthwhile message to his hearers.

Real Estate Sold

Frank Goldstein has sold the new 6-room cottage which he recently built on Gleason street to Mrs. Helen Miedzinski. The new owner will occupy it as her future residence. The property was sold through Michael C. Jackiewicz, real estate specialist.

Palace Theatre

It's not as sinful as the title would have you believe, but it is a deep, powerfully moving modern play of misguided passions, this picture called "A Most Immoral Lady," which is now playing on the Palace theatre screen, and will be continued along with another great feature, until Friday evening. Leatrice Joy is the charming star of this charmingly daring film, and she is supported by Walter Pidgeon, Sidney Blackmer and Josephine Dunn, not to mention Montague Love and others.

The other big full-length picture on this great double feature bill is "Three Live Ghosts," the film adaptation of a magnificent English play in which three war buddies try to find themselves in the confused welter of human affairs after the war. They are considered dead because they have been reported dead, and when they get back from a German prison camp to set foot once more in dear old London, they are unable to draw their back pay from the British army because of the fact that, officially, they are dead.

Three ghosts, they wander through London. One is an out and out Cockney, with ill-fitting coat and flannel muffler, and cigarette and accent and all. The second one is a strange character, an obviously cultured Englishman who has lost his memory so completely that he doesn't even know his name. The third, who joined up with the other two at the prison camp, is a young American, who, for reasons best known to himself, has no desire to return to the United States. In fact there is a very large reward on his head, although he doesn't know it.

How they meet life, and what their adventures in London are, form the basis of one of the smartest dialogue and action stories that it has ever been the pleasure of this writer to watch.

Mr. Porter has for several years conducted a small store and gas station at Little Rest and was well and favorably known by many in this vicinity. Mrs. Porter died about two years ago.

The H. C. club met with Mrs. Raymond Barlow Tuesday afternoon. The heavy rain that day reduced the attendance somewhat but eleven members attended and much work was accomplished.

Rev. H. A. Coolidge's subject at the Sunday morning service was "Count the Cost." There was a good attendance. Pictures were shown at the evening service.

POETRY

World Peace

("Blessed are the peace-makers."—St. Matthew 5:9)

When all the guns have ceased to fire,
And outposts guard no more the line;
When war lords come their swords to break,
An armistice of peace to sign.

When muffled drums no more shall roll
In honor to a fallen dead,
And men no longer tolerate
Those thoughts of hate with vengeance red.

When God shall break in every heart
Those images of greed and lust,
And when within our fellow man
We place, through faith, a firmer trust.

Then they who fight with hope of gain
Will find a noble purpose yet,
When petty jealousies of mind
At last their envious souls forget.

Quiet minds at home; calm thoughts abroad—
If there be prayers that wars may cease,
There must be silence for the dead
That men may pledge world faith in peace.

—Charles Hancroft, in Philadelphia Bulletin.

New England

Silver rivers in the sunlight,
Golden lakes in sunset's glow,
Valleys green with Summer's foliage,
Stately elms in serried row,
Timbered hills and mountains rocky,
Sharp and clear against the sky,
Quiet meadowlands and pastures
In the warmth of August lie.

Pungent marshes, fresh and salty
'Neath October's dome of blue,
Jagged rocks and shining beaches
'Gainst the ocean's magic hue,
Crooked creeks and cozy inlets
Where the wild ducks love to roam,
Wind-bent pines and furrowed sand-dunes
Gird Atlantic's mighty home.

By the pulse of flowing rivers
Where the busy spindles turn,
Close beside the spacious harbors
Where the freighted steamers churn,
All along the iron pathways
Where the trains of commerce dart,
In the smoke of humming factories
Beats Industry's steady heart.

—George M. Wardner, in Boston Globe.

SCORES OF SHARES CLOSED HIGHER WITH SLIGHT INCREASE IN TRADING

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The stock market gave the best account of itself today that it has given in nearly two weeks, but nevertheless failed to break out of the narrow trading area in which it has zigzagged with tiresome persistence since the first of the year. Trading picked up a little, total sales aggregating [illegible] shares, a gain of about 540,000 over yesterday. The market crept forward along a broad front, scores of shares closing a point or two higher.

Operators for the fall prodded the list further during the first hour of trading, but offerings soon dried up, and a sizeable covering movement set in. Pools resumed operations in a few shares, notably among the amusement and food issues. On the whole, however, the day's operations represented little more than a game of double solitaire between the bull and the bear camps. The price index of 90 stocks was elevated approximately 1 1-2 points. It is now about on a level with that reached in the first week of the rebound after the market touched bottom on Nov. 13.

The day's business was largely favorable, if not particularly conclusive. President Hoover's statement indicating a definite turn for the better in employment was pleasing, although such a turn normally occurs between now and the middle of February. Steel operations were unofficially reported to have gained further, U. S. Steel mills working at about 72 per cent of capacity.

The weekly condition statement of [illegible] reserve member banks showed a reduction of $53,000,000 in loans on securities in the latest week, in which brokers' loans rose $13,000,000, [illegible] the gradual liquidation of this large volume of tied-up credit. Credit conditions remained satisfactory, call loans still renewing at 4 1-2 per cent and dropping to 4. The probability of lower bank rates on Thursday was again widely discussed. Pools have of late made several attempts to get public followings in the food and amusement shares on the theory that these industries are depression-proof, although the Fox situation has interfered with plans in the latter group. National Biscuit was a strong spot, the old shares making an extreme gain of about 7 points. Warner Bros. A, Paramount and Radio Keith rose a point or two in large scale buying. Motor accessories turned upward on the reports of increasing production. The tobacco merchandising shares rallied further, with additional indications of improvement in the retail price situation.

Among miscellaneous shares gaining 2 to 5 points were Allied Chemical, American Can, Atchison, Auburn Auto, J. I. Case, Chesapeake Corp., General Electric, Bendix Aviation, Loews Inc., Stewart Warner, Purity Baking, Raybestos-Manhattan, and Westinghouse Manufacturing. U. S. Steel and General Motors each closed up about a point. Among the few weak spots, Fashion Park preferred dropped 10 points to a new low, and Neisner Bros. and Celotex sagged a couple of points to new lows for this market. American Tobacco B lost about 2 points in realizing.

The commodity markets were firmer. Wheat futures gained about a cent a bushel on a decrease in the world visible supply, and larger foreign takings. Corn sold up slightly in sympathy with a better market in Buenos Aires. Cotton ruled slightly higher, reflecting lightening of pressure from foreign markets. Coffee futures were firmer on reports of a shipment of gold from Brazil, presumably to support Brazilian exchange.

Attention was centered on the Spanish peseta in the foreign exchange markets. The peseta dropped to 12.84 cents, then rallied to 13.06 on announcement of the resignation of Finance Minister Sotelo, whose stabilization program has met with unfavorable results. Other foreign currencies held fairly steady. The Japanese yen was firmer on announcement of a shipment of $7,000,000 in gold to New York.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—(AP)—Indications that the Argentine crop movement is beginning to wane, whereas United States wheat export business today enlarged, put considerable buoyancy into wheat values here. It was estimated 850,000 bu. of domestic hard winter wheat were bought today for export via the Gulf of Mexico. Some European buying of Canadian wheat was noted also, but of less amount than from the United States.

Closing quotations on wheat in Chicago were firm, 1 1-4c to 1 1-2c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-8 at 1-4c to 1-4c up, oats unchanged to a shade higher, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Adding force to price upturns for wheat today in Chicago were signs of the best demand from domestic millers that has been witnessed in some time. In this connection, notice was taken that bids are to be opened here shortly for 21,000 bbls. of flour for army use. British millers were also reported today as buying March delivery of wheat at Liverpool because of improved flour trade. Advances in wheat prices today at Liverpool counted likewise at times as a further stimulus to speculative buyers here, although the Liverpool gains failed to hold well.

On the other hand, houses with foreign relationship were said to have been on the selling side today of wheat future deliveries here. Meanwhile, dispatches were current that quotations abroad would depend largely on European demand but that trans-Atlantic purchases at present for main-land countries were comparatively meager. However, total export business in North American wheat today aggregated 900,000 bu. and the United States share included wheat destined to go to Antwerp, as well as some to Greece. Domestic receipts at all points today were much smaller than a year ago, and at many primary markets the shipments were considerably greater than the receipts.

Corn and oats showed themselves inclined to reflect wheat strength. Country offerings of corn lacked volume, despite low temperatures prevailing throughout the corn belt.

Provisions turned easier, responsive to downturns in the value of hogs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Speculative interest in today's curb market was confined largely to a handful of public utility stocks, which were marked up 1 to 3 points on a fairly heavy turnover. The general list was again irregular, with no definite trend apparent, due to the continued aloofness of small traders and investors.

Allied Power & Light, American & Foreign Power warrants, Electric Bond & Share and Utilities Light & Power A each advanced a point or more. New England Telephone advanced 3 points on the announcement of valuable "stock purchase" "rights."

Oils appeared to be marking time, pending a settlement of the price cutting controversy in the mid-continent field. Only a few hundred shares of Gulf, Humble and Standard Oil of Indiana changed hands, and all made small fractional gains.

Central States convertible preferred, which has not appeared on the tape for some time, broke 237 1-3 points below its previous quotation to 106, which contrasts with a high of 480 and a low of 97 last year. Deere & Co. ran up 60 points to 560 on odd lot transactions in expectation of increased agricultural purchasing power.

Fox Theatres rallied slightly on the reassuring statement of William Fox regarding the solvency of the parent company. Erie "rights" to purchase the new Pittston Co. stock sank to a new low at 50 cents, which contrasts with the opening quotation of $1.37 1-2 last week. Metropolitan Chain Stores sank to a new low at 26.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—An increase of between 3 1-2 and 4 per cent occurred in steel ingot production last week, it was reported today, with the industry as a whole now operating at more than 69 per cent of rated capacity, as contrasted with between 65 1-2 and 66 per cent last week and 59 to 60 per cent two weeks ago. At this time last year the average was around 83 1-2 per cent. Officials of several steel companies were quoted as being more cheerful with regard to the outlook, pointing out that the improvement has been greater than anticipated.

The National City bank is importing 15,000,000 gold yen, approximately $7,000,000, from Japan. The first shipment will leave Yokohama Thursday. It will be the first shipment to the United States since the lifting of the gold embargo.

H. J. Klinger, vice-president of the Chevrolet Motor Co., says that more cars will be sold this month than in January of last year, and that the output this month will exceed the 86,178 cars and trucks turned out last January.

CARD OF THANKS

We gratefully acknowledge and thank our many friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness shown us during our recent bereavement of our dear wife and mother. We particularly wish to thank the Central Baptist church and Sunday school, Alpha Kia Alpha, the Seventh and Eighth grades of the Broadway school, the Lippiet ward of the State hospital and also those who donated their cars. These acts of kindness will always be remembered.

FRED ARNOLD AND FAMILY.

CARD OF THANKS

Gone but not forgotten

We wish to express our sincere appreciation for all the acts of kindness which were shown us by the people of North Franklin during our recent bereavement. We want to make mention of the many flowers which were also sent. These will all be long remembered by us.

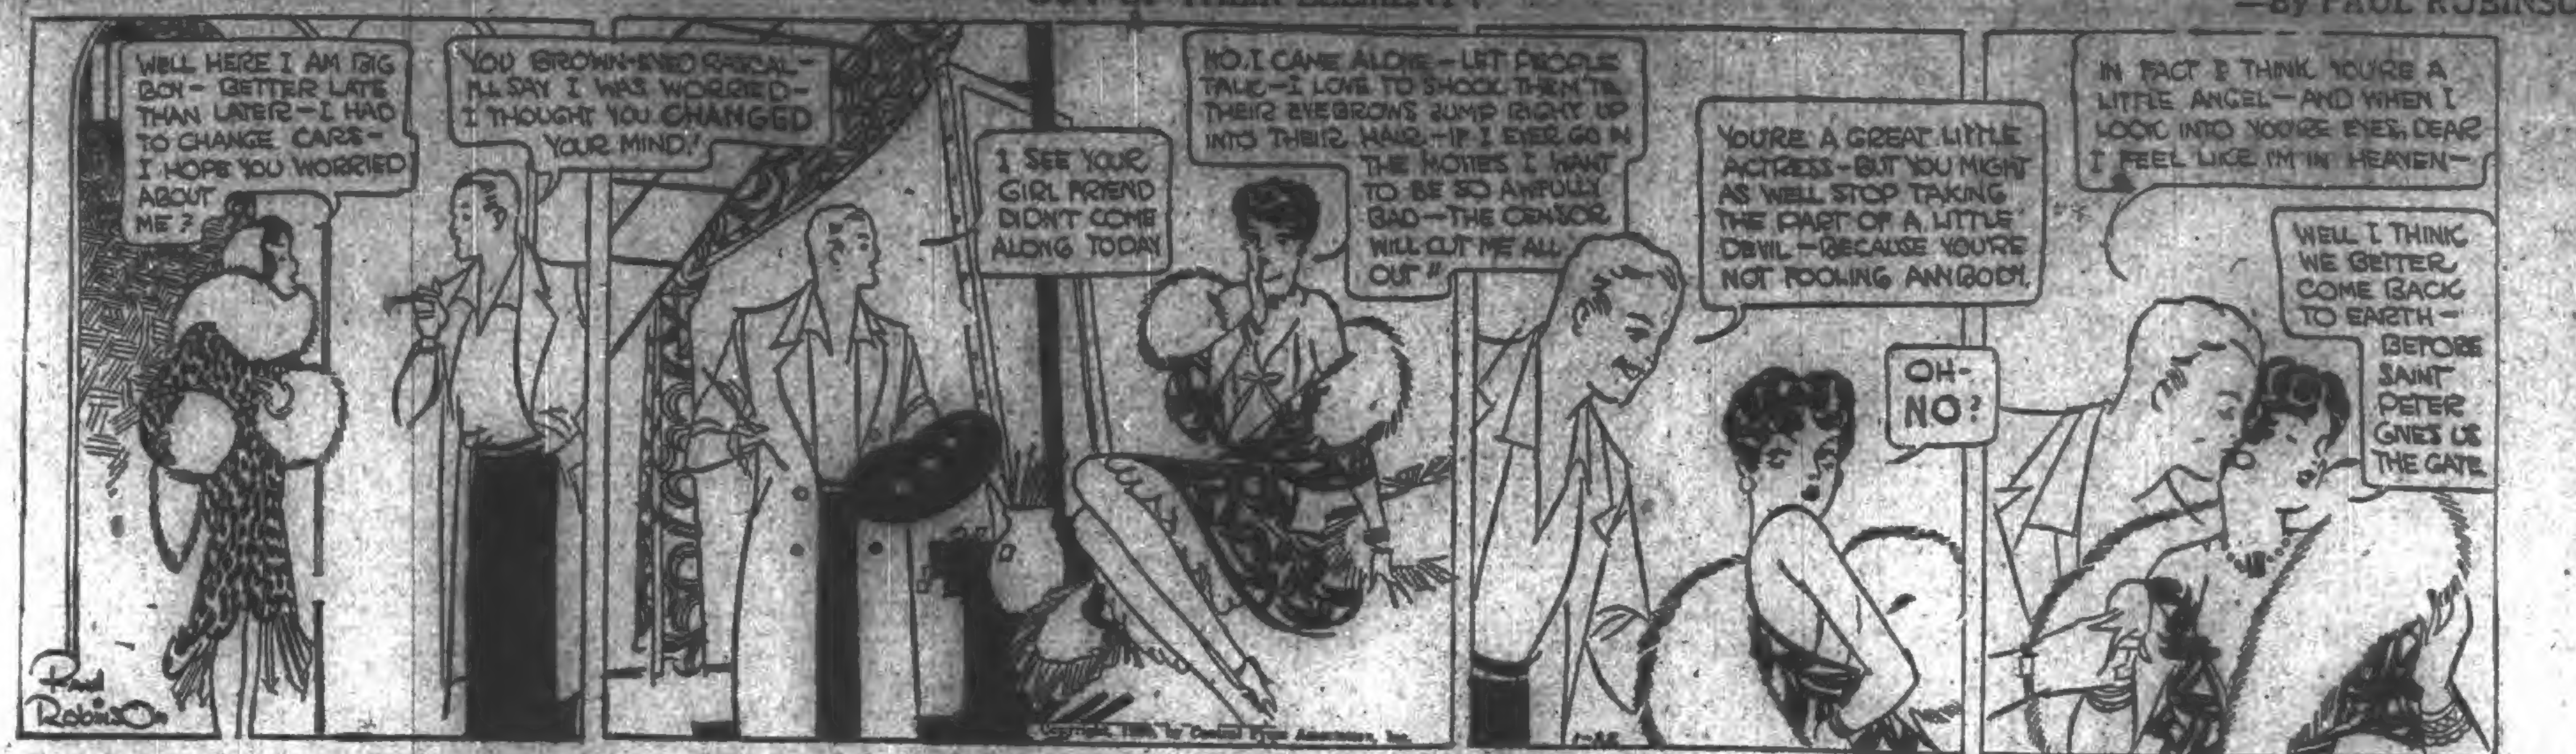
OUT OF THEIR ELEMENT!

—By PAUL ROBINSON



WELL HERE I AM BIG BOY— BETTER LATE THAN LATER—I HAD TO CHANGE CARS— I HOPE YOU WORRIED ABOUT ME?
YOU BROWN-EYED RASCAL— I'LL SAY I WAS WORRIED— I THOUGHT YOU CHANGED YOUR MIND!
I SEE YOUR GIRL FRIEND DIDN'T COME ALONG TODAY
NO, I CAME ALONE—LET PEOPLE TALK—I LOVE TO SHOCK THEM TO THEIR EYEBROWS JUMP RIGHT UP INTO THEIR HAIR—IF I EVER GO IN THE MOVIES I WANT TO BE SO AWFULLY BAD—THE CENSOR WILL CUT ME ALL OUT"
YOU'RE A GREAT LITTLE ACTRESS—BUT YOU MIGHT AS WELL STOP TAKING THE PART OF A LITTLE DEVIL—BECAUSE YOU'RE NOT FOOLING ANYBODY
OH- NO?
IN FACT I THINK YOU'RE A LITTLE ANGEL—AND WHEN I LOOK INTO YOUR EYES, DEAR I FEEL LIKE I'M IN HEAVEN—
WELL I THINK WE BETTER COME BACK TO EARTH— BEFORE SAINT PETER GIVES US THE GATE

Charles Henry Killam, 77, a lifelong resident of the town died last week Tuesday at his home after a lingering illness. For some weeks he had been confined to his room. Mr Killam was the only son of Edward and Hannah Child Killam and was born March 19, 1853. His mother's mother was Almira Holmes, a cousin of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the poet He married March 19, 1878, on his 25th birthday, Miss Harriet Breckenridge of Bennington, Vt. It was on the farm of her ancestors the famous battle was fought. A boulder marks the site of the battleground. Two sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Killam, Edward B. and John H.; the former died in July, 1917, after an illness of several years. Mr. Killam was a successful gardener and was assisted by his son, John, who remained at home. Mr. Killam was a member of the Congregational church, a former superintendent of the Sunday school and clerk of the church. He was of a genial disposition and had many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Killam celebrated their golden wedding two years ago with a small dinner party at their home. Besides his widow and son, John, he is survived by a granddaughter, Harriet Killam, of Fairhaven, Mass., a daughter of his eldest son, Edward. Mr. Killam's only sister, Mrs. Julia Rowley, died 30 or more years ago.

The funeral was held at his home last week Thursday. Rev. Henry D. Baker of this place and Rev. John Dexbury of Putnam, conducting the service. The bearers were Chas. H. Potter, L. H. Healey, George Phillips, J. S. May, Wm. Neely and Harry Townsend. Burial was in the family lot in the local cemetery.

The church dinner and roll call is to be held Saturday next, beginning at 12.30 o'clock. The committee for the dinner is Mrs. A. G. Morse, Mrs. L. H Lindeman, Mrs. Ernest Hibbard.

Mr. and Mrs. N. T. White, Katherine and Elizabeth Cox, of East Brookfield Mass., attended church here Sunday morning, afterwards visiting local relatives.

A largely attended Missionary meeting was held last week Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Gleason. Mrs. L. H. Lindeman presided. Mrs. E. R. Pike gave Current Events, with Porto Rico as her topic. Mrs. Elvira Barber and sister, Miss Anna Andrews, both of Putnam, spoke of their work as teachers in the Sunday school of the Congregational church, Putnam. A pleasant social hour with refreshments followed.

Two Scotsmen had not encountered each other for twenty years.

"Well, well, well," said one, "this is an historic occasion. We'll have to wet it."

"Aye," agreed the other, "so we will. But ye'll forgive me for remindin' ye that I paid the last time."—Exchange.

DUTRA LEADS FIELD IN MEXICAN OPEN; MILLER NOW IN TIE FOR 6TH PLACE

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Jan. 21—(AP)—The Dutra brothers, a swarthy pair of Spanish descent, Olin from Santa Monica, Cal., and Mortie, from Tacoma, Wash., are bent upon taking the greatest prize money offered in golf. Braving a Mexican desert breeze, but in much greater comfort than their exploring ancestors of generations ago, they brought in the lowest scores of the day, 72 each, in competition with more than a hundred of the nation's leading golfers in the second round of the Agua Caliente quest for prizes totalling $25,000.

Tonight Olin Dutra led the field, the tournament half over, with cards of 74 and 72, making the low 146. In the next bracket, of 147, were Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., leading money player of the year, and Charlie Guest of Los Angeles, professional golfers.

MacDonald Smith, canny Scotch Long Island player, was bracketed with five others in the third group of 148 gross players, the company including Mortie Dutra, Gene Sarazen, New York, the former open champion; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., who led yesterday, and Al Watrous of Detroit. Forty-eight of the gold seekers fell by the wayside for it took 156 or less strokes for the two rounds of 36 holes, to win the privilege of continuing in the final two rounds of the tournament tomorrow and Thursday. Five amateurs, however, were admitted under the wire with scores above 156, in order to avoid killing out all amateur competition. Only one simon pure entrant, George Von Elm, finished among the favored.

The desert breeze, quite stiff when the players went to the tee in threesomes, continued throughout the day. While it had its effect upon driving and held scores higher than were expected, it likewise improved the new course, which this tournament dedicates, by drying it from the effect of Sunday night's rain.

Par out ....443 444 452—35
Dutra out .....434 444 462—35
Par in ....435 443 454—36—35—71
Dutra in ....435 444 454—37—35—72

And his brother Mortie did it this way:

Out ....553 533 453—36
In ....533 442 354—36—36—72

Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who took the first day leadership with a brilliant card of 71, did not fare so well today with 77 strokes for the round. For the first five holes out he was one over par on each hole, making the outward nine in 40, but he came back in 37.

"Light Horse" Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., was being married in Los Angeles today, but tomorrow he will be back early in the morning to contend with Olin Dutra for the lead. Monday he played 27 holes, 74 for the first eighteen, the same as Olin Dutra, and 36 for the out nine, compared with 35 for Dutra on that nine today.

Those who found the gold quest at an abrupt end included today Tony Manero, of New York, winner of the Catalina open, in December, and Clarence Clark of Tulsa, Okla., winner of the recent San Gabriel, Cal., amateur-pro event.

George Von Elm, Detroit amateur and member of the Walker cup team, was but three strokes behind the field leader, Olin Dutra. Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion, found the two rounds of his new home course required 150, making a 74, as did Joe Kirkwood, golf trick shot artist, who also grossed 150. Walter Hagen, whose winnings for the past annual season totaled but $80 in prize tournament play did not live up to his reputation as "The Great Haig." He placed considerably down the list with a 153.

Clear blue skies gave no threat of rain to interfere with the 8:30 start tomorrow on the third round of the $25,000 tournament. The qualifiers who go on with the play for the final two days, tomorrow and Thursday, are:

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., 74-72—146.

SCHMELING'S ATLANTIC CITY BOUT IS CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Another move designed to expedite settlement of the muddled heavyweight championship, was made today when Max Schmeling's proposed match in the Atlantic City auditorium, March 29, was called off by the German heavyweight's American manager, Joe Jacobs.

Schmeling's next engagement, according to Jacobs, will be with the winner of the Miami match between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, with every expectation that world's heavyweight championship recognition will be at stake.

The prospect is that Schmeling will fight Sharkey for the title in the feature bout of the milk fund benefit show in the Yankee stadium, late in June. Contingent upon this are a victory for Sharkey over Scott, February 27, and reinstatement for Schmeling in New York.

Jacobs made known his latest move in a telegram to Herman Taylor, of the Philadelphia promotion firm of Taylor and Gunnis. Difficulty had been encountered obtaining a suitable opponent for Schmeling at Atlantic City.

Christopher (Bat) Battalino, Hartford's featherweight champion, tackles his first serious title contender since winning the championship from Andre Routis, when he meets Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sharpshooter, in Madison Square Garden, March 10.

Battalino was slated to box Al Singer in a non-title bout in the Garden, January 31. This match, however, was called off today by Matchmaker Tom McArdle after the featherweight titleholder was taken to a Philadelphia hospital with an infected finger, following a losing match with Lew Massey last night.

Earlier in the day the New York state athletic commission had given its approval to the Singer-Battalino contest with the proviso that Battalino post a forfeit of $5,000 to defend his title against Chocolate in March. McArdle said a new opponent would be sought for Singer.

Jack (Kid) Berg, who rose to the position of lightweight title contender with a decisive victory over Tony Canzoneri last week, filed a challenge with the commission for a match with the 135 pound champion, Sammy Mandell. The solons tabled the defy, pending Berg's return from a visit to England. The pair probably will be brought together next summer.

The shifting of dates at the Garden placed the Johnny Risko-Victorio Campolo bout on February 7, one week earlier than previously arranged. Maxie Rosenbloom and Ace Hudkins, who were scheduled to mix February 7, will furnish the attraction on February 14.

SKATING UNION APPROVES DATES FOR TITLE EVENTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The amateur Skating union of the United States and the Amateur Skating association of Canada today approved the holding of the woman's North American outdoor speed skating championships at Ottawa, Canada, Feb. 7 and 8. The meet will be held in conjunction with the Canadian national outdoor speed skating championships.

The men's North American outdoor speed skating championships will be held at Saranac lake and Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 11-14.

BABE RUTH HITS 345 YARD SHOT FROM TEE

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Babe Ruth strode home a winner at the end of the first round of play today in the Glenn H. Curtiss championship golf tournament. The Bambino defeated H. Y. Weissinger of Miami, 4 and 3.

The home run king captured the first six holes of today's round and was five up on his opponent at the turn. He went into a slump to lose the next four in a row but rallied to take a snappy four and two victory at the finish.

The swat sultan propelled his tee shot on the fifth hole for 345 yards.

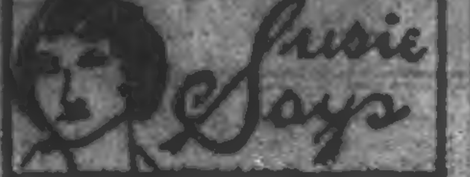
FAST PRELIMS ON SHYMA BOXING CARD

The two six-round preliminary bouts on the Shyma card for next Friday night at the Parish hall in Taftville look like real nice boxing attractions. Although they are of the shorter kind there is every reason to believe that they will be productive of plenty of action. In one bout Ero Peterson of Worcester meets Bennie Novak of the Sub Base and in the other Young Lavigne of the Base and Freddie Neal of Worcester trade punches.

Peterson, who meets Novak, created no little sensation last week at New London when he boxed his way into the hearts of Eastern Connecticut fandom against Julio Rossi of Westerly. Peterson had little trouble of disposing of the Westerly boy and showed the fans that besides being a clever boxer he packs a pretty hefty punch. However, when he meets Novak, he goes against a boy that is well versed in ring tactics and is tricky in the extreme. Novak can hit heavily on his own account and his boxing is on a par with the Worcester boy. Novak is fast and has a great habit of coming off the ropes after the manner of Johnny Dundee. This bout looms as one that should provide plenty of thrills.

Two clever boys will mix it in the other six rounder when Young Lavigne of the Sub Base and Freddie Neal of Worcester meet. Both boys have fought on the Shyma card before and each has made a brilliant showing, Lavigne winning from Young Lizzio of Westerly and Neal won from the same boy on a questionable knockout on the next card. All of which goes to show that the boys are evenly matched and should put on a neat exhibition.

Al Beauregard of Taftville who boxes a return bout with Lou Piquette of Bridgeport in the 10 round final is just about in his best condition. He is working out daily with his brother Minnew, who fights Mush Moriarty in the opener. The workout includes plenty of road work in the morning and about five or six hours real work with an axe in the Beauregard wood lot. The evening is spent with light boxing with his sparring partners.



I know now why they call those pictures "talkies."

I sat in back of a couple of the sisters of the gum-chewing brigade yesterday at the theatre and what I learned about pictures and actors and actresses was a caution.

They started to talk as soon as they hit the aisle and they continued to talk all through the picture and they were still talking when they left.

You heard 'em coming down the aisle, "Now, Mame, don't go too far front, pictures are better when seen from back here. Hey, Mame, here's a couple seats in the middle of this row."

"Pardon me, lady, but just pull up your feet so I won't walk on 'em and we'll park over there. Thanks. Come on; Mame, don't be afraid, some people ain't got no manners."

"Now don't get fresh young feller, I wasn't talking to you. And say, didja buy a ticket so's you could park your overcoat there? Well, if you didn't I'm going to sit down in that seat. Come on, Mame whacha waiting for?"

"Say, Mame, ain't these technicolor pictures the berries, eh? I wonder how they make 'em. They can make a homely guy look like you'd like to meet him. What, you don't like 'em you say. Well, there's no accounting for some people's tastes."

"Say, young feller, ain't one chair enough for you? And let me tell you something, you just keep both hands on your hat and it won't be falling down under the seats."

"Oh, Mame, there's Nick Lucas and his geetar. Gosh, that boy sure picks a mean tune outa that box. No, I know he ain't much to look at but he sure can wobble. No, he don't look like an Italian to me, he's got more of a Spanish atmospeas."

"Oh gosh, Mame, ain't that a gorgeous scene? Don't you wish you could be dancing on that floor with your Charlie? Wow, lookit that baby shake her legs. Ain't it a crime the way they let a girl with spindly shanks show 'em that way? Say, if I was that skinny I'd have to stand in one place twice to cast a shadow."

"Well, can you tie that? Lookit them two palookas going to sit down right in front of us. Hey, you guys' squat will you, we paid to look at the picture and not you. Wonder you wouldn't take off your overcoats before you come in. Oh, yeah? Well, so was your old man."

"Come on, Mame, let's get another seat where there ain't a coupla poles in front of us. Excuse me, lady. Yes, we paid for any seat in the house and I guess we can take our choice. Come on, Mame, our money's as good as hers. No I won't shhh."

"Sure, lady, you can thank God all you want to but let me tell you it ain't God that's moving me it's them two guys that sat down in front. You couldn't see through 'em with an X-ray."

"Hey, Mame, ain't that just my luck, some guy parked his chewing gum in my fur collar. Hell."

And then peace and quiet reigned in that section of the theatre and I was able to enjoy the last few scenes very nicely.

MAY MAKE CONCERTED ATTACK ON CARNEGIE REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The possibility of a concerted counter-attack on the Carnegie Foundation's famous "bulletin 23" on college athletics loomed today as a result of the University of Michigan's action in making an official reply to some of the charges contained in the report.

In his annual report to the Michigan faculty as chairman of the board of control of athletics Prof. Ralph W. Aigler had charged the Carnegie report was unfair and "almost vicious." This brought a quick reply today from Dr. Howard J. Savage of the foundation who retorted that the foundation had discovered no reason, as yet, for altering any of the statements in that sensational document.

Prof. Aigler said investigators for the foundation had employed the "methods of a prosecutor" and that letters from university files had been removed and not returned. One charge that athletes were subsidized at Michigan in the guise of "writers" was founded, he claimed, on the single instance that Benny Friedman, famous football star, had written for Youth's Companion and some newspapers.

As for the letters, Dr. Savage said they had been given foundation investigators by authorized Michigan authorities and that photostatic copies were returned to the university and that an offer, later, to return the originals had been rejected by a university official.

As for the Friedman incident, Dr. Savage said that readers of the bulletin will realize that "names of institutions mentioned in parentheses are illustrative and are not intended to exhaust the cases on file."

Some observers felt that emboldened by Michigan's stand, other universities whose athletic policies were attacked in the foundation's report, might reply officially to the charges made by foundation investigators.

The official exchange between Michigan and the foundation was the first since publication of the report, nearly three months ago.

THOMAS SAYS MACK PAID DEARLY FOR PENNANT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—(AP)—Ira Thomas, coach and scout for the Philadelphia Athletics, told members of the Optimist club today that Connie Mack paid dearly for the 1929 world's championship and that he would spend as much money to win the title this year.

"Mack set out to build a pennant-winner a few years ago," Thomas said. "He paid $25,000 for Max Bishop, then he handed out $100,000 for Lefty Grove. Still he couldn't win. Then he paid $70,000 for Al Simmons, $65,000 for Joe Boley and $80,000 for George Earnshaw. But it wasn't until he developed Rube Walberg and Jimmy Foxx, that great young hitter, and several others that he could produce a pennant winner.

"Managers throw away thousands of dollars on players who later prove a big disappointment. Connie paid $70,000 for Strang and he turned out to be a failure. He passed over $37,000 for Brannon and he too failed. Other managers have done the same thing. I am to blame for some of those bad purchases.

"In order to win the pennant this year Mack has stepped out and purchased the cream of the minor leagues. The Athletics will have such an array of players this year that there is little doubt in my mind they will win."

PLAINFIELD PROS PLAY RETURN GAME WITH INDIANS-SWEDES TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS

Olsen's Swedes	Plainfield
Byers, rf	Brusso, rf
Richardson, lf	Kasper, lf
Watt, c	Conway, c
Cartwright, lg	Williams, lg
Stewart, rg	Bernot, rg

When these two teams renew their basketball feud at the Plainfield Community house this evening the basketball fans of eastern Connecticut will be treated to an exceptionally fast contest if previous performances are any criterion. Two more evenly matched than the Plainfield Pros and the Swedes would be vary hard to find. Both clubs play a fast and hard game with neither having much of an edge on the other.

In the last game early in the month the Olson aggregation nosed out the Pros in the last 15 seconds of a game that had been nip and tuck from the first whistle. There was so little difference between the two teams that a basket from mid-floor settled in the hoop for the winning points just at the final whistle.

Tonight's game will be just as fast if not just as close although a spectacular win such as the last one is not anticipated. The Swedes as everyone knows are just about the cream of the traveling basketball quintets, being a combination of Olson's Swedes and Jim Thorpe's Indians for many years rated as the leading clubs of the midwest. Anyone who saw the last game will not fail to be at tonight's contest as basketball in big doses is promised by Manager Salisbury.

Supporting the main attraction is a fast preliminary game between the Plainfield Buddies and the Putnam Celtics. The Buddies have piled up an impressive record for this season being undefeated on their home floor and losing but one contest away from home, that to the Taftville Shymas. The Putnam club is an undefeated junior club with almost as imposing a record.

The preliminary gets away at 7:45 and the main game at 9 o'clock. There will be dancing after the game as usual.

SHYMAS HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE DOWNING NOANK

The Shyma club of Taftville continued their winning streak when they swamped the Noank Whirlwinds basketball team Tuesday evening at Parish hall, Taftville, 55 to 23. Rabbit Gauthier led the local boys in scoring, tallying 19 points on nine field goals and on a foul, while Lefty Dugas had 12 points on six field goals.

The Shymas displayed a brilliant brand of basketball, and at no time were the visitors threatening. Clark, at center, with six points, led Noank in scoring.

Summary:

Shyma	G.	F.	Pts.
Dugas, rf	6	0	12

PLAINFIELD HAS TWO FINE SWIMMING TEAMS

The Plainfield Community association is represented by two fine swimming teams this season, a senior team and a junior outfit. The teams have been showing fast work in the water both in the distance events and in the sprints.

Both the senior and junior teams are booked up with the Providence Y. M. C. A., South Manchester Rec., and Connecticut Aggies swimming teams for meets away and at home, and have meets pending with Worcester Y, Whitinsville and Hartford Y. The teams work out every evening at 6:30 under the direction of Leroy A. Dissinger.

Henry Burby, Robert Connelly and John Korab are swimming the 100 yard event in 65 seconds which is exceptionally good time, considering the world's indoor record to be 55 seconds. The Wood brothers, Ray and Norman are showing well in the short dashes, 20 and 40 yards, swimming the 20 yd. event in 9 seconds and the 40 in 21 seconds.

Other candidates doing well are, George Roberge, Henry Korab, the Dumas brothers, Will and Henry, Armond Metevier, Jerry and Conrad Smith, Walter Collin, Walter Harworth, Jean Currier and Thomas Lang.

MILE RELAY TO FEATURE MILLROSE A. A. GAMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—A north-south intersectional mile relay race between the University of North Carolina and one of the best of the eastern college quartets, was announced today as one of the feature events of the annual Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden, February 8.

A team from one of the leading New England colleges will probably be matched with Coach Bob Fetzer's North Carolinains.

LES CANADIENS SHOW WELL IN TROUNCING AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The speed kings of hockey, Les Canadiens of Montreal, showed their best form tonight and defeated the New York Americans, 5 to 2, in a National Hockey league thriller.

Led by Howie Morenz and Nick Wasnie, the Flying Frenchmen completely outskated and outplayed the New Yorkers to gain a three-goal lead in the opening period and to hold it through the wild third frame.

Morenz scored the opening goal and assisted in two others, while Wasnie put in the two third-period counters.

The Americans, always dangerous, did not score until the final frame when Himes and Sheppard tallied.

Leo Reise, big American defense player, was badly injured in a fall in the second period when he struck his head on the ice. He was later reported suffering a concussion of the brain.

GLICK-LOAYZA BOUT IS CALLED OFF

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 21—(AP)—The ten round bout between Stanislaus Loayza and Joe Glick, which was to have headed the card at the Arena A. C. Thursday night, has been indefinitely postponed.

Matchmaker A. Weill tonight said that Loayza was suffering with neuritis in one arm. Unable to find a suitable opponent for Glick, Weill has decided to call off the show.

Weill said that the proposed meeting between Loayza and Glick may take place February 6.

ILLINOIS PUTS BAN ON HEAVYWEIGHT WRESTLING

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—(AP)—Heavyweight wrestling in Illinois was placed under ban indefinitely today.

The Illinois state athletic commission gave the sport a stunning blow after failing to interest wrestlers of all factions to enter an elimination tournament proposed by the commission to decide the championship.

The commission decided to enforce the suspension of wrestling in the heavyweight division until such time as all championship contenders, or their representatives, appear before the commissioners and agree to satisfactory conditions for an elimination tournament.

General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the commission, told of the efforts made by the commission to clear up the difficulties in the heavyweight class by announcing an elimination tournament, with January 15 as the last day on which entries would be received.

"Certain wrestlers entered with qualifications and there were so many stipulations presented we decided to suspend all heavyweight wrestling and cancel the tournament," General Clinnin said. "We also ordered all forfeits refunded."

PHI DELTS BEAT ARMORY FIVE BY SINGLE POINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 21.—The Indians Phi Delts took a very close and exciting game from the Armory A. A. here tonight, 36 to 35. The Armory A. A. took the lead in the beginning and held it for the first ten minutes and then the score was tied by the Phi Delts until the last minute of the half when Hilligross made a wonderful shot from mid-floor to put his team in the lead.

The second half opened with plenty of action and the Phi Delts scored two baskets in the first minute of play. The Armory team then staged a rally and tied the score at 25-all. From then on the game was nip and tuck until the finish. The last two minutes of play found the Phi Delts counting on a foul which gave them the lead and also the game by a single point.

Normandin and Williams were the big point getters for the locals, while Godreau played a great defensive game. For the Phi Delts, Harris, Hilligross and Munroe played brilliant basketball.

The summary:

Phi Delts	G.	F.	Pts.
Ockomon, rf	1	3	5
Hilligross, lf	3	2	8
Harris, c	4	2	10
Munroe, rg	3	3	9
Arthancrout, lg	2	0	4

Score at half time: Phi Delts 20, Armory 18. Referee, Lambert.

Shires Confers With Bush.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The first overtures between Charles Arthur Shires, and the White Sox over lifting the fighting first baseman's suspension and a 1930 contract, were started today.

Shires conferred at length with the new White Sox manager, Donie Bush, but nothing was announced.

MRS. LAKE TURNS IN BRILLIANT GOLF SCORE

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., Jan. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, 27 year old "ace", today broke Women's Western Golf association course par by eleven strokes and smashed two course records to turn in the medalist card of 77 in the qualifying round of the third annual Pan-American women's amateur golf tournament. Play is on the Edgewater Gulf Hotel golf course here.

Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago's Olympia fields titlist and former western champion, turned in the second low score, an 84. Mrs. Ruth R. Raymond, Baton Rouge, La., former southern champion, was third with a card of 90.

Mrs. Lake, who is devoting her honeymoon to the defense of the Pan-American title, played what observers declared to be the flashiest brand of golf ever exhibited by a woman in this section.

Her low score of 77 over the 6,884 yard, 88-par for women course, broke the Edgewater Gulf course record by two strokes.

Mrs. Lake's other course record today was for putts for which par is 32.

MANDELL SIGNS TO MEET JOEY GOODMAN

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, world's championship lightweight boxer, has signed a contract to meet Joey Goodman of Cleveland here Feb. 3, Promoter Charlie Marotta announced today.

The Mandell-Goodman go will be 12 rounds but Mandell's title will not be at stake. Mandell signed a flat contract for $7,500, Marotta said.

PINGREE LEADS LOCAL Y. M. C. A. TEAM IN SCORING

The Y. M. C. A. team in their quest for the state title are meeting some of the best teams in the state. Of the ten teams in the league not one of the teams is considered "weak". Practically all of the teams have added men to their roster or have replaced men who have not come up to expectations.

The Norwich team scoring up to date is well divided up among the five regulars. This shows a well balanced team with no star, but everybody working together for the benefit of the team. Eccleston playing a stationary guard with seldom a chance to shoot for the basket, has increased his "two point" average of last year up to four points a game this season.

The standing follows:

Pingree	134
Brown	130
Harris	103
Lynch	90
Eccleston	35
Barber	10
Leffingell	4
Grebe	3
Ludlow	2

The Team Scoring

Most of the games played at Y. M. C. A. this year have been so close that there is not a great deal of difference in scoring of the local team, and their opponents.

Middletown, who plays here Saturday, have won most of their games by overwhelming scores.

SENATORS RUN WILD AGAINST THE PIRATES

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators pummeled Pittsburgh into a 7 to 4 defeat and continued the juggling act in the standing of the National Hockey league's Canadian section. The victory again put them in third place a point ahead of Toronto.

After two periods of close hockey that was exciting but ragged, the Senators rallied to rout the Pirates with four goals. Joe Lamb was the scoring ace with three goals while Hec Kilrea had one counter and three assists.

DeKuh Stops Hartwell

EVANS SHOOTS A 72 TO WIN ARTISTS GOLF MATCH

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Exhibiting complete mastery over his shots, Harry Evans, magazine movie critic, turned in a 73 today to win an easy 6 and 5 victory over D. P. Wesson in the first round of the third annual golf tournament of the Artists' and Writers' association.

Evans' card was three strokes under the medal score of Grantland Rice, sports writer, in the qualifying round yesterday and ten strokes better than Rice's score today. Despite his 83 however, Rice eliminated Frank Crowninshield, 4 and 3.

Jeff Machamer, with an 80, defeated Father John B. Kelly, "The Fighting Chaplain", 4 and 2. Other first flight results:

T. Webb defeated A. W. Schepp, 1 up, in 20 holes.

Fontaine Fox defeated F. M. Price, 5 and 4.

Charles McAdams defeated Merle Thorp 3 and 2.

Arthur Somers Roche defeated E. W. Benjamin, 2 and 1.

L. A. Newman defeated Octavus Roy Cohen, 2 and 1.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

The Mississippi flood disaster forms a vivid background for Lon Chaney's latest thriller of the screen, "Thunder," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound synchonrized drama of railroad life, opening a four day run today at the Breed theatre. Chaney, as the veteran engineer in the story, and James Murray as his fireman son run a Chicago Northwestern train into the flood disaster on a vivid piece of rescue work in the new play, most of which was actually filmed on the railroad itself. Chaney drove an engine more than 600 miles in filming the scenes.

The story is an original by Byron Morgan, with William Nigh directing. Phyllis Haver, George Duryea, Wally Albright, Jr., Frances Morris and others of note are in the cast, as well as many actual railroad men.

The story, which abounds in thrills and adventure, is literally an epic of the railroads, though it also has a tender and appealing love theme. Phyllis Haver and James Murray have the two romantic leads.

"I'LL TROUBLE YOU TO USE A DIFFERENT TONE, AubreyAuschincloss," CRIED GERALDINE

"So? And what's wrong with my tone, my haughty beauty?" barked Sir Mortimer.

"Everything possible," she answered him unflinchingly. "Your voice is that of a man gargling in an elevator shaft. Change to OLD GOLDS . . . they protect the throat. No man shall call me honey who does not smoke this honey-smooth cigarette . . . not a cough in a carload."

DUTRA LEADS FIELD IN MEXICAN OPEN; MILLER NOW IN TIE FOR 6TH PLACE

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Jan. 21—(AP)—The Dutra brothers, a swarthy pair of Spanish descent, Olin from Santa Monica, Cal., and Mortie, from Tacoma, Wash., are bent upon taking the greatest prize money offered in golf. Braving a Mexican desert breeze, but in much greater comfort than their exploring ancestors of generations ago, they brought in the lowest scores of the day, 72 each, in competition with more than a hundred of the nation's leading golfers in the second round of the Agua Caliente quest for prizes totalling $25,000.

Tonight Olin Dutra led the field, the tournament half over, with cards of 74 and 72, making the low 146. In the next bracket, of 147, were Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., leading money player of the year, and Charlie Guest of Los Angeles, professional golfers.

MacDonald Smith, canny Scotch Long Island player, was bracketed with five others in the third group of 148 gross players, the company including Mortie Dutra, Gene Sarazen, New York, the former open champion; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., who led yesterday, and Al Watrous of Detroit. Forty-eight of the gold seekers fell by the wayside for it took 156 or less strokes for the two rounds of 36 holes, to win the privilege of continuing in the final two rounds of the tournament tomorrow and Thursday. Five amateurs, however, were admitted under the wire with scores above 156, in order to avoid killing out all amateur competition. Only one simon pure entrant, George Von Elm, finished among the favored.

The desert breeze, quite stiff when the players went to the tee in threesomes, continued throughout the day. While it had its effect upon driving and held scores higher than were expected, it likewise improved the new course, which this tournament dedicates, by drying it from the effect of Sunday night's rain.

Par out ....443 444 452—35
Dutra out .....434 444 462—35
Par in ....436 443 454—36—35—71
Dutra in ......435 444 454—37—35—72

And his brother Mortie did it this way:

Out ....552 533 463—36
In ....533 443 354—36—36—72

Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who took the first day leadership with a brilliant card of 71, did not fare so well today with 77 strokes for the round. For the first five holes out he was one over par on each hole, making the outward nine in 40, but he came back in 37.

"Light Horse" Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., was being married in Los Angeles today, but tomorrow he will be back early in the morning to contend with Olin Dutra for the lead. Monday he played 27 holes, 74 for the first eighteen, the same as Olin Dutra, and 36 for the out nine, compared with 35 for Dutra on that nine today.

Those who found the gold quest at an abrupt end included today Tony Manero, of New York, winner of the Catalina open, in December, and Clarence Clark of Tulsa, Okla., winner of the recent San Gabriel, Cal., amateur-pro event.

George Von Elm, Detroit amateur and member of the Walker cup team, was but three strokes behind the field leader, Olin Dutra. Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion, found the two rounds of his new home course required 150, making a 74, as did Joe Kirkwood, golf trick shot artist, who also grossed 150. Walter Hagen, whose winnings for the past annual season totaled but $80 in prize tournament play did not live up to his reputation as "The Great Haig." He placed considerably down the list with a 153.

Clear blue skies gave no threat of rain to interfere with the 8:30 start tomorrow on the third round of the $25,000 tournament. The qualifiers who go on with the play for the final two days, tomorrow and Thursday, are:

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., 74-72—146.
Charles Guest, Los Angeles, 74-73—147.
Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., 74-73—147.

SCHMELING'S ATLANTIC CITY BOUT IS CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Another move designed to expedite settlement of the muddled heavyweight championship, was made today when Max Schmeling's proposed match in the Atlantic City auditorium, March 29, was called off by the German heavyweight's American manager, Joe Jacobs.

Schmeling's next engagement, according to Jacobs, will be with the winner of the Miami match between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, with every expectation that world's heavyweight championship recognition will be at stake.

The prospect is that Schmeling will fight Sharkey for the title in the feature bout of the milk fund benefit show in the Yankee stadium, late in June. Contingent upon this are a victory for Sharkey over Scott, February 27, and reinstatement for Schmeling in New York.

Jacobs made known his latest move in a telegram to Herman Taylor, of the Philadelphia promotion firm of Taylor and Gunnis. Difficulty had been encountered obtaining a suitable opponent for Schmeling at Atlantic City.

Christopher (Bat) Battalino, Hartford's featherweight champion, tackles his first serious title contender since winning the championship from Andre Routis, when he meets Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sharpshooter, in Madison Square Garden, March 10.

Battalino was slated to box Al Singer in a non-title bout in the Garden, January 31. This match, however, was called off today by Matchmaker Tom McArdle after the featherweight titleholder was taken to a Philadelphia hospital with an infected finger, following a losing match with Lew Massey last night.

Earlier in the day the New York state athletic commission had given its approval to the Singer-Battalino contest with the proviso that Battalino post a forfeit of $5,000 to defend his title against Chocolate in March. McArdle said a new opponent would be sought for Singer.

Jack (Kid) Berg, who rose to the position of lightweight title contender with a decisive victory over Tony Canzoneri last week, filed a challenge with the commission for a match with the 135 pound champion, Sammy Mandell. The solons tabled the defy, pending Berg's return from a visit to England. The pair probably will be brought together next summer.

The shifting of dates at the Garden placed the Johnny Risko-Victorio Campolo bout on February 7, one week earlier than previously arranged. Maxie Rosenbloom and Ace Hudkins, who were scheduled to mix February 7, will furnish the attraction on February 14.

SKATING UNION APPROVES DATES FOR TITLE EVENTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The amateur Skating union of the United States and the Amateur Skating association of Canada today approved the holding of the woman's North American outdoor speed skating championships at Ottawa, Canada, Feb. 7 and 8. The meet will be held in conjunction with the Canadian national outdoor speed skating championships.

The men's North American outdoor speed skating championships will be held at Saranac lake and Lake Placid, N. Y. Feb. 11-14.

BABE RUTH HITS 345 YARD SHOT FROM TEE

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Babe Ruth strode home a winner at the end of the first round of play today in the Glenn H. Curtiss championship golf tournament. The Bambino defeated H. T. Weissinger of Miami, 4 and 2.

The home run king captured the first six holes of today's round and was five up on his opponent at the turn. He went into a slump to lose the next four in a row but rallied to take a snappy four and two victory at the finish.

The swat sultan propelled his tee shot on the fifth hole for 345 yards.

FAST PRELIMS ON SHYMA BOXING CARD

The two six-round preliminary bouts on the Shyma card for next Friday night at the Parish hall in Taftville look like real nice boxing attractions. Although they are of the shorter kind there is every reason to believe that they will be productive of plenty of action. In one bout Ero Peterson of Worcester meets Bennie Novak of the Sub Base and in the other Young Lavigne of the Base and Freddie Neal of Worcester trade punches.

Peterson, who meets Novak, created no little sensation last week at New London when he boxed his way into the hearts of Eastern Connecticut fandom against Julio Rossi of Westerly. Peterson had little trouble of disposing of the Westerly boy and showed the fans that besides being a clever boxer he packs a pretty hefty punch. However, when he meets Novak, he goes against a boy that is well versed in ring tactics and is tricky in the extreme. Novak can hit heavily on his own account and his boxing is on a par with the Worcester boy. Novak is fast and has a great habit of coming off the ropes after the manner of Johnny Dundee. This bout looms as one that should provide plenty of thrills.

Two clever boys will mix it in the other six rounder when Young Lavigne of the Sub Base and Freddie Neal of Worcester meet. Both boys have fought on the Shyma card before and each has made a brilliant showing. Lavigne winning from Young Lissio of Westerly and Neal won from the same boy on a questionable knockout on the next card. All of which goes to show that the boys are evenly matched and should put on a neat exhibition.

Al Beauregard of Taftville who boxes a return bout with Lou Piquette of Bridgeport in the 10 round final is just about in his best condition. He is working out daily with his brother Minnew, who fights Mush Moriarty in the opener. The workout includes plenty of road work in the morning and about five or six hours real work with an axe in the Beauregard wood lot. The evening is spent with light boxing with his sparring partners.

I know now why they call those pictures "talkies."

I sat in back of a couple of the sisters of the gum-chewing brigade yesterday at the theatre and what I learned about pictures and actors and actresses was a caution.

They started to talk as soon as they hit the aisle and they continued to talk all through the picture and they were still talking when they left.

You heard 'em coming down the aisle. "Now, Mame, don't go too far front, pictures are better when seen from back here. Hey, Mame, here's a couple seats in the middle of this row."

"Pardon me, lady, but just pull up your feet so I won't walk on 'em and we'll park over there. Thanks. Come on; Mame, don't be afraid, some people ain't got no manners."

"Now don't get fresh young feller, I wasn't talking to you. And say, didja buy a ticket so's you could park your overcoat there? Well, if you didn't I'm going to sit down in that seat. Come on, Mame whacha waiting for?"

"Say, Mame, ain't these technicolor pictures the berries, eh? I wonder how they make 'em. They can make a homely guy look like you'd like to meet him. What, you don't like 'em you say. Well, there's no accounting for some people's tastes."

"Say, young feller, ain't one chair enough for you? And let me tell you something, you just keep both hands on your hat and it won't be falling down under the seats."

"Oh, Mame, there's Nick Lucas and his geetar. Gosh, that boy sure picks a mean tune outa that box. No, I know he ain't much to look at but he sure can wobble. No, he don't look like an Italian to me, he's got more of a Spanish atmospeas."

"Oh gosh, Mame, ain't that a gorgeous scene? Don't you wish you could be dancing on that floor with your Charlie? Wow, lookit that baby shake her legs. Ain't it a crime the way they let a girl with spindly shanks show 'em that way? Say, if I was that skinny I'd have to stand in one place twice to cast a shadow."

"Well, can you tie that? Lookit them two palookas going to sit down right in front of us. Hey, you guys' squat will you, we paid to look at the picture and not you. Wonder you wouldn't take off your overcoats before you come in. Oh, yeah? Well, so was your old man."

"Come on, Mame, let's get another seat where there ain't a coupla poles in front of us. Excuse me, lady. Yes, we paid for any seat in the house and I guess we can take our choice. Come on, Mame, our money's as good as hers. No I won't shish."

"Sure, lady, you can thank God all you want to but let me tell you it ain't God that's moving me it's them two guys that sat down in front. You couldn't see through 'em with an X-ray."

"Hey, Mame, ain't that just my luck, some guy parked his chewing gum in my fur collar. Hell."

And then peace and quiet reigned in that section of the theatre and I was able to enjoy the last few scenes very nicely.

MAY MAKE CONCERTED ATTACK ON CARNEGIE REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The possibility of a concerted counter-attack on the Carnegie Foundation's famous "bulletin 23" on college athletics loomed today as a result of the University of Michigan's action in making an official reply to some of the charges contained in the report.

In his annual report to the Michigan faculty as chairman of the board of control of athletics Prof. Ralph W. Aigler had charged the Carnegie report was unfair and "almost vicious." This brought a quick reply today from Dr. Howard J. Savage of the foundation who retorted that the foundation had discovered no reason, as yet, for altering any of the statements in that sensational document.

Prof. Aigler said investigators for the foundation had employed the "methods of a prosecutor" and that letters from university files had been removed and not returned. One charge that athletes were subsidized at Michigan in the guise of "writers" was founded, he claimed, on the single instance that Benny Friedman, famous football star, had written for Youth's Companion and some newspapers.

As for the letters, Dr. Savage said they had been given foundation investigators by authorized Michigan authorities and that photostatic copies were returned to the university and that an offer, later, to return the originals had been rejected by a university official.

As for the Friedman incident, Dr. Savage said that readers of the bulletin will realize that "names of institutions mentioned in parentheses are illustrative and are not intended to exhaust the cases on file."

Some observers felt that emboldened by Michigan's stand, other universities whose athletic policies were attacked in the foundation's report might reply officially to the charges made by foundation investigators.

The official exchange between Michigan and the foundation was the first since publication of the report, nearly three months ago.

THOMAS SAYS MACK PAID DEARLY FOR PENNANT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—(AP)—Ira Thomas, coach and scout for the Philadelphia Athletics, told members of the Optimist club today that Connie Mack paid dearly for the 1929 world's championship and that he would spend as much money to win the title this year.

"Mack set out to build a pennant-winner a few years ago," Thomas said, "He paid $25,000 for Max Bishop, then he handed out $100,000 for Lefty Grove. Still he couldn't win. Then he paid $70,000 for Al Simmons, $65,000 for Joe Boley and $20,000 for George Earnshaw. But it wasn't until he developed Rube Walberg and Jimmy Foxx, that great young hitter, and several others that he could produce a pennant winner.

"Managers throw away thousands of dollars on players who later prove a big disappointment. Connie paid $70,000 for Strand and he turned out to be a failure. He passed over $37,000 for Brannon and he too failed. Other managers have done the same thing. I am to blame for some of those bad purchases.

"In order to win the pennant this year Mack has stepped out and purchased the cream of the minor leagues. The Athletics will have such an array of players this year that there is little doubt in my mind they will win."

PLAINFIELD PROS PLAY RETURN GAME WITH INDIANS-SWEDES TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS

Olson's Swedes	Plainfield
Byers, rf	Brusso, rf
Richardson, lf	Kasper, lf
Watt, c	Conway, c
Cartwright, lg	Williams, lg
Stewart, rg	Bernot, rg

When these two teams renew their basketball feud at the Plainfield Community house this evening the basketball fans of eastern Connecticut will be treated to an exceptionally fast contest if previous performances are any criterion. Two more evenly matched than the Plainfield Pros and the Swedes would be very hard to find. Both clubs play a fast and hard game with neither having much of an edge on the other.

In the last game early in the month the Olson aggregation nosed out the Pros in the last 15 seconds of a game that had been nip and tuck from the first whistle. There was so little difference between the two teams that a basket from mid-floor settled in the hoop for the winning points just at the final whistle.

Tonight's game will be just as fast if not just as close although a spectacular win such as the last one is not anticipated. The Swedes as everyone knows are just about the cream of the traveling basketball quintets, being a combination of Olson's Swedes and Jim Thorpe's Indians for many years rated as the leading clubs of the midwest. Anyone who saw the last game will not fail to be at tonight's contest as basketball in big doses is promised by Manager Salisbury.

Supporting the main attraction is a fast preliminary game between the Plainfield Buddies and the Putnam Celtics. The Buddies have piled up an impressive record for this season being undefeated on their home floor and losing but one contest away from home, that to the Taftville Shymas. The Putnam club is an undefeated junior club with almost as imposing a record.

The preliminary gets away at 7:45 and the main game at 9 o'clock. There will be dancing after the game as usual.

SHYMAS HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE DOWNING NOANK

The Shyma club of Taftville continued their winning streak when they swamped the Noank Whirlwinds basketball team Tuesday evening at Parish hall, Taftville, 55 to 23. Rabbit Gauthier led the local boys in scoring, tallying 19 points on nine field goals and on a foul, while Lefty Dugas had 12 points on six field goals.

The Shymas displayed a brilliant brand of basketball, and at no time were the visitors threatening. Clark, at center, with six points, led Noank in scoring.

PLAINFIELD HAS TWO FINE SWIMMING TEAMS

The Plainfield Community association is represented by two fine swimming teams this season, a senior team and a junior outfit. The teams have been showing fast work in the water both in the distance events and in the sprints.

Both the senior and junior teams are booked up with the Providence Y. M. C. A., South Manchester Rec., and Connecticut Aggies swimming teams for meets away and at home, and have meets pending with Worcester Y, Whitinsville and Hartford Y. The teams work out every evening at 6:30 under the direction of Leroy A. Dissinger.

Henry Burby, Robert Connelly and John Korab are swimming the 100 yard event in 65 seconds which is exceptionally good time, considering the world's indoor record to be 55 seconds. The Wood brothers, Ray and Norman are showing well in the short dashes, 20 and 40 yards, swimming the 20 yd. event in 9 seconds and the 40 in 21 seconds.

Other candidates doing well are George Roberge, Henry Korab, the Dumas brothers, Will and Henry, Armond Metevier, Jerry and Conrad Smith, Walter Collin, Walter Harworth, Jean Currier and Thomas Lang.

MILE RELAY TO FEATURE MILLROSE A. A. GAMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—A north-south intersectional mile relay race between the University of North Carolina and one of the best of the eastern college quartets, was announced today as one of the feature events of the annual Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden, February 8.

A team from one of the leading New England colleges will probably be matched with Coach Bob Fetzer's North Carolinains.

LES CANADIENS SHOW WELL IN TROUNCING AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The speed kings of hockey, Les Canadiens of Montreal, showed their best form tonight and defeated the New York Americans, 5 to 2, in a National Hockey league thriller.

Led by Howie Morenz and Nick Wasnie, the Flying Frenchmen completely outskated and outplayed the New Yorkers to gain a three-goal lead in the opening period and to hold it through the wild third frame.

Morenz scored the opening goal and assisted in two others, while Wasnie put in the two third-period counters.

The Americans, always dangerous, did not score until the final frame when Himes and Sheppard tallied.

Leo Reise, big American defense player, was badly injured in a fall in the second period when he struck his head on the ice. He was later reported suffering a concussion of the brain.

GLICK-LOAYZA BOUT IS CALLED OFF

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 21—(AP)—The ten round bout between Stanislaus Loayza and Joe Glick, which was to have headed the card at the Arena A. C. Thursday night, has been indefinitely postponed.

Matchmaker A. Weill tonight said that Loayza was suffering with neuritis in one arm. Unable to find a suitable opponent for Glick, Weill has decided to call off the show.

Weill said that the proposed meeting between Loayza and Glick may take place February 4.

ILLINOIS PUTS BAN ON HEAVYWEIGHT WRESTLING

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—(AP)—Heavyweight wrestling in Illinois was placed under ban indefinitely today.

The Illinois state athletic commission gave the sport a stunning blow after failing to interest wrestlers of all factions to enter an elimination tournament proposed by the commission to decide the championship.

The commission decided to enforce the suspension of wrestling in the heavyweight division until such time as all championship contenders, or their representatives, appear before the commissioners and agree to satisfactory conditions for an elimination tournament.

General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the commission, told of the efforts made by the commission to clear up the difficulties in the heavyweight class by announcing an elimination tournament, with January 15 as the last day on which entries would be received.

"Certain wrestlers entered with qualifications and there were so many stipulations presented we decided to suspend all heavyweight wrestling and cancel the tournament," General Clinnin said. "We also ordered all forfeits refunded."

PHI DELTS BEAT ARMORY FIVE BY SINGLE POINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 21.—The Indiana Phi Delts took a very close and exciting game from the Armory A. A. here tonight, 36 to 35. The Armory A. A. took the lead in the beginning and held it for the first ten minutes and then the score was tied by the Phi Delts until the last minute of the half when Hilligross made a wonderful shot from mid-floor to put his team in the lead.

The second half opened with plenty of action and the Phi Delts scored two baskets in the first minute of play. The Armory team then staged a rally and tied the score at 25-all. From then on the game was nip and tuck until the finish. The last two minutes of play found the Phi Delts counting on a foul which gave them the lead and also the game by a single point.

Normandin and Williams were the big point getters for the locals, while Godreau played a great defensive game. For the Phi Delts, Harris, Hilligross and Munroe played brilliant basketball.

The summary:

Shires Confers With Bush.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—(AP)—The first overtures between Charles Arthur Shires, and the White Sox over lifting the fighting first baseman's suspension and a 1930 contract, were started today.

Shires conferred at length with the new White Sox manager, Donie Bush, but nothing was announced.

MRS. LAKE TURNS IN BRILLIANT GOLF SCORE

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., Jan. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, 21 year old "ace", today broke Women's Western Golf association course par by eleven strokes and smashed two course records to turn in the medalist card of 77 in the qualifying round of the third annual Pan-American women's amateur golf tournament. Play is on the Edgewater Gulf Hotel golf course here.

Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago's Olympia fields titlist and former western champion, turned in the second low score, an 84. Mrs. Ruth R. Raymond, Baton Rouge, La., former southern champion, was third with a card of 90.

Mrs. Lake, who is devoting her honeymoon to the defense of the Pan-American title, played what observers declared to be the flashiest brand of golf ever exhibited by a woman in this section.

Her low score of 77 over the 6,684 yard, 88-par for women course, broke the Edgewater Gulf course record by two strokes.

Mrs. Lake's other course record today was for putts for which par is 32.

MANDELL SIGNS TO MEET JOEY GOODMAN

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, world's championship lightweight boxer, has signed a contract to meet Joey Goodman of Cleveland here Feb. 3, Promoter Charlie Marotta announced today.

The Mandell-Goodman go will be 12 rounds but Mandell's title will not be at stake. Mandell signed a flat contract for $7,500, Marotta said.

PINGREE LEADS LOCAL Y. M. C. A. TEAM IN SCORING

The Y. M. C. A. team in their quest for the state title are meeting some of the best teams in the state. Of the ten teams in the league not one of the teams is considered "weak". Practically all of the teams have added men to their roster or have replaced men who have not come up to expectations.

The Norwich team scoring up to date is well divided up among the five regulars. This shows a well balanced team with no star, but everybody working together for the benefit of the team. Eccleston playing a stationary guard with seldom a chance to shoot for the basket, has increased his "two point" average of last year up to four points a game this season.

The standing follows:

Pingree	134
Brown	130
Harris	108
Lynch	90
Eccleston	35
Barber	10
Leffingell	4
Grebe	3
Ludlow	2

The Team Scoring

Most of the games played at Y. M. C. A. this year have been so close that there is not a great deal of difference in scoring of the local team and their opponents.

Middletown, who plays here Saturday, have won most of their games by overwhelming scores.

SENATORS RUN WILD AGAINST THE PIRATES

OTTAWA, Jan. 21—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators pummeled Pittsburgh into a 7 to 4 defeat and continued the juggling act in the standing of the National Hockey league's Canadian section. The victory again put them in third place a point ahead of Toronto.

After two periods of close hockey that was exciting but ragged, the Senators rallied to rout the Pirates with four goals. Joe Lamb was the scoring ace with three goals while Hec Kilrea had one counter and three assists.

DeKuh Stops Hartwell

EVANS SHOOTS A 72 TO WIN ARTISTS GOLF MATCH

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 21—(AP)—Exhibiting complete mastery over his shots, Harry Evans, magazine movie critic, turned in a 72 today to win an easy 6 and 5 victory over D. P. Wesson in the first round of the third annual golf tournament of the Artists' and Writers' association.

Evans' card was three strokes under the medal score of Grantland Rice, sports writer, in the qualifying round yesterday and ten strokes better than Rice's score today. Despite his 82 however, Rice eliminated Frank Crowninshield, 4 and 3.

Jeff Machamer, with an 80, defeated Father John B. Kelly, "The Fighting Chaplain", 4 and 2. Other first flight results:

T. Webb defeated A. W. Schepp, 1 up, in 20 holes.

Fontaine Fox defeated F. M. Price, 5 and 4.

Charles McAdams defeated Merle Thorp 5 and 3.

Arthur Somers Roche defeated E. W. Benjamin, 2 and 1.

L. A. Newman defeated Octavus Roy Cohen, 3 and 1.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

The Mississippi flood disaster forms a vivid background for Lon Chaney's latest thriller of the screen, "Thunder," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound synchronized drama of railroad life, opening a four day run today at the Breed theatre. Chaney, as the veteran engineer in the story, and James Murray as his fireman son run a Chicago Northwestern train into the flood disaster on a vivid piece of rescue work in the new play, most of which was actually filmed on the railroad itself. Chaney drove an engine more than 600 miles in filming the scenes.

The story is an original by Byron Morgan, with William Nigh directing. Phyllis Haver, George Duryea, Wally Albright, Jr., Frances Morris and others of note are in the cast, as well as many actual railroad men.

The story, which abounds in thrills and adventure, is literally an epic of the railroads, though it also has a tender and appealing love theme. Phyllis Haver and James Murray have the two romantic leads.

GREENEVILLE

A memorial mass of requiem was offered Monday morning at 7:30 at St. Mary's Memorial church for Michael Lafferty by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe. Relatives and family friends were present at the service. Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, organist, had charge of the musical programme of the mass.

OBITUARY

Jerome P. Theve

Tuesday morning, about 10 o'clock, Jerome Pierre Theve passed away suddenly at his home, 9 Elijah street. He became slightly ill Monday while at his work as overseer of the finishing department at the J. B. Martin company and as a result was taken to his home. His condition, however, was not such as to cause any concern, but his death occurred suddenly Tuesday morning at his home. He was born in Lyons, France, January 25, 1872, the son of Pierre and Pierrette Colamb Theve. He went to schools and an agricultural college there before entering the employ of the J. B. Martin company shortly after he had become 16 years old. Officials of the Martin company were quick to recognize his ability and his interests in the manufacture of velvet and as a result soon arranged to send him to the United States to take charge of the finishing department of the Taftville plant. Since locating in this country Mr. Theve has been associated with the J. B. Martin company, supervising the finishing work at the Taftville plant for 25 years, before taking charge of the department in the Franklin street plant about six years ago when the company expanded. Prior to locating in the United States Mr. Theve was united in marriage at Pontdecherny, France, in 1893, with Rosalie Geynet. She, together with a son, Pierre, of this city, and two daughters, Mrs. John Cassidy of Watertown, Conn., and Mrs. Joseph R. Portelance of Norwich, survive him. He also leaves a sister, Mrs Jeanne Poncet in France and six grandchildren.

Mr. Theve was held in the highest esteem by officials of the J. M. Martin company and was admired by the many men and women of Norwich and Taftville who during the past 31 years, were under his supervision at any time. He was a man of many fine qualities, had the welfare of his home close to his heart, at all times making a lovable husband, kind father and was a friend to everyone in need.

In the list of entertainers who appeared at the Men's club meeting Monday evening at St. Andrews' Episcopal church, through an error, two names were omitted, namely: Prof. William Banfield, who performed several puzzling problems, and Prof. Fosley, who presented an act of meritorious mixture of mirth and mystery.

Well Child Conferences

These two well child conferences have been announced by the state department of health: Wauregan, Men's club rooms, Monday, Jan. 27, 2 to 4 p. m.; Putnam, high school auditorium, Tuesday, Jan. 28, 2 to 4 p. m.

Avoid Ugly Pimples

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take [illegible] [illegible] 15c, 30c, 60c.

CITY LEADERS RALLY TO HELP LARRABEE WITH SCOUT CAMPAIGN

At a spirited luncheon held Tuesday noon at the Wauregan hotel, a score of men, prominent as heads of leading organizations in Norwich, expressed their whole hearted confidence in the coming Boy Scout campaign which will be held February 7, and guaranteed H. D. Larrabee, campaign manager, their fullest cooperation.

James L. Case, chairman of the pre-campaign committee known as Division A, got into action and before adjournment had his division organization practically complete. Frank R. Murdy, president of Rotary, though called away to meet a friend, was at the meeting in spirit and before sundown had lined up his division captains. This division will be known as Division B. Ernest O. Rodier, president of the Contact club, expressed his conviction in forceful terms that the Boy Scout movement was worthy of support and volunteered to do his utmost to make the campaign a success.

Arthur M. Brown could not attend the meeting in person, but on behalf of the citizens general committee of which he is chairman, sent word that he was assured that the members of the citizens committee would get behind the captains and workers and put the campaign over.

Earl W. Taggart sent a report that the evenings for the dinners to be held have been arranged and promises that the workers will be bountifully fed.

Lists of captains and team workers were checked over and a meeting will probably be called by Thursday or Friday evening at 5:00 o'clock at the chamber of commerce rooms, to report on division, captain and team line-up.

Abner Schwartz, who was to have been Max Hanover's right hand man, if Mr. Hanover had not become ill and been forced to give up the leadership of the campaign, has assured the organization that he will do his utmost.

President Charles Colt called attention to the service Mr. Larrabee was rendering scouting in taking the leadership of the campaign at a critical moment and made a forceful plea that Norwich men respond and "put the campaign over."

Rev. John J. Reilly rose to his feet and compared the coming finance campaign to the teams at Notre Dame, declaring that with the set up as outlined, five divisions, the citizens of Norwich would receive the full force of the advance and would capitulate in favor of the boys. "Notre Dame's teams," declared Rev. Father Reilly, "have become known throughout this country because a great coach has builded up a team which can first make a shock advance, then fight using the regulars, then make a last determined stand with the reserves. If the first fails the second or third succeeds." He made a strong plea for whole-hearted support.

James P. Sheridan declared that the great work scouting is doing for the boys must be forcibly brought to the attention of the citizens of Norwich in a way never before used. He made several suggestions of how this could be done, which were approved and adopted.

During the meeting a telegram was received from N. E. Fitz, manager of the Broadway theatre, which ran: "Pledge hundred percent support and every possible effort for Broadway theatre toward success of February scout campaign." The telegram was received with applause. John Richardson, secretary of the chamber of commerce, made two important suggestions: That the theatres of Norwich be asked to run slogans in all their advertising, and that a street sign be secured to stretch across the street, announcing the campaign.

Ex-Mayor H. M. Lerou, acting on a suggestion of Mr. Sheridan, declared on behalf of the scouts that he could rely upon their delivering in person 1,000 circulars to homes of scouting friends announcing the campaign.

Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale declared on behalf of the scoutmasters of the council that if the money is raised 500 new scouts will be added by January, 1931, a total of 1,000 scouts.

Scout Executive Sellman pointed to the rapid growth in numbers and quality of service during the past five months, a growth in numbers of over 400 per cent, and sustained Mr. Peale's prediction by declaring that it could be done.

Charles W Cassidy, president of the Lions club, declared 100 per cent cooperation of the club and himself. L. E. Millea, reporting for the campaign publicity, declared that an appeal would be made to every organization in Norwich by letter and by person to get behind the Boy Scouts. A meeting will be called within a few days to build up a campaign speaker's bureau.

As a result of the meeting, Scout Executive Sellman wired Dr. George Fisher, deputy scout executive, second in command of the Boy Scouts of the United States and a nationally known speaker: "Promise 500 new scouts if you or Wyland speak here Feb. 7." Signed, Scout Executive."

Members of the executive board, who could not be present in person, sent their assurance of cooperation in serving on the campaign teams. Scout Commissioner Peale, speaking for the volunteer leaders, declared the men would do their utmost to aid the work of the campaign and make it a success.

On the advice of James L. Case, the full amount of $8,000 will be raised in four days, from Feb. 7 to Feb. 12. Every effort will be made to close up the campaign, personal and mail, within the week. To do so will mean that Monday and Tuesday, Feb 10 and 11, be made the major days for soliciting.

According to Scout Executive Sellman, it costs approximately $10 to keep a boy a scout for one year. At least four persons will be sought to guarantee four new troops of 25 boys each for a year. A score of others will be sought who will each guarantee ten boys for one year; a score more who will guarantee five boys for one year. Two hundred will be sought who will guarantee a boy for a year, and 400 will be sought who will guarantee a scout for six months.

"The boys are willing and waiting to become scouts," declares Mr. Sellman. "We are securing more volunteer leadership. Norwich has an opportunity to double its membership of scouts, increase the quality of the work several fold. Will men and women respond to the boy need as workers, captains, leaders and contributors? We are confident that they will."

SOCIAL WORKERS COUNCIL MET IN NEW LONDON

The January meeting of the Social Workers' Council of New London and Windham counties was held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. in New London. The meeting was called to order by Miss Elizabeth Anderson, president. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Miss Grace Thomas, the treasurer's report by Miss Esther Hill, and the report on memberships by Mrs. Nancy Kromer. It was voted to omit the February meeting, so the next one will be in March, at Willimantic.

After the business meeting a case problem was presented by Miss Irma Hutzler, Judge Frank H. Foss of Willimantic, presiding. Members of the different social agencies present were asked for advice and suggestions in the handling of this problem and a most interesting discussion followed.

Present from Norwich were Miss Irma Hutzler, Miss Esther Hill, Miss Julia Rodman, Mrs. Nancy Kromer, Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, Miss Julia C. Corcoran, Mrs. Ada R. Chase, Miss Constance Raymond, Miss Elsie Church, Miss Margaret Bridgers, Miss Nancy Tomlinson, Mrs. Daniel Polsky, Mrs. Rudolph Henschel, Miss Anna McGrory, F. H. Wyant, Mrs. Rose Hutzler, and from Willimantic, Miss Elizabeth Anderson and Judge and Mrs. Frank H. Foss.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE ON DESERTION GROUNDS

William S. Holmes of New London is being sued for divorce by his wife, Tilley Simon Holmes, also of that city on the grounds of desertion alleged since Oct. 4, 1926. The couple were married on March 7, 1908. The suit is returnable the first Tuesday of February in superior court.

TAFTVILLE

The annual business meeting of the Taftville Congregational church was held Friday evening in the church lecture rooms with the pastor, Rev. William Penner, presiding. The various parochial societies made reports of the year's activities and all showed gains. Richard M. Oat gave the report for the church school, Mrs. Fred Ince for the home department and Mrs. Albert J. Aberg for the cradle roll. Mrs. Adam Leupold read the report for the Ladies' Benevolent society, and also gave an excellent report of the summer school of religious education, which was held at the church during the summer months under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. William Penner, Miss Mildred Dunlop and Miss Helen C. Aberg. The report for the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor was made by Robert B. Schmidt.

The election of officers for 1930 resulted as follows: Deacon for two years, Allan Bogle; members of the standing committee, John W. Brierley and Charles R. Adams; treasurer, George N. Beardow; collector, Robert B. Schmidt; clerk, Allan Bogle; music committee, Miss Nellie S. Howie, Mrs. Elsie K. Pingree and Miss Flossie M. Meyer.

At the close of the business session coffee and sandwiches were served by the members of the board of managers of the Ladies' Benevolent society.

The members of the Thimble club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Albert J. Aberg of North A street. Supper was served by the hostess after the meeting hour.

Fred Knowles is confined to his home on [illegible] avenue by a sprained ankle.

FIRE DAMAGE DONE AT COXETER RESIDENCE

Fire of unknown origin caused an estimated damage Tuesday morning of over $1,000 to the two and a half story frame house located at No. 6 Huntington place and owned by Mrs. Ada C. Coxeter. The blaze was discovered by Miss Evans, an employe of William H. Allen, who lives nearby, and she notified the fire department by telephone at 9:21 o'clock. A short time later a bell alarm from Box 21 was rung in by Richard Marks, a foreman in the employ of the public works department, who was passing by and noticed the flames.

Upon the arrival of the firemen a porch on the second floor of the building, where the fire is believed to have originated, was a mass of flames, which were threatening the roof and later communicated to the rafters. Two water lines and one chemical line were quickly laid and their contents directed upon the burning structure, the stubborn blaze requiring the firemen to remain on the scene for nearly an hour.

The entire fire damage was confined to the upstairs apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haskell, and some water damage was done to the apartment occupied by Mrs. Coxeter on the lower floor. Soon after the fire was discovered Mr. Haskell, who is ill, was taken across the street to the Sunshine Maternity hospital.

The blaze was fought by members of Engines Nos. 1, 3 and 5, Truck No. 1 and Squad A under the direction of Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan.

SUES HIS WIFE ON CLAIM FOR SAVINGS

Rose C. Verdi of New London is made defendant in a suit for $7,000 damages brought in the superior court by her husband, Joseph Verdi, also of that city. It is claimed by the plaintiff that since their marriage, Oct. 10, 1910, he has earned large sums of money, which he has given to his wife to hold for their mutual benefit. It is further alleged in the complaint that since about Dec. 16, 1929, the couple have been separated, but Mrs. Verdi has refused to give her husband half of the savings, amounting to $7,000.

GOLD MEDAL AWARD MADE TO CHARLES F. CHAPMAN

Charles F. Chapman of New York, a son of Mrs. Charles B. Chapman of this city, was awarded the gold medal, an annual award, for the most meritorious service to motorboating in 1929 at the meeting of the regatta circuit riders at the motorboat show in New York city Monday. He is secretary of the racing commission of the American Powerboat association, member of the National Outboard Racing commission and official in other branches of motorboat racing.

Will Supervise Title Companies

Title insurance companies incorporated in Connecticut which guarantee titles to real estate by the issue of title insurance policies are to be supervised and examined by the Connecticut insurance department. Under a new law passed by the last session of the Connecticut legislature, these companies were placed under the jurisdiction of the insurance commissioner. The law provides a fine of not more than $100 for any person or corporation convicted of writing insurance without a certificate of authority.

More than 40 companies have been chartered by the state to transact various lines of business among which is that of guaranteeing titles to real estate.

WOMAN'S CITY CLUB SHOWS ACTIVE PROGRAM

A very interesting business meeting was held Tuesday evening by the Woman's City club in the ball room of the Wauregan hotel, the session being called to order at 7.30 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, with a good attendance.

According to the custom of the club of having a ten minute talk by some person connected with Norwich activities, John Richardson, the new secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce, was introduced by the president. He responded with interesting remarks, especially stressing that there was a big job to be done in Norwich and that it can be done and urged the co-operation of the women to help develop a wonderful civic spirit.

He also informed the club that in the chamber office was a "wall program" on which would be posted the dates of the activities of the prominent organizations when sent into the office, which would help in planning large and important features and do much to avoid the conflict of dates.

The report of the secretary was accepted; also that of the treasurer, showing that the club had a balance of $347.47. The secretary read a letter from the secretary of the Girls' City club thanking the women for the Christmas party given them. Mrs. E. V. Ross of the child study group announced that its next meeting would be held on Jan. 27, at 3 p. m. instead of the first date announced, and that Mrs John P. Huntington would speak on the topic, New Ideas About Obedience.

Reports of the girls' committee, hospitality committee and membership committee, showing a present membership of 519, were accepted. Mrs. Allen Latham gave an interesting report on the work of the publicity committee and explained in detail how the work was organized and every department of the club provided with some one in charge of the publicity.

Miss Margarete Suck for the music committee, announced that in March the club would have a very special treat in the way of an operetta entitled, The Jade Doll, written and produced by Miss Leila Church of Rockville, to which the club members would be admitted free of charge. Miss Elizabeth Huntington for the civics department reported some very fine and worthy plans under way which will be announced later. Special announcement was made of the forthcoming bridge party and tea to be held by the club.

The president announced that according to the new by-laws the nominating committee should be appointed at this meeting, according to which three members of this committee were appointed by the executive committee as follows; Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer, chairman, Mrs. Raymond R. Sherman and Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll. The two members appointed from the floor are Mrs. Edwin B. Floyd and Miss Rosalie Bennett. The committee was instructed to report back at the February meeting the result of its finding.

After adjournment Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell and her committee took charge of an informal social time during which old and new games were played, charades acted and everyone enjoyed a good sing. Refreshments of chocolates and wafers were served under the direction of Miss Amy Burlingame.

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH AT UNCASVILLE

Samuel C. Deane of No. 32 Spring Garden avenue, this city, superintendent of the Saxony Corp. mill at Thamesville, formerly the Winchester mill, and Samuel Kaplan of New York, prominent millman, were injured, the latter quite seriously, in an accident which occurred about 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon near the "Old Switch" at Uncasville in the town of Montville. Harry Beck, also of New York, who is said to be employed as a salesman, with eastern Connecticut as his district, was also injured in the collision.

According to what could be learned of the accident, Mr. Kaplan accompanied by Deane was riding in a southerly direction on their way to New London, where they intended to catch a train for Washington. The other car operated by Beck was proceeding toward Norwich. When the machines reached a point near the "Old Switch" they came together head-on, completely demolishing both of them.

The three men were rushed to the home of Dr. John J. Donohue, Jr., of Uncasville, where they were attended for numerous lacerations. Mr. Kaplan suffered lacerations about the scalp, which required 10 stitches to close. He was in a weakened condition from shock and the loss of blood. Mr. Deane received minor injuries to his right side and was badly shaken up, while Beck had cuts about the neck and face and probable internal injuries.

Nolled on Payment of Costs

In the city court Tuesday morning the cases of William Johnson, 45, and Stanley Morawiec, 37, both of Montville, charged with intoxication and defrauding a restaurant, were nolled on payment of costs of court of $1.95 each. The two men are said to have ordered a meal at a West Side restaurant Monday evening and refused to pay for it. Officers Pounch, Patterson and Garrish arrested them.

Will Exemplify Third Degree

At the regular meeting of White Cross council, No. 13, at the Knights of Columbus home, Tuesday evening, Grand Knight James P. Sheridan announced that the third degree would be exemplified Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's Memorial church hall, followed by a luncheon at the K. of C. home. The enlarged and renovated dining room there will receive its initial opening at this time.

Reports of various committees were received and the evening closed with a social hour and refreshments.

BUILDING LOAN OFFICERS ARE ALL RE-ELECTED

Officers were re-elected as follows by the Norwich Building and Loan association at its annual meeting which was held Tuesday evening at the chamber of commerce rooms: Ernest O. Rodier, president; H. M. Lerou, first vice-president; Roy D. Judd, second vice-president; Henry D. Johnson, secretary; Alexander Sharp, assistant secretary; Charles I. Smith, treasurer; James F. Fleming, assistant treasurer; directors, L. M. Crandall, William S. Elliott, Louis J. Fontaine, Louis H. Geer, Hermon J. Gibbs, Edward J. Graham, Robert McNeely, George S. Powers, Jacob R. Slosberg, Herman Stelzner, David A. Tongren, Earle M. Wood; auditors, Frederick H. Topliff, Charles D. Foster, James E. McCormick.

Charles V. James was re-appointed attorney by the board of managers.

Fourteen shares of the sixth series, which reached their maturing date, were paid off at the rate of $206.83 per share and announcement was made of good progress in opening the 30th series this month in which the goal is 1,200 shares.

The semi-annual report of the secretary showed that the six per cent dividend rate had been maintained and reference was made to the fact that the meeting night was on "National Own Your Own Home Day" in national thrift week, a most appropriate time for pushing the work of the building and loan association.

SLIDING IS ALLOWED UNDER POLICE PROTECTION

About 50 boys and girls enjoyed sliding on Union street, a one-way thoroughfare south, Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock under police protection. Officers were stationed at the head of the street near St. Patrick's church and at Union square, to see that the coasters were not molested by vehicular traffic. During the sliding hours traffic was sent down Broadway. The officers on duty were Patrick Shahan, Edward A. Burns and Gwiazdowski.

Thomas Moore.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 21.—Thomas Moore, formerly of Norwich, where he married Mary Kelly of Yantic, died today at Clairmont, Fla. He was 62 years old and was living in retirement, having inherited a large fortune from his father. Mr. Moore was in charge of the janitors of New London schools for several years. His father was James Moore, an estimable resident of Norwich, for many years. Mr. Moore had two sons.

Mother of Eight Boys

"I read an ad in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. I have given birth to eight boys and I feel strong right after, since I have taken the Compound."—Mrs. Maud Meyers, 460 E. 13th Street, Dubuque, Iowa.

NORWICH TOWN

FUNERAL SERVICES TUESDAY FOR MRS. CLINTON A. HARVEY

Funeral services for Mrs. L. Jane Harvey, wife of the late Clinton A. Harvey of Norwich, took place Tuesday afternoon at the residence of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hyde, 26 Canterbury Turnpike, Norwich Town, with whom she had resided since November 1st, 1921. Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) conducted the services, and read a poem entitled "Peace." Rev. Mr. Foster also conducted the committal service at the grave in Hamilton avenue cemetery. Relatives, friends and neighbors were present from Ledyard, Franklin, Preston and Norwich. There were choice floral forms and emblems. The bearers were Frank E. and Harry L. Hyde, George R. Fellows and Claudius V. Pendleton. Undertaker Charles A. Gager was in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Harvey has been a loyal member of the Universalist church for many years. Having been in declining health for several months, she bore her illness uncomplainingly. A loving mother and companion in the home, her sweetness of character and quiet personality endeared her to those with whom she was closely associated. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Frank E. Hyde of Norwich Town, and Mrs. Charles H. Osgood, of Washington street, Norwich, also by a sister, Mrs. H. J. Revell of Norwich.

Mrs. John Casey

The funeral of Mary Hennessey, wife of the late John Casey was held Tuesday morning at 8:15 from her home, 77 West Town stdeet. In the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn sang the high mass of requiem which was attended by a large assemblage of relatives, friends and neighbors. Mrs. William A. Murphy, organist, was in charge of the musical part of the service. At the offertory, Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis. For a waiting hymn Frank R. Murdy rendered "My God, My Father, While I Stray." As the body was borne from the church, the choir sang Lead, Kindly Light. There were exquisite floral pieces. The bearers were William A. Murphy, Timothy Fields, Thomas Mara, Delore Herbert, John Nagles and Jeremiah Murphy. Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Father Quinn read the committal service. Cummings and Ring were in charge of the arrangements. Relatives were present from New York, Rockville and New London. Although in failing health for some time and in deep grief over the death of a beloved daughter less than a year ago, Mrs. Casey's death came suddenly, after a serious surgical operation in a vain endeavor to overcome the malady with which she was afflicted. The sympathy of the community has been manifested for the family in this second great bereavement in so short a time, through the loss of mother and sister.

The Methodist Episcopal church, recently redecorated as a memorial gift, is receiving another much appreciated present. Two beautiful wrought copper lanterns are being erected over the two doors at the front of the church. The lanterns are provided with high powered lights that will illumine the stone steps and thereby make them much safer. The lanterns are a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford H. Snow who are regular attendants of the church, Mr. Snow being one of the trustees.

At a meeting of the Wolf Cub Pack of Scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday afternoon the new Cub Promise and Law was distributed among the members. Donald Olsen, assistant cubmaster was in charge of the inspection of the pack. Snatch-the-bacon was the game enjoyed during the play period. The cubmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter read another installment in the story being so keenly enjoyed by the Cubs. There was a small attendance due to the fact that a number are ill and because of weather conditions. The attendance was 15. The treasurer, John Gibbs gave an interesting report.

A group of men who are members and friends of the Methodist Episcopal church, held an interesting meeting at the parsonage Monday night. A committee was appointed to report at the next meeting. Following the second meeting an important announcement is to be made public.

MELLON NON-COMMITTAL ON CONTROVERSY OF DRY LAW

Declined to Express Personal Views as to Whether Prohibition Can be Enforced—Is Positive That the Prohibition Bureau Has Done Everything Possible to Enforce the Law—Commissioner Doran Supported Secretary Mellon in Advocating Transfer of Volstead Law Enforcement to the Justice Department—Representative Schafer Clashed With Commissioner Doran.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—Secretary Mellon's testimony advocating that prohibition enforcement be lodged with the justice department, was followed today by a clash between Prohibition Commissioner Doran and Rep. Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, which brought a sudden adjournment of hearings before the house expenditures committee.

As the first of President Hoover's proposals for strengthening prohibition enforcement was called up for discussion, the wet members of the committee listened in silence to Secretary Mellon. He read a prepared statement approving the Williamson bill to effect the transfer from the treasury of responsibility for Volstead enforcement, in which he insisted that the justice department could better accomplish the task.

Commissioner Doran, who has charge of the prohibition bureau, took the stand after his chief. Schafer—a wet—precipitated a brisk skirmish with charges that dry agents had violated search and seizure provisions of the constitution without being penalized. Doran took emphatic exception.

Especial interest was attached to Doran's views today with the circulation of rumors that he intended to resign when the proposed transfer of his bureau is effected. He supported Mellon in advocating the change. To date, he has refrained from either verifying or denying the reports that he contemplates leaving the government service. Assistant Secretary Lowman has not received his resignation.

Schafer demanded an opportunity to interrogate Doran, and objected at times to the way he was answered. Chairman Williamson of the committee obviated further exchanges by terminating the hearing.

At the outset the Wisconsin representative inquired why he had not been furnished requested information on industrial alcohol withdrawals, and charges that the bureau had failed to oust agents who violated the search and seizure law. Doran rejoined that Schafer had not charged any violation of law in the withdrawal of alcohol and was not entitled to the information. He declared the department always had disciplined agents who violated its regulations and the laws.

A motion by Schafer to compel the commissioner to give information on alcohol withdrawals resulted in confusion. After exchanges between various members of the committee and Doran, the group decided by a vote of 12 to 6 to postpone action until an executive meeting. Chairman Williamson thereupon adjourned the meeting and called for another to be held behind closed doors tomorrow.

The gray haired treasury secretary sat slumped in a chair as he read the declaration that placing of the prohibition enforcement bureau in the treasury department had been an illogical choice of congress.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, who has charge of prohibition, and Commissioner Doran stood close at each side of Mellon as he read and then turned to his questioners.

Mellon endorsed the Williamson bill to provide for the transfer, and also for the creation of a new bureau to handle industrial alcohol and medicinal liquors permits in the treasury department. It was the duty of the justice department, he said, to prosecute violators of the law, declaring the preparation of cases by one agency and the prosecution of them by another constituted an anomaly.

Representative Igoe, republican, Illinois, asked whether he believed the prohibition bureau under the treasury had done everything possible to enforce the law. Mellon replied that he did not believe the question about the efficiency of the agency was pertinent to the question of transfer.

"Do you believe that the prohibition bureau has done everything possible to enforce the law?" Igoe insisted.

"I am sure we have made every effort to carry out our responsibility," the secretary answered.

"Then you think prohibition can be enforced?" Igoe asked.

"As I say, this is a matter of legislation before us," straightening up in his chair. "Prohibition is a very controversial subject and I don't see that this is any place to express personal opinions."

As Representative Schafer began to interrogate Mellon, Commissioner Doran leaned frequently to the right ear of the secretary before answers were forthcoming. Apparently dissatisfied with the secretary's replies to questions regarding information on withdrawals of industrial alcohol by certain concerns, the Wisconsin representative said the Williamson bill should be amended to provide that the treasurer submit a report to congress on the prohibition agents who had been charged with violating the search and seizure provisions of the constitution and those who had not been convicted of violating them. Doran interrupted Secretary Mellon as he began to answer.

The commissioner declared that the treasury "had never failed to discipline officers guilty of derelictions."

COURT FINDS FLAW IN FED. PROHIBITION LAW

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 22—(AP)—Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough, in an opinion handed down today, declared unconstitutional that part of the federal prohibition law which permits personal injunctions against liquor law violators.

Judge Woodrough's ruling was in the case of Frank Cunningham of Scotts Bluff, Neb., against whom the government had filed several injunction suits on the strength of the fact that Cunningham had been arrested several times on charges of selling liquor.

In a nine page memorandum Judge Woodrough set forth his ruling as follows:

"A trial and acquittal by jury is to afford protection against this equity [illegible] (the personal injunction). Jury [illegible] by the constitution as the bulwark of liberty, and a shield against the oppression of government, simply fades out of the picture—if the judge thinks the defendant is guilty regardless of what a jury might have said in the matter, the judge shall lay perpetual injunction upon him, and thereafter, during the life of the accused, if the judge thinks the man has offended again, the judge shall imprison him.

"There runs through the act the idea that the man himself, the human being, is a nuisance, and so beyond the pale of the right to trial by jury."

Judge Woodrough, in announcing his opinion said the section of the law which permits personal injunctions has been a "dead letter" in the law for 10 years because it shocks common sense and common understanding of the constitution.

"Who thinks that when a bootlegger is placed under injunction that he will quit for the rest of his life?" the judge asked.

"The hope and expectation, and the only one, is that the man will be placed in jail without the trouble of a jury trial."

PROHIBITION DOMINANT PROBLEM IN ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—Louis K. Liggett, republican national committeeman for Massachusetts, after a conference with President Hoover today said the dominant problem in the election of a senator to succeed Senator Gillett was prohibition.

Liggett was in conference with President Hoover for more than an hour. He said he had discussed the problems of the republican party in Massachusetts, among which is the choosing of a candidate for the senate seat to be vacated by Senator Gillett.

He recalled that the state had rolled up a 250,000 majority in 1928 in favor of memorializing congress to repeal the 18th amendment.

In Massachusetts, he said, only 25 per cent of the republican voters take part in the primaries and they are mostly dry.

This situation, he added, probably will mean an effort of the republican party to elect a dry senator in a wet state.

Liggett declared he was unable to say who would be candidates for the republican nomination, but that he was of the opinion there would be at least three and probably four.

Questioned as to whether he thought Calvin Coolidge would be a candidate, he replied that he never had given serious consideration to the possibility.

"I know Mr. Coolidge very well," he said, "but I would be the last man on earth to say anything to him about running for the senate. I don't know what would happen, but I'd bet that it would be unpleasant."

A $30,000 POLICY OF ALIMONY INSURANCE

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—(AP)—Alimony insurance made its debut today in the divorce court of Judge Joseph Sabath with Frank E. Mueller, construction engineer, presenting a $30,000 policy to assure the payment of $500 a month to Mrs. Mary E. Mueller for the next five years.

At a previous hearing of the couple's divorce suit, Mrs. Mueller had demanded some security that her husband would pay her the $500, monthly. "I'll get an insurance policy for it," Mr. Mueller proffered. So the case was continued until today when Mueller appeared with the $30,000 guarantee.

Judge Sabath, veteran divorce jurist, said the new insurance was a boon to divorce. "It not only helps husband and wife, but it simplifies the problems of the court. These people will not return here for at least five years and the court is relieved of the job of forcing the husband to pay alimony."

SICK TO DEATH OF THE BAY STATE BOOK LAW

BOSTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—A Massachusetts district attorney, who recently successfully prosecuted a case under the state's widely known book law, today urged moderate revision, declaring himself "sick to death of the ridicule that has been heaped upon Massachusetts and Boston."

Appearing before the joint legislative committee on legal affairs, District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex county, explained that he was opposed to letting down the bars to pornographic literature but he favored a proposal to revise the law so that a book or article might be judged as a whole rather than by isolated passages.

BODY OF ENTOMBED MINER RECOVERED

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 22—(AP)—The body of Harold Van Sickle, one of the three men entombed in the Jermyn mines of the Hudson Coal company yesterday by a fall of rock, was found by rescue workers tonight. Tons of rock, coal and dirt were removed by the rescuers in the last 36 hours before the body was reached.

Rescue workers tonight believed that it will be only a matter of hours before they recover the bodies of the two other entombed men.

WORKING TO RESCUE FLOOD-BOUND VICTIMS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 22—(AP)—In the face of near zero weather which made the situation hourly more acute, rescue parties tonight battled from a new front to reach several hundred flood and ice-bound victims of the St. Francis and Big Lake overflows in northeastern Missouri and northeastern Arkansas.

CABLE PARAGRAPHS

MADRID, Jan. 22—(AP)—The National university, closed today after the students began a strike, was strongly guarded tonight to prevent further attempts at disorder.

LA PAZ, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Paraguayan statement in Washington that Bolivia had ordered a general attack in the Chaco Boreal region was characterized by President Siles today as "Paraguay's latest humbug."

LONDON, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Daily News today says that sealed envelope containing the name of the late General Bramwell Booth's nominee to succeed him as head of the Salvation Army was burned unopened by the solicitor of the Army yesterday in the presence of several commissioners.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 22—(AP)—The foreign minister in a statement disclosed that military movements on the Guatemalan border had threatened the life of the joint boundary dispute conference which now is seeking solution of the problem. The status quo ante was restored, however, and the conference met on Monday.

NO CLUE OF CONVICTS LALONE AND MOULTHROPE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 22—(AP)—Lengthy examination of Leo Landry tonight had failed to draw any information that might lead to the apprehension of Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, with whom he escaped from the state prison at Wethersfield, Conn., on January 4.

Landry was arrested here Sunday in connection with the fatal shooting last Friday of Detective W. D. Smith and the wounding of Detective Willie Jones. Lalone and Moulthrope are also wanted for this affair.

Three other men have been arrested, but so far have been unable to furnish any information concerning the whereabouts of the two Connecticut fugitives. They are H. L. Irwin and Charles B. Davis, who were brought here from Orlando, and W. R. Hunt, of this city.

Irwin and Davis are said by police to have been with the three Connecticut convicts shortly before the two detectives were shot. Hunt, police charge, traded a pistol with Moulthrope for two diamond rings. The pistol is believed to be the one used in the shooting, while the rings have been identified as ones stolen in a local home.

MOTORBOAT WAS RAMMED BY COAST GUARD VESSEL

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 22—(AP)—The Vancouver deep sea motorboat Taiheivo was pursued and rammed by the U. S. coast guard vessel Bonham, on January 17 near the Guadalupe islands, off the coast of Mexico, her owners were informed today.

The Taiheivo is now beached on one of the Guadalupe islands, her master, Captain J. Butler, reported.

Protest has been sent to Ottawa concerning the incident.

Captain Butler reported his vessel was in ballast bound for home when she was pursued and run down by the Bonham.

He states she had no liquor aboard, nor had she carried any on the trip. Another small craft, it was reported, saved the rammed boat from sinking, by putting lines on her and towing her to a beach.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO REV. JAMES M. S. ISENBERG

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Jan. 22—(AP)—The Rev. James M. S. Isenberg, vice president of Ursinus college, was injured fatally late today, and his wife also was hurt, when their automobile collided with a street car a few miles from here. He died in a hospital tonight.

The accident occurred on Skippack hill at a point where a switch branches off from the main line of the Norristown-Pottstown trolley line and crosses Ridge Pike.

The automobile was tossed into a ditch and Dr. Isenberg fell unconscious in the road. Some time later Mrs. Isenberg was found unconscious on an embankment. She had been thrown clear and had not been noticed. She received a fractured collar bone and internal injuries.

WICKERSHAM SPEAKS ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—Chairman Wickersham of the law enforcement commission explained to the country tonight over the radio that the real purpose of the commission "is to bring forth," if it is possible, deep-seated and positive reforms which will decrease criminality in the United States and secure greater respect for law."

"Despite much clamor and many lurid statements," he said, "the enforcement of prohibition is only a part, and not the most important part, of our task. Complaints of the inadequacy of the American system of criminal prosecution and judicial procedure were acute before the 18th amendment was adopted."

HARTFORD CONTRACTOR STRICKEN IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22—(AP)—Stricken by an internal hemorrhage while attending the Associated General Contractors of America convention here today, State Senator Michael A. Connor, of Hartford, Conn., was resting well tonight at a local hospital.

The Connecticut legislator was taken ill while presiding as chairman of the finance committee of the Contractors' association.

PLANES DROP FOOD TO FLOOD MAROONED FAMILIES

VINCENNES, Ind., Jan. 22—(AP)—Heroic measures were adopted today to carry relief to the flood marooned families in Knox, Gibson and Posey counties in southern Indiana.

From an airplane piloted by Lieutenant Laurence Genaro of the U. S. army air service, supplies were dropped for a group of 150 persons stranded on the Claypool hills, 15 miles south of here in Knox county.

TESTIFY MOORE RAID WAS MADE DURING DAYLIGHT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Testimony that the raid on the George W. Moore residence here last Saturday in which two dry agents were killed was made during daylight, was given at the inquest here this afternoon by two survivors of the raiding party.

Arrest Made In East Hampton Bank Case

Earle S. Stevens, For[illegible] Treasurer, Charged [illegible] Embezzlement—Held in $10,000 Bond.

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Jan. 22—Earle S. Stevens, who resigned as treasurer of the East Hampton Bank and Trust company, recently, was arrested today on a charge of embezzlement. He was immediately arraigned before Justice of Peace George A. Hart, and held in $10,000 bonds for the next term of the Middlesex county superior court.

The amount of the alleged defalcations was not specified in the warrant sworn out by Judge Thomas C. Flood, counsel for the bank.

A statement issued by Judge Flood last Friday, however, disclosed a loss of more than $70,000 through irregularities involving Stevens and Clarke W. Burnham. Burnham resigned as executive vice president January 3.

At a special meeting of the bank's board of directors this morning, George F. Brott, assistant cashier of the Phoenix State Bank and Trust company, Hartford, was elected treasurer to succeed Stevens.

In the statement issued by Judge Flood assurance was given that the bank's affairs were in a solvent condition, and any loss was protected by ample surety.

The president of the bank, Chauncey G. Bevin, is in Florida, but is said to be keeping in touch with the situation.

The bank's statement said that two audits were being conducted for the purpose of verifying its assets and liabilities.

REPORT OF KIDNAPING OF SMITH COLLEGE GIRL

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 22—(AP)—Virtually snatched from the campus, a Smith college girl whose name was being carefully shielded today, was kidnaped last night and held captive nearly two hours by two men and a woman.

William Allan Neilson, president of the college, announced the kidnaping today, "to allay rumors which I understand are in circulation."

The girl was stopped on a street near the campus and asked the direction to the president's house. As she was replying she was pulled into an automobile, blindfolded, and driven to a house which she believed a considerable distance from the town. There she was held prisoner in a room while her three captors ate in another part of the house.

Later, she argued at length with them, warning them, she said, that they could not kidnap a college girl without an immediate alarm being sounded. In this way, she said, she dissuaded them from holding her and one of the men drove her back to the vicinity of the college. She immediately reported the matter to college authorities, but no report was made to the local police.

HEARING BEFORE HOUSE IMMIGRATION COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—Ill feeling which could endanger lives along the border, and lack of Mexican labor which would hamper development of the southwest, were depicted to the house immigration committee today as results which might come from raising the bars against immigrants from Latin-American countries.

Appearing with a group from the southwest to present the opposition of agricultural interests to proposals to place western hemisphere immigration on a quota basis, Judge H. L. Yates of Brownsville, Texas, said that if the supply of Mexican labor were cut off it would stop development of the lower Rio Grande valley.

COMPLETING ITINERARY FOR FLYING CLINIC

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22—(AP)—Completion of the itinerary for the six American physicians and surgeons who will embark from here Friday morning in a flying clinic through Central and South America was announced today by Pan-American Airways officials.

Arrangements for stop overs in the eleven countries to be visited include in many instances receptions by national governments, the officials said. During the 6,808 mile tour, the six medical men will offer their knowledge of recent developments in their profession to Central and South American physicians who are unable to attend the Pan-American Medical association convention in Panama City January 26.

TRAINMAN WILL SHARE IN A $2,000,000 ESTATE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22—(AP)—Thomas F. Doyle, who with two brothers will share the $2,000,000 estate of Edward J. Boyle, deceased Boston clothing merchant, is a trainman employed by the Texas & Pacific railroad, at McDonoughville, across the Mississippi river from New Orleans. He is 54 years old, is married and has five children. He came to McDonoughville in 1910 from Millbury, Mass.

Wa[illegible]'s Views On [illegible]ariff Legislation

[illegible]y Granting Reasonable Protection For Agriculture, Manufacturers Can Maintain Schedules.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senator Walcott of Connecticut has been in close and watchful attendance of tariff debate, ever since it came to the senate from the house several months ago. He has exerted his influence not only towards prosperity of the entire country, according to its needs of protection, but has paid specific attention to the needs of Connecticut.

Yesterday, in reply to the question, "What do you think will be the outcome of the tariff legislation, now before congress?" Senator Walcott made a concise and clear reply.

Said he: "I think it worthwhile to keep on fighting in the hope that by granting reasonable protection for agriculture, which is needed and which was pledged a year ago, we can maintain the manufacturing schedules of 1922 plus such advances as are clearly needed by those concerns which have not been able to show reasonable profits under the old bill.

"Then, if the conferees have the courage to strike out the debentures from the bill, and add reasonable flexible features, so the president can readjust certain things which may be recommended from time to time by the tariff commission when congress is not in session, we will have a bill which will be acceptable to the president and carry out party pledges. A bill which, in my opinion, the insurgents and some of the democrats must support."

"Just how do you place the difference between insurgents and progressives of the senate?" asked The Bulletin correspondent.

The senator made it clear that he regards them as far apart in their views and acts. He feels that senators, who were elected on a republican ticket only to desert it after election and forsake the party pledges and the president, as party leader, and join the opposition party, are insurgents; while senators who were elected on the republican ticket, and after election hold to the fundamental principles of that party and follow the president as the party leader, may properly urge progressive steps, which other republicans may not deem necessary.

"What do you believe will be the course followed by the farm bloc, if some of the features they so strongly urge are dropped from the bill in conference?" was the next question asked.

"In conclusion," replied the senator, "I might say that members of the so-called farm bloc cannot be caught defeating the most serious attempt to relieve the distress of the farmer that has ever been made by republicans in the senate."

BOARD FAVORS PAROLE OF DR. FREDERICK A. COOK

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Although official announcement was lacking, it was learned on good authority today that a parole has been recommended for Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer and oil promoter, who has spent nearly five years in Leavenworth federal penitentiary.

It is believed here that Dr. Cook will be released some time in February, provided the parole is finally approved.

The one time Arctic explorer, whose announcement that he had discovered the north pole in 1908, later was discredited by Admiral Peary and many scientific bodies, has indicated he will devote himself to writing after his discharge. He has been editor of the New Era, prison publication, since his imprisonment.

CONTEMPT CHARGE FACES THE REV. PHILIP YARROW

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Cited for contempt of court, the Rev. Philip Yarrow, who is carrying on a campaign against indecent literature, today was given until February 4 to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for declaring he "had as much chance of getting a square deal in the municipal courts as a cake of ice has in the mouth of Mt. Pelee."

At the same time the Rev. Mr. Yarrow was given his continuance, the state dismissed its case against John Youngman, bookstore clerk, against whom the militant minister was the state's chief witness. Youngman was charged with possessing indecent literature after the Rev. Mr. Yarrow, as head of the Illinois Vigilance society, had caused his arrest.

COLD WEATHER EXTENDS ALONG THE GULF STATES

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22—(AP)—A blanket of severe cold spread eastward over the south tonight from its subzero center in Arkansas to the Atlantic coast, extending to the Gulf of Mexico, and promising freezing weather deep into the Florida Peninsula.

GIRL OF 16 GIVEN YEAR IN TOLLAND COUNTY JAIL FOR SHOOTING FATHER

ROCKVILLE, Jan. 22—(AP)—After her father, Steve Gerick, 52, had asked for leniency for her, Jeanette Gerick, 16, one of twelve children, was today sentenced to a year in Tolland county jail for shooting him twice in the head October 15, last.

Sentence was passed by Judge John Rufus Booth of New Haven, in criminal superior court here.

The girl last week pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to murder, but when today the charge was modified to intent to kill, she changed her plea.

The plea by Jeanette's father for leniency was not made in court but earlier in a conference with State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone. He asked for the state's consideration on the grounds that she was after all, his daughter.

William A. King, of Willimantic, for the defense, asked that the girl be given no more than nine months, that she might start school again in the fall, but the court followed the state's recommendation of one year. State's Attorney Noone said that he thought the influences she might undergo at state's prison or at Niantic, might be detrimental to her and so suggested the court confine her in the county jail.

The Gerick girl shot her father twice in the head as he slept in his chair in the kitchen on the evening of October 15. She told police that she had been unable to bear her father's alleged abuse any longer. It was brought out in court that her father had reprimanded her for staying out at night and for not going to church, but that no abuse sufficient to instigate her act had been visited upon her.

How the girl got the pistol with which she shot her father introduced a note of mystery into the case. It was brought out during the trial that Jeanette's sister Blanche, 19, had purchased the gun in Hartford for some reason [illegible], and given it to her [illegible]. Jeanette found the gun in the [illegible] the night she fired it.

NAVAL CONFERENCE ENVOYS CONTINUE EXCHANGE VIEWS

Delegates Are Endeavoring to Remove Preliminary Difficulties Previous to the First Business Meeting This Morning—General Meeting of the American Delegation Lasted Two Hours—Americans Are Disposed to Await Presentation of the Needs of Other Naval Nations.

LONDON, Jan. 22—(AP)—The American, British, French, Italian and Japanese delegates to the five-power naval conference, played hide and seek all over London today in final exchanges of views before the first business meeting at St. James' palace tomorrow morning, when the chief delegates are to outline the general naval needs of their countries.

With quiet talks in the seclusion of their own headquarters and at the residence of the British prime minister, the delegates endeavored to remove preliminary difficulties and reach an understanding before buckling down to actual work.

Mr. Stimson convened a general meeting of the American delegation at 10 a. m., which lasted for two hours, and then called on Mr. MacDonald at Number 10 Downing street. Before going to lunch, he also saw ex-Premier Wakatsuki, of Japan. After luncheon with Mrs. Stimson, he worked all afternoon in the offices of the American delegation, rounding out his statement for tomorrow's session.

Meanwhile, he had sent Ambassador Dawes with Senator Reed and Senator Robinson to see the Japanese, and later Ambassador Hugh Gibson to see Premier Tardieu of France and Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy.

Prime Minister MacDonald was equally busy. After a cabinet meeting at 10:30 a. m., he met the French delegates in Downing street at 11, skipped over to parliament after seeing Secretary Stimson, and answered questions at the house of commons, and returned to Downing street in time to receive M. Wakatsuki before tea time. Between his calls to conferences and to the house of commons he found time to broadcast a message on the conference to the United States.

As yet only the broadest phases of the problems confronting the conference have been touched upon, the conciliatory note remains dominant.

Nevertheless, the British, the Americans and the French spontaneously blocked today the first seriously erroneous report rent abroad about the nature of the proceedings. This report was to the effect that Premier Tardieu of France was acting as mediator between Great Britain and the United States, who were described as being "far apart."

British official circles quickly discredited the report, the American delegation expressed surprise that it had been circulated, and Premier Tardieu himself and the French delegation met it with an official denial.

Mr. MacDonald will call the delegates to order tomorrow morning with more solid assurances of full support from all sections of the British public than even most of his friends had anticipated. His address at the inaugural plenary session yesterday was considered something of a triumph in formulating in words the problems and hopes of these sea-girt isles.

The position of the American delegation late tonight with regard to negotiations thus far was that Secretary Stimson and colleagues await with greatest interest presentation of the naval needs of the other nations. Up to a late hour the Americans were wholly uninformed on the position the others will follow.

Anglo - American problems and Franco-Italian issues regarding parity remain the fundamental problems confronting the delegates and whatever progress toward their solution has been made during the many preliminary conferences should in some degree be revealed by the morning session at St. James'.

CARNEGIE HERO MEDALS FOR TWO CONN. YOUTHS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 22—(AP)—Bronze medals were awarded by the Carnegie hero fund commission in recognition of acts of heroism of two Connecticut youths, one of whom lost his life.

The commission gave the medals to the father of George Hayes O'Brien, 14, the boy who died in attempting to perform his heroic deed, and Andre Alfred Vertefeuille, 19. O'Brien's father, James Harry O'Brien, lives at 106 Walnut street, East Hartford, Conn. Vertefeuille lives at 372 Townsend avenue, New Haven.

The commission awarded two silver medals and twenty-three bronze medals at its 26th annual meeting today.

O'Brien, a schoolboy, died attempting to save Anthony Valentine, 13, from drowning at Manchester, Conn., December 27, 1928. While skating on the Hockanum river, Anthony broke through the ice at a point 30 feet from the bank. O'Brien was on the ice ten feet farther from the bank. O'Brien crawled to the edge of the hole and reached Valentine. The ice broke under the boy. The boys clasped each other and both were drowned.

Vertefeuille, a laborer, attempted to save Marie Mastropietro, 21, from drowning at East Haven, Conn., July 8, 1928. While Miss Mastropietro was wading in Long Island sound off Morgan's Point, she stepped into deep water. Vertefeuille, who was fully clothed, swam to her and tried to swim back to shore with her. Miss Mastropietro grasped him about the neck and both were submerged several times. Vertefeuille became semi-conscious, and they became separated. Vertefeuille was rescued by another man. Miss Mastropietro was drowned.

TRAIN KILLED 9 CHILDREN AND THE DRIVER OF BUS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 22—(AP)—Unsuspecting the deadly danger of an on-rushing New York Central mail train, nine school children and the driver of a bus in which they were riding, were killed today near Berea, Ohio, 15 miles south of here as they rode onto a railroad crossing in its path. One other child was injured seriously but it is expected to recover. Bodies and wreckage were scattered for 500 feet down the track.

While the children from six to 13 years of age laughed and played pranks on one another, Don Taylor, the driver, approached the crossing. He waited for a passenger train to pass. Then he drove ahead, taking himself and the little ones to death.

NEW HAVEN TO HAVE LARGE CENTRAL MARKETING PLACE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 22—(AP)—The largest marketing center in the state was established here today when 250 market gardeners, organized as the Farmers' and Fruit Dealers' Holding Co., and capitalized at $350,000, filed incorporation papers with the town clerk.

Nine pieces of property here have already been purchased as a site for the market.

Today's move by the organization brings to realization plans going back many years. Steps to establish their own marketing company and place have been attempted before, but all failed.

RIFT IN THE SENATE ON TARIFF ON LEATHER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—A rift in both republican and democratic ranks occurred today in the senate as debate was begun on provisions in the tariff bill to levy import taxes on hides, leathers and shoes, all of which have been permitted free entry into the United States for years.

Senators Oddie, of Nevada, a republican, regular; Howell, of Nebraska, republican independent and Bratton, of New Mexico, a democrat, took up the cudgel for a hide tariff exceeding that of 10 per cent ad valorem proposed by the finance committee and the house bills and for rates that would be only compensatory on leathers and shoes.

ZERO WEATHER ADDS TO MIDDLE WEST DISCOMFITURE

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Zero settled down to make itself uncomfortably at home today to the middle west.

In Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois the mercury bumped the bottom of the bulb with readings in the nether 20's and 30's, and the populace, hoping the record would stand for some time, was advised that zero weather was here to stay a spell.

In Indiana the sub-zero wave, rolling on toward the Atlantic seaboard, harried the rescue efforts of relief workers seeking to carry aid to marooned communities in the flooded regions. Pneumonia and influenza outbreaks increased the suffering at Orrville. Airplanes flew with food and fuel to beleaguered residents of southern Knox county and carried observers to survey an ice jam in the Wabash river at Riverton, Ind.

Thermometers in the Fayetteville, Ark., region registered 23 degrees below zero and at Fort Smith temperatures 10 below zero felt even colder under the biting wind. Ten inches of snow lay over parts of the state visited by a 36-hour storm, and in Texas truck gardens were reported damaged by the extreme cold.

B. OF L. E. OFFICIALS IN $900,000 REAL ESTATE SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Charges that funds of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers had been stolen by some of its officials, were contained in a $900,000 suit filed today in federal court by E. H. Price Co., Sarasota, Fla., real estate operators. The suit involved the brotherhood's 50,000-acre Sarasota county Florida land development known as Venice City.

The complaint also charged that Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the republican national committee, had been guilty, together with some officials of the brotherhood, of unethical practices in connection with the brotherhood's land development.

The defendants named in the suit are the brotherhood, Huston and George T. Webb, trustee of the brotherhood. In the complaint, Webb is charged, on "information and belief," with having misappropriated "upwards of $574,000" of the brotherhood's funds to his own uses.

RECORD-BREAKING TOTAL IN 1929 LIFE INSURANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—New business done in 1929 by 44 life insurance companies, representing 84 per cent of the country's production in this field, reached the record-breaking total of $12,884,000,000, an increase of 5.4 per cent over 1928.

The Association of Life Insurance Presidents, in reporting the figures today, said that with the exception of May, September and December, new life insurance increased in every month of last year. Industrial insurance with a rise of 7.6 per cent showed a larger gain than either ordinary or group insurance. The latter increased 11.3 per cent, while ordinary business increased 7.2 per cent.

The year's total is exclusive of revivals, increases and dividend additions.

WILLIAM H. GANNETT HAS ARRIVED AT MANAGUA

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP)—William H. Gannett, Portland, Maine, newspaper publisher, arrived at Managua, Nicaragua, at 2:45 p. m. today on his 14,000-mile aerial tour of Central and South America. Information as to the arrival of the plane bearing the [illegible]-year-old man was sent by radio to offices of Pan-American Airways here.

Continuing his journey by airplane tomorrow, Mr. Gannett will fly from Managua to Cristobal, C. Z.

FAREWELL SUPPER PLANNED FOR DR. W. P. S. KEATING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 22—Commander James J. Lee of Gold Star post No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., has appointed a committee of three to arrange for a farewell supper in honor of Captain (Dr.) W. P. S. Keating, who has been appointed surgeon at the Fitch's home for Soldiers in Noroton. The committee consists of Dr. Charles A. Jenkins, Charles A. Reynolds and Edward Donovan. The post is also to send an expression of appreciation to the veterans' home commission for the appointment of Dr. Keating. Dr. Keating has been surgeon of the local organization.

Another activity of the veteran post will be a mid-Lent dance to be held at a place to be designated by the entertainment committee, consisting of Florimond H. Normandin, chairman; Joseph J. Grimes, William O'Brien, Samuel R. Guilford, Fred R. Duprey, Henry Belair, Lewis N. Gerry and James Casey.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Rose Luskau

Mrs. Rose Luskau, [illegible], of 1093 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., died at the home of Mrs. Charles Chatey in Windham Tuesday night. She had been visiting there for the past year and a half. The deceased leaves her parents and one sister, Mrs. Henry Hiltz, of Great Neck, L. I. Under arrangements of Hillgerty Brothers the remains were removed to Brooklyn tonight.

A suspended sentence of six months to the [illegible] farm at Norwich, that had been imposed Tuesday morning on Felix Beaudry of this city, was put into effect this morning when the man was again arraigned on a charge of intoxication. Beaudry had also faced a charge of [illegible] weapons as an alien Tuesday. A few hours after his appearance in court Tuesday, Officer [illegible] was called to the Beaudry home where the man was causing a disturbance. Frank Gewoda, also of this city, was arraigned in police court with assault on his wife and breach of the peace. He pleaded guilty. A 30-day jail sentence was imposed by Judge Foss who also ordered a suspended 60-day sentence to go into effect.

Mrs. Rubidee Dix Becker of New York, noted artist, spoke on The History of Miniature Paintings at the weekly meeting of the Woman's club held at the Model school auditorium Tuesday afternoon with President Mrs. F. S. Noble in charge. Selections were by Miss Beatrice LaMontagne, violin, accompanied by Miss Miriam Silcox. Mrs. Becker traced the history of miniature paintings through three general periods, the illuminated manuscripts done by monks on parchment; the illustrations of which reached a stage of perfection in France and portraits. Mrs. Becker illustrated her talk with lantern slides that proved most effective. She then exhibited her own choice collection of miniatures, claiming that miniatures would forever continue as valuables while the colored photographs of today would have no value within half a century.

While returning from a well in the yard of his home with a pail of water, Chester Loomis of Columbia slipped on a patch of ice Tuesday and fell forcibly. At a physician's office here it was found that he had sustained a Colles fracture of the right forearm. He will be disabled for some time.

A nolle was entered in the Coventry town court in the case of Frank Municial, 21, of South Manchester, arraigned Tuesday on a charge of speeding. Justice A. M. Gilman said that in nolling the case he was taking into consideration the slippery condition of the highways last Sunday when Municial's car skidded into another machine while descending the west "twin hill" at North Coventry. State Policemen Ferris Cookson and Henry Helnold of the Stafford Springs barracks testified for the state. The costs of $10.46 were paid.

Mr. and Mrs. Said Haddad have just returned from an extended visit to their native country, Assyria, having been gone a year and four months. They made Mt. Lebanon their headquarters while there, visiting various parts of the country. They found living conditions much better than they have been for many years. During their stay Mr. and Mrs. Haddad collected a large variety of antiques and curios which they are to place on display soon.

A special entertainment program including a smoker and refreshments will be carried out at the regular meeting of James J. Shea post No. 19, American Legion to be held in the Jackson street rooms Thursday evening.

Announcement of an improved bus service schedule between Hartford and Providence by way of this city, has been announced by the New England Transportation company to take effect February 2. Through coaches will leave Hartford at 9:35 a. m., 1 p. m., 3:35 p. m., and 5 p. m. Leaving time from Providence will be at 9 a. m., 11:20 a. m., 1 p. m. and 5:15 p. m. Between Hartford and Willimantic the 10:15 a. m. bus and the bus returning out of Hartford at 3:35 p. m., will be omitted in the future. There will be an adjustment in schedules, however, so as to afford better connections at Hartford for trains to and from New York city.

The Marvie Card club of which Mrs. J. O. Bergeron is president met at the home of Mrs. George H. Parker Tuesday evening. Mrs. A. L. Gelinas and Mrs. Rose Powell won the prizes. Mrs. G. A. Dilworth of Bridgeport played as guest. Mrs. Thomas A. Shea favored with several piano selections.

Professor Albert E. Wilkinson of Storrs spoke on Vegetable Gardening at the weekly meeting of the Exchange club held with President George H. Curley in charge, at the Nathan Hale hotel Tuesday evening. The club discussed the matter of increasing the effectiveness and the centralization of local charitable agencies.

Mrs. Mary Pingal of 55 Main street was among several local victims of slippery walking conditions during the past few days. While on her way to her employment at the American Thread company plant this morning, Mrs. Pingal fell and fractured two bones in her right forearm.

Continued slow recovery is reported in the condition of First-Class Seaman Henry Kenfield of this city, who was seriously burned in a naval explosion, January 3, at Long Beach, Calif. He is at the U. S. Naval hospital in San Diego.

Mrs. Emily Wilcox of Woodstock is spending the remainder of the winter with her son, Dr. Frederick M. Wilcox and Mrs. Wilcox of Church street.

Many out of town people are noted among the numerous visitors to Willimantic's Model home which is open for public inspection until and including next Sunday evening. The charming little cottage elicits the highest praise, as does also the appropriate furnishings furnished for the insertion by local merchants.

Various organizations and members [illegible] have been receiving the [illegible] Ladies' auxiliary, [illegible] of Israel, Mrs. Lena Snider, president: hostesses, Mrs. Benjamin Eisenberg, Mrs. Korin, Mrs. Carl Karshoff, Mrs. Harry Cohen, Mrs. Carl Israel, Mrs. A. SMYTH-FOLEY WEDDING WEDNESDAY AT ST. EDWARD'S

Miss Anna Foley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Foley of Brown avenue, and John Smyth of Thompsonville, were united in marriage Wednesday morning at eight o'clock at St. Edward's church. Rev. John J. Waldon, the assistant pastor, performed the ceremony. Miss Yvonne Duval was bridesmaid and Edwin J. Brophy of Thompsonville, was best man. The bride wore a gown of brown chiffon with a hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of tea roses. The bridesmaid's gown was of tan crepe de chine, with which she wore a hat of the same shade. She carried yellow roses. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Smyth left for a brief wedding trip and upon their return will reside in their newly furnished home in Thompsonville.

Mario Fontanella, of Stafford Springs, has been summoned to appear before the city court in Rockville on a charge of reckless driving. Several days ago Mr. Fontanella was driving a truck on Tolland Avenue in the town of Vernon when it struck Mrs. Bertha Gottier, of Rockville, fracturing several ribs and inflicting numerous minor injuries. Mrs. Gottier was taken to Rockville City hospital where it is said she is making a good recovery. An investigation of the case by State Policeman Dailey of Stafford state barracks led to the arrest of Mr. Fontanella and he will appear in court as soon as Mrs. Gottier has recovered sufficiently from her injuries to be present.

Gift Of $65,000 School

The Kibbe Fuller school in Somers, which was dedicated Monday evening is admired and praised not only from members of the state board of education but from others who have inspected the school. The building, which contains five classrooms and a large auditorium on the main floor in addition to teachers' room, lavatories and office room, was given to the town of Somers by Judge Ernest S. Fuller and Mrs. Mabel E. Fuller as a memorial to Mabel G. Kibbe. The building with land and equipment cost about $65,000. In the basement there are large play rooms for boys and girls, a kitchen equipped with electric range and necessary utensils. A special feature will be a dining room where the children will be served lunches. The school grounds cover about one and one-half acres. There is a 1000-gallon water tank in the basement and the sewage is taken care of by septic tanks. The building is heated by oil and has a master clock and modern fire alarm equipment. Naturally the town of Somers is very grateful to Judge and Mrs. Fuller for this splendid gift.

The state plows were out Wednesday removing the snow from the highways.

Mrs. Mary Wilder, who has been spending several days in Worcester, has returned home.

The Woman's Missionary society held its annual meeting with Mrs. J. M. Tatem Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Anton Kaletchitz, who is at The Haven in Abington, is reported as being critically ill.

WINDHAM

The January church night social was attended by about 50. Moving pictures of the Balkan states and other subjects were shown. Through the kindness of Vantine Anderson, violin and piano solos by two members of his orchestra, Mr. Shippee and Mr. O'Brien were greatly enjoyed. Cake and cocoa were served by the C. E. society.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning Gustave T. Bochman of Hartford Field Lecturer of the Connecticut Temperance Union gave an interesting address. The offertory solo "In the Garden" was well rendered by John Dean. The C. E. meeting was led by Eden C. Cook.

Francis Wood came home from the State Institute for the Blind for the weekend and was taken ill with pharyngitis.

The meeting of the Congregational church is to be held Friday. Supper will be at six o'clock to members and friends of the parish to be followed by the meeting and roll call.

Mrs. Annie E. Martin, who has been caring for Mrs. Alfred Harvey who has been ill with grip has returned to her home in Willimantic. Mrs. Harvey's mother, Mrs. Ira Martin of Pawtucket, R. I., is visiting her.

Miss Annie Whyte was a recent guest of Miss Mabel Trowbridge of Chaplin.

The Grenfell society met with Mrs. E. F. Smiley Monday afternoon.

Miss Eunice Lesourveau is home from Boston with her parents after the midyear examinations at the university. She has with her as her guest a student friend, Miss Dorothy Atkinson.

Mrs. George Marcotte of Willimantic is visiting Judge and Mrs. Henry A. Adams.

Mrs. Andersen of East Douglass, Mass., who has been visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles [illegible], returned home Monday.

The Story Hour circle is to meet at the Parsonage-by-the-Pines Friday afternoon and continue the study of the Philippine children. The young ladies of the Congregational church will meet at the same place in the evening.

It Is Folly To Stay Fat

The trend is everywhere. In every circle you can see that excess fat is disappearing fast. Modern science has found a great cause of excess fat in a weak gland. In late years, physicians the world over have been fighting that cause. They do not rely on starvation.

This modern method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. Each box contains the formula, as prepared by famous experts. People have used these tablets for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Now nearly all have friends who show the results in new beauty, health and vigor.

Go try Marmola. Learn the right way to reduce. The results will amaze and delight you. All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box.

JEWETT CITY

MRS. FRED L. KANAHAN DIES AFTER SURGICAL OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 22—The death of Mrs. Harriette Bates Kanahan, 55, wife of Fred L. Kanahan, of Lisbon, has brought real sorrow to a wide circle of friends in both Lisbon and Jewett City. Her death occurred in Backus hospital Tuesday night, following a surgical operation. Mrs. Kanahan has lived in Lisbon on Wild Acres farm—formerly the Hezekiah Read farm—for twenty-four years, and had endeared herself to everyone who knew her by her bright, cheerful, helpful disposition. Very progressive by nature, she was an ideal helpmate in the home and the business which her husband conducts. An ardent lover of flowers, she had beautified her home with them, and cultivated dahlias and gladioli to a prize-winning perfection. Mrs. Kanahan was born in Southampton, Mass., the daughter of Augustus P. and Elizabeth Smith Bates. She was married in 1894 in New Haven to Fred L. Kanahan, who survives her. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Byron Kinnie, and grandson, Byron Kinnie, Jr., of Griswold. She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Eugenie Johnson of Boston and Mrs. Edith E. Pease of Westfield. She was a member of the Jewett City Congregational church and its Ladies' society, Faith chapter, No. 62, O. E. S., Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., the Harmony club, Pachaug Community club, and Pachaug grange, a worthy and beloved member of each organization.

NORWICH REBEKAH OFFICIALS INSTALL FOR RUTHIE LODGE

At the meeting of Ruthie Rebekah lodge, No. 38, Tuesday evening, the following officers were installed: N. G., Mrs. Alice M. Anthony; V. G., Mrs. Alice G. Davis; recording secretary, Mrs. Louise M. Holmes; financial secretary, Miss Elsie Brown; warden, Miss Bertha Davis; conductor, Miss Hazel Johnson; chaplain, Mrs. Irene Benjamin; musician, Mrs. Bessie Medick; R. S. N. G., Miss Ethel Fiske; L. S. N. G., Mrs. Selma Seguer; R. S. V. G., Mrs. Nellie Gray; L. S. V. G., Mrs. Esther Hyde; V. G., Mrs. Ellen Young; O. G., Miss Frances Bugbee; P. N. G., Miss Eleanor Stetson. The installation ceremonies were performed in a most able manner by members of Hope Rebekah lodge No. 21, of Norwich: D. D. Pres., Mrs. Mary E. Green; D. marshal, Mrs. Ora Spencer; D. warden, Mrs. Mabel Wheeler; D. Rec. Secy., Mrs. Minnie Amburn; D. treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Tuttle; D. chaplain, Mrs. Ada N. Revell; D. guardian, Mrs. Mary Adams; D. musician, Mrs. Lena Christman. The retiring noble grand, Miss Eleanor Stetson was presented a P. N. G. jewel by the D. D. president, Mrs. Mary E. Green. Mrs. Louise Holmes presented Mrs. Green a cheese and cracker plate, a gift from Ruthie lodge. Visitors were present from Hope lodge, of Norwich. At the close of the meeting there was a lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee.

Eyes examined, glasses fitted. Dr. Good, Finn Blk., Fri. 9-5.30, 6-8.—adv.

HEALTH OFFICER'S REPORT COVERS A WIDE FIELD

In the borough of Jewett City, the health officer's report for the year ending August 31, 1929 contains the following statistics:

Communicable diseases: There were reported four cases poliomyelitis, 15 cases chicken pox, four cases pulmonary tuberculosis, three cases bronchial pneumonia, five cases lobar pneumonia, one case measles, three cases scarlet fever, 127 cases influenza, 18 cases whooping cough, two cases gonorrhea, and one case syphilis. Influenza was epidemic during January and February.

Finance: For control of communicable diseases $37.00, nuisances $6.00, all others, unclassified, $12.76, total $55.76.

Antitoxin: A supply furnished by the state for use of physicians is kept in a refrigerator. These are diphtheria antitoxin, diphtheria toxin-antitoxin, tetanus antitoxin, typhoid antitoxin, and solution of silver nitrate.

Water: A few wells are still in use. Water from the reservoir is almost universally used. The list of consumers increases each year. The supply has been sufficient even though the rainfall this season has been light. The water is of good quality; the watershed is well cared for.

Milk: About 1100 quarts of milk are sold daily. There is a slight increase in the amount used being pasteurized. The pasteurized milk and milk coming from accredited herds—the only milk perfectly safe to use—total one half of the milk supply. There is a possibility at an early date of a much larger quantity of milk used being pasteurized.

Hygiene and public health nursing: No clinic held in the borough. Children with tonsils and adenoids are taken to the Backus hospital clinic, Norwich, for treatment. The three large corporations have each a trained nurse to care for their employes at the mill hospital. One nurse also visits cases at the home of employes—any member of the family who is ill. This with the work done by the district nurse thoroughly covers the field. Notwithstanding the epidemic of influenza during January and February there was less sickness during the year than during the previous year. The number of visits made by the nurses was somewhat less.

Number of visits made by the district nurses for Metropolitan 1768, John Hancock 186, outside 280, total 2,234.

Vaccination: The presence of smallpox in Pachaug and Norwich in March led to an effort for general vaccination. Hearty cooperation of the selectmen, mill officials, school board and clergy made it successful. The local physicians willingly assisted. The schools and mills were visited by a physician. Those who preferred came to the doctor's offices. A few were indifferent, there was one refusal. In all, 1500 were vaccinated.

There has been a slight increase in the number who have received diphtheria toxin-antitoxin treatment though the number is still far too few.

Dumps: The same dumps are still in use, possibly can be used another year. Another site has been offered for use in the future.

George H. Jennings, M. D. is health officer.

The fifth and sixth snowstorms of the winter, coming Tuesday and Wednesday, left a five-inch blanket all over this section. The fall of snow will not help the promised ice crop. Wednesday evening the 8-inch ice was covered with an equal number of inches of smoothly laid snow, as no wind accompanied either short storm.

Have your eyes examined by Dr. C. A. Spear, optometrist; hours 7 to 9, every Friday evening. Anthony Bldg.—adv.

DAYVILLE

At the Men's club meeting Monday evening the following officers were elected: President, Arthur Bruton; vice president, Orrin Alvord; secretary, Leslie Schleugh; treasurer, Clifford Jones.

The annual business meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held Tuesday with Mrs. Harry Brearley. The new officers are: President, Miss Bernice Cogswell; vice president, Mrs. Norman Brearley; secretary, Mrs. Orrin Alvord; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Bruton.

The Tuesday Night Bridge club met with Miss Bernice Cogswell. Prizes were won by Mrs. Herman Steinbough, Mrs. N. Lorne Greig and Miss Cora Cogswell.

Mrs. Erwin Miller entertained a number of friends at bridge Saturday night. Out of town guests were Miss Ora Perry and Miss Mildred Murphy, of Millbury, Mass. Miss Murphy and James Murray won the honors.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brearley and Ralph Brearley spent Sunday at Rochdale, Mass.

Friends of Margaret Michie have learned with regret of her illness. She is reported improving slowly.

The Dayville Pioneers achieved further success by defeating the Baptist quintet in the inter-church basketball league Monday night. It was a fiercely contested game, with the result in doubt to the end. Five minutes overtime was required to enable the victors to score the winning point. The score was 14-13.

John Roy is still at Day-Kimball hospital. His injured hand is somewhat aggravated by a slight infection.

Miss Helen M. Kelley has been spending a few days in Washington, R. I., visiting relatives who were severely injured in an auto accident in Moosup.

Harry Kennedy, of Norwich, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Mullen.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Miss Irene Johnson has returned from New London, where she attended the N. E. Telephone conference, as secretary of the conference.

The T. M. H. S. girls' basketball team was defeated by the Mary E. Wells team of Southbridge. The T. M. H. S. quintet was in the lead at every period, but was defeated in a last-minute rally by Southbridge. The score was 27 to 26, a decided improvement over the game they played last week.

Principal W. G. Colby had charge of the assembly exercises at T. M. H. S. Wednesday morning. Miss D. Roy was pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Johnson, with their daughter, Irene, have returned from Pawtucket, where they were guests of their daughter, Mrs. Paul Benham.

Mrs. Charles Lent is teaching for Miss Margaret Toohey, who is ill.

At a meeting of the Junior Mission band, held at the Swedish Lutheran church, officers elected were: Leader, Irene Johnson; president, Evelyn Johnson; vice-president, Dorothy Freudenthal; secretary, Beatrice Johnson; treasurer, Elsa Anderson. There are 22 members in this society, which has not as yet been organized a full year.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Provost motored to Attawaugan recently and visited Mr. and Mrs. Aubin.

T. M. H. S. basketball team defeated the Mary E. Wells high school five 39-38. The game was very close, as the score indicates. The line-up:

Mrs. Francis Fournier was injured when she slipped off the doorstep, suffering a badly sprained ankle.

The T. M. H. S. quintet will play Plainfield high school five in the local gym Friday.

The Comrades will play the Thompson Town team at Tourtellotte gym tonight (Thursday).

SOUTH KILLINGLY

When Mrs. Patrick Coffey, representing the Hilltop Community club, called on Mrs. George Phillips Thursday, to take her a sunshine basket, she found her somewhat improved but still suffering from the effects of a fall sustained several days ago. Both Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are quite feeble though attending to light duties each day.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Lefleur of Danielson were recent visitors with local friends.

Looking over the country roads in this section leads one to wonder why the Boswell road has been overlooked in the distribution of gravel. School children have to go over it and milk men make two trips daily in caring for their business. If there is mud anywhere it is there and when frozen the deep ruts make auto use almost impossible. A few loads of gravel would be much appreciated by those using the road daily.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

Mrs. Fred M. Brigham of the Infants' Home fell last week Tuesday and fractured her hip. She is in the Johnson Memorial hospital, Stafford Springs. Mr. Brigham is recovering from pneumonia and not yet able to get out of doors; so their daughter, Mrs. Preston, of White Plains, N. Y., is home and helping care for the babies.

W. R. Davell, of Mansfield Center, spent a couple of days last week with his daughter, Mrs. Myron E. Green and family.

Little Lucy Hansen has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Doole of Storrs.

James W. Green of Eagleville has purchased some timber from Levi Kiranger. Mr. Green has his saw mill set up on Mr. Flynn's lot.

The C. E. society is planning a Mother Goose social at the chapel.

Kruschen Is A Thief! He Asserts But A Jolly Good One

HE STOLE MY FAT AWAY

Here's a simple way to get rid of fat and quickly know the joy of living.

It's the safe way, too—for every day you continue this easy method of losing unwanted and unneeded fat you'll gain in energy, vigor and endurance.

Nine times in ten obesity means inactivity—it means that your blood is starving for the six vital salts your internal organs must have to keep you youthful, active, ambitious and keen in mind.

When you take a generous half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning you get these six vital salts which modern foods and cooking do not supply.

Taken every morning Kruschen Salts supply the liver, kidneys and bowels with an invigorating conditioner and after you have tried this simple plan for two weeks the rejuvenating effect will delight you.

The urge for activity will be so marked that even at the end of a hard day's work you'll feel ready for any social activity or recreation—you can play as hard as you work.

And after two weeks your excess fat starts to go—you'll know it—[illegible] the scales will tell the story.

Kruschen Salts is not a purgative or a cathartic, but a real system conditioner and for those who are the victims of constipation or intestinal sluggishness its daily use soon means blissful regularity.

A jar of Kruschen Salts that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c at Lee and Osgood's or any druggist in the world.

GET THAT KRUSCHEN FEELING

It's the little daily dose that does it.

Delightful Elixir With Real Pepsin, Menthol and Other Supremely Good Stomach Aids

If you have a weak, bad acting, rebellious stomach it won't take but a couple of weeks to turn it into a strong, healthy one, capable of digesting the heartiest meal without after distress.

Your stomach needs pepsin—needs it three times a day at every meal and the stomach remedy that you need is Dare's Mentha Pepsin. It will do you more good in two weeks than all the old time relievers will do in a lifetime.

That's just the reason that its sales in good drug stores all over America are enormous—that's why all druggists are selling dozens of bottles every week.

Stop that acute indigestion in a few minutes with just one tablespoonful of this grand stomach regulator.

Take it regularly for two weeks and you'll learn the secret of how to always have and keep a strong healthy stomach.

DANIELSON

FINAL PREPARATIONS FOR BIG DRIVE ARE MADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 22—This afternoon the special committee, Walter Anderson, chairman, of the Danielson Building and Loan association and the chamber of commerce met to make final preparations for the "million dollar series" of shares of the Building and Loan association, which held its annual meeting last night and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, D. Fred Kenworthy; vice-presidents, Frank B. Kennedy, Irving W. Davis, John T. Ashworth, Norman A. Reeves; secretary, Clifford H. Starkweather; assistant secretary, Attorney Harry E. Back; treasurer, Burdette C. Hopkins; assistant treasurer, J. F. Gardner, Jr.; board of management, W. S. Hunter, W. Irving Bullard, D. E. Jette, John A. Gilbert, Frank T. Preston, Alfred L. Reed, Frederick E. Bitgood, Harry Brearley, Dr. George M. Burroughs, N. Lorne Greig, James R. Walsh, A. M. Thompson, Walter Anderson, Andrew E. Meech, Louis E. Young; auditors, Charles E. Austin, Thomas A. Beckett, Walter Anderson.

Reports show that the past year was a successful one. The assets are now approximately 300,000. Secretary Starkweather said this morning that 800 shares of the 2,000 share issue now being put out already have been subscribed, this with solicitation. The sale in the present series is greater than any previously issued excepting the first series when the organization was formed, about 15 years ago.

It was voted at last night's meeting that no subscription fee will be charged on the current issue of shares, although this has been done regularly in the past and in all probability will be done on future issues.

When the active campaign of securing subscriptions opens Friday of this week an effort will be made to reach every person in this territory who may be interested in developing Danielson's housing program.

Six applications for loans with which to build new homes or to alter other buildings into homes already have been received by the Building and Loan association.

Miller Heads Gun Club

Joseph Miller heads the Danielson Rod and Gun club as president for 1930, and John T. Ashworth has been named as vice-president, L. S. Ingalls has been elected secretary-treasurer and Dr. F. P. Todd field captain.

The committees named for the year are as follows: Executive, Joseph Miller, John T. Ashworth, Dr. F. P. Todd, Ira A. Warren and Charles Hale; membership, Henry League, Fred B. Swan, Charles Rapp, Armand Heneault, Dana Shippee; grounds, Dr. F. P. Todd, Fred B. Swan, Charles Franklin; handicap, L. S. Ingalls, F. P. Todd, W. J. Stainton; entertainment, Henry League, Ira A. Warren, Armand Heneault, Fred B. Swan, Charles Rapp; fish and game, George W. Kent, Walter F. Jones, Eric Johnson, Charles Rapp, Fred B. Swan; rifle, Charles Hale, Ira A. Warren.

A number of measures have been suggested for increasing the activities of the club for the coming year, and among these it is proposed to purchase a large number of small mouth black bass with which to stock some of the local ponds. It is also proposed to install a skeet shooting outfit on the present trap shooting grounds, in the belief that this will be an advantage to a large number of members who do not care to equip themselves with a trap gun and can use their field guns in this sport and at the same time get good practice for the next fall shooting season.

Not for many years, if ever, has Killingly grange ever been represented by one of its members as an officer of the Connecticut State grange until this year, which brings the honor of having Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear as chaplain of the state organization.

The feature of the special activities of the local grange during the current week was the installation, with Mrs. Addie C. Hoyt of Brooklyn as installing officer and with Mrs. Mabel Ennis and Mrs. Katherine Tinsley assisting. The officers installed were: Master, Charles E. Haynes; overseer, Kenneth Preston; lecturer, Walter G. Bruce; steward, William Williams; assistant steward, Lewis A. Bradford; chaplain, Edith Jordan; treasurer, Rev. Charles A. Downs; secretary, Minnie Colvin; gatekeeper, Francis Ingraham; Pomona, Regina Wlaszkiewicz; Flora, Jessie Wlaszkiewicz; Ceres, Florence Wood; lady assistant steward, Estella Converse.

About 90 were present for the installation ceremony. Mrs. Clara Hopkins was chairman of a committee that served refreshments of sandwiches, coffee and cake. Music for dancing following the installation was by the Haymakers' orchestra.

FUNERAL

Albert Ledoux

This morning the funeral of Albert Ledoux was held from the home on the West Side with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Among the many attending were representatives of the Foresters of America, League of the Sacred Heart and Cercle Lacordaire, a temperance organization of members of the parish. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. Henry Cloutier, Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., and Rev. J. A. Domers, M. S. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Fr. Demers. The bearers were Joseph LaBonte and Ovila LaBonte, representing the Foresters of America; Peter Turgeon and Benoni Meunier, representing the league of the Sacred Heart, and Elzear Boucher and Stanley Jarvais, representing Cercle Lacordaire. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

By direction of borough officials, Chief John McFarland went about the business section this morning requesting those who had not cleared sidewalks fronting their places of business to do so.

Tonight Mrs. George Wilson of Providence road entertained a number of telephone operators, her co-workers, at her home. There was a delightful series of diversions and refreshments were served.

This afternoon the body of Donald James Edes, 1 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edes of New Haven, was brought here for burial in Holy Cross cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the local arrangements. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Edes was Miss Loretta Heneault of Danielson.

Something of a curiosity here today, though a common sight at this time of year a score of years ago, was a bobsled loaded with cord wood and drawn by two horses.

At a session of court this afternoon Benjamin Askinis of Providence was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward, charged with driving without having an operator's license and with being without his registration. The case was nolled on payment of costs.

Jeremiah Doyle of Wauregan said while here this morning that it is possible that a game will be booked for Danielson later in the season between the famed Boston Whirlwinds and the Plainfield team.

Mrs. C. F. Alexander entertained at whist at her home on North Main street this afternoon.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Miss Dorothea Gardner returned Tuesday to her duties as nurse in Middletown having been here because of the illness and death of her father, Dr. James L. Gardner.

Mrs. Cora Day was a Boston visitor Tuesday.

Mrs. Samuel Collins and Mrs. Everett Ladd attended a W. C. T. U. meeting in Putnam Wednesday, representing the local union.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Welch, who were married Monday are at the home of Mr. Welch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Welch in Baltic.

Mrs. Arnold Mathewson has returned from Norfolk, Mass., where she has been visiting her cousin, Mrs. Prentice Shaw.

Mr. Smallwood has returned to East Gardner, Mass., having visited his family here.

Arthur Bradley, who has been employed in Dayville mill, the past year, is at his home as the mill is closed.

Members of the American Legion will go to Moosup today (Thursday) to attend the funeral of Louis DeForge, who died at Putnam Sunday following a surgical operation. He was well known here.

Miss Norma Day has returned to her studies at Simmons college, Boston, having recovered from an operation for appendicitis that has kept her at home for several weeks.

Mrs. Louis Wolsard and son Louis Jr., of Danielson, are visiting local relatives today (Thursday).

WILSONVILLE

Mr. Keigan, mill owner, has been confined to the house the past week, suffering from neuralgia of the face and head.

The scarlet fever patients are recovering and no other cases have been reported.

A number from here attended the play at T. M. high school Friday night.

Misses Alice and Bernice Welch were in Webster Saturday.

In Seven Days

Fiery, Itching Skin Gets Sure Relief

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by pharmacists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds but boils, abscesses and ulcers are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other skin eruptions and inflammation.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) in the original bottle at any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is rare indeed.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM'S SHARE OF COUNTY TAX AMOUNTS TO $4,698.51

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 22.—Fourteen towns comprising Windham county will pay into the coffers of the county on April 1 an aggregate sum of $30,000, it was announced today by Miss Marjorie Bradford, assistant clerk of superior courts, with whom the list of towns subject to the county tax was filed for recording today by William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner.

The assessments were approved by a vote of the various townspeople at meetings held two years ago. The amounts to be contributed by the towns has recently been compiled and apportioned by Commissioner Blodgett. The town of Windham, taking in the city of Willimantic, is the largest county taxpayer, according to figures shown in the list filed by Commissioner Blodgett. Windham will pay $10,575.26. Putnam's share of the aggregate amount is $4,698.51 and is the second largest individual sum. Killingly ranks third on the list, its apportionate share being $4,619.11. The town of Ashford in the western part of the county will pay the least of any community in the district, its tax being listed at $232.83. Following is the list and the apportionate amounts to be paid by each: Ashford, $232.83; Brooklyn, $861.35; Canterbury, $350.26; Chaplin, $215.58; Eastford, $266.35; Hampton, $299.40; Killingly, $4,619.11; Plainfield, $3,497.49; Putnam, $4,693.51; Scotland, $195.78; Sterling, $575.02; Thompson, $1,626.73; Windham, $10,575.26; Woodstock, $817.23 — Total, $30,000.

Attached to the apportionment list was a signed statement of Commissioner Blodgett to the effect that the tabulations were in every way correct after a careful check. The tax is payable on or before April 1 as stipulated in the provision in section 1234 of the general statutes of the revision of 1918. Within a few days official notices of the amounts due from each town will be forwarded to the town clerks by the clerk of the county, together with notification of the date payable. The county tax is laid to aid in the defraying of the expense of the county government.

Preparations are being made for the organization meeting of the board of relief which will take place according to law on Saturday, Feb. 1. The board will adjourn following the meeting of Feb. 1 to the following Monday when it will again be in session and three days each week thereafter until Feb. 20, when it will adjourn to make up its report and the filing of the grand tax list of the town.

A five-inch snowfall received yesterday and an additional fall of today has practically eliminated the possibility of operations in the reconstruction programme of the city water system getting under way this season. Preliminary work on the foundation for the one-million-gallon steel standpipe to be erected on the municipally-owned tract of land on Oak hill was begun early in the winter season but further procedure was stopped two months ago with the arrival of adverse winter weather conditions. Mayor Charles A. Richard announced that it was the council's intentions to get the work started as soon as possible when technical details were completed some weeks ago. However, activities will be resumed as soon as favorable weather conditions are received, it was intimated today.

A death at the State hospital in Norwich Tuesday evening was that of Mrs. Mary A. King of Killingly, formerly of this city. Mrs. King was 78 years of age. She was a resident of this town until about a year ago when she removed to Killingly, where she purchased a farm. She was stricken with an illness about four months ago and was committed to the Norwich institution. She is survived by her husband, Jabez King, who resides in Killingly.

The weekly meeting of the Putnam Rotary club scheduled to be held at noon today at the Putnam Inn was adjourned until tomorrow (Thursday) evening when the members of the local club will go in a body to Danielson where they will meet and dine with the members of the Danielson Rotary club. The session will take place at the Westfield Congregational church in the borough and will be presided over by the presidents of both organizations.

The county commission is still considering applicants who are desirous of being appointed successor to the late Mrs. Addie H. Parks, who, until her death, was superintendent and matron of the Windham county temporary home in the Sawyer district. Arthur C. Keith of South Main street, a commissioner of the county, said this afternoon that no action will be taken in filling this vacancy for several weeks yet, since it is the object of the board to carefully examine the qualifications of every applicant before a choice is made. The commission will be assisted in selecting a new matron by a member of the state board of charities, Mr. Keith has said.

Local police have abandoned their part in the search for a lone bandit who held up and robbed a gasoline filling station attendant in Southbridge Monday evening. The local department was called upon to assist in the effort to apprehend the gunman when it was believed that he had made his escape in the direction of this city. All officers maintained a vigil for the appearance of the man responsible for the act.

An agent of The Bulletin Co. was in this city today distributing a calendar containing a chronology of events which took place in this city during the past year. The Bulletin calendar this year also contains a photograph in which the northern portion of Bugbee's square is shown. The old Central block razed this fall appears in the picture. Undoubtedly the print will prove interesting to many in years to come, since the destruction of the ancient building and the erection of a modern four-story business block on its site has greatly changed the appearance of the city's commercial center.

Captain of Police Alphonse Dubreuil said this afternoon that children seem to realize the danger in coasting upon inclines on the heavily-traveled highways in the city and with the arrival of snow have not as yet started the practice which in the past has always provided plenty of work and worry for the police in keeping the highways free from the invasions of the youngsters.

It was learned today that there was little foundation for rumors to the effect that efforts were being made to reorganize the National Rhea Co. without a sale of the property. These stories became current Tuesday but were denied by officials of the organization last evening. Auctioneers charged with the sale of the bankrupt property and other officials of the company will meet at the Canal street plant for the fourth time on Saturday, Jan. 31, for the purpose of auctioning the machinery and other properties at a price of $147,500, decreed by the superior courts of Providence, R. I., and Windham counties. The plant, which gave employment to over 100 people previous to the suspension of operations a month ago, remains closed until after a new firm assumes control.

"Should the senior class of Putnam high school take an annual trip to Washington?" was the subject of a debate argued by two teams composed of members of the senior class debating club which is conducted under the direction of Miss Abbie H. Keith, head of the English department at the school. The first verbal clash of the two teams took place yesterday afternoon and a victory was scored by the negative side. A series of debates have been arranged and will be held weekly. Within a few days the club will elect a slate of officers for the remainder of the school year. Much interest is being manifested in the activities of the club by the members of the class.

Miss Mary H. Joslin, a member of the nursing staff of the Day Kimball hospital, is a patient there, suffering from a fractured wrist. She sustained the injury yesterday when she slipped on an ice patch near her home in Dayville.

A meeting of the Drop-In class of the Congregational church will take place Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin L. Robinson on Church street at 2:30 o'clock. The gathering will take place in the form of a sewing circle.

Frank Gifford of Grove street was a visitor in New Bedford this week.

Miss Marjorie McGillicuddy, head of the history department at Putnam high school, has returned to her duties after an absence of several days. Miss McGillicuddy was recalled to her home in Portland, Me., by the death of her father, which occurred on Jan. 12.

John Smith of South Main street returned yesterday from a four-day visit spent with friends in Middletown.

PLAINFIELD

William Prentiss, of Dedham, Mass., spent the week end with his father, Rev. William C. Prentiss.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips and daughter have returned, after a fine motor trip to Florida.

A meat pie supper and entertainment was held Tuesday evening in the vestry of the First Congregational church by the Ladies' Aid society. The president, Mrs. Everett Dawley was aided by the following committee: Mrs. Charles Hopkins, Mrs. John Gallup and Mrs. John Kingsley. The supper was followed at 8 by an entertainment consisting of a harmonica solo by John Holland; solo by Rev. George H. Reese of Central Village; Mrs. Augusta Nolan, pianist; concertina selection by David Radcliffe, pianist Miss Florence Radcliffe. Duet by Mrs. Arthur Mott and Mrs. Gertrude Tracey with Mrs. Henry Leach of Wauregan at the piano. A motion picture shown was "The Birth of the Telephone."

Mrs. Walter Hill and infant daughter have arrived home from the maternity home at Canterbury.

Claude Leather has a fine position with a New York firm of auditors.

Rev. William C. Prentiss called on Mrs. Catherine Prior at Day Kimball hospital Monday.

John C. Kingsley is serving on the jury in the United States district court at Hartford this week.

MOOSUP

THE LATE LOUIS J. DeFORGE HAD SERVED IN THE NAVY

(Special to The Bulletin)

MOOSUP, Jan. 22.—Louis J. DeForge, 28, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli DeForge, who died Monday at Day-Kimball hospital, Putnam, will be buried Thursday. Mr. DeForge was born here in 1902 and was educated in the Moosup schools. He later enlisted in the navy. He had been a patient for treatment at sanatoriums at Tupper Lake, N. Y., and Rutland, Mass. Friday he was taken to the Putnam hospital to be operated on for appendicitis and he died Monday. Besides his parents he is survived by three brothers, Albert, Ernest and Leander.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDINGS

About a year ago the large plant of the Candee company in New Haven, a branch of the United States Rubber company, was closed, the business being transferred to other plants of the corporation. The closing of that industry was a serious blow to industrial New Haven, since it was an old manufacturing concern employing many hands. It was what was known as one of the standbys of the Elm city.

Recently the group of buildings formerly occupied by the company has been sold to a real estate man of that city and the announcement has been made that they will be made available for occupancy by a considerable number of small manufacturing concerns. The plant is going to be turned into a group of industrial buildings.

This move is looked upon by the New Haven Register as one of "value to this community from a business and industrial standpoint," and well it might be. It means that there is going to be an opportunity for the small industries of that city, or elsewhere, which want an opportunity to grow. There they will find floor space to meet their requirements and they will not be obliged to get along in cramped and unsuitable quarters.

Regardless of the size of a city, it cannot afford to overlook its small industries. This doesn't mean that the large ones should be neglected, but they can for the most part take care of themselves. The small ones deserve encouragement. They are often times the nucleus of future greatness, enterprises of great potentialities which, if it is impossible for them to find the right kind of accommodations and support at home, will sooner or later establish themselves elsewhere and reach that growth to which they are entitled in some other city.

The city that is seeking industrial growth has every reason to give close attention to its little factories, and the city that can provide space in industrial buildings is the one that is going to be attractive to those industries which are steadily though slowly expanding and those which are seeking new locations where their needs can be met. New Haven is to be envied, not in the fact that it has lost an old industry, but that it has such an opportunity to interest and develop smaller ones.

THE CONFERENCE STARTS

While there is cause for elation over the manner in which the London conference has opened, no one is fooling himself into believing that everything is going to be as harmonious throughout the deliberations.

As Chairman MacDonald has said, there are certain distances which it is possible for all the nations to travel together. Up to that point all will be well, but when it comes to going beyond that the situation will change. There are real problems to be confronted. There are differences in conditions in the respective countries. It is a case of reconciling these differences, if that is possible, and therein more difficulty may be expected in the doing than in the planning.

Much satisfaction is to be gained, nevertheless, from the optimistic view that was expressed by the delegates from the several nations. It was rightly set forth by Chairman MacDonald that the great need is confidence. It is necessary that the several nations should put aside any and all suspicions that may exist relative to the position or the advantage of others. This is asking a good deal. It means the submergence of long-established practice and the acceptance of a new standard of judging neighboring and distant nations, and yet from the day of the acceptance of the Washington treaty they have had an opportunity to see how it works and recognize its advantages.

From the statements of the spokesmen of the various delegations it is apparent that there is a general demand for reduction of naval armament. It is recognized that it is a case of curtailing expenditures in that direction through additional limitation of the launching out into large, needless and undesired outlays. This latter will not be done so much because of a desire to spend money in this manner as a response to the competitive construction which prevailed for so long. That would mean an abandonment of the good work that has been accomplished by the Washington pact and a return to a discredited and wasteful practice.

There is much satisfaction to be gained from a conference well begun. The hope is that the progress and the finish may be equally auspicious.

FLYING FATALITIES

In connection with flying accidents it is pointed out that responsibility rests largely with the pilot. It is another case of the human agent. It may not be like the engineer who fails to obey signals and orders, since there is nothing to exactly correspond with those in flying, but it is a case of exercising bad judgment, and that prevails in both instances. The engineer, or the pilot, or the auto driver, or the pedestrian, who is disposed to take chances when there is no good cause for it, no emergency situation to meet, endangers himself and those who are with him.

Statistics have been put forth by the department of commerce which go to show that commercial flying is as safe as riding on a train and that accidents are decreasing every year. It is apparent, nevertheless, that there are still too many needless accidents and too many deaths.

That there can and should be a reduction in flying accidents and fatalities will not be refuted. Recently there was a crash in Florida where a civilian passenger was killed but the pilot escaped. It was a case, according to the pilot's explanation, where no accident should have occurred. It happened to be a machine with a dual control. Something went wrong with the engine and with the ignition shut off the pilot undertook to glide to earth for something less than 1,000 feet. All would have gone well but the passenger "froze" to the controls, making it impossible for the pilot to guide the machine, and the crash followed. Why a passenger should be permitted to have anything to do with the guiding of an airplane is hard to understand, especially when that very thing may be the cause of his death and a menace to anyone else with him.

These unfortunate affairs and the other instances of needless deaths from time to time do much to reduce the possibility of repetitions in the future. There were the days when railroad accidents were far greater than they are today. They have been reduced through study, improvements and unfortunate experiences. These, it is believed, will be the means of steadily reducing the number of deaths from flying accidents, unless we get to the situation where we try to outdo the previous year's record, as in the case of motor vehicle fatalities.

DUMPING GARBAGE AT SEA

Since New York began dumping its garbage at sea, New Jersey has been entering complaints against it, alleging that the winds and tides have brought it back and deposited it on Jersey shores. It has also been complained that certain New York beaches were being similarly treated. Still the practice goes on. New York dumps as usual and New Jersey keeps complaining.

Possibly New Jersey will be stirred to further action by the somewhat similar situation which has developed off the Rhode Island shore. Newport, like New York, is in a position where the dumping of garbage at sea seems to be the easiest way of disposing of it. The result is that it is done and yet by doing it Newport simply throws a boomerang, for a certain part at least of what it consigns to the sea comes back upon Newport shores. There has been such a howl about it that the board of health has been interested and, following an investigation of the situation, it has pronounced the practice as not sanitary or satisfactory. It urges that there be an investigation concerning the establishment of an incinerator.

With Rhode Island convinced that sea dumping is injurious to shore property and to the health of its residents New Jersey is placed in a position to say to New York, "I told you so!" The New York problem is a larger one than Newport faces, but there the incinerating process of disposing of garbage has been recommended as a measure of relief. Newport is in a position to minister to its own ills. So far as known, its practices affect no other state, but with New York its garbage disposal reacts somewhat to its own detriment but for the most part it affects New Jersey and that state can be expected to object strenuously until the objectionable practice is overcome. No one can blame it.

AGAINST CENTRALIZATION

There has long been a feeling that bureaucratic rule was developing to a point in Washington where it was undesirable. How extensive that feeling is may be determined by the move which has been made by Congressman Ludlow of Indiana in sponsoring a resolution calling for a joint committee from the house and the senate with three recognized authorities on constitutional law, to be named by the president, for the purpose of making a study to find out if the concept of the Constitution has been violated by later developments. Representative Ludlow wants to know what steps should be taken to restore constitutional concepts if they have been violated, whether there should be another constitutional convention and seeks a delineation of federal power.

It is the contention of the Indiana congressman that the people have largely surrendered their heritage to departments, bureaus and officials at Washington. He expresses this view as the result of years in Washington as a student of political affairs and government activities and he believes that there should be a check placed upon the growing inclination to constantly add more bureaus to carry on those activities which rightly belong to the states and should be carried out by them. He directs attention to what former Chief Justice Marshall once said, that "No political dreamer was ever wild enough to think of breaking down the lines which separate the states and of compounding the American people into one common mass," and expresses the fear that that has come to pass.

Others have contended against the centralization of government and it is not improbable that Mr. Ludlow's resolution will arouse more than passing attention.

THE COLONEL'S LADY

"Now, here," said Mr. Irving reading his evening paper, "is a woman of whom I approve. Olive, my dear, I wish you would sit down and let me read you this story. It won't take but a moment of your valuable time and I'm convinced it would do you good, if you'd take it to heart."

"Well, make it snappy, daddy, dear," said Olive, tearing herself away from the window, where she was eagerly waiting for her boy friend to put in an expected appearance. "I haven't much time, you know."

"If you'd take more time to think about valuable things, instead of about tearing off somewhere to have a good time," said Mr. Irving severely, "you too might help the world become a better place in which to live, Olive!" he exclaimed as that young lady resumed her vigil at the window. "Who in thunder are you looking for?"

"For Robert, daddy. He's five minutes late right now."

"For Robert!" scoffed her father. "Robert? That's all I ever hear around this house. Now, here is a woman—listen to this: 'Dr. Margaret Bronte of Brownville university has been selected president of Queen Mary college for women.'" Mr. Irving glanced at his daughter to be sure she kept within earshot and then resumed: "'Dr. Bronte is distinguished in her field of domestic science and recently headed a large congress of home economics experts in Brownville. Since the time she accepted her position here she has made swift advances until she now is recognized as one of the national leaders in her chosen field.' There!" said Mr. Irving, laying aside his paper and bending a paternal eye upon his fidgety daughter, "you see what some members of your sex are accomplishing. Do you think Dr. Bronte ever frittered away her time with dates and dances?"

"But daddy—"

"Do you think," went on Mr. Irving, ignoring his daughter's interruption, "that a woman like Dr. Bronte in her girlhood had her thoughts filled with some man?"

"But daddy—"

"Will you please try to put your mind on what I'm telling you? Now, here you sit, waiting for this Robert person and wondering if the powder on your nose is straight and if your frock is the very latest model, when you might be studying how to improve your mind, or doing something that in future years would make you as useful and worth while a woman as this Dr. Bronte. I'm sure you're bright enough. I'm sure you've had every opportunity for improving yourself. And yet here you sit serenely plotting the best and most effective way of stopping your father from wasting his perfectly good advice while you wonder how soon this young rascal will put in his appearance and you two can be off somewhere. Now, Dr. Bronte—"

"But, daddy!" The bell at this moment put in a loud peal and Olive, with an earnest glance full of supplication that her father would calm down when the one and only entered the room, fluttered to the door.

"I'm awfully sorry, Robert," said Olive mischievously as a tall, good-looking young man breezed into the living room, "but my father objects to my going out with you tonight. He wants me to settle down in some dusty old library and ponder the momentous question of how I, too, in later years may become a college president like this Dr. Bronte he admires so much."

"Dr. Bronte?" queried Robert. "Not—"

"Yes," said Olive, "Dr. Margaret Bronte of Brownville, who's just been chosen to head Queen Mary college. Daddy's been reading all about her and—"

"Why," said Robert, "I'm glad to hear you admire her, Mr. Irving. She's my aunt."

"Your aunt!" exclaimed Mr. Irving delightfully. "Well, well, well, I'm glad to hear it. It's a real inspiration to hear about women like her. It's a big thing, my boy, for a woman to become president of a college, a big thing!"

"Yes, I know," said Robert, "we were all thrilled about it, but, you know, she's not going to accept the offer."

"Not going to accept?" said Mr. Irving in astonishment.

"You see," explained Robert, "all these years her mind's been full of an army officer who's been stationed away off in South America, somewhere ever since they were engaged—"

"Engaged!" said Mr. Irving weakly.

"And now," went on Robert, "he's been made a colonel and given a permanent post in Cuba. You should have seen Aunt Margaret when she received the news. Excited! You never saw any one so thrilled in your life. So now she's giving up her career—the colonel objects to women working—and after a frenzied week of shopping for the latest models in frocks she's leaving for Cuba to be married."

"Married," echoed Mr. Irving.

"Daddy, dear," said Olive sweetly, "before we go Robert has something very important that he's been wanting to ask you for ever so long—"

"I know what it is, my boy," said Mr. Irving resignedly. "Yes, I give you my consent and my blessing. The colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady," he mused as Olive blew him a kiss and dashed out the door. "They're more than sisters. They're twins!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—In a day when Philippine independence seems rapidly approaching, when there may be a study of a self-government plan for Samoa, when Haiti is again in political tumult, Mr. Average American ought to read with soothed feelings the first thing in the senate record on the first day of its post-holiday reassembly.

It is a message from Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations and acting naval secretary on the day it was sent to the senate.

And it conveys New Year's greetings of the colonial council of St. Thomas and St. Johns, Virgin islands, most recently acquired overseas possessions, to President Hoover, the congress and the people of the United States.

Greetings

The naval governor's message said the chairman of the council had asked him to express "the hope that 1930 may prove a banner year of national prosperity."

"He further wishes," it continued, "that there may be conveyed to the president the information that the new year finds the condition of the working class greatly improved and our people on the whole prosperous and contented."

"He requested the governor to impress those in authority in the United States with the fact that the citizens are loyal to the government of the Virgin islands as now administered and that they appreciate all that the federal government has done and is doing for the islands."

That was a happy salute from this distant strategic base ruled by a naval officer. Still, it is no more so than was the original gesture toward sheltering under the Stars and Stripes made from that similar naval-governed base on the opposite side of the world, Samoa.

A Souvenir

Buried away in state department archives is an aged, time stained bit of bone known as the Samoan whale's tooth. Once it was the most sacred relic of tribal power in those islands, the symbol of chieftainship.

About it cluster legends of bloody wars. Yet back in Grant's administration, when Samoa was a pawn in the game of expanding European imperialistic dreams in the Pacific, that greatest treasure of the islanders was sent to Washington backing a plea that the United States take over the far away group and its people and protect them from exploitation.

It is a curious story. Not until years later was the American flag to fly protectively over a part of the group.

That was a day when the people of the little, defenseless countries across the seas thought well of Uncle Sam and his motives. Half a dozen of them sought admission to his fold. They did not fear imperialistic exploitation at his hands.

YOUR HEALTH

The Significance of Acute Abdominal Pain

By Frank D. Jennings, M. D., Brooklyn, New York.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Pain is the great protector of mankind. If it were not for pain many diseases would progress so far that their relief would be impossible. So, while it is disagreeable to have pain, we must be thankful for its existence.

If a pain in the abdomen is more than ordinarily severe, or if it lasts longer than a brief period, it indicates serious trouble. It is not a condition to be treated by some remedies.

Most of the acute abdominal pains are first felt in the "pit of the stomach." This is due to the arrangement of the nerves of the abdominal cavity, which has, among others, a switchboard at that level. Incoming calls from the entire cavity are received there. Trouble on the line anywhere registers promptly.

One of the first diseases we think of which may cause acute pain in the abdomen is acute appendicitis, because it is the most common. No age is immune to it. The infant may have it. So may his grandparents. The first symptom is always pain. Usually it is bad enough to compel one to go to bed. Nausea and vomiting, as a rule, follow either at once or within a few hours. If gangrene happens during an acute attack the pain stops at once. So that the cessation of pain may be a signal, too.

Another kind moves from the pit of the stomach around on the right side across the ribs and up to the right shoulder and is followed by nausea and vomiting. It is intense and griping in nature, but is not apt to last long. It is due to disease of the gall-bladder, is often called "gall colic" or "gall-stone colic." Once the gall-bladder is diseased it is almost a certainty that other attacks will follow the first one.

One of the most severe pains which may occur in the abdomen is that due to a rupture, or a perforation, or an ulcer of the stomach. This is not as common as appendicitis or gall-bladder disease. The beginning is extremely sudden, is first felt in the pit of the stomach, is agonizing, and is accompanied by collapse. The severity of the pain is due to the escape of the acid contents of the stomach out into the abdominal cavity. In a few hours the pain is all over the abdomen and the muscles become as hard as a board. This hardness is called "board-like rigidity."

A natural query is what a layman should do when confronted with any one of these conditions. The best advice for the emergency is to send at once for his physician. While awaiting his arrival: 1. Lie down. 2. Apply a hot water bottle or an ice-bag (whichever is more comfortable) to the abdomen. 3. Take nothing by mouth, absolutely nothing, and above all, not a cathartic. This cannot be emphasized too strongly. The unwise use of cathartics in the presence of acute abdominal pain costs many lives.

But the best advice of all is to forestall most of these pains by letting your family physician put you through a thorough annual examination. That gives him a chance to check up on the troubles that might later cause significant pains and end them before they get in their dirty work.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Chatterer Makes a Bargain

Make no bargain you may rue;
Be fair to self and others too.
—Old Mother Nature.

Timmy the Flying Squirrel sat in the dusk just outside the doorway of the home of Chatterer the Red Squirrel, eating corn. That corn had been left in a crotch of that tree by Chatterer, who now sat in his doorway watching Timmy eat.

"That is fine corn," said Chatterer.

"Indeed it is," replied Timmy. "I wonder how it came up here in this tree?"

Chatterer grinned. "I left it there for you," said he.

"Why should you leave any corn for me?" demanded Timmy suspiciously.

"Because I wanted you to taste it," replied Chatterer. "That's what I came over to your home about today. I'm sorry I woke you. I shouldn't have. You see, I was so full of a big idea that I couldn't wait."

"That's a silly question," retorted Timmy. "Of course I would."

Timmy turned those great eyes of his full on his Cousin Chatterer. You know Timmy has wonderful great black eyes. In them was something of suspicion now. "What was the big idea?" he asked.

"Would you like to have all of this good corn that you want?" asked Chatterer.

"That's a silly question," retorted Timmy. "Of course I would."

"Would you be willing to share some with me if I should tell you how you can get all you want?" continued Chatterer.

Timmy thought this over for a moment. Then he nodded. "Of course I would," said he. "Who wouldn't?"

"What time do you go to bed?" inquired Chatterer.

"About the time the Black Shadows leave in the morning; just as jolly, round, red Mr. Sun begins his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky," replied Timmy.

"Don't you ever come out in daylight?" inquired Chatterer.

"Not often," replied Timmy, "and then only on a dull, dark day."

Chatterer sighed. "I wish you did," said he. "As it is, I suppose I'll have to get up earlier than I like to. If you will meet me tomorrow morning just at break of day, and go with me, I'll show you how you can get all the corn you want and do it without any risk. I'll do this if you will bring me a little corn each time. Is it a bargain?"

Timmy thought this over for a few minutes. He had some questions to ask. He wanted to make sure that no special danger was involved. You know, Timmy is very timid. It is because he is so timid that he is called Timmy. There is no one in all the Green Forest more timid; not even Whitefoot the Wood Mouse. Chatterer took pains to make it clear that there was no special danger.

"There is no one, excepting Black Pussy the Cat, for you to be afraid of," said Chatterer.

"I'm not afraid of Black Pussy the Cat," replied Timmy. "Black Pussy has got to be smarter than she ever has been to catch me. The ones I fear most are members of the Hawk and Owl families, chiefly the members of the Owl family."

"You needn't fear them over there," said Chatterer. "As you know, Hooty the Great Horned Owl does most of his hunting here in the Green Forest. Spooky the Screech Owl spends most of his time in the Old Orchard. Really, Cousin Timmy, you have nothing to fear."

"All right," replied Timmy, "I'll meet you right here at daylight tomorrow morning."

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Blue Blood and Big Business

LONDON—Eton college for five centuries has been one of England's greatest glories.

Indeed, so much a part of Britain is this famous "public school" that one is tempted to say it is essential to the life of the country. Without Eton, this would not be England.

The Eton collar, and the funny little Eton jackets, surmounted by the silk hats of uncertain vintage, belong to English tradition.

For generations, small princes and members of the aristocracy have inked their fingers and rumpled their hair over their Latin in these classic halls. Some of the world's most distinguished men have been products of Eton.

They're Not Free

Curiously enough, Eton also, through no fault of her own, is associated with the present industrial and financial difficulties of this country. So are the other great public schools, for that matter.

A public school, by the way, isn't a free school, but is a high priced institution for young "blue-bloods." The free institutions are "council schools." They are attended by the children of small tradesmen and so on.

Eton's innocent participation in this paradoxical situation is due to the fact that there are a great many people in Britain who are afflicted with the complex which dictates that only an Old Etonian, or a graduate of one of the other public schools, is fit to become a master of men.

Eton and Harrow represent the aristocracy. Up to this point the aristocracy still remain the chosen people in Britain, although Ramsay MacDonald's labor party has been raising a certain amount of havoc with this idea.

To the Good Jobs

It always has been that executive positions, both in governmental affairs and in business, have fallen to "blue-bloods." The more blue a young man's blood has been, the better his chances in the world, and the more blue his blood, the greater the probability that he came from Eton or Harrow.

I am quite prepared to have someone trot out a list of Englishmen who have risen to the top from the lowest places. I can make out a list like that myself. But these men either are exceptions to the general rule or they have made their way "on their own" and not in partnership with the aristocrats.

I recently was assisting a young Englishman to find a position. He was an exceptionally intelligent, ambitious chap, with a good education—just the sort of man who should succeed in business. But he was not a public school boy.

I spoke to two friends who hold influential positions in big London concerns. The first question each of them asked me was: "Is he a public school boy?" When I said that he was not, they had no further interest in him. His ability didn't count.

The red fox is widely distributed, occurring in Europe and Asia, Africa, Iceland and North America.

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT BROUGHT FOR $5,000

Suit brought for $5,000 damages by Tillotson Daniels against Abraham Davidson, both of New London, has been withdrawn without costs from the docket of the superior court, notice having been filed with Clerk John H. Walker.

The defendant was owner of a taxicab driven by Lloyd Potter on Hempstead street, New London, on Jan. 12, 1929, which it was claimed hit Daniels, fracturing his skull and inflicting other injuries, including impairment of his sight.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT SUIT WITHDRAWN WITHOUT COSTS

Withdrawal without costs from the superior court has been filed with Clerk John H. Walker in the suit of Catherine L. McClure, administratrix, against Harold J. Porter of this city and the New England Transportation Co., for which he was a motor bus driver.

Mrs. McClure, who is of Groton, sued for $10,000 damages for the death of her 4-year-old son, Walter, who was killed on Oct. 11, 1929, on the Military highway when run over by one of the company buses which Porter was driving.

STATE RIFLEMEN TO MEET IN NEW HAVEN

Rifle clubs from all over the state are to send delegates to the annual meeting of the Connecticut State Rifle association, which is to be held at 3 p. m. on Saturday, Feb. 1, at the Winchester club, New Haven. The invitation is extended to all shooters of the state to attend. The Quinnipiac Rifle and Revolver club will furnish rifles and ammunition to those who do not bring their own. There are to be handicap rifle matches with a great variety of prizes, and guests are to have use of the bowling alleys. Supper will be served.

FUNERALS

Edward S. Purvis

Attended by a large gathering of mourners the funeral of Edward S. Purvis, of Webster, who died Sunday at a Worcester hospital, was held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Central Baptist church. The service was conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., the pastor, and Frederick J. Maples rendered a number of hymns. The floral remembrances were numerous and beautiful. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery and the committal service at the grave was read by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The bearers were C. Edward Smith, James L. Case, Horace Church and Robert McNeely. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Church and Allen.

In addition to his brother, David H. Purvis of the New London road, Mr. Purvis leaves two other brothers, John W., in Snohomish, Wash., and William Purvis of British Columbia; also two sisters, Mrs. William Simpson of Kaleden, British Columbia, and Mrs. Henry M. Maver of Nova Scotia.

Several years after the death of his wife he left Norwich to make his home with his son, Fred H. Purvis, in Webster, Mass. As his health became impaired he entered the Worcester hospital for treatment, which necessitated a serious surgical operation, from which he had not the strength to rally.

For years Mr. Purvis was an esteemed resident of Whitaker avenue, Laurel Hill, and in that section of Norwich in particular his death is sincerely mourned by neighbors and friends.

Miss Mary A. O'Neil

At 8:15 o'clock Wednesday morning, funeral services for Miss Mary A. O'Neil were held at her home, No. 17 Division street, followed by requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. The mass was celebrated by Rev. William A. Keefe, the rector, and the music was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, the organist. At the offertory, Pie Jesu was sung by Edward T. Connelly, and as a waiting hymn Henry J. LaFontaine rendered When Evening Comes. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional by Mrs. Farrell.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan read the committal service at the grave. The bearers were John W. Walsh, John W. Burke, Robert D. Burns of Norwalk, James Casey, Christopher Barry and William McGuirk. In the large attendance of relatives and friends were people from New London, Willimantic and Norwalk, and a large representation of employes and officials of the local Reid and Hughes Co. store, with which she had been connected for nearly [illegible] years. There were many very attractive floral tributes.

Mrs. George T. Byrnes

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist), funeral services for Mary Winship Lamb, widow of George Thomas Byrnes, of 31 Union street, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster. As the mourners assembled, the organist, Mrs. Beatrice R. Mitchell, played familiar hymns softly. Rev. Mr. Foster read from the Scriptures, then, in accordance with Mrs. Byrnes' request, read a favorite poem, Tennyson's Crossing the Bar, as Mrs. Mitchell softly played the organ obligato. The pastor paid a tribute to Mrs. Byrnes as the oldest member of the church, whose interest in its welfare for 76 of her 90 years, had been steadfast and genuine, lasting unabated since the beginning of the pastorate of Rev. Benjamin Whittemore, when the original Universalist church was located on Cliff street.

As the body was borne from the church, Mrs. Mitchell's recessional was Nearer, My God, To Thee, modulating into Abide With Me and Jesus, Lover of My Soul. There were choice floral forms from the church organizations, relatives and friends. Burial was in the Lamb family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Foster read the committal prayers. The bearers were: Tyler D. Guy, Walter C. Foster, Charles W. Parsons and Herbert E. Lawrence. Among those from out of town attending the funeral was Mrs. Byrnes' nephew, Joseph Irwin Lamb, from Boston.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of the Henry Allen & Son company.

It is said that the Carthaginians once used leather as money.

JUDGE AVERY RESERVES DECISION AS ALIENATION SUIT TRIAL ENDS

Trial of the $30,000 suit of Mrs. Helen Antzis against Mrs. Rose Backley Frink for alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's husband, Samuel Antzis, while he was in the employ of the Frink dairy business in this city, came to a conclusion in the superior court here shortly before 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and the case is now in the hands of Judge C. L. Avery, who reserved decision.

Counsel for Mrs. Frink, who were Attorneys C. V. James and G. C. Morgan, submitted the case to Judge Avery without argument, after Attorney C. W. Higgins, counsel for Mrs. Antzis, had spoken for 40 minutes in making the opening argument for the plaintiff.

In opening his argument, Attorney Higgins expressed appreciation of the patience of the judge in listening to what the attorney called "a barrage of domestic infelicity," and he went on to call attention to the part played by Samuel Antzis during the trial in sitting between and consulting with counsel for Mrs. Frink. The attorney called Antzis the master mind, field marshal and generalissimo in the case and referred to him more than once as "this son of the Ural of Semitic origin." He spoke of what it was necessary to prove in an alienation case and cited several legal authorities in support of his claims. When he had spoken about 40 minutes, he came to a stop saying that he desired to leave some time for himself to use in closing argument.

During this session of court, Judge Avery had frequently shown his desire to get the case finished up, cutting the attorneys short when they got into an exchange of biting remarks, and telling them to confine the evidence to the issues, as they had gone too far afield at many points in the trial.

When the attorneys for Mrs. Frink were given opportunity to make their argument, they agreed to submit the case without argument after suggestion from the court and Judge Avery at once adjourned court, reserving decision, which he will pronounce later.

The court session was over for the day at 12:40 but court will come in this (Thursday) morning for trial of another case.

Antzis On The Stand

When the trial opened Wednesday morning, Samuel Antzis resumed his place on the witness stand which he had been occupying when court adjourned Tuesday.

Antzis said that he drove with Mrs. Frink to New London dairies on business trips, and to Hartford once, to the Morris Plan bank for her to make a loan and once to the state motor vehicle department about number plates on the automobile when the dairy was incorporated.

He denied that he had seen his wife within a week or two in a restaurant and he identified the letters which had been put in as exhibits when his brother was on the stand.

As to a trip to Point Judith, the witness said he was hired for this trip and made it at night with his brother Mike, arriving there about 2 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Frink came there and met him later because she wanted to see how things were, the witness said.

On cross-examination he said he was hired to see if Mr. Frink was there at Point Judith. He stated that it was not in the china closet where he stayed when his wife was looking for him at the Frink house, and said he was only in hiding about five minutes at that time. He said he and his wife had always disagreed and he had a "rotten" honeymoon.

Antzis testified that he was born in Russia, but Judge Avery ruled out a question by Attorney Higgins as to the citizenship of the witness.

Proceeding to answers to questions about the incorporation of Frink Dairy, Antzis said he bought some shares and was given some, but couldn't remember how many.

He told that his wife would throw at him anything she could get her hands on such as knives, clocks or lamps, and once hit him in the back with her hands so that he was lamed and had to have a doctor.

"Your heart strings were badly torn, Sam?" inquired Attorney Higgins.

"Yes, they were, a little bit."

His pay at first at the dairy was $30 a week, Antzis said, and was $50 last year. He gave all his pay to his wife except that by the time he was getting $50 a week his wife was going around with company to whom he objected and that made a difference.

Asked about drinking, he said he would take a drink of whatever it happened to be, and whenever Mr. Frink came home from the hospital they had drinks. His friendship with Frink broke at the time of the dairy receivership.

After the cross-examination Attorney James stated that the defense rested, but had some more witnesses but would not call them at this time.

Rebuttal Testimony

In rebuttal, Attorney Higgins recalled to the stand Mrs. Annie Driscoll of the Marguerite apartments who testified that no door was broken in at her house and that a man came to the house at 10:30 at night and not at 1 o'clock in the morning when Mrs. Antzis was there.

Answers Two Questions

Mrs. Hazel Smith Ulmer against whom Mrs. Frink has an alienation suit for $50,000 damages, was called to the stand as a rebuttal witness by Attorney Higgins.

Mrs. Ulmer answered "No" when the attorney asked her if she had ever met or known or received any statement from or had any communication with Mrs. Antzis. She said "No" again when the attorney asked her if she had ever talked or communicated with him (Attorney Higgins) about this case or any other pending case.

Attorney Higgins got the questions in after a lengthy discussion as to their relevancy. He claimed the privilege of asking these two questions because of what he said were certain sinister insinuations as to some subterfuge or collusive agreement between Mrs. Antzis and Mrs. Ulmer and himself and Mrs. Ulmer. Addressing the court he said: "In the 35 years as a member of this bar, I early was taught and I have since religiously and conscientiously followed the rule that a plaintiff seeking judgment in this court should come into this court purged of any act which would tend to deceive the court or in any way involve her and her counsel in the court places in any [illegible] action and that is the only reason for this evidence being offered."

Mrs. Antzis was recalled to the stand. She denied all the testimony about throwing things at her husband and that she ever struck him. She denied that she told Sarah Crouch she was going to "fix him good," but said this was what [illegible] told her. She denied that she knew Mrs. Ulmer or had ever had any communication with her. She denied testimony given by her brother that she put a milk bottle at the dairy into which she put whiskey. She also denied that she broke into her husband's room at the Marguerite.

After a brief recess, preceding which Judge Avery advised the lawyers to do all they could to close the case, court was in session again and Attorney Higgins explained that Sol Rothstein, who runs a grain business in Baltic was to be his last witness, but he was not in court. Rothstein was the man who called upon Mrs. Antzis at the Marguerite apartments and the attorney told the judge in detail what Rothstein would testify to in substantiating the testimony of Mrs. Antzis as to what occurred at the apartment when Rothstein called there at night.

Questions and objections by Mrs. Frink's counsel revealed that Rothstein had not been served a subpoena to appear in court but had promised Attorney Higgins to be there, after a conference Tuesday night in the attorney's office.

It was finally agreed by counsel for Mrs. Frink to let what Attorney Higgins had told the judge go in as evidence of what Rothstein would have said if he had been in court.

This concluded the evidence for both sides and Attorney Higgins took up his argument.

EXPECTING LARGE ANNUAL BOY SCOUT MEETING

Boy Scouts of Norwich, Putnam, Stafford Springs, Willimantic, and Danielson will hold their annual council meeting next Monday evening, at 7:30 in the chamber of commerce rooms. Seats will be provided for an attendance of 80 men representing all phases of boy scout leadership. As guests of honor will be the "key" men of scouting, the scoutmasters who work directly with the boys. There are now 37 registered scoutmasters. As members of the local council all chairmen of troop committees are expected to be present. Standing committees of the council numbering a score or more of men have indicated their desire to participate in the general gathering and have been urged to attend. Deputy scout commissioners, merit badge counselors, district committeemen, cub commitees, all have been invited to attend the meeting, pass upon the slate of officers for the year of 1930, hear brief reports of the year's activities, and offer helpful suggestions.

Reports on the Year

President Charles Coit has asked all chairmen of standing committees to be prepared to give reports of the year's activities, and, according to the scout executive these reports will be distributed in an attractive booklet with a scout cover. The plan includes having all reports, directory of names etc. mimeographed and bound for keeping and later perusal. Activities of the council according to the president especially during the last half of the year have been many and of great importance. With a quick summary of the year's work, the setting up of larger objectives, the passing upon the slate of officers, the meeting is expected to adjourn by 9:00 o'clock. Only the high spots of the year's work will be covered by the dozen council committees.

Goal of 1,000 Scouts

One of the objectives which it is hoped the council will adopt is that of 1,000 scouts by February 1, 1931. With the splendid support given the Boy Scouts during the past few months, with the indications of whole-hearted community support of their coming Boy Scout finance campaign, this goal though large, is possible if all will work to make it became a reality.

There has been a growing interest in a great all troop rally to be held in the armory in April or May. To make this a success will mean that troops throughout the territory will have to enter into the spirit of the demonstration, of the character training, and citizenship training involved in bringing boys together from different parts of the district to work together on an all council project.

Court of Honor

Plans for the coming court of honor announced for Feb. 5, indicate the largest attendance at a meeting of this kind ever held here by the scouts. One thousand persons are expected to attend. The last court was excellently received by the 300 persons present and as a result of the showing of camp pictures a winter camp was held at Winsted for the scouts. The court planned for Feb. 5 will probably be an International Jamboree Court of Honor. Final arrangements will be announced at the Monday evening meeting. Indications are that scouts will receive badges in all ranks from Tenderfoot to the highest, that of Eagle rank.

Many other objectives for the coming year will be taken up at the meeting and doubtless there will be many suggestions from the floor. Scouting is one of the most democratic organizations in America, appealing to all creeds and races. It is a common ground upon which men can meet because it is so peculiarly American. Representation is an important part of the organization's make-up. The appointments committee headed by Arthur L. Peale solicit suggestions for the proposed slate of officers for the executive board for 1930. According to Mr. Peale now is the time for the scout field to express themselves as to whom they want as heads of committees, administrators, counselors. All recommendations will be confidentially received. It is hoped that from the field, from the different committees, names will be turned in so that the present executive board can be enlarged by ten members.

THERMOS AND DUWELLS AGAIN NECK AND NECK

The Thermos team took two matches in the City Pinochle league play Wednesday night, one of them being from the Duwells, which brought these two teams back again into a tie for the lead in the league, each having won 16 and lost 8 games.

The scores: First half—Thermos 25,610 vs. Foresters 24,350; Duwells 26,120 vs. American Legion 23,500; American Icy Hot 25,390 vs. Eagles 25,320.

Second half—Thermos 25,010 vs. Duwells 26,310; Eagles 26,620 vs. Foresters 25,180; American Icy Hot 22,130 vs. American Legion 24,940.

EASTERN POINT BEACH IS BEING MODERNIZED

Sixty bath houses are being razed at the Shenecossett bathing beach, Eastern Point, to provide space for the erection of cabanas for 18 families. The new structures will be like those constructed last winter from the east side of the office to the line of the Plant estate. The cabanas are to resemble those in use at Miami and Palm Beach, Fla. Each will have a private shower, two dressing rooms, a sitting room and a veranda which will be protected by a new awning. There will be [illegible] walks. A concrete sea wall is to be built to protect the buildings from rough seas and high tides.

The building of the new cabanas will make necessary the removal of the present boiler room, laundry and drying room, and brick chimney. These will be rebuilt at the rear of other bath houses. The changes will give the beach front a fine appearance; cabanas will front on the whole stretch. The entire plant will be repainted and will be equipped with new awnings throughout. A flag pole will be erected. For several years improvements have been made at the beach under direction of James A. Ward of Eastern Point, superintendent.

NORWICH RIFLE TEAM FINISHES UNDEFEATED

The Norwich Rifle club team finished with a clean record Wednesday night at the state armory in the final match of the Mohegan Rifle league, defeating the Pioneer Hose team of Groton, 892 to 856. The home team has yet to be defeated in a league match. The score:

GAVE TALK ON CHEMISTRY FOR NORWICH ROTARIANS

The Norwich Rotary club, at its luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel, enjoyed an instructive talk by Joseph B. Wiese, a retired chemist of Holyoke, Mass., whose sense of humor made his talk entertaining as well, as he spoke of some experiences in analytical chemistry.

In concluding his talk he dwelt for some time on the absurdity of modern day advertising of certain food products, paper and beauty lotions. To the layman this advertising sounds exceptionally good but to the chemist with an analytical mind it becomes laughable. He mentioned a number of well known products which boast of certain qualities which go into the product but which are entirely neutralized by the chemical reactions with other elements in the product. He mentioned a product which the manufacturers claim has been sterilized 30 times. He said that any product that had to be sterilized 20 times must have been polluted twenty times. When a thing is sterilized once it is sterilized just as well as if it is sterilized 20 times. He spoke of a number of tricks that an advertiser may use to discredit a competitor's product if be understood chemistry. He recited several of these cases where a man had used his knowledge of chemistry to advantage.

At the conclusion of his talk he was given a hearty vote of appreciation.

At the business session President Frank R. Murdy presided and Drs. Campbell and Agnew were the song leaders.

Harold D. Larrabee, general chairman of the boy scout drive, spoke of the coming campaign and paid tribute to the work of Scout Executive John Sellman, who in the short time he has been in Norwich has increased the scout membership from 85 to 461 in the city. Mr. Larrabee urged the support of the movement.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

EVENING OF BRIDGE FOR SYNAGOGUE BENEFIT

On Tuesday evening Mrs. William Shectman, formerly of Hartford, entertained at bridge at her home on Goldberg avenue in the interests of the Norwich Community synagogue. This is the first of a series of bridges the proceeds of which will go towards a new home for the Norwich Community synagogue.

Denied Sideswiping Accident

William Walsh, a taxi driver, who was reported to have been in an accident Tuesday night in which he sideswiped a pole on Washington street, denied Wednesday night that he had been in any accident and said that the only trouble he had had was in getting out of the gutter when the slippery going made his wheels spin. He also denied that the car he was driving was a touring car.

Bagged Red Fox

A party of local hunters, Michael Pounch, Ripple Morgan, Mr. Lathrop and Mr. Nagle, bagged a handsome red fox Wednesday morning in the Plain Hill section after a chase of three and a half hours. The fox was shot by Mr. Pounch, ahead of three well-bred hounds.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Wednesday club met with the president, Mrs. Albert H. Chase, of Sachem Terrace. The hostess had the paper, on Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Mother! Do You Know the Danger of A Cough from Colds!

Mother, if the youngsters play hard and "take cold," if for any of a dozen other reasons they get "sick with a cold," stop it as fast as you can. Don't let it hang on. Colds that stay and stay, too often weaken the system and lead into some serious sickness.

If any of your youngsters develop a cough from a cold that hangs on, use sensible precautions immediately and give them Creomulsion. Help their strong youthful bodies to fight coughs from colds with Creomulsion. It is pleasant, easy to take.

Creomulsion is an old remedy now. Millions know its merits and like it. We guarantee that it will relieve coughs from colds, or we'll refund your money. Adv.

James K. Pimer, 80, a former resident of New London, died suddenly at his home at Long Beach, Cal., yesterday. He is survived by a son, Arthur Pimer, and two grandsons, who reside in Philadelphia and by two brothers, Thomas J., and Carlos B. Pimer, of this city. Mr. Pimer, who was born in New London, had resided in California for ten years. He spent several weeks in New London recently, returning to his home only about three weeks ago.

MRS. JAMES D. HANAN DEAD—SISTER OF MRS. G. M. MINER

News has been received in New London of the death Saturday at Thomasville, Ga., of Mrs. Alida J. Rogers Hanan, widow of James D. Hanan, a former resident at Oswegatchie, Waterford. Mrs. Hanan is survived by two brothers, James T. Rogers of East Lyme, and Frank Rogers, Norfolk, Va., and by a sister, Mrs. George M. Minor, Oswegatchie. Mrs. Hanan was the daughter of the late Capt. James C. and Nancy H. Rogers, of East Lyme.

Hartford Wife Seeks Husband

The Hartford police tonight sent a request to all police departments in the state that an effort be made to find Herman E. Styles, missing from his home since yesterday. He is described as being 42, five feet tall and weighs about 165 pounds; has medium complexion, stocky build, and gray hair. When Styles disappeared from home he wore a blue striped suit, dark overcoat, soft hat and black shoes. He is a painter by occupation. Mrs. Styles notified the Hartford police tonight of her husband's disappearance and said that the day he left home she received a telegram from him at Springfield, Mass., stating that he was seeking work. Today, Mrs. Styles received a letter from him under today's date from the same city and with the same information as was contained in the dispatch.

TWO DEGENERATES SOUGHT BY LOCAL DETECTIVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 22—The police are exercising their best efforts to arrest a pair of degenerates who operated here last night, but so far they have not been successful. In one instance an arrest is expected daily, but in the other the chances are that the fellow will escape arrest unless he continues his disgusting practice. During last evening a young man loitered in front of the office of the Southern New England Telephone company, where he exposed himself to young women departing from or entering the offices. Complaint was made to the police and several officers made a search of Washington street where the office is located and other streets, but did not find anyone answering the description of the accused by the young women.

Earlier in the evening a brute made the acquaintance of a boy of but nine, residing on Howard street. The man induced him to accompany the former to a field a considerable distance away where he abused the boy. When the latter returned to his home he related his experience to his father who at once lodged complaint with the police. Officers were assigned to make an investigation, but were not rewarded with success.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL OF BELTON A. COPP AT GROTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 22.—The funeral of Belton A. Copp, at his death president of the National Whaling bank and the Savings Bank of New London, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 144 Thames street, Groton, and was attended by a large concourse of mourners, including leading citizens of the borough and officials of the various banking institutions of New London. The services were conducted by Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, pastor of Groton Congregational church. The bearers were Judge Christopher L. Avery, A. M. Maine, C. A. Schellens, Ira S. Avery, Harold G. Pond and George Whittlesey. Burial was in the family plot in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Rose Cuballo, 6, residing at 2 Pratt street, was slightly injured this afternoon when she ran against the side of an automobile driven by Virgil Neff, R. F. D., Waterford, on Montauk avenue, near Tinker court. The child ran against the fender and was knocked down. Witnesses of the accident said that the driver was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed and that the child, who received minor bruises, sustained them because of her own carelessness.

The Mohegan Finance company intends to bring suit against the estate of William Williams, as is revealed by a certificate to that effect filed for record today at the office of the city clerk. The certificate names Margaret F. Williams, administratrix of the estate and Thomas W. and Ruth R. Williams as the prospective defendants. Property of the estate on Fifth avenue, consisting of two building lots has been attached.

Joseph Gentilella has leased to the First National Stores, Inc., the store at 785 Bank street and a part of the store, rear 787. The lease is for one year, dating from March 1, 1930 and the rent will be $735.

Thomas F. and Mary M. Hayes have sold a house and lot on Colt street to Richard, Thomas, Cornelius, Robert and George Hayes.

An Erskine automobile owned by Joseph H. Munson, 456 Seaview avenue, Bridgeport which was stolen in that city yesterday, was recovered by the New London police early today when found abandoned in the highway. The owner came to New London and claimed his property.

An automobile five-ton truck owned by John Doyle, of Gorton street, and driven by Alfred E. Sherman, climbed to the sidewalk, corner of Main and Douglass streets, this afternoon and demolished a hatchway.

HORSERADISH VENDOR WAS TOO PERSISTENT

John Smith, 65, Mystic, a familiar character about the streets of New London many years where he sold horseradish of his own manufacture and who has been doubly noticeable because of his persistency in attempting to sell his product, was arrested this afternoon because of such persistency. Smith was arrested by State Police Officer John Smith, (no relation), of Groton barracks. He was allowed his liberty on his own recognisance and upon his assurance to present himself in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the state law, which prohibits the offering for sale or actual sale of merchandise in the highways. The horse radish pedlar has made a practice of stopping autoists, particularly drivers on the Thames river highway bridge and endeavoring to sell his product. He has been cautioned several times against continuing the practice, but did not heed the advice of the officers. This afternoon when the officer detected Smith stopping autos and offering the horse radish for sale the vender was arrested.

Sent to State Farm

Daniel Fraser, 65, farm laborer, was in the police court this morning charged with intoxication. He was sentenced to the state inebriate farm at Norwich State hospital, Preston, for a stay of an indefinite period, being taken there by Captain Charles Pinney and Patrolman Arthur Feeley. Fraser, who has been arrested 26 times, mostly for intoxication, became drunk yesterday and like many other victims of drink went to the very place he should stay away from. That is exactly what Fraser did yesterday for while intoxicated to went to police headquarters and mounted the stairs to the court room during session. Fraser possesses a voice extremely loud and gruff and interrupting the court, he requested Deputy Judge John McGarry to commit him to jail for six months. Fraser was accommodated for he was locked up and today, instead of his request for a six months' stay at the county jail being granted, he was sent to the horse farm where a protracted stay will keep him away from liquor for that period of time at least, and may have a tendency to bring Fraser to total abstinence.

William Stewart, 227 Thames street, Groton, was charged with speeding and was fined $5 and costs. Stewart was arrested on State street last night by State Police Officer Charles Hill.

Orvin L. Moody, North Windham, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving on the wrong side of a traffic beacon, was discharged.

George Sheehan, West High street, charged with intoxication was sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Sheehan was arrested yesterday afternoon on Shapley street by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrolman Dennis Murphy where he was making a nuisance of himself.

Killiam–Green

Announcement has been made here of the marriage at Green Cove Springs, Fla., Jan. 15 of Miss Ida Burrows Green of Ortega, Fla., formerly of New London, and F. B. Killiam, city treasurer and tax assessor of South Jacksonville, Fla.

Miss Esther Wilson, of Broad street and Miss Anna M. Sullivan, 25 Welsbach street, are in New Haven and will attend a two days' conference of observers of the Southern New England Telephone company.

Mrs. George M. Miner of Waterford, has closed her residence on Niantic river and has gone to Washington, D. C., where she will remain until spring. Mrs. Minor was accompanied by Mrs. Charles H. Bissell. Mrs. Minor and Mrs. Bissell are officers of the National Society, Daughters of American Revolution.

The first business meeting and social of the newly organized Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist church was held in the church parlors Tuesday evening. Before the meeting a bean supper was served the young people by the members of the church.

Captain Louis Rounds of the steamship Elizabeth Ann, which runs between here and Block Island and Greenport, was hit over the left eye while discharging a cargo of lumber at Greenport Monday. Three stitches were necessary to close the wound.

Harold M. Hubbard, commander of James W. Harvey post, American Legion is heading a group of sportsmen of the borough who are planning to organize a rifle club to be part of the National Rifle association. As soon as a few more names are added a meeting will be held and temporary officers elected.

Benjamin Comeau and his wife, Catherine, of Mystic, arrested on the 15th for violation of the liquor law, were presented in Stonington town court Tuesday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox and were bound over to the superior court at its May term under bonds in each case of $1,000. Clarence Donath, of Mystic, charged with reckless driving, was fined $25 and costs, which he paid.

ROAD SOCIETY

The grange meeting was held in the church parlors Friday evening with installation of officers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tourjee of Noank called on their son in law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Wheeler, Jr., Saturday morning.

Irving Dawley has installed an electric compressed air system which supplies water to his house and barn from a spring nearby which he has had piped.

A Frank Discussion of a Personal Subject No Longer Evaded . .

TO be sure, it's still embarrassing, this question of fetid breath, pimply skin (which usually attends it), yellow-tinged eyes. But people now are outspoken about it. They face facts in the face and recognize that they are suffering from constipation. Even the healthiest system may be subject to it at times.

Harsh purgative waters and salts or griping physics irritate an already inflamed and upset digestive tract. But a purely vegetable laxative, like Beecham's Pills, has a gentle, corrective action. Relieves constipation as if by magic. Never cramps or overacts. Won't torture you with griping pains. Restores natural, regular action.

Beecham's Pills in the new [illegible] size (glass bottle) are [illegible]—the modern remedy. Even a tiny child can take them with benefit. Good for all the family. Get a package today and see for yourself. [illegible] at all druggists. [illegible]

BEECHAM'S PILLS
Curb Constipation

[illegible]

HARTFORD Girl Gains Weight Amazingly

NATURE controls all the functions of our digestive organs save one. We control that; and a lot of trouble it causes.

Children suffer when they don't observe regular bowel habits. Breath becomes fetid; tongue coated; eyes dull. A host of ailments; biliousness, feverishness, lack of appetite follow if we neglect this warning that a child's bowels need help.

In such cases California Fig Syrup never fails to help by the prompt opening of clogged intestines. The first spoonful does that; and relieves the common symptoms of constipation. Successive doses help tone and strengthen weak stomach and bowels; improve appetite; encourage digestion and assimilation. In a few days a child is well, happy and bright again.

The way children improve when California Fig Syrup is used is the best proof of its merit. Here's an example: Mrs. A. E. Feldstein, 87 Milford St., Hartford, says: "Sylvia was bothered with constipation several years ago and I decided to give her California Fig Syrup. It made such a difference in her that I have used it since then for every little upset. It helps her digestion; regulates her bowels; keeps her strong and energetic. I am sure it is one thing that is helping her gain weight at such a wonderful rate now."

The pure vegetable product, endorsed by doctors for 50 years, always bears the word California.

LESTER LONERGAN SPEAKS BEFORE THE PLAYERS' CLUB

Lester Lonergan, playwright, actor and theatrical director of New York, recently returned from a motor trip to California, who has a summer place on the Shore road, addressed an open meeting of Westerly Players' club, held Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium.

Julian T. Crandall of Ashaway, was re-appointed Tuesday by Governor Norman S. Case a member of the Inland Fisheries commission. Other members on the committee, all reappointed, are: Theophile Guerin and John C. Cosseboom, Woonsocket; John L. Curran, North Providence; J. Alton Barker, Newport; Irving D. Hudson, Coventry, and J. Walter Mills of Cranston.

More snow was added in Westerly Wednesday to that already on the ground and on the ponds where ice formed the first of the week, skating was spoiled. This was the first snowstorm of the year in which there was enough snow on the ground to be made good use of by the youngsters' Christmas sleds. Tuesday, it looked as if there would be a considerable deposit but late in the afternoon the snow turned to a rain and driving mist, but as night fell the snow did not become slush because the temperature remained close to the freezing mark. Those who shoveled paths early in the evening were obliged later to throw on ashes or sand because the walks became so slippery. The temperature continued moderate with but little change Wednesday from that of Tuesday, in spite of the fact that weather predictions foretell colder weather.

Joseph Mousele, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chickery Mousele of Farley avenue, Pawcatuck, sustained a cut on his head in a coasting accident Tuesday night, on Liberty street. He was coasting with his cousin, Walter, at 7:45 o'clock. At the same time a Ford coupe was under motion and turned into Lincoln avenue. The boy's sled hit the front of the coupe. A friend picked the boys up and they were taken to the private hospital. Walter, aged 6, was found to be uninjured. The accident was investigated by Patrolman George L. Seidell, of Pawcatuck.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Corson T. Phillips

News was received Wednesday from Wilmington Del., of the death of Eleanor G. Kroener, 43, wife of Corson T. Phillips. Mrs. Phillips was formerly the wife of the late Howard Lanphear, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lanphear of 19 Beach street. Mrs. Phillips was the daughter of the late Christian and Eliza C. Kroener.

The pupils of Westerly high school are taking their mid-year examinations this week.

Richard Mitchell, of 69 Granite street, president of the South County Rod and Gun club, is a patient under observation and treatment at the Deaconess hospital, Boston.

Antonio Farago has returned, after a visit to the Boston automobile show.

Robert S. Spargo will be a visitor this week end with New York friends.

Francis M. Johnson was in Providence Wednesday.

F. Samuel Nardone attended the building machinery convention at Atlantic City the past week.

Raymond E. Mullaney returned Wednesday morning to his duties in Providence.

James C. Fitzpatrick, of Norwich, and a party of friends were Westerly visitors the first of the week.

Miss Frances L. Young, of Haversham, was in Providence Wednesday.

MYSTIC

The annual meeting of St. Mark's parish was held Monday evening in the parish house. Reports of the officers, heard and accepted, showed that there had been several improvements to the church property during the past year, chief among them being the installation of a new heater and building of a new tile chimney in the church building. Following election the meeting adjourned to Sunday morning, following the 10.30 service. The officers elected are: Senior warden, John H. Goodman; junior warden, Henry A. Kellogg; clerk, Mrs. C. C. McGaughey; members of the vestry, Roscoe K. Burrows, Carroll Bliven, Walter Tucker, Fred A. Godfrey, Mrs. Eliza F. Denekee, Miss Mary S. Kellogg, Miss Annie M. Packer; delegates to diocesan convention, H. Bliven and J. H. Goodman; alternates, W. J. Tucker and H. A. Kellogg; delegates to archdeaconry convention, W. J. Tucker and H. A. Kellogg; alternates, R. K. Burrows and J. H. Goodman.

Word has been received in the village from Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Main, their daughter, Miss Hazel, and nephew, James Main, who left Mystic January 6, and went to Miami. While there they motored to several interesting places, on one trip going to visit the sugar mills and plantations in Clewiston. It was most interesting to watch the sugar cane being made into syrup and then into sugar. On Friday the family motored to St. Petersburg, where they will stay for a short time at their winter home.

Mrs. W. J. Tucker, principal of Mystic Oral school, who is a patient in a hospital in New London, is reported as progressing steadily.

Fred Ketchum is in New York to attend the motor boat show.

A garage is being erected on the property of Elmer C. Hall, on Pearl street.

A JANUARY BLACK SNAKE AND WHAT IT'S THE SIGN OF

The month of January has brought many warm days and many different things were seen by people, bringing spring right around the corner while the rest of the world was freezing. The Fishing Village escaped the real cold days and some one reports finding a strawberry under a bunch of dead grass ready for the table, after being in so many rain storms and one or two snow storms. They did not bother the Noank strawberry at all. The school children have been playing marbles on the streets without mittens on, with salt bags loaded with the colored marbles.

One old lobster man who has had more hard luck than anyone in the lobster game claims Friday the 13th never changes his luck; so as he was going to get a bus for New London he stopped and watched the school kids playing marbles on the main street. He said "That's a good sign for the lobster season of 1930! That means a good run! About 75 years ago the children were playing marbles without their jackets in January. That year we got good catches, paid all the bills that we owed during the winter months and got enough money to buy a new auto and paint up our houses!" The kind old lobster man, Capt. Jake Mack, said "Let them play marbles! That will bring us good luck!"

Jerry Sullivan, a well known plumber and his helper, Stretch Morrison, are fitting out a $40,000 house for C. Steiger, of Hartford, at Groton Long Point. They claim it is one of the best looking houses at the Point. Plumber Sullivan was going into the garage, Stretch called for help as a 6-foot, white-ringed black snake which came from behind a bunch of grass, on Friday afternoon, made a leap right from his tail. Sullivan, with a 24-inch wrench, made a spring that looked good for a home run on any baseball field. He sure hit the mark and sent the snake where it was dead to the world, where some of his mates are before him. The afternoon was warm and the snake thought that summer had come in January. He seemed to be lively and full of pep. If that snake had got a good hold of Stretch's leg, might mean death, for they are deadly poison and don't care how big a man or animal they will attack. But where did that white-ringed black snake come from so early in the year? or did it get lost from his mate before the Point closed its doors for 1929, meaning everything closed until the May flowers come in the spring. The snake around its body was about two and one-half inches. Oh, boy! what a mean look in his eyes before he tried that leap; meaning "get out of the way or something is going to happen!"

The Noank weather guesser, Carl Ashcraft was looked up at his home Friday evening, to tell what kind of a sign it means to see a black snake in the middle of January. He went to a closet and got out a large book thick as a 12x12 log from the Vermont woods, telling as far back as when the winter men fought in the Bean Town of Boston all kinds of signs and what you do when you see the moon over your left shoulder on a dark night, etc. Putting on his nose glasses and turning to page 302 on the left corner, he read: If you kill a white-ringed black snake in January with something of iron or wood, that is a sign that a cold snap is coming. Before the last of this month the ice men will have 8-inch ice put away for the summer trade and all ice houses filled which will start a good smile with the ice owners! But if the cold snap fails to appear it will mean that the ice-owners will have to buy 24-inch ice by carload from Maine or New Hampshire. For this page in this book has not told a lie yet, since my great-grandfather gave it to me so I could give the fishermen all the weather information. All about the different signs. The ice owners ought to be thankful that Plumber Jerry Sullivan killed that lone snake, that thought summer came early. He was ready to go to the boardwalk to see the mermaids in the swimmers' surf. But he was disappointed and could not get back to his hole in time for the sad blow came too quick."

The weather guesser said the snake was trying to pull off the woodchuck's stunt known as the Ground Hog, meaning six weeks' more winter. On page 191, a short way was reading telling when the last black snake was put out of this North American world. It was by Capt. Johnny Blackstone at the North dock road, Jan. 24th, 63 years ago, when he was going down to his boat to sail after whales, when it took 90 days to make a trip. Capt. Blackstone had on leather boots made by an East Main street shoe doctor and made a drop kick that caught Mr. Snake under the chin and sent him about 40 yards and landed him on a wagon-load of bricks, where a free ride was given this member of the snake family with its eyes closed.

So that is what happens when a white-ringed black snake is put away for good!"

Weather Guesser Ashcraft was thanked for telling the two men about what the sign meant. Also he told a good one where Amos had handly picked a white rose in his front yard under a snow pile in December. "That means we will see many warm days in January." A red full moon means plenty of northeast wind and two snow storms. And a few days of warm rain. But don't look at a moon through a pair of glasses on the 13th of any month, for it is bad luck.

He Coughed For Two Years

SworeOff

After coughing for two years almost continuously a man of considerable means got thin and tired and worn out, made his will, and was ready to quit the big game of life. A friend spoke to him about Bronchuline Emulsion and now life to him is very sweet indeed.

That's the kind of cough that is put out of business with amazing speed when the cougher is wise to Bronchuline Emulsion.

Tough old coughs — persistent coughs—coughs that hang on and rob people of their sleep—these are the kind of coughs Bronchuline likes to tackle.

Many times such coughs linger after the Grippe or a heavy cold, and if you have one or know of anyone who has one keep Bronchuline Emulsion in mind.

It isn't just a cheap sweet cough syrup—it's the best cough remedy—and the best is never cheap. Lee and Osgood and dealers everywhere can supply you.

DON'T COUGH YOUR ENERGY AWAY

Doctors have prescribed Pertussin more often than any other advertised cough remedy

MEDICAL science says that 15 minutes of severe coughing uses up more energy than the most strenuous exercise you can think of. Guard your health and strength. Check your cough at the start. Take the safest means available for quick relief.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

The bewitching charm of soft, flattering curves . . . the lure of a graceful, modern figure . . . don't spoil it by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. Over-indulgence is not commended—when tempted to over-indulge, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that modern, enchantingly-rounded figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

HIGH WINDS HAMPER GOLFERS IN MEXICAN OPEN; MILLER SLIPS BACK

(By Walter B. Clausen, Associated Press Staff Writer)

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower Calif., Mexico, Jan. 22—(AP)—Like a staunch ship weathering a storm, Horton Smith, young Joplin, Mo., professional rode a gale today into a dual leadership of the Agua Caliente $25,000 open golf tournament here. The close of the third round, with only eighteen holes to play tomorrow, found this young and most consistent money winner in tournament golf, sharing honors with Al Espinosa, Chicago veteran, with cards aggregating 224 for the 54 holes.

Mariners in quest of gold in early days prayed for such a gale as blew here today, but golfers in search of the greatest purse of money ever offered to them—$10,000 to the winner—did not relish it. It blew all hopes of par playing into vanished expectations. Five over par was the best card turned in today, this honor being shared by Al Espinosa and Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, one of the high ranking amateurs in national golf.

Places in the second bracket, with cards aggregating 225 for the 54 holes were shared by Al Watrous, Detroit; Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., and Charles Guest, Los Angeles.

Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., with a 77 today was alone in the bracket of 226.

The Dutra brothers of Spanish descent, who threatened the Scotchmen yesterday with the low cards of 72 each, placing Olin Dutra in the lead of the tournament and Mortie not far behind, today were blown back to cards of 79 each.

The 82 professionals and six amateurs looked forward to the final spurt tomorrow with zeal. The 22 prizes aggregating $25,000 yet remain anybody's money, and the progress of the tournament in the past three days would make it a sheer gamble to undertake selection of the winner of the $10,000 first place prize.

Horton Smith's seven on the eighth, a par 550 yard hole, spelled what would irritate even the most calm golfers. He sailed with the wind into trouble on the treacherous fairways and approached into traps for loss of two strokes.

Al Watrous had brilliant going with promise of the low card of the day until the fatal eighteenth. There were the traps which the professionals declare mark this course as one of the most difficult in the country. Paying out seven strokes on this par four hole robbed Watrous of the honor of leadership at 54 holes.

MacDonald Smith, that consistent, canny Scotch veteran from Long Island, N. Y., was in the fourth bracket with 227 today, with Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, and Gene Sarazen, New York.

Not only was the effect of the wind velocity found in driving, but likewise on the greens. Those who drove straight found greater safety, for whenever an attempt was made to place the drive by a bit of hook or slice, the gale doubled or redoubled the finesse emphasis of the driver into trouble.

Then on the greens the gallery found personal satisfaction and increased self esteem, when some of the nation's best players failed to get putts of a few feet into the cup. A strange freak of the weather effect was found in the traps, where a score or more explosion shots during the day fizzled, with the ball falling back into the trap.

The course itself was in perfect condition.

Game at Y Tonight

At 8:30 tonight, the Phi Delta Nu of the United Congregational church will have as their opponents Lyman high of Lebanon. Comparatively little is known of the visitors, except that they lost to the strong local Y Emps on their home floor, the score being 30 to 19. The Deltas seem to have their ups and downs, playing a fine game at times, and then losing games that should have been victories. The locals have an enlarged schedule this year, and, although starting off on the wrong foot with 3 victories and 4 defeats, intend to have a balance on the right side of the ledger before the end of their season. Their next game will be with Bacon academy at Colchester, Saturday.

In the preliminary game the Brothers of Joseph clash with the Centrals at 7:45 o'clock.

CUBS LOOM AS CHOICE TO TAKE NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT AGAIN

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—If the baseball stars have been read aright from National league observatories, the 1930 race will again be the field against the Chicago Cubs, good enough to win handily last year but not so impressive in the world series.

Not content to rest on their laurels, the firm of Wrigley, Veeck and McCarthy occupied itself during the winter in adding talent. Lester Bell, who seems to bloom under the inspiration of Rogers Hornsby, will be assigned third base from the outset and a bumper crop of pitchers is to be inspected. The only fly in the Cub ointment is that there is no assurance that a capable left hander is in the group.

In advance of a close inspection of the added talent, evidence is lacking that the other first division clubs—the Pirates, Giants and Cards—have been strengthened since the last base hit was made.

Annoyed by the slowness afoot of Earl Sheely, the Pirates have sent the surest catch of thrown balls in baseball back to the Pacific coast and acquired Gus Suhr to play first base.

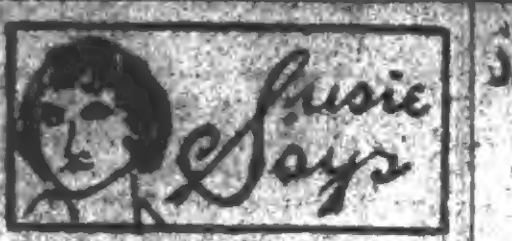
The Giants were perplexed from start to finish of the last season with inadequate protection at second base. Eddie Marshall is being groomed, on the basis of a Bridgeport reputation, as the answer but major league infield positions cannot safely be given away in January. The Giants, too, may stand a bit of outfield tinkering with profit.

With a new top sergeant, Gabby Street, the St. Louis Cardinals are prepared to fight it out this summer along the same lines employed in 1929. There may be some re-arrangement of players but the personnel will be little changed.

Two second division clubs of last year may make serious bids for improved positions in the new baseball season. The Phillies were up and coming at the close. Harry McCurdy and Al Cooper have been added to the catching staff. If some of the young pitchers justify the promise they have shown Burt Shotton, will offer a dangerous challenge to the clubs higher up.

Cincinnati, a seventh place club last year, is an odds-on favorite to improve. Dan Howley, who brought the St. Louis Browns from the depths to near the heights in two of the three years he led the American league club, will not permit the Reds to remain supine. He has added two hard hitters in Harry Heilmann and Bob Meusel.

Brooklyn, with deadlocked administration, and Boston, under new management but woefully lacking in talent, may have to get along the best they can under the circumstances.



Is it a coincidence or not that I should sit back of the same two girls at a basketball game the other night that I did at the theatre?

I was seated and waiting for the game to commence when who should come walking in as grand as you please, but my two friends of the theatre. No, I didn't groan much—that is, not very loud.

"Come on, Mame, there's a coupla seats up in that row there. Let's grab 'em before somebody else does. Excuse me, mister, I didn't see your hand on that bench. Well, anyway, I should think you could see me."

"Gosh, Mame, but these is trick seats, ain't much like theatre seats, are they? That's all right, mister, I'll try not to kick you in the back again. Yeah? Well, let me tell you I wear only a number 3 shoe."

"Say, I wish they'd start this game and get it over with so we could get to the dancing. Say, Mame, get an eyeful of that guy over there. Ain't he a pip? I'd think it was John Gilbert if I didn't know. No, no, Mame, not that guy with the flat nose and the purple handkerchief, the guy next to him. I hope he asks me for a dance."

"Lookit, Mame, here come the players. What, you never saw a basketball game before? Well, neither did I, but I'll tell you all about it. What are they playing in their underwear for? Well, how should I know, unless it's to keep cool. Sure, my brother Jimmy's got a suit of them colored beeveedees, only his has got stripes on 'em."

"They're going to start now, Mame. Why are those two guys standing in the middle? Oh, Mame don't ask so many questions, can't you see I'm trying to follow the game. And Mame, don't jump up every time that guy blows that whistle, he ain't no cop, he's only an empire."

"Lookit, Mame, didja see that skinny guy sock that other feller? You didn't, well just watch close and you'll see some fine points. Hey, mister, what's the score? You don't know? Well, you oughta get your money back and hire a room at the hotel where you could do your sleeping lying down"

"No, Mame, a foul in a basketball game don't have feathers. It ain't that kind of a thing; it's when one guy does the other guy a dirty trick like sticking his finger in the other feller's eye, or kicking him in the shins."

"Oh, Mame, whadda you know, that good looking guy over there just give me the o. o. There, Mame, he's looking over here again. Go on give him a smile, it don't hurt none. What? He ain't looking at us but that jane up on the top row? Well, she ain't no knockout, and besides I don't think he's such a wow either."

"Hey, mister, what's the score now? Well, for crying out loud, you don't suppose I'd be asking you if I knew? Say, mister, I'll bet your wife thinks you are the fair-haired boy all right. Yes, shes does. You ain't married? Well, I can believe that and you won't be while there's another man in the world. Oh, shut up, how can I follow the game with you trying to wisecrack."

"There, Mame, the game's all over. Hey, mister, who won? They did? Well which team is that? Oh, go chase yourself up an alley, I just come here for the dance anyway. No, I ain't with nobody, except Mame here. Sure get another guy and we'll go for a ride, my shoes has just been tapped!"

And they left the hall, the game and the dance.

But it's a bet they'll say they just love basketball when they get back to the mill in the morning.

GEN. PHELAN MADE MEMBER OF N. Y. BOXING COMMISSION

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission filled its roster today with the enlistment of Brigadier General John J. Phelan, commander of the 93rd Brigade of the national guard. Gen. Phelan will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of George E. Brower, who became district attorney for Kings county.

For several weeks the choosing of the third "solemn solon" to help Chairman James A. Farley and the solid man of sport, 85 year old William Muldoon, minister to the needs of boxing has stirred up a slight political storm. For a time it appeared that David F. Soden, of Brooklyn, was certain of the appointment, made by Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn. Soden withdrew his name yesterday.

Gen. Phelan, at one time commander of New York's famous 69th regiment, also was the center of the storm that rose in New York political and fistic circles in 1926 when the late Tex Rickard matched Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney for a heavyweight title battle. Gen. Phelan, then chairman of the license committee, an adjunct to the athletic commission, refused Dempsey a boxing license and forced Rickard to take the match to Philadelphia. The commission itself had favored the match despite Chairman Farley's contention that Harry Wills, the giant Negro, was the logical contender. Some months later the license committee was dissolved in a reorganization of state departments.

Frank J. Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden, apparently has other things on his mind down in Florida than the management of the Hialeah race track and preparations for the Sharkey-Scott struggle at Miami Feb. 27.

Bruen is attempting to match Sammy Mandell, who recently fought a draw with Manual Quintero at Miami Beach, for a title defense against Al Singer in one of the local ball parks late in July. Bruen telephoned the home office today that the guarantee offered Mandell was large enough but a difference of five points in percentages has deadlocked negotiations with the champion.

Pierre Charles, of Belgium summoned for service on the Sharkey-Scott card in Florida, arrived here today from Europe. Charles will meet Tommy Loughran in the semi-final. Phil Scott is due from England tomorrow. He will leave next week to start training in the southland.

Dartmouth Carnival Feb. 6-8

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 22—(AP)—Fifty-five competitors from 19 American and Canadian colleges, have entered Dartmouth's annual intercollegiate winter sports tournament which will be held here on February 6, 7 and 8. The University of New Hampshire will send the large delegation, 14 men, to defend the title which it won last year.

SAN SANCHEZ REPLACES PIQUETTE IN MAIN BOUT ON SHYMA CARD

San Sanchez, Mexican bantamweight champion, will be the opponent of Al Beauregard of Taftville Friday night in place of Lou Piquette of Bridgeport in the main 10 round bout on the Shyma club show Friday night according to the announcement made last night by Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn. Billy Prince of Bridgeport, who is handling Piquette's affairs, told Matchmaker Flynn that Piquette would be unable to fight as there was an infection in the cut over his eye.

Prince, however, said that he would gladly let the Shyma club have San Sanchez, Mexican bantamweight champion, who he had signed for Piquette on Friday, Jan. 31. Matchmaker Flynn got in touch with Commissioner Thomas E. Donovan who sanctioned the bout and in addition said that he felt that the Shyma club had secured as good if not a better boy than Piquette.

Sanchez has quite a reputation as a fighter especially as a slugger and his services are in demand in the clubs in the metropolitan district. He has a record of 15 knockouts in 23 fights in winning both the bantam and featherweight titles of Mexico. In this country he holds wins over George Balduc, Jimmie Bones, Tommie Devine and a number of others. He has fought Eddie Anderson, Willie Shugrue, Paul Zwick, Lew Perfetti, and Harry Blitman in no decision bouts.

The substituting of Sanchez for Piquette has not hurt the Shyma club card in the least but rather has added strength to it. Piquette who was technically knocked out a week ago by Mickey Doyle of New York, would have been forced to devote much protection to his cut eye and would not make the showing that he is capable of. Sanches is a real fighter and the predictions of Billy Prince is that the Mexican will beat Beauregard hands down.

Beauregard is pleased at the opportunity of meeting Sanchez as a win will give him even better prestige than in a victory over Piquette. Al said last night that this bout would be the first time he had ever fought a Mexican.

The advance sale of tickets would indicate that there would be another packed house at Parish hall on Friday evening. The changing of the main bout should attract many, many customers to the hall. All boxers on the card are reported in readiness for their bouts and start tapering off in their training today.

With the addition of the Mexican champion the card presents quite an international aspect, France, Mexico, Poland, Sweden and Ireland being represented besides the colored race having a representative in Arthur Lee.

PLAINFIELD SWAMPS SWEDES WITH BRILLIANT PLAYING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 22.—Sweet revenge was taken by the Plainfield Pros from Olson's Terrible Swedes here tonight when the locals won an overwhelming victory 58 to 37. The Swedes were anything but Terrible while the Pros were in an extremely belligerent mood. The locals went into the game with everything they had and taking the lead in the first half they continued to pile up the score despite desperate opposition from the Swedes.

The first half was fairly close with the Pros having a slight edge, but it was anybody's game at the half, the Pros being on the long end of a 34 to 16 score. Not risking any chance of a last minute rally such as beat them in the last game the Pros went after the basketball and were caging them from all parts of the hall. Whitey Bernot was especially brilliant, dropping in 13 double counters and a foul for 27 points, the highest individual score by a Plainfield player this season. Kasper and Brusso contributed their share to the team scoring. Byers was the star for the Swedes.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies won a rough and tough game from the Putnam Celtics, 22 to 18. The roughness of the game can be seen by the fact that 16 points were made from the foul line. The summaries:

GAUVIN AND FERRA SIGN FOR DANIELSON CARD

Honeyboy Gauvin and Patsy Ferra, members of the local National Guard boy team, were signed last night by their manager, Joe Bemade, for bouts on the Danielson card on Friday night, Jan. 31. Gauvin is to box Al Rodenas, of New York, in a four rounder, while Patsy Ferra is slated to go four rounds with Joe Preston, of Worcester. This is Patsy's first professional engagement and he is training hard to get off on the right foot in the pro ranks. Gauvin has fought professionally for several fights. Another member of the guardsmen team is slated for a bout on the next New London card, he is Johnny Dodd, former amateur.

Y SENIORS IN CRUCIAL GAME HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

The coming Saturday night will furnish the season's acid test for Norwich basketball when the Y Seniors in a triple tie with Middletown and Greenwich for first place in the state Y league, meet the former team. If basketball ran true to the form of other local sports, the Y gym would have both its seating and standing capacity taxed for this game on the west end but the court game is different and the probable attendance will be in the neighborhood of the usual 100 or 150 for what promises to be as fine a game as the league will see this season.

The Seniors are the only Eastern Connecticut team in the league this year, New London which won the 1929 title having dropped out. New London won last year in the old elimination scheme, they putting out the locals in a two out of three game series. This year the championship is figured on a percentage basis and so far Norwich, Greenwich and Middletown have each lost but one contest. Norwich lost to Bridgeport, Greenwich to Norwich and Middletown to Greenwich, the latter game being played last Saturday.

For this big game, which may be the turning point in a torrid race, both teams will be at full strength. Coach Demarest will in all probability start Tommy Lynch and Aubrey Brown at forwards, Capt. Roland Harris at center and Les Pingree and Enos Eccleston at guards. This team, when it is right, has known no equal this year. There are the four offensive performers, Lynch, Brown, Harris and Pingree, together with Eccleston shining in the floor game. Eccleston, though, has also managed to toss in an average of four points a game. Harris and Pingree, who are six-footers, have given the Demarest men an advantage at times.

Saturday's preliminary game will also be a major attraction in itself for the local Girls basketball team opens its season playing the New London Girls. Norwich played a few games the latter part of the 1929 season and showed much promise, which, with the strenuous practice sessions that have been held, should give the local team an even chance for victory against their Whaling City rivals.

GAMMA CLUB TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM MONTVILLE ACES

The Gamma club of the Greek church, defeated the Montville Aces last night at Montville by the score of 22 to 21, the Gamma's defense being too strong for the Aces to shoot freely. The Gammas took an early lead at first half by the score of 13 to 6, though Montville coming back strong in the last half could not surpass the lead gained by the Gammas.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 22—(AP)—Charles Coburn Hardy, of Wellesley Farms, Mass., was today elected captain of Yale's soccer team for next season. He is a member of the class of '31.

Arrows Beat Indians

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Philadelphia Arrows made it three victories in a row tonight by defeating Springfield, 3 to 1, in a Canadian-American League hockey game.

The second line of the Arrows played a strong game and accounted for two of the three tallies. Bradley, a sub, was particularly effective and scored two goals on passes from Jackson. The victory placed the Arrows to within a point of second place.

Yale Hockey Team Wins

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 22—(AP)—Yale won its second hockey game of the year from Dartmouth here tonight, defeating the Green team 11 to 1.

Dartmouth made its best showing in the first period when it held Yale to one goal and made its only tally. Tonight's victory was Yale's 14th straight win of the season.

Frank Luce, Yale center, was high scorer with three goals. Andres scored Dartmouth's lone goal.

Stribling Kayoes De Mave.

STUDEBAKER'S new Eights are time-tried and proved

THREE years of sweeping victories provide a background of seasoned success for Studebaker's champion Eights. They hold, undisputed, the greatest world and international records, and more American stock car records for speed and endurance than all other makes of cars combined.

They have been swept forward on a very tidal wave of popularity, demonstrating how highly motoring America values championship performance.

Your choice of any one of these fine motor cars, modern in every line, embodying refinements unique to Studebaker manufacture, is certified by the approval of nearly one hundred thousand owners of Studebaker Straight Eights . . . and by the shield of Studebaker—an honor mark for 78 years.

Come, see, drive and choose your motor from a line of champions, time-tried and proved.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Leatrice Joy, stage, vaudeville and screen star of international repute, is at the Palace today and tomorrow in one of the most flaming dramas of the season, "A Most Immoral Lady." While the picture is not nearly so sinful as it sounds, it carries nevertheless enough pep and ginger to satisfy anybody, and at the same time it cuts with biting force to the heart of our ultra-modern life. And at the same time it is a most appealing drama of melody and love, the story of a woman who cheated at the love game—that is until she met a certain man—a man who knew all about her past. Could he be blamed when he became cynical to hear her say, "I Love You?"

On the same program with "A Most Immoral Lady" is a charming English romantic comedy, "Three Live Ghosts." Here is the story of three men who struck up an acquaintance in a German prison camp, and whom the rest of the world thought dead. One was a Cockney, the other a London aristocrat and the third an American youth. Penniless and ragged they returned to dear old London after the war, tried to draw their back pay from the British army and learned to their amazement that they were dead.

Their surprise thickened when the Cockney, Gubbins, took the other two to his home in the slums. There the learned that Mrs. Gubbins had been drawing pension money as a result of her son's death, and had drawn so much of it that she was afraid to confess to the government that the boy was alive after all. This would mean no more revenue from that source. Then the American discovered that a large reward was on his head, and the aristocrat, who had lost his memory, suddenly turned into a first-class burglar apparently, stealing, among other things a lot of jewelry and a badly carriage and all.

Before the tangle is straightened out you will have a hearty laugh, and many a heart-tug out of both pictures. Once again the Palace has scored heavily with a double-feature attraction that cannot be duplicated in the field of entertainment.

Broadway Theatre

That even a hardboiled theatrical producer, to whom his chorus girls are so much merchandise, may have a heart, is aptly demonstrated by the suave William Powell in his latest all-talking picture, "Pointed Heels," which opened at the Broadway yesterday. Powell, departing from his usual detective roles, is a wealthy producer with an eye for the ladies and who becomes much enamored of one of his show girls, in this case the lovely Fay Wray. Fay, however, has ideas of her own about marriage and secretly weds the lad who is composing the lyrics for Powell's next show. The producer's attempted revenge, and his graceful withdrawal when he finds that such a thing as real love exists, but not for him, form a thrilling and engrossing tale of backstage life. Much comedy is provided by Helen Kane, with a new line of "boop-a-doop" songs, and "Skeets" Gallagher, her vaude partner, and there are some beautiful chorus scenes in natural colors. On the same bill is a long list of selected novelty subjects, including a Paramount song-cartoon, "Pony Boy"; Tom Howard, that "anaemic" comedian, in "The Hold-Up"; Laurel and Hardy in "The Hoosegow"; the Fox Movietone news, and a selected program of Vitaphone specialties, including Bert Wheeler & Co. in "Small-Timers," a theatrical boarding house skit, and "Shake It Up," a lively miniature revue with girls, music and dancing galore. Big news for Broadway patrons is the forthcoming appearance of that delightful French comedian, Maurice Chevalier, in his latest musicomedy presentation, "The Love Parade," which opens on Saturday for a brief stay.

Breed Theatre

"Thunder," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sound synchronized epic of the railroad, with Lon Chaney as the star, scored one of the successes of the season yesterday at the Breed theatre, where it opened a four-day engagement.

The new picture, a vivid and intimate story of railroad life, with Chaney as a veteran engineer, is a play of thrills and excitement, humor and pathos, with a very charming love story running through it. Chaney drives a locomotive in breath-taking races over frozen rails, and finally, in the thrilling denouement, on a sensational rescue run into the Mississippi floods. His make-up is another triumph, as he plays a grizzled old veteran, white moustache and frost-bitten face, to perfection.

Phyllis Haver is the heroine, an actress who lures the engineer's fireman son, played by James Murray, from the road to "white collar" jobs—but whose love finally restores him to the engine cab—and his father. Murray gives a splendidly balanced performance, and George Duryea, the other son, a brakeman on the line, killed on duty during the course of the drama, is also exceptional in his portrayal.

Frances Morris, stage actress, plays Molly, the brakeman's wife, and little mother of the family, and Chaney's little grandson is played in delightful fashion by Wally Albright, Jr.

William Nigh directed.

WITH FIRM UNDERTONE IN MARKET PRICES CONTINUE TO VACILLATE

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A group of farm implement, building material, tobacco and amusement shares were put up moderately in today's stock market, but on the whole, price trends continued to vacillate with monotonous persistence. The best that could be said for the market was that it maintained a firm undertone. Transfers aggregated but [illegible] shares, a slight increase over yesterday's.

Industrial and business news continued of a mildly favorable but not particularly convincing character. Iron Age reported further gains in both demand and production in the steel industry during the past week, but added that price unsettlement has tended to restrain new buying. Iron Age's composite price for finished steel receded from 2.319 cents a pound to 2.312, the lowest since December, 1927.

Freight car loadings for the week ended Jan. 11 showed a sharp gain from the previous week, due in a large measure to the New Year's holiday. Compared to the like weeks of the past two years, loadings showed declines of more than 40,000 cars. The crude oil production figures for last week indicated that the price cutting is having the desired effect of curtailing output. Gasoline refinery figures showed further gains in stocks however, and further sagging of gasoline prices was reported.

Money brokers diverted themselves with further discussions as to the probability of cuts in the London and New York bank rates tomorrow. There was no change in call money—renewals at 4 1-2 per cent with funds later available at 4—but commercial paper eased a little.

A cut in the New York reserve bank rate was generally believed to hinge on the action of the Bank of England. A cut in London is believed to be imminent, but may be deferred because of the recent decline in sterling exchange on New York and Paris.

The farm implement shares were buoyed by predictions of a larger volume of business in 1930 than last year, and the construction and building material shares were given a boost on the basis of the widespread expectations of a steady recovery in this industry. The recent advance in the amusement shares was inclined to peter out under realizing, although Fox Film A was sent up 3 points in short covering precipitated by news of a conference of attorneys for both the corporation and the receivership petitioners. Nothing came of the conference, however. Coppers were depressed by bearish rumors regarding the maintenance of the red metal price level. Chemical shares were unsettled by a drop in U. S. Industrial Alcohol, attributed to various rumors, one of which was that its chief competitor has developed a process reducing production costs by half.

J. I. Case advanced 7 points, and American Tobacco, Eastman Kodak, Johns Manville, Foundation Co., Ingersoll Rand, Loews, Macy, Norfolk and Western, Schulte Stores, United Cigar Stores preferred, Western Union, Worthington Pump and a few others gained 2 to 5 points. American Radiator, International Nickel and Radio made moderate progress in active trading. U. S. Industrial Alcohol dropped 7 points and rebounded about 2. Air Reduction closed off about 5. Republic Steel, National Air Transport, Stone and Webster and American Locomotive were among issues losing about 3 points. U. S. Steel closed fractionally lower.

Commodities moved narrowly. Wheat and cotton futures closed slightly higher, helped by reports of better flour buying and steadiness of the Liverpool cotton market.

Leading foreign exchanges eased, with sterling going slightly below parity at $4.86 9-16 for cables, off 3-16 from yesterday.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The improvement in European government bonds continued in today's market. Some of the leading loans were under active accumulation and prices ruled at the top levels of the past year.

The reparations settlement has been accompanied by a marked trend toward the foreign list. Some of the large German utilities and industries were understood to have been negotiating with New York bankers for financing on this market, but under the agreement reached at The Hague, Germany is to postpone any private offerings until after the flotation of the reparations issue, expected in the spring. America's share is estimated at around $75,000,000. Domestic listings, on the other hand, have met keen competition from approximately $400,000,000 in new bond issues during the past ten days, most of which have been attractively priced.

The German 7 was prominent today, although it fluctuated within a range of only 1-4 point, closing an eighth higher at 106 7-8. German Bank of Agriculture obligations were strong and rose from 1-2 to 1 1-2 points. French 7½s advanced to 120 and the 7s touched 114 1-4, while listings of Italy, Denmark, Norway and Great Britain responded to good buying by moving up in the South America department. Brazilians were active and higher.

Secretary Mellon's optimistic views on the bond market had little immediate effect on trading in domestic issues, which again eased. At the close the average for thirty securities was 98.6 compared with 98.5, the low for the year, and 99.1, the high mark established on January 14. The easiness of the market is attributed almost entirely to the enormous amount of new bonds being offered to the investing public, which is said to be still rather apathetic toward all but prime obligations.

A few high grade rails declined a point or more, among them Baltimore & Ohio Gold 4s, Canadian National 5s, St. Paul General 4 1-2, Series E, and Pennsylvania Consolidated 4s. There was a fairly good tone to the industrial group, especially in the case of bonds with liberal yields. Murray Body 6 1-2s rose 3 1-4, Fisk Rubber 8s were up 2. Illinois Steel 4 1-2s lost 2 points on the first sale recorded since the denial of the report that United States Steel was planning immediate retirement of its subsidiaries' funded debt. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s recovered yesterday's one point loss. Republic Brass 6s gained 1 1-2.

Utilities were quiet. American Telephone 5s, when issued, made no net change. There were fractional recessions in Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, April maturity, Montana Power 5s, and New York Telephone 4 1-2s. Utah Power & Light 5s attracted some attention, but held firm. Pacific Telephone 5s rose 1 3-4.

There was little to be said for the convertibles except that they were dull. Fluctuations were small.

United States governments gave promise of action in the early trading but the demand soon dried up and net declines prevailed. The Treasury 4s lost 13-32s of a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—(AP)—Wheat values went strongly upward at times today but reacted later influenced by word that big export sales from North America were mostly Canadian. Total wheat export business today from Canada and the United States was the largest in some time, about 2,000,000 bushels, with the lions share 1,750,000 bushels credited to Canada. Meanwhile the trading basis for United States hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico was firm, touching the best figures yet this season.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were irregular at 1-2c net decline to 1-8c advance, compared to 24 hours before. Corn finished 1-4c off to 1-8c up, oats 1-8 a 1-4c to 3-8 a 1-2c advanced, and provisions 5c to 7c down.

Helping to hoist the wheat market here was talk current today that fully 500,000 bushels of wheat in Chicago had been ordered out of storage this week. Much notice was also taken of a statement issued today by one of the larger grain houses here, pointing out that the speculative trade was bullish some months ago when the price of wheat stood at 1.50, although the cash wheat situation then was bearish, whereas, now with the price more than 30c lower speculators are largely bearish, despite cash wheat being in a strong position to respond to any increased demand. Persistent buying of wheat future deliveries here went hand in hand today with such advices.

However Chicago advances in prices of wheat were practically wiped out in the late transactions, early buyers turning to the selling side of the market, and striving to realize profits. A feature of the day's trade was a good deal of so-called "spread" dealings that consisted of sales of the July delivery and of simultaneous purchases of May. Smallness of domestic primary receipts of wheat continued to arouse interest, and so likewise did word of much better demand for flour both on export and domestic account.

Corn prices appeared to be governed chiefly by the action of wheat. Notwithstanding prospects of further cold clear weather, rural offerings of corn to arrive were easier. Oats reflected smallness of receipts, as well as good sized purchases of oats for shipment from here.

Provisions declined, owing largely to setbacks in the value of hogs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Jan. 20 were $6,784,131.84; expenditures $9,478,892.96; balance $104,575,710.98.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—The curb market maintained a firm undertone in desultory trading today, the total turnover falling below 500,000 shares. The utilities dominated trading activity, but the bullish operations in these shares encountered increasing resistance, and several closed slightly lower.

Industrials were highly irregular. A firm spot was L'air Liquide, which bounded out of its long period of quiet with a gain of 3 points. This stock had a sharp rise shortly after listing, in the weeks preceding the autumn crash. Aluminum Co. gained 5 points in a small turnover. Crocker Wheeler rose a couple of points on report of the granting of rights. Fox Theatres A advanced more than 1 point, in sympathy with the upturn in Fox Film on the big board. Carnation Co., Blaw Knox, Loews debenture rights, Welch Grape Juice and Western Air Express mounted 2 points or more.

Utilities largely moved in a narrow range. Associated Gas A rose more than a point, its widest movement in several days. Nevada California Electric was a buoyant feature, mounting nearly 10 points. Standard Power and Light new lost nearly 3 points. The stock of U. S. Electric Power was initially traded on this market, closing at 20 1-4, 3-4 below its close on the produce exchange yesterday. Oils were largely dull, although Cosden rallied about 5 points. Investment Trusts were generally steady to firm.

The new Pittston Co. stock, offered to Erie railroad stockholders at $20 a share was initially traded on this market at 21 3-4. Announcement of admission to trading on the curb was announced last week, but the stock first traded today. It is understood that application has been made to list it on the stock exchange.

Deere dropped 25 points in realizing on yesterday's gain of 60. Ross Stores sold at a new low at $1 on appointment of a receiver. Mock Judson sagged moderately to a new low. Atlas Stores, Driver Harris, Glen Alden, Nachman Springfilled Newmont and Tubize lost 2 to 5.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—Plans for the acquisition of the Anglo-American Oil Co. by the Standard Oil Export Co., subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey are progressing favorably, it was reported in financial circles today. Increasing amounts of Anglo-American oil stock are being deposited, and while the number of shares is not yet known, it is believed that the necessary 66 2-3 per cent will have been deposited by Jan. 31 to assure success of the proposal.

Frank G. Shattuck, chairman of the company bearing his name, in a letter to stockholders, states that the sales for last year were totaled more than $25,000,000, an increase of about $1,500,000 over 1928. The net profits of the company for last year will not be ascertained until early in March.

Negotiations looking to the acquisition of the Greenville Steel Car Co., manufacturers of railroad equipment, by the Pittsburgh Forgings Co., of Coraopolis, Pa., and Jackson, Mich., have been approved by the board of directors of both companies. The acquisition involves the issuance of an additional 20,000 shares of common stock of the Pittsburgh Forgings Co., bringing the number of shares outstanding to 180,000.

Berlin dispatches to Wall street today stated that negotiations are in progress toward unification of the American subsidiaries of the Vereinigte Glanzstoff, J. P. Bemberg and the Enka Rayon Manufacturers, on the basis of an exchange of stock. The American companies, operating mills principally in the newly developed textile regions of eastern Tennessee and the Carolinas, are among the chief rayon producers in this country.

Three new directors have been elected to the board of the Mexican Seaboard Oil Co. They are Malcolm G. Chace, of Providence, a director of the Chase National bank; Gerrard B. Winston, former under-secretary of the treasury, and J. Ford Johnson, Jr., of Charles D. Barney & Co., brokers. They succeed Carl Stehle, Rex Townsend and W. L. Pratt.

Preferred Accident Insurance Company of New York has increased the dividend on the common stock to 25 cents monthly from 20 cents.

SOMERS

Rev. Edwin T. Jones' subject of his Sunday morning sermon was "Ten Years of Prohibition." At the evening service Rev. E. M. Bussey who is soon to leave his pastorate in the Somersville church for new duties in Rocky Hill gave the address on "Fundamental Objectives of Youth."

Monday evening the new school house at Somers Center was dedicated. The address was given by Dr. A. B. Merideth, commissioner of education of Connecticut.

The school building and all equipment and furnishings are a gift to the town by Judge Ernest S. Fuller and his wife, Mrs. Mabel Kibbe Fuller. It is a five class room building, large auditorium, nurse's room, kitchen, play room, teachers' rooms, a thoroughly modern building. At the dedication exercises Judge and Mrs. Fuller were presented a silver loving cup from the townspeople as an expression of appreciation.

Wednesday evening a mass meeting was held in the Town hall to act on report of the Memorial for Veterans' committee.

The Enfield C. E. Union will hold its winter rally in Somers church Friday afternoon, following which Charles Brandon Booth is to speak on Vital Christianity in Our Community.

Members of the Ladies' Aid society are to serve to the Enfield C. E. Union Friday evening. The committee in charge is Mrs. Fanning Kibbe, Mrs. S. D. Percival, Mrs. Wilbur Converse and Mrs. Percy Alden.

The Center schools were closed Friday to enable the teachers to attend an institute.

Mrs. John Hunt and son John, Jr., spent Sunday in Chicopee, guests of Mrs. Hunt's nephew and niece and Mr. and Mrs. George MacAuley.

GALES FERRY

Activities for the week include an entertainment under the auspices of Queen Esther circle. A meeting Friday afternoon of the Ladies' Aid society at the vestry and the Epworth league will be represented at another session of the mid-winter institute, Friday evening in Uncasville.

Then thousand homes are threatened with destruction and 40,000 people with destitution by huge masses of moving mountains in the narrow mining valleys of Wales. Engineers believe great drainage schemes would prevent wholesale destruction.

POETRY

The God Of Music

Where dwells the God of Music—where dwells he?
Not in the mansion or the cottage low,
But out of doors beside the white-lipped sea,
Or where the calm, majestic rivers flow!
There breathes he haunting airs by coverts sweet
With birch and fern; and from the organ-loft
Of forest's mysteries complete
With wondrous harmonies he renders oft.
Or, from his viol hid in ancient trees,
Whose strings are wrought of branches tipped with fire
He dares repeat the woodbird's symphonies,
Or songs of Dryad fervent with desire;
And oft when Freedom's bound with weighted chains
Revives her strength with his inspiring strains.

—Arthur Eugene Smith, in the Philadelphia Bulletin.

By The Margin Of The Great Deep

When the breath of twilight blows to flame the misty skies,
All is vaporous sapphire, violet glow and silver gleam
With their magic flood me through the gateway of the eyes;
I am one with the twilight's dream.

When the trees and skies and fields are one in dusky mood,
Every heart of man is rapt within the mother's breast:
Full of peace and sleep and dreams in the vasty quietude,
I am one with their hearts at rest.

From our immemorial joys of heart and home and love
Strayed away along the margin of the unknown tide,
All its reach of soundless calm can thrill me far above
Word or touch from the lips beside.

Aye, and deep and deeper let me drink and draw
From the olden fountain more than light or peace or dream,
Such primeval being as o'erfills the heart with awe
Growing one with its silent stream

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Does your husband ever take any hard exercise?"

"Well, last week he was out seven nights, running."—Montreal Star.

Voice from up stairs—Haven't you two finished hanging that mistletoe yet?

Sweet Thing—Yes, Mamma, but we're just testing it.—London Opinion.

"That Scotch lad is no tightwad."

"No?"

"No. He just told one of the Siamese twins he'd take her to lunch—if she could get away."—Boston Transcript.

Circus Manager—Well, what's wrong now?

Indiarubber Man—Every time the Strong Man writes a letter he uses me to rub out the mistakes.—Leeds Mercury.

First Artist—Did you hear about De Long's luck? He sold a painting.

Second Artist—Do you call that luck?

First Artist—You'd say it was if you'd seen the picture.—Detroit News.

Aspiring Youth (to prospective employer) — You'll pay me what I'm worth?

Works Manager—I'll do better than that; I'll give you a small salary to start with.—Royal Arcanum Bulletin.

Friend—Well, old chap, how do you like being married? You were always lamenting when you were a bachelor.

Benedict — Oh, it's much better, thanks. Before I was miserable at home and miserable when I went out; now I'm only miserable at home.—Boston Transcript.

The widow of a farmer was being consoled by a neighboring farmer, who happened to be a widower.

"Cheer up, woman," he said. "Ye're young yet, and good-looking, an' you could soon get another husband."

"Oh, no, no," she replied, "who would take me?"

"Why, if I had a better pair of boots on I'd run away wi' ye myself," said the widower, gallantly.

The widow, lifting her face and wiping her eyes, said, earnestly: "I wonder would John's fit you?"—Birmingham (England) Weekly Post.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

There are two minor disturbances moving northeastward, one being central southwest of Nova Scotia and the other on the coast of the Carolinas. Pressure remains low from the Hudson bay region, eastward and northeastward over the Greenland Iceland area, and it is high elsewhere over North America and in the vicinity of Bermuda.

The indications are for generally fair weather east of the Mississippi river during the next two days. The temperature will be lower in the Atlantic states but it will rise in the middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states during Friday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Moderate north or northwest and generally fair weather Thursday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Moderate northerly, and mostly overcast weather preceded by rain over south portion Thursday.

Forecast

For southern New England—Fair and somewhat colder Thursday: Friday fair with rising temperature.

GREENEVILLE

LOCAL RESIDENT FOR 80 YEARS OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Ann J. Mathews observed her 84th birthday at her home on Tenth street Tuesday with many of her friends and relatives making a call to her home, wishing her the happy returns of the day. Mrs. Mathews, who has been a resident of Greeneville for the past 80 years, was the recipient of a shower of birthday cards, flowers, baskets of choice flowers, potted plants and baskets of fruits, besides other useful articles. Mrs. Mathews, who was the oldest child in her family, is the only surviving member. A birthday supper was held with only members of her family attending. She has been confined to her bed since last August, but ventured to the supper table for the celebration.

Troop 21, Boy Scouts, of the Third Baptist church, held its regular meeting Monday evening, when the programme included a period of instruction on marching and drills. Four leaders in the proficiency contest, which ends next week, are, Daniel Drenson, 908 points; Clayton Gallup, 880; Millard Mulkin, 875; Leroy Sebastian, 825. The winner will receive a gold medal and for second place a bronze medal will be given.

The Third Baptist Christian Endeavor society held their executive meeting with ten officers present. Miss Dorothy Conckiin, the president, presided and reports of the past year were read. New business, socials and skating parties were planned for the coming months. Refreshments were served, consisting of delicious fruit salad, raisin bread, nut cake, and coffee. Games were played in which Henry Sebastian and Elinor Howard aroused much interest in putting on a scientific hypnotizing stunt.

Sunday evening, the regular C. E. meeting of the Third Baptist church was conducted by Mrs. H. I. Peckham. The subject, being on "Missions," proved very interesting. Eleven members took an active part in the meeting. Special music was rendered by the orchestra and a duet was sung by Miss Doris Lund and William Lund; also a quartet by four other members of the society.

The first social of the year will be held Friday evening.

Mt. Calvary Church Activities

The pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church, with the choir, will conduct the service Sunday at the Sheltering Arms.

The church is anticipating an interesting lecture on India by John Peter, a native of that country, who is now at Hartford Theological seminary and will wear the costume of India.

The Junior choir, which is under the direction of Mrs. Louise Hall consists of the Misses Arline and Florence Silvia, Maria Perry, Genevieve Marshall, Gladys De Barros and Manuel Silvia, Harold Perrin, Joseph De Barros, Anthony Alves.

Uncontested Divorces on List

Uncontested divorces which are on the short calendar list of the superior court for hearings here Friday are:

Lura Lawrence Heywood vs. Herbert Heywood; Ina Hitchcock Griswold vs. Charles J. Griswold; Vera C. Ward Neale vs. Alfred D. Neale; Minnie M. Perkins vs. Frank C. Perkins; Delia Kennedy vs. Alfred Kennedy; John J. Dodds vs. Mary Waterman Dodds.

BOZRAH BOY WITH SLED STRUCK BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER; ARM BROKEN

A four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Perkins of Fitchville in the town of Bozrah narrowly escaped death about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when the sled on which he was riding was struck by a hit and run driver on Scott Hill, Bozrah street, Fitchville, where the child was sliding in company with other children. The youth was thrown under the machine and suffered a broken left arm, while his mother, who was pulling the sled up the hill, was knocked down, receiving bruises about the body and a cut on the leg.

Before the accident the automobile, which is said to have been driven by a young man, struck a huge boulder on the side of the street and narrowly missed hitting a telephone pole in its zigzag course down the hill. Shooting across the street it struck Mrs. Perkins, then the child on the sled, the force of the impact hurling the boy beneath the machine, but luckily he did not land in the path of the wheels. A child who was dragging a sled behind the Perkins boy had it snatched out of his hands when the car hit it and sped away in the direction of the city. This boy was not hurt.

A person who was standing some distance from the accident secured the registration number of the machine, reported to the police to be Z-5347, Conn., and said that as the driver drew away from the scene he stepped on the gas. The state police barracks at Groton was immediately notified of the incident and State Police Officer Arthur Kathe was detailed to investigate, finding that the driver before hitting the two persons and the sled had followed an irregular course. According to the state motor vehicle department the machine is registered in the name of Ruth C. Cone of Canterbury and is a 1928 Hudson coupe.

The child and his mother were attended for their injuries by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy and Dr. James J. Donohue, the fractured arm being set by the latter physician early Wednesday evening. The injured persons were not taken to the hospital, but returned to their home.

$2,500 AWARD MADE IN CLAIM FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

Settlement by stipulation which has been approved by Commissioner Albert J. Bailey has been made in the workmen's compensation claim made against the Aspinook Co. of Jewett City by Anna Cote, widow of Paul Cote, who was an employe of the company at the time of his death Sept. 25, 1929.

The insurance company carrying the Aspinook risk is to pay Mrs. Cote $2,500, of which $200 is for undertaker's bill and the balance is for 312 weeks at $7.37 per week. The amount due since Sept. 26, 1929, is to be paid at once and the balance weekly for the term as long as the widow remains single, or in the event of her death to be for the dependent children.

It was the claim of Mrs. Cote that her husband's death arose from an injury while cleaning rolls of machinery, which were in a pit, and using a solution provided by the company, whereas the respondent claimed that chronic nephritis and uremic convulsion were the cause of death, unconnected with the employment.

Will Collect Magazines

The collectors of magazines of the woman's auxiliary for the Backus hospital will make their rounds between 10 and 12 a. m. Friday, it has been announced.

DR. URQUHART PERFORMED OPERATION AT RUTLAND

A recent issue of a Rutland, Vt., newspaper recorded an unusual operation known as phrenicectomy, performed at Rutland hospital, by Dr. R. G. Urquhart, assistant superintendent at Uncas-on-Thames.

The Rutland paper says:

This operation was first done in Germany in 1912 and a limited number of surgeons in the United States have done it for several years, but in the last two years it has been more or less generally adopted in tuberculosis sanatoriums and centers. It is used in certain types of pulmonary tuberculosis, particularly, those cases in which an attempt has been made to collapse the lung artificially, and in which the operator was unable to collapse the lung. All the surgeons in Rutland county were invited to attend the clinic.

After the operation, Dr. Urquhart spent a day at the Vermont sanatorium reading and discussing x ray films, and Thursday evening he addressed the Rutland County Medical society on "Surgery in Pulmonary Tuberculosis." He used a large number of x-ray films to illustrate his address. He also showed a moving film of the Seaside Sanatorium for Crippled Children, Niantic, Conn. Dr. Urquhart also showed film giving the technique of the phrenicectomy.

At the conclusion of his address Dr. Urquhart was elected an honorary member of Rutland County Medical society. While in the city he was the guest of Dr. Stewart Ross who last week attended a clinic at Uncas-on-Thames. The operation at the Rutland hospital was done under the auspices of the Vermont sanatorium which has been authorized by Gov. Weeks and Commissioner W. H. Dyer to offer specialized surgical procedure in certain pulmonary conditions.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY AT NORWICH Y. M. C. A. RESIGNS

P. Leslie Conklin has resigned his position as assistant secretary of the local Young Men's Christian association, having handed in his resignation to President Herbert B. Cary to become effective Feb. 4. No one has been named as yet to succeed Mr. Conklin, who intends to take a course in liberal arts at Syracuse university to secure a B. A. degree, the course to begin on Feb. 5.

Mr. Conklin, who has been assistant secretary at the local Y for the past two and half years, is the son of Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Conklin, his father being a former pastor of the Baltic Methodist church, now holding a pastorate at Jacksonville, Fla., and is a graduate of Killingly high school, class of '26. He has also been in charge of the employed boys basketball league, the employed boys class and the grammar school swimming class of the Y.

President Cary said in commenting upon his resignation that the local Y. M. C. A. is really losing a very efficient and capable man, but that the directors accepted his resignation as they did not feel they desired to stand in the way of his securing a higher education, which would be of great advantage to him in the future. While located in Norwich Mr. Conklin has made a great many friends who are sorry to learn that he is leaving the city, and wish him every success in his new endeavor.

LUTHERAN SEWING CIRCLE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The sewing circle of First Lutheran church met Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. William Budsick's, 68 Division street, with 14 attending. Mrs. H. Erlbeck was elected president, Mrs. W. Burdick, secretary, and Mrs. Wm. Karkutt, treasurer. The circle had a busy year and had done much for the local church and benevolence. The treasury is in good shape and has a handsome balance to carry over. Cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Pudsick after the business meeting. Members of this organization usually take some of the work home and are always busy with good deeds.

MOTOR CAR DRIVER FINED IN CITY COURT

The cases of Frank Case of Whitaker avenue and Ovila Marion of Jewett City, each charged with failure to grant right of way and the latter also charged with failure to have a registration certificate in his possession, were presented in the city court Wednesday morning. The charge of failure to grant right of way was nolled in each case, but Marion was fined $3 on the other count. The two men were the drivers of the machines that figured in a collision Tuesday morning on the Norwich-New London highway near the Norwich Inn entrance.

Arm Broken in Collision

As a result of a collision of two machines about 5:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on Main street near Penobscot street, Morris Killeen of Uncasville, driver of one of them, received a fractured left arm. The other car owned by the Gregson Dry Cleaning company of this city and driven by Herman Houston is said to have been struck in the rear when the Killeen car skidded. The injured man was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital.

SIGNAL GAVE WARNING WITHOUT TRAIN COMING

The New Haven railroad's automatic electric signal at the Eighth street crossing is reported to have given its red warning on Monday of this week when no train was approaching, thereby holding up automobile traffic when drivers halted their cars on receiving the red flashes. Before this, there have been three instances when it worked the opposite way, failing to flash on the approach of a train.

Several cars were kept waiting in North Main street Monday, but no train appeared, and they finally ventured across the tracks when they were told that the way was clear by some boys who were coming from the Preston side.

Later in the day the railroad had two of its employes at the crossing to watch the operation of the signal as trains approached and they also looked out for traffic over the railroad tracks.

NORWICH TOWN

DROP-IN CLASS OFFICERS IN FIRST CONG. CHURCH SCHOOL

The annual meeting of the Drop-in class of the First Congregational Sunday school was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Charles P. Learned, of East Town street, with an attendance of 20. Mrs. Dwight W. Avery presided. During the period devoted to business, the nominating committee, Mrs. Frank E. Sterry and Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, presented the following officers to serve the class during 1930: President, Mrs. Frank S. Wheeler, who succeeds Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, who resigned due to other church business; vice-president, Mrs. Woodbury O. Rogers; secretary, Mrs. Charles P. Learned (reelected); treasurer, Miss Jennie M. Case; chairman of social committee, Mrs. David M. Dean. Following business during which the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, came in to participate in the discussions, a very enjoyable feature of the afternoon was the presentation of gifts in the form of a surprise to two members of the class whose birthdays fell on Jan. 21. Every other member of the class brought a gift for each of the two special guests, which when informally presented provided much amusement for the class. During the afternoon, Mrs. Learned, assisted by Mrs. Frank Sterry and Mrs. Philip B. Whaley, served sandwiches, cake, fancy wafers, punch and candy. Rev. Charles E. Reeves is teacher of this class of women, with Miss Susan C. Hyde substitute teacher.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb were in Norwich Wednesday to call on their cousin, Mrs. G. S. Lord, Nyack, N. Y., visiting for two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Agnes Smith, of Broadway. Mrs. Lord returned recently from a stay of several weeks in the west, where she was the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George DeCamp (Barbara Smith Lord), of Detroit, Mich. When going to Detroit before Christmas, Mrs. Lord was snowbound on board train, for a whole day. Mrs. Lord stated that she had never before witnessed so much snow. She also left Detroit in a blizzard. Dr. and Mrs. Lamb had as callers Sunday, Mrs. Hattie Brainard and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley of Mystic, relatives of Dr. Lamb.

NATIONAL NAVAL POLICIES OUTLINED BY DELEGATES

American Contention Will Be Equality in Naval Power Between the United States and Great Britain—"Big Five" Delegation Leaders Will Act as Referees While Individual Nations Strive to Settle Their Differences—Working Plan of Procedure Has Been Agreed Upon.

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The five great sea-power nations today proclaimed, at the London disarmament conference the fundamental nature of their naval needs.

In Queen Anne's drawing room at St. James' palace, Secretary of State Stimson declared that "equality in naval power between the United States and Great Britain," was the basis of the American position.

Prime Minister MacDonald pleaded that the very life of Britain's tiny isles depends on free and open access to the whole world. "Our navy is us," he said, repeating the formula he had used at the opening plenary session on Tuesday.

For France, Premier Tardieu intimated that everything depends on some arrangement for European security. He pointed out that the French home fleet had to be cut into three parts because France had coast lines on three seas, and added that the French navy must be adequate to police the trade routes to and from the vast French colonial possessions. But, he went on, "if the decisions of this conference result in an increased sense of security for France, so much the more will it be possible for France to reduce."

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, asserted his country's claim to naval armament equal to that of any other continental European power. He said that the conference must consider the problem of security in a relative, reciprocal way. Italy was ready for the maximum reduction but would leave the other powers to determine the size of armaments, reserving the right to regulate her own by theirs.

For Japan, former Premier Wakatsuki said that his country's policy was based on peace and economy and urged "actual reduction" by all powers.

Having outlined these national naval policies at their first business session this morning, the chief delegates gathered again in Downing street later and by nightfall they had agreed upon a working plan for procedure in their attempt to harmonize divergent viewpoints in a common international agreement realising the reduction of fleets.

They drew up a program by which the "big five" delegation leaders will act as umpires or referees while the individual nations strive to settle their differences, with one another. The leaders will be ready to take the field themselves and lend a helping hand if deadlocks occur.

The "big five" are Prime Minister MacDonald, Secretary of State Stimson, Premier Tardieu, Foreign Minister Grandi, and former Premier Wakatsuki.

As formal meetings of the delegates have been adjourned until Monday, the first week of the conference will have passed with the exploration of only the broadest aspects in the background and with the procedure for tackling the problem decided upon. There is no inclination anywhere to believe that any big problems have been solved.

HEAVY TRADING IN CLASS A STOCK FOX FILM CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—Class A stock of the Fox Film company provided traders on the New York Stock exchange today with the wildest price movement of any issue since the general break in prices last November, soaring from a low of $21.75 to a high of $34 a share and then breaking to $27.50 for a net gain of $4.75 a share. Nearly 590,000 shares changed hands, representing about one-seventh of the day's total transactions on the exchange and more than half of the corporation's outstanding capitalization of 930,000 shares.

Opening 75 cents a share lower at $22, the stock slipped down to $21.75 and fluctuated around that level until rumors were circulated in the financial district that a receivership had been averted by the agreement of counsel for William Fox and minority stock interests to the appointment of three new trustees in place of those voluntarily agreed upon by Mr. Fox and leading creditors a few weeks ago.

Professional speculators, knowing that the stock harbored an unusually large short interest, placed large buying orders "at the market," and the stock started to sky-rocket, touching off hundreds of "stop loss" orders placed by "bear" traders on the way up. Long strings of transactions appeared on the tape as "shorts" fell over each other in trying to cover their commitments, the stock jumping as much as a point between sales. Fresh offerings appeared on the run-up, however, and the stock quickly broke down to $25.50 before the decline was checked, and then snapped back to $27.50.

WASHINGTON OPENS WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Members of the Washington real estate board have decided to engage in a war to exterminate bootlegging in the capital.

Today, the board decided to strike a blow at the illicit liquor traffic by promising District Attorney Rover to report to him all information available about persons on their properties violating the prohibition laws, with a view to obtaining a basis for ejecting them.

The district attorney said the promised co-operation would be of great value.

The policy of the real estate men was believed in Washington to be unprecedented and possibly signifying far-reaching moves in the interest of stricter dry enforcement. The board's statement said the decision was designed to protect the values of properties, the reputations of law abiding owners who might become victims of disreputable tenants, and the characters of innocent tenants who might become involved in court proceedings through mistaken in location and ownership of questionable premises.

SENATE STRIKES SNAG ON TARIFF ON HIDES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Attempt to place the senate on record in favor of tariffs on leather and shoes no higher than the "true compensatory" levels in event hides were taken from the free list, failed late today and forced postponement until tomorrow of a decision on the proposed hide import levies.

The move was made by Senator Steck, an Iowa democrat, who held it was unfair to those favoring a hide duty to be required to vote on this question separated as it now is from leather and shoes, and to "take a chance" on getting reasonable duties on the latter which would not more than offset any benefit from a hide tariff. He asked before a final vote that the tariff commission be required to determine the proper levies.

EXTRADITION OF NEWMAN TEMPORARILY BLOCKED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 23—(AP)—Efforts of Massachusetts authorities to procure an early extradition and trial of Moe Newman for the slaying of Samuel Rennstein, Boston racketeer and leader of an extensive white slave ring in the east were blocked temporarily at least today.

After a hearing on a protest by Newman, now in a Philadelphia hospital, decision on the requisition asked by Governor Allen of Massachusetts was reserved by John Y. Scott, a deputy attorney general of Pennsylvania, until [illegible]

TO PLAN SETTLEMENT OF INTER-UNION DISPUTES

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP)— Final preparations were made today for the first meeting here of construction engineers labor leaders and contractors to draw up an agreement for settlement of inter-union disputes.

The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor's building trades division met under the direction of William J. McSorley, Cleveland, retiring president and upon adjournment reported everything in readiness. The negotiations are to be conducted under the auspices of that body.

M. J. McDonough, Oakland, Cal., head of the Plasterers union, elected yesterday to succeed President McSorley next February 1, today outlined his policy.

These were the same enumerated by President Hoover in opening his recent stabilization conference, closer cooperation of labor and employers, elimination of disputes and improvements in the organization.

The plan to be offered by the building trades unions includes suggestions that there be no strikes during the period of mediation and that one or more boards be set up to hear complaints and decide the issues involved.

One suggestion made today was that there be no sympathetic strikes, another was that contractors using non-union labor be included in the benefits of the treaty.

RACKETEERING FOUND TO BE PREVALENT IN THE BRONX

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.— (AP) — The Bronx September grand jury tonight ended an investigation of alleged racketeering in the building trades in that borough with a presentment charging "a vicious conspiracy to extort exorbitant sums of money from builders under conditions which should not prevail in a lawful community."

In addition, the presentment said, "The building industry itself deserves severe denunciation for its passive submission to being gouged and permitting such unlawful practices to become so deeply rooted in our country before registering complaints to the district attorney's office. x x x

"We have made a complete survey of the numerous fires that have occurred on uncompleted buildings, causing losses of millions of dollars worth of property. We are firmly convinced that many of these fires showed apparent indications of the same incendiary origin, but we were unable to procure any legal evidence that would enable us to indict the arsonists."

SPLIT RAIL CAUSE OF DERAILMENT OF TRAIN

FREMONT, N. C., Jan. 23—(AP)—A split rail was believed tonight to have caused six cars of Atlantic Coast Line railroad train No. 41, Washington to Wilmington, to career off the tracks near here early today, slightly injuring four persons.

Dan W. Gross, assistant to George B. Elliott, president of the railroad, suffered a fatal heart attack after engaging in rescue work.

Gross aided other members of the train crew in checking damages and in rendering aid to passengers after the cars left the tracks. He then went to Elliott's private car, which was attached to the train. He was seized with the heart attack there and fell dead.

DREDGE IS IN TROUBLE OFF CAPE HATTERAS

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 23—(AP)—After running aground, floating herself, and then resuming her voyage northward under her own power, the steam dredge Corozal, of Baltimore, with 29 men aboard again was in trouble off Cape Hatteras early tonight, and the Coast Guard cutter Mendota was speeding to her assistance.

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Viscount Esher, who for many years was one of the most noted and influential of British peers, died suddenly yesterday. He left a war diary in the custody of the British Museum to be kept sealed until 1981. Since the viscount was closely associated with royalty and was the representative in France of Lord Kitchener when the latter ruled the war office his diary one day is expected to furnish most important historical matter. He was 77.

ACTRESS LOSES SUIT AGAINST ROTHSTEIN ESTATE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. —(AP)—Inez Norton, blonde actress, today lost her suit against the estate of Arnold Rothstein, slain Broadway gambler, for a $20,000 life insurance policy.

Although she declared on the stand today that her relations with Rothstein were "the same as those of man and wife" and that she was "not ashamed of them," Miss Norton failed to convince Supreme Court Justice Alfred H. Townley that she was entitled to the $20,000 life insurance policy, now in possession of the court, which had first been made out to Rothstein's estate and then altered to make her the beneficiary.

The court ruled that the policy had not been properly transferred. Miss Norton's attorney announced that he would appeal.

In contradiction of Miss Norton's testimony regarding Rothstein's proposals of marriage, Tom Farley, college bred Negro, who for years was Rothstein's confidential servant, testified that the gambler had asked him to plead with Mrs. Rothstein and try to get her to return to him. Miss Norton had said he was about to get a divorce to marry her when he was killed.

"I saw her," Farley said, "and then told him I had talked to her two hours, but that she would not yield, and when I told him that he said:

"I am a ruined man. I really loved Carolyn."

MRS. GENEVIEVE O'BRIEN WAS ACQUITTED BY JURY

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien was acquitted by a jury tonight of the charge of conspiracy with Samuel Howard Dorr to murder her husband, William O'Brien.

The jury was out three and one-half hours.

The slaying occurred the night of Nov. 20, when O'Brien returned from his night job of street car conductor. He was a county employe in the daytime.

Mrs. O'Brien the next day said she shot her husband after a quarrel. Later she insisted that shots were fired both by herself and Samuel Howard Dorr, her confessed paramour, who last Saturday was found guilty of the murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. In this second story she stated that she and Dorr had planned the killing so they might continue their love affair and collect $5,000 in life insurance sold by Dorr to O'Brien.

BEER SEIZED IN LODGE ROOMS IN PAWTUCKET

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 23.—(AP)—A flourishing business in real old German beer was called to a halt tonight when the police liquor squad visited the lodge rooms of the Theodore Koerner lodge, a German organization, and confiscated 102 cases of beer, six barrels of mash and six barrels of beer.

Alexander Nebveck, alleged bar tender, was arrested, charged with the possession of beer for sale for beverage purposes. He was arraigned in a night session of the police court and released in $300 bonds.

Twenty persons were in the lodge rooms when the raid was made and 60 more called while the raid was in progress. The late-comers were not allowed in.

KIDNAPPED STUDENT WAS MISS SUSAN ALBRIGHT

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 23—(AP)—Miss Susan Albright, of Buffalo, N. Y., was the Smith college student who was kidnapped and held a prisoner for two hours, it was learned from an authoritative source here tonight.

The girl is a junior at the college and is the daughter of John J. Albright, a millionaire who was associated with the development of the Niagara Falls Power company. In 1900, he gave to the city of Buffalo the Albright Art gallery, consisting of famous paintings valued at almost $2,000,000.

Miss Albright's mother died several years ago and her father was reported to be sick at the family home in Buffalo.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers, held by New York federal reserve banks for the week ending January 22 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $3,341,000,000, representing a decrease of $24,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

NAVY PURSUIT PLANES NOW AT MILES CITY, MONT.

MILES CITY, Mont., Jan. 23—(AP)—Four pursuit planes, the vanguard of the army's Arctic patrol arrived here at 2:05 p. m. today in the midst of a snowstorm after a flight from Helena.

Eleven other pursuit planes landed on Rattlesnake lake near Billings for service and will continue here later.

U. S. DRY AGENTS PROVOKE FRENCH GOVERNMENT

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The French government announced tonight that it has no protest to make to Washington regarding visits at alleged undue hours by American prohibition agents to the steamer De Grasse. The announcement said that "having received no complaint, the French government can make no representations."

Business Situation Approaching Normal

Report Made to Presi[illegible] Hoover By Business [illegible] National Note.

WASHINGTON, Jan [illegible]—Business men of national [illegible] who have undertaken the direction [illegible] the effort instituted by President Hoover last month, to stimulate American commerce and industry during 1930, held their first meeting in Washington today to review progress and took the reports upon it to the white house.

President Hoover was notified that the general business situation of the country has "become so far normal that no unusual methods need to be considered for the stimulation of business beyond the policies of progress which ordinarily mark American industry."

"The figures for industry presented at the meeting showing the status of production and consumption up to mid-January were all encouraging," said a statement by Lewis E. Pierson, New York banker who acted as temporary chairman. Julius H. Barnes, the permanent chairman, was absent becaue of the death of his mother.

"The facts are now available for the last quarter of 1929 and the opening weeks of 1930," Pierson continued "A canvass of these shows that in the last months of 1929 there was a recession of business more than seasonable from its previous high level of activities. This recession, due to causes other than those involved in the business structure, has left no major problems to be solved. There are now evidences of growing activities and the current situation is favorable."

Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, attended the gathering, which included most of the members of the executive committee of the national business survey conference.

COLD HAMPERS RESCUE OF FLOOD SUFFERERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—As forecasters promised some moderation from winter's third frigid blast, which brought death to five persons and hampered rescue work among marooned flood sufferers, attention was centered upon further inundating dangers by a war department order for immediate investigation of an ice gorge on the Wabash river at Palestine, Ill.

Appeal to the secretary of war for the investigation was made by Governor Louis L. Emerson and Senator Otis Glenn of Illinois, who pointed out the rapid flooding of Illinois farm lands.

Persons living below the ice gorge at Palestine and another at Covington, Ind., were fearful that any break would release great volumes of water upon them, while the lands of persons living upstream were rapidly being inundated, the war secretary was informed.

Although the cold was reported moderated considerably in most of the middle west, many spots still shivered at some of the lowest temperatures in many years, Owensboro, Ky., was an example with 20 degrees below zero.

BROADCASTS OF NAVAL CONFERENCE SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A Sunday afternoon series of broadcasts regarding the five-power naval conference direct from London is being planned by the Columbia broadcasting system.

The broadcasts are to be in addition to those on Thursday evenings, and will consist of summaries of the activities of the parley by Frederick William Wile, CBS representative in London. During the series it is hoped to have talks by outstanding speakers, including the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lloyd George and Winston Churchill.

When plans are completed for the additional series, Mr. Wile will talk at 3 p. m. eastern time. His Thursday night broadcasts are at 8.15 o'clock, eastern time.

DENIAL OF INSURRECTION IN NORTHERN ALBANIA

ROME, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A dispatch to the Stefani News Agency from its correspondent in Tirana, capital of Albania, tonight said:

"It is officially stated that reports reaching Greek newspapers concerning a supposed insurrection in northern Albania are simply imaginative. With complete authority it is said that the "news" was inspired by bad faith and may be categorically denied as completely false."

JACK JOHNSON WAS FINED $25 FOR SPEEDING

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world today was fined $25 for speeding.

Explaining a previous failure to answer a summons, which resulted in issuance on Wednesday on a warrant for his arrest, the pugilist siad he had been in Philadelphia, and had missed a train that would have brought him to New York in time.

Killing Of Dry Agents Was Act Of Murder

Finding of Coroner's Jury at West Palm Beach in the Case of George W. Moore.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23—(AP)—A coroner's jury late today held that George W. Moore, alleged bootlegger, murdered two federal prohibition agents, killed last Saturday when they attempted to search the Moore home for liquor.

Immediately after the verdict of the jury, which stated that Robert K. Moncure and F. R. Paterson died from gunshot wounds "inflicted by George W. Moore in an act of murder," Justice T. M. Rickart announced he would issue a warrant holding Moore for the grand jury.

The defense bitterly contested the case throughout the inquest, bringing witness after witness in an attempt to prove that the agents had attempted an illegal search after night-fall with day time warrants.

Witnesses, including Mrs. Moore and her 14 year old daughter, Ollie, testified that the agents did not ring the door bell of the residence before attempting entry and that the raid was made after dark.

On the other hand, James S. Kugler and W. M. McNulty, two agents who survived the raid, declared it was still daylight when they attempted the search and that Moncure first showed the search warrant to Moore before asking him to open up the door.

The agents said the raiding party left headquarters at 5:50 p. m. for the Moore place and that it was still daylight when they got there.

SHOOTING OF BOATMAN BY CUSTOMS PATROL DEFENDED

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The shooting of a boatman in the Detroit river off Wyandotte last night by a customs border patrol inspector was defended by the officer and his companion today, who claimed the man was attempting to land a cargo of liquor.

The boatman, Walter Grund, 27, was in Wyandotte General hospital tonight with a bullet wound in his stomach which was expected to prove fatal. He was shot by Clare B. Hopper, of the border patrol, who with his companion officer, William H. Redford, was awaiting a fleet of smugglers' boats at a wharf at the foot of Maple street in Wyandotte shortly before midnight.

Grund was found lying in his rowboat which had come ashore three miles from the scene. The man whom the officers said was in the boat with him had disappeared. Before losing consciousness Grund told Wyandotte police he had had no liquor but had been cruising in the river with his companion in search of a missing motor boat.

Hopper and Redford appeared before Ward Culver, assistant prosecuting attorney, this afternoon and made statements regarding the shooting. Hopper told of sighting the approaching craft making for the wharf where a lookout was posted. He said he and Redford ran to the spot and the lookout fled. The men in the boat ignored their orders to surrender.

"We turned our flashlights on them and saw burlap sacks filled with bottles piled in the bow of the boat," said Hopper.

"Redford fired a couple of shots ahead of the boat and the man at the oars dropped them and made a move toward his hip. Then I fired and he fell over."

Hopper said they did not fire again as they saw the man was wounded. His companion then took the oars and pointed the boat out into the stream again. The two officers went to the Grosse Ile police station and reported the shooting, after which they set out in search of the boat.

REFORMED CHURCH MAY MERGE WITH PRESBYTERIAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Reformed Church in America today moved a step toward a proposed merger with the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America when the permanent committee on closer relations with other churches adopted a resolution favoring union of the two organizations.

Conferences throughout the church are planned to ascertain the opinions of its members and the committee will report at the June convention of the general synod in Asbury Park, N. J.

The permanent committee was appointed by the general synod last June at Holland, Mich.

THREE S. C. COTTON MILLS ADJUDGED BANKRUPT

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Three South Carolina cotton mills with a total capitalization of $450,000 within the past week have been adjudged bankrupt and placed in the hands of receivers.

The mills are the Blacksburg Spinning mill at Blacksburg, capitalized at $200,000; the Bowling Green mill at Bowling Green, capitalized at $100,000, and the Globe Manufacturing company at Gaffney, capitalized at $150,000.

MEXICAN GOVT. ORDERS ITS ENTIRE LEGATION TO LEAVE SOVIET RUSSIA

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 23—(AP)—The Mexican government today ordered its entire legation in Moscow to leave Soviet Russia as a protest against the recent communist demonstrations before the Mexican embassies in Washington, Buenos Aires, Argentina and Rio Janeiro, Brazil.

The Mexican administration holds that the Moscow government was responsible for the demonstrations.

Announcement of the step was made by Genaro Estrada, minister of foreign affairs. He revealed that the Mexican minister had been ordered to leave Moscow several days ago. Today the charge d'affaires and all others in the embassy personnel were directed to quit the Russian capital, "as an act of protest."

Senor Estrada, in handing out the written statement to the press, made no mention of the status of the Russian minister to Mexico. The statement said Mexico does not hold any of the countries where the demonstrations occurred, responsible for the happenings.

The foreign minister refused to amplify the written notice and Alexander Makar, Russian minister, also declined comment of any sort.

The statement said that Mexico had tried to maintain friendly relations with Russia, but that the latter had not appreciated this effort. This had produced a situation which "it is neither possible nor decorous to continue tolerating."

The statement referred to recent alleged terrorist plots by communists in Mexico. It said these had necessitated the arrest and deportation of several foreign communists and the jailing of a large number of Mexican communists. These measures in turn gave rise to the demonstrations before Mexican embassies abroad.

Senor Estrada emphasized in the announcement that Mexico was perfectly within its rights in taking action against the "red" within its borders. He said the government would continue to oblige all persons living in Mexico to respect its laws and not use the country as a place for hatching plots.

DRY LAW RECRIMINATIONS MULTIPLYING IN CONGRESS

Poisoning of Industrial Alcohol Attacked in the House—Senator Borah is Said to Have Obtained Information That Saloons Are Running Throughout the Country—Is Checking Up Report of Serious Charges Against Federal Officials Along the Canadian Border.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.— (AP) — Poisoning of industrial alcohol by the government was attacked again in the house today as plans went forward in both branches to formulate legislation to strengthen prohibition enforcement.

In executive session, the house expenditures committee ordered Prohibition Commissioner James W. Doran to furnish it with information on alcohol withdrawals in prohibition district 13, which includes Chicago. The committee is considering legislation for the transfer of the prohibition unit from the treasury to the justice department and will resume hearings tomorrow.

Commissioner Doran's stand for wood alcohol for industrial purposes came under the fire of Representative Sirovich, democrat, New York, who is sponsoring a bill to eliminate poisons from denatured alcohol. The New Yorker read a statement which he said was written by Doran to the effect that the prohibition bureau considered "oil compounds more effective as a denaturant and less easy to remove."

The house judiciary sub-committee also is to hold hearings tomorrow on bills to increase the powers of United States commissioners to try casual and slight offenders of the prohibition law.

Along with these developments, the civil service commission announced that tests conducted for prohibition agents in the past two years have resulted in the elimination of 1,200 who failed to meet the requirements. The cut in the personnel, which numbered 2,660 in 1927, the commission announced, was made gradually.

The eligibility of between 300 and 400 other agents is being investigated.

In the senate, a judiciary sub-committee planned hearings for tomorrow or Saturday on the King measure to effect the prohibition unit transfer. Meanwhile Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, had received information relative to enforcement conditions in New York city and along the Canadian border in which serious charges against federal officials have been made. He is making a check to ascertain the facts.

Borah, who has voiced objection to the administration's enforcement policy, is also understood to have obtained information to support his contentions that open saloons are running throughout the country. As soon as the tariff bill is disposed of, he is expected to disclose this information when the prohibition question again arises in the senate.

ANOTHER ARREST IN EAST HAMPTON BANK CASE

EAST HAMPTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Clarke W. Burnham, resigned executive vice president of the East Hampton Bank and Trust company, was arrested tonight on a charge of obtaining money from the bank under false pretenses.

Earle E. Stevens, former treasurer of the bank, was arrested last night on a similar charge and released in $10,000 bonds for a hearing on February 3. Burnham's case was also continued until February 3 tonight and he was released in $10,000 bonds.

Burnham is charged with having obtained $7,312.50 on an alleged fraudulent promissory note. In a similar manner, Stevens is charged with having obtained $6,350.

The two men were forced to resign from the bank after officials in a statement had revealed irregularities resulting in a loss of $70,000. The loss is fully protected by surety.

The directors of the bank decided to ask for the arrest of the two officials at a special meeting yesterday.

THREE MEN INJURED AS AUTO PLUNGED INTO RIVER

BRISTOL, Jan. 23—(AP)—Skidding on an icy boulevard here, an automobile containing two police officers and a prisoner plunged over a bank and into the Pequabuck river today, severely injuring the three men.

Wilbur Wallace, who was being taken to Hartford to answer a charge of non-support suffered a scalp wound which required eight stitches to close at a hospital here where he is confined.

The other two, Chief of Police Ernest T. Belden and Sergeant Henry Jeglinski, who owned the machine, were bruised and shaken up.

The other two, Chief of Police Ernest T. Belden and Sergeant Henry Jeglinski, who owned the machine, were bruised and shaken up.

The river was low and mostly covered by ice and the car was submerged only to the running board. It was not badly damaged by its plunge of eight feet over the bank.

18 RACE HORSES DIED IN FIRE AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23—(AP)—Fire that destroyed two barns at the fair grounds race track at dawn today killed eighteen race horses, two lead ponies and sent three men to the hospital.

Starting from an exploded oil stove, the flames swept swiftly through the long frame barn, and spread to an adjoining barn. The fire broke just as the stable men were rising for the morning. Many of the barely awakened men were just able to stumble to safety.

Rescuers had to break in a door to save Wilfred May, apprentice jockey, J. W. Smith and Phil Chatman, stablemen. They were sent to the hospital suffering from smoke inhalation and burns, but were expected to recover.

Fifteen horses were burned to death in their stalls in the first barn but all of the horses were taken out of the second barn.

WILL NOT OPPOSE FURTHER REPRIEVE FOR F. W. EDEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—Assistant District Attorney James E. MacDonald today said he would consent to a plea to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for a further reprieve for Frederick W. Edel, former waiter, sentenced to death for killing Mrs. Emeline Harrington, actress, in an upper West Side apartment.

McDonald's consent followed filing of a motion by Alexander I. Rorke, Edel's attorney, for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence. It is expected that Rorke's motion will be argued on January 27, the day on which the last reprieve granted Edel expires.

Mrs. Harrington was beaten to death on December 29, 1927 and Edel's arrest followed the finding of some of her possessions in a room he had occupied in the Taft hotel, New Haven, Conn.

OBITUARY

James F. Leonard

PORTCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 23.—(AP)—James F. Leonard, father of Frank Edward (Lank) Leonard, cartoonist and sports writer, died at his home here today of pneumonia. He was 59 years old.

Mr. Leonard, a native of Stamford, Conn., had been employed as a conductor on the New Haven road for 40 years. Besides his son, he is survived by his widow.

PREPARING SAFETY TESTS FOR SUNKEN SUBMARINES

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP) — Preparations went forward tonight for conducting the second of a series of safety tests off this port with a new device designed to allow occupants to escape safely from sunken undersea craft.

The invention is a mechanical "lung" tried out successfully here last year at varying depths. Improvements have been made on the device since then, however, and naval officers are anxious to experiment further with it. In tow of the navy tug Falcon, the S-4, in which the tests will be made, arrived here today from New London, Conn. The submarine will set out for a point several miles off shore to conduct the tests. The submarine is the same craft that sank in north Atlantic waters in December, 1927, carrying a number of men to their deaths.

PILIPINO SHOT TO DEATH BY MOB AT WATSONVILLE, CAL.

WATSONVILLE, Cal., Jan. 23—(AP)—With a Filipino shot to death, believed the victim of a mob which terrorized Filipino residents of this section, the race feeling situation today assumed serious proportions.

Engendered by resentment over the employment of Filipinos as farm laborers and by employment of white girls in a Filipino dance hall, anti-Filipino demonstrations reached their peak last night when about 500 white men armed with clubs, whips and firearms wrecked the interior of several Filipino residences and severely beat their occupants.

Authorities of Monterey and Santa Cruz counties took drastic steps to prevent a repetition of the disturbance, and with offers of assistance from the American Legion post of Santa Cruz, Salinas and Watsonville expected to maintain order.

TOURIST SHIP ASHORE IN STRAITS OF MAGELLAN

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 23—(AP)—There was doubt tonight of the safety of all of the crew and 1100 passengers of the tourist ship Monte Cervantes which went ashore in the Straits of Magellan yesterday.

Early reports indicated that the passengers had been transferred to the Argentine war transport Vicente Fidel Lopez, but late today the prefect of Ushuaia telegraphed that the transport was cruising along Beagle Bay in the hope of finding some lifeboats which had gone astray. The prefect expressed his own belief that all the passengers had been rescued, but he said it was impossible to check on this accurately because of the conflicting reports that had reached him.

DENIAL BY NEW JERSEY DRY LAW ADMINISTRATOR

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 23—(AP)—Returning from Washington today, William J. Calhoun, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, issued a statement in which he said he was unaware, when he consented to lend some of his men to raid "a place," that it was the summer lodge of Colonel Arthur F. Foran.

Calhoun's statement said that the Rev. James K. Shields, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in the state, asked him for men to raid "a place," and if he had known it was Foran's lodge, he would not have sent his agents to assist Braidwood.

The Anti-Saloon league today released a picture purporting to show a bar and two slot machines in Foran's place.

SCANDAL INVOLVES N. Y. PRISON ATTENDANTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain tonight said his investigation of [illegible] methods in magistrates' courts has revealed that men, through collusion with prison attendants, procure release of women held for trial and then threaten the women and return them to jail if they refuse to accede to demands for money.

Mr. Crain said one woman, arrested on a shoplifting charge, told him a man had taken $60 from her while she was being held for trial and that a pair of men later had taken her out of Harlem prison and, after a ride about town, persuaded her to sign a draft for $500 in their favor.

Earlier today Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen announced that Police Lieutenant Patrick F. [illegible], attached to a Bronx station, will be tried for [illegible] a professional bondsman.

"I was all run-down and out of spirits before my third baby was born so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me with all my troubles and gave me an appetite where before I didn't eat at all. I did all of my housework up to the day my baby came, as I am a farmer's wife and could not afford help. I feel just dandy now and I will answer any letters and I will tell every one how good this medicine is."—Mrs. Ira Arnold.

"I read an ad. in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. I have given birth to eight boys and I always feel strong right after, since I have taken the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Maud Meyers.

DANIELSON

PROSECUTOR AND CLERGYMEN CONFER ABOUT PROHIBITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 23—Comment made by speakers at the recent observance of the tenth anniversary of prohibition here, and which had been construed in some quarters as critical of officers of the town court, led this morning to a conference between Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill and Rev. A. E. Gallup of the Nazarene church, Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church, Rev. Albert Abbott of the Methodist Episcopal church and Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church. Mr. Bill had invited some of these clergymen to appear before him and present such evidence as they might have to warrant proceeding with prosecutions of alleged violators of the prohibition law.

Mr. Bill said this afternoon that the conference did not develop that the clergymen had sufficient evidence to proceed with any prosecution at present; that suspicions were held against certain persons as violators of the liquor laws and that an effort will be made to obtain sufficient evidence to warrant court action. It appears from this morning's conversations between Attorney Bill and the pastors that they previously had made representations to the state police relative to the matter herein discussed.

It was represented to Mr. Bill by the clergymen during today's discussion that conditions here are such that they should be corrected. It also was suggested that heavier penalties should be imposed on second offenders, and that this class of liquor law violators should be given jail sentences instead of fines.

The next move in the situation will be the development of the necessary evidence to proceed with the making of arrests and the starting of court action.

Tonight Rotarians of the Danielson and Putnam clubs held a joint meeting here at St. Alban's parish house. A bountiful supper was served. During the evening there was group singing and the presentation of some special numbers. Features were provided by the visiting Rotarians. The speaker of the evening was Rev. William C. Prentiss, pastor of the Congregational church at Plainfield, and his subject Out on the Open Road. Ernest R. Warren was chairman of the committee of arrangements and Gordon J. Gale and Thomas Hope, Moosup, other members of the committee.

OBITUARY

Joseph Trahan

A death here today was that of Joseph Trahan, 53, after a long illness. Mr. Trahan was a native of Canada, but had spent the greater part of his life in the United States. Before his health began to fail he was a loomfixer in a local mill. He leaves his wife and the following children: Mrs. Angelina Breton, of Biddeford, Me., Mrs. Ray Hemingway of Versailles, Mrs. Armand Genest, Joseph, Jr., Armand, Rudolph, Alfred, Lionel, Theresa and Evelyn of Danielson. There are also six brothers and three sisters.

Difficulties being experienced by local business concerns and individuals in making collections of bills owed them has led to consideration of the formation of a credit bureau. It is clearly established that many who are not paying bills for necessaries of life, do pay promptly for many things that are non-essentials; that they operate motor vehicles and spend money imprudently. If the credit bureau is established, persons in this category will find it difficult to obtain goods on a deferred payment basis, and also will be subjected to special pressure for payment of overdue bills. The credit situation has become such as to handicap numbers of men doing business here.

Walter G. Bruce, head of the agricultural department of Killingly high school is preparing groups of boys in his classes for judging contests to be held later at the Connecticut Agricultural college, passing on dairy cattle and poultry. In the competitive trials now underway the boys are taken to farms and given opportunity to demonstrate their ability as juvenile judges. March 1, a dairy cattle judging team of three and a poultry judging team of three will be selected from among the competitors. These will be given special coaching for a month before going to Storrs to compete.

Mr. Bruce said this afternoon that a chapter of the Future Farmers of America is being formed at the high school. There are a great many chapters of this organization in the country, many of them in the south and west.

PUTNAM

B-L ASSOCIATION REPORTS SHOW PROFITABLE YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 23—The 28th semi-annual report of condition of the Putnam Building and Loan association was made public this morning by Judge Mahlon H. Geissler, secretary of the organization. The financial statistics show the association to have enjoyed a successful period in the past six months and also indicate an encouraging outlook for the year. Receipts for six months from July 1, 1929 amounted to $69,533.83. Assets and liabilities equal $378,652.27. The largest item of asset is the mortgage loans which amount to $324,200. Earnings have been good and for the six months period have been unusually healthy. Gross earnings have been $9,808.14, the largest single item under this head being interest earned which was $9,254.89.

Twenty-eight series of shares have been issued since the association was organized in 1916. The total dividend of December 31, 1929 computed at 5 per cent interest compounded amounts to $7,611.43. The Building and Loan association has just completed its 14th year of successful business. In the past two years it has had 488 shares mature, redeeming those shares by giving certificates or cash to the amount of approximately $98,576. In 1928 the dividends which were credited to the shareholders amounted to $14,989.05; and in 1929, to $15,166.67. Since the organization of the association, shareholders have been paid dividends at a rate of five per cent compound interest. A note of interest incorporated in Secretary Geissler's report is the fact that the number of shareholders in the association has never exceeded the 400 mark. This, he says, is in sharp contrast with similar building societies in other towns and cities where the membership extends into the thousands.

The annual meeting of the Building and Loan association will be held in the chamber of commerce rooms, Union block on Tuesday evening, January 28th at eight o'clock for the purpose of hearing the reports of the present staff of officers and to elect officers for the ensuing year. During the past year the association has been headed by Alexander Gilman, president, John M. Dean Jr., Ernest B. Kent and Herbert J. Smith, vice presidents. W. E. Moss is treasurer.

PUTNAM BOY MISSING FROM HOME SINCE WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 23—Police were engaged today in an effort to learn the whereabouts of Edward Burzch, 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burzch of School street, who was reported by his parents as missing from home since 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. The complaint was received by Sergt. Alpherie Sponcey of the local police who procured the following information from the parents of the boy. He weighed 150 pounds, was about 5 feet 6 inches in height, was of a fair complexion with auburn colored hair. When last seen he was thought to have been wearing a suit of blue mixture; a white rubber trench style coat; a gray cap and tan shoes. He was carrying a light leather suit case. The youth said nothing to his parents and when he did not return to his home for the evening meal Wednesday the anxiety of his parents was aroused that caused his father to give an alarm to police. Sergt. Sponcey and other officers of the department assisted in a search of the places in the city where the boy was known to have frequented. Friends of Edward's were also advised of his plight and were requested to send information concerning his whereabouts to his home or to police. Mr. Burzch told Sergt. Sponcey that he knew of no reasons for his son's sudden departure. At a late hour this afternoon Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil stated that no word had been received from the boy.

JEWETT CITY

COPIES OF WHALING TALE RECEIVED IN BOROUGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 23—Daniel L. Phillips, S. D. Howe and Dr. G. H. Jennings, the local members of the New London County Historical society, have received their copies of Life on a Whaler, a narrative of Antarctic adventures in The Isle of Desolation, by Nathaniel W. Taylor, M. D. in 1858. It is published after a lapse of nearly three-quarters of a century. The ship, Julius Caesar, was a famous New London vessel. The voyage lasted more than 21 months, from August 13, 1851, until June 4, 1853. The distance covered was 23,000 miles. The skipper was Ebenezer Morgan, of Groton. Among the men before the mast, was one from Norwich, Calvin Swan, and one from Willimantic, Thomas E. Campbell.

WET-DRY ISSUE DEBATED AS LONG AGO AS LYCEUM

Fifty years ago, Jan. 22, one of the most important questions of the time was discussed and settled at a meeting of the Hopeville Lyceum. "Does the public good require the appointment of a town agent for the sale of intoxicating liquors?" The affirmative was taken by Messrs. Roode, Smith and Phillips, while those who supported the negative were Lafayette Kinney, Joseph Roode and Mr. Tyler. As the result of overpowering argument, the question was decided in the affirmative. Many will recall that the town of Griswold during those days was what was known as a see-saw town. This term applied not only in its annual decisions in reference to the political management of the town, but to the license question as well. Whether the decision of the question at the lyceum had any bearing on the matter is not known now, 50 years later. About that time the late Israel Mathewson was duly appointed town agent, and he kept on draft a fine assortment of liquors which were sold on off-license years, in case of cold in the head, or kindred diseases. He is recalled by some of the old-timers that an especial brand was known as "6 by 8"; this, at $1 per quart, is said to have been especially efficacious for all ills that flesh is heir to.

The World Wide guild girls met at the home of Mrs. J. P. Post Tuesday evening. The president, Winifred Scates, presided. Beatrice Cathcart had charge of the program, which was taken from the study book, Going to Jerusalem. The subject was, When Knighthood was in Flower, the aim being to show the strange influence of the crusades. The first subject was Why the Pilgrims began going to Jerusalem, the second, The great length of the trip and its hardships, the third, the A-la-Sante-Perre; fourth, Pilgrims mistreated by the Moslems; fifth, Children's Crusade, Effect of Crusades on Europe, Kindlier relations between overlords and subjects; the story of Francis of Assisi; story of Raymond Lull. Four new members were initiated, using the guild initiation ritual: Sarah, Glorianna and Lois Gill and Ruth Cathcart. Chicken sandwiches, fancy cookies, fruit ambrosia and cocoa were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Amy Coles, of Hope lodge, officiated as deputy marshall, and Mrs. Lillian Spicer was installed as treasurer, at the installation of Ruthie Rebekah lodge officers Tuesday evening.

The Whoopee-La club of Voluntown gave the president, Mrs. H. T. Thurber, a birthday surprise party Sunday afternoon. She received many beautiful remembrances, and the social time was very enjoyable. There are eighteen members in this club the other officers being Mrs. Mary Burton, vice president; Mrs. Mabel Church, secretary, and Mrs. Winnie Leroux, treasurer. The club is planning a Valentine supper.

MARVELLOUS FROST WORK BEFORE SUNRISE THURSDAY

Jack Frost, as a manufacturer of lace of the most dainty patterns, had on exhibition all through this section before sunrise Thursday morning, a wonderful display of his handiwork. The shrubbery, trees and wires, presented the frost work to the best advantage, although every object out of doors was beautifully decorated. Those who examined the single leaf-like sprays, found the minute patterns, traced in intricate design, even more perfectly than the most delicate lace. Before the rising sun, the grand display vanished in a few minutes.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

SORE MUSCLES LIMBER UP QUICKLY

The first application of Musterole often brings relief. Used once every hour for 5 hours it should result in complete comfort.

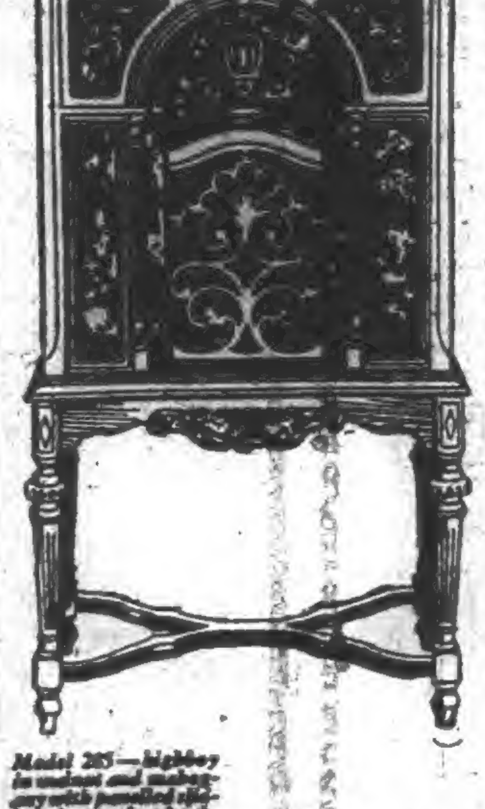
what is TRI-TONED radio?



Model 285—highboy in walnut and mahogany with panelled sliding doors—hand rubbed high-gloss finish—price, $285, without tubes.

Every musical sound has (1) pitch—is high or low, (2) intensity or loudness, (3) tone or character by which we distinguish one instrument or voice from another. In the new Grebe you have perfect blending of all three . . . Tri-toned radio!

Made possible by the equalized band pass filter, exclusive Grebe development. A principle of the future, introduced now in this new set—re-creates tone so lifelike, so true, that the instrument becomes the sound-image of the figure before the microphone.

Four models, each beautiful furniture, $219.50 to $450, without tubes. Hear Tri-toned radio in this store—and in your home where a 48-hour demonstration will gladly be given.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN AT EIGHTH STREET

Well may Ohio be distressed by the grade crossing accident when the lives of nine school children were snuffed out as a fast mail train crashed into a bus. This was only one of several accidents at crossings which have piled up a heavy death list of late.

From the investigation which has been conducted, the announcement is made that the death of the school children was due to the carelessness of the driver, the crossing being an open one where a view of the track could be seen for a distance of three miles in either direction. It was a case of making sure that no trains were coming and then going ahead. The driver failed to do his duty in this respect. He did just what he ought not to have done and even though he paid for his neglect with his life he also was responsible for the loss of the other lives.

The accident occurred at what would not be regarded as a dangerous crossing, but even at such points there is always the possibility of making the use of the highway dangerous by trying to dispute the way with a locomotive.

It is a crossing that is not regarded as sufficiently hazardous to have anything in the way of a warning for the highway users except the customary sign. There was no signal indicating the approach of a train because it was considered that an observant driver would have taken the precaution to look and listen. And yet, if the crossing had been equipped with such an uncertain signal system as has been placed at dangerous Eighth street in this city, which fails to indicate the approach of trains and holds up highway traffic when no train is approaching, there would have been little surprise at the fatalities.
